"The Lion and the Mouse" continued to fill the Stillman theatre during the second week of its engagement. While fifty per cent of the interest lay in the novelty of talking pictures, the picture itself attracted wide interest and most favorable comment. It is being held a third week, proving an unusual summer success.

"The Bellamy Trial" did very well at the Allen. The sustained mystery, its accuracy, and its clever presentation received excellent public support.

"Flying Romeos" did so-so at the State. Followers of the Sidney-Murray comedies were on hand, but they weren't enough to keep the house filled.

"Good Morning, Judge," a rattling good comedy spotted with melodramatic moments, was well liked at Keith's Palace, but didn't draw very big business. The heat and uncertain weather with thunder showers was the public's alibi for letting this picture get away from them in spite of its popular appeal.

Keith's East 105th Street had just average business the first half of the week with "Broadway Daddies," well worn tale of the hounded chorus girl, as the feature attraction. An excellent tie-up with a chain drug store for sale of Midnight Rose face powder put over the picture, "Midnight Rose," the last half of the week.

The Park had fair business both the first half of the week with "Ladies of the Mob" and the last half of the week with "The Wheel of Chance." Both were first-run neighborhood engagements.

Los Angeles

BUSINESS, in general, was good this past week. Several houses are not doing capacity, but, on the whole, there is little foundation for complaint.

At the Carthay Circle, "Lilac Time," starring Colleen Moore, enjoyed splendid patronage and continued to draw. The First National attraction is in its third week.

At Loew's State, Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady," with Conrad Nagel featured, opened Friday and the week-end business was most encouraging.

Warner Brothers' theatre in Hollywood continues to attract. It is generally conceded that the Vitaphone accompaniments to pictures that have run at the Hollywood house, are responsible for the crowds assembled outside the theatre at every performance. "Women Men Talk About" is being succeeded by "Lights of New York."

United Artists theatre, where John Barrymore in "Tempest" holds forth, proudly proclaims capacity and indications are that this picture will clean up on the engagement.

At the Metropolitan "Lady Be Good" succeeds "Temptation" and with Dorothy Mackail and Jack Mulhall featured, "Lady" promises a good week for the house where the First National picture is being shown.

It has been announced that Grauman's Chinese will re-open August 3. The attraction, "White Shadows," with which it will begin its season is advertised as a sound picture and is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer product.

San Francisco

ANOTHER remarkable week for this time of the year for some of the San Francisco first run motion picture theatres has just been witnessed. Even though the climate is not warm in this city in July, many leave the city for their vacations and that is what tends to injure business as well as the fact that many spend their afternoons and also evenings on the many miles of beach, practically in the city limits of San Francisco.

Loew's Warfield and the new El Capitan theatres were crowded all the week, both evenings and afternoons. In the El Capitan theatre, the picture "Lingerie," together with big stage presentations were shown. The picture was well liked.

"The Cossacks," together with big stage presentations by Fanchon & Marco, drew eceptionally well. The acting was considered remarkable.

Thomas Meighan, always popular in this city, drew but fairly well at the Granada theatre in the picture "The Racket." Here also was presented good presentation acts. This time a Publix Review.

"The Street Angel," as shown at the St. Francis theatre, was well liked by those attending, and while at the afternoon performances the theatre was practically empty, the first three evenings it was full. Here a 110 piece Fox Movietone attracted many.

Elinor Glyn's picture, "The Mad Hour," together with vaudeville acts, crowded the Golden Gate theatre in the evenings. Elinor Glyn is very popular and well known in San Francisco.

The Union Square reported fair business with the picture "Stronger Will" and vaudeville acts.

"The Man Who Laughs," shown at advanced prices at the Columbia, did not do so well the last and third week, although all seeing this picture praised it to the skies. High prices and weather conditions is the reason this remarkably produced picture did not draw more.

"Thanks for the Buggy Ride," shown at the Alexandria, while drawing many in the evenings, did not prove so popular with the crowds as was expected of this picture.

The Coliseum theatre did fair with "Under the Black Eagle" on the screen and vaudeville acts.

Portland

RED hot summer weather has cut the business just about in two, though the larger houses are equipped with modern ventilation and brought the temperature down to 72 degrees, yet the majority not on their summer vacations preferred the outside attractions and swimming pools.

The most profitable opening in the history of the Blue Mouse, according to Manager Norman, was when "The Lights of New York" went on and thousands waited in line to see and hear the first all talking picture to be shown here.

At the Portland Theatre, business was fair with Richard Barthelmess in "The Wheel of Chance." Homer McDonald gave some novelty numbers on the Wurlitzer and Harry Linden with his orchestra gave his usual finished numbers.

"Fleetwing," the sheik story, was the screen offering at Pantages, which took its audience back to Valentino days; while the other snappy acts kept the summer blues away, and fair business was the result.

At Tebbett's Oriental the mechanical snow breeze was in evidence as advertised, which helped considerably in filling the house. On the screen, Temple Bailey's "Wallflowers," and on the stage the Nordic Sisters, vocal harmonizers, registered nicely. Glen Shelly and Josef Srodka furnished the instrumental number most satisfactorily.

"Buck Privates" at the Columbia put a comedy touch in the week's bills. The work of Zazu Pitts in her inimitable portrayal as "the dumb girl friend" was enjoyed and brought good evening business.

Bessie Love in person in Fanchon and Marco's final offering at the Broadway gave her audiences as charming an entertainment on the stage as she has heretofore on the screen and was a welcome addition to an all-around good bill, including "Bringing Up Father," on the screen, and which helped the receipts to hold about normal. The Thursday night dance after the show with Georgie Stoll's music continues to gain favor.

Kansas City

IT seems as though the theatre-going public of Kansas City at last has awakened to the fact that the first run houses downtown have modern cooling systems and that it is not hot inside. Business, at least, has shown a decided upward trend in the past two weeks and virtually all downtown houses enjoyed good attendance last week.

At the Mainstreet "The Butter and Egg Man" played to good crowds all week, as did "The Cossacks" at the Midland, featuring John Gilbert.

"Road House" at the Pantages did an exceptionaly good week's business, being well over the mark of the preceding week.

Bebe Daniels in "Hot News" at the Newman held up well, doing a better business than the previous week.

Richard Dix in Paramount's new Movietone, "Warming Up," attracted good crowds, as did "Heart to Heart" at the Uptown. In each case all the exploitation used by theatres pertained more to their respective cooling systems than it did the picture, in so far as advertising was concerned.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI exhibitors, who for the past several weeks have not only been seeing red, but writing it as well, are again optimistic, for a sudden respite from the continued torrid spell has brought hope to their hearts as well as shekels to their box offices.

However, just before the cool break, the Albee began to show appreciable improvement in patronage, due to the special cooling system just installed, which really lived up to all advertised claims.

During the past week the Albee, with William Haines, in "Telling the World," together with six acts, did a very nice business, which in many ways was comparable to the regular season.

The Lyric, with "Old San Francisco," although not piling up an unusual gross, nevertheless had a week which was quite satisfactory to the management.

Emil Jannings in "The Street of Sin" at the Capitol, drew exceedingly well, where both the Movietone and Vitaphone helped out considerably.

"His Tiger Lady" at Keith's brought in many more customers than have been seen at this house in the past several weeks.

The Strand, presenting "Three-Ring Marriage," had larger crowds than for some time past, and all in all reports a very good week.

"Riders of the Dark" at the Family, first half, and "Beware of Married Men," last half, did only an average business for the week.

The Palace, pictures and vaudeville, had an unusually good seven days, business at this house increasing steadily as the week advanced.

Minneapolis

BUSINESS picked up at the Minneapolis theatres last week, chiefly because there were some excellent box-office attractions in town.

The Minnesota, for example, showed "The Racket," and this underworld picture proved a first rate drawing card. It was shown with the Publix stage show, "Hey, Hey."

At the State "Glorious Betsy" was holding forth, and the crowds seemed to like this Vitaphone picture immensely.

Pantages got hold of a boxoffice stimulant in "Road House," with Lionel Barrymore, and made the most of it by advertising it rather heavily.

The Hennepin-Orpheum showed "A Ship Comes In," a nice little human interest film which seemed to please the vaudeville fans, while the Lyric did a lively business with Syd Chaplin in "Skirts."

Business at the neighborhood houses was just fair, as a rule, with the Loring, Lagoon, Rialto, Lyndale and American featuring such pictures as "Happiness Ahead," "The Drag Net," "The Latest from Paris" and "Beware of Married Men."

Pittsburgh

LOEW'S Penn played to packed houses all week in spite of the hot weather. "Diamond Handcuffs" was the screen fare, and proved but average entertainment. A Charlie Chase comedy, "The Fight Pest," made a big hit. The stage presentation was the Publix Unit entitled "Chinese Nights."

The Stanley also enjoyed a good week's business with "The Wheel of Chance," featuring Richard Barthelmess in a dual role, proving a crackerjack production.. This one received much praise from press and public alike. "A Garden Party" was the name of the stage presentation, and featured the Marie MacQuarrie Harp Ensemble, an act which has clicked several times before in this city at other theatres.

Esther Ralston in "Half a Bride" pleased better than average audiences at the Grand. The statuesque beauty is a great favorite here. One vaudeville act was also on the bill.

The Cameraphone again had a double program bill, offering "Finders Keepers" and "Walking Back." Both productions proved to be good entertainment, and a fair week's business was turned in.

At the Liberty a new policy of split week bills was inaugurated. This is the first time that the Liberty has played productions for less than a week in the past ten years. The first half saw "Harold Teen" and the last half "Easy Come, Easy Go" was the attraction. But average business greeted the new policy.

Ottawa

THERE was horse racing at Connaught Park during the week of July 21, but it did not cut into theatre attendance in Ottawa, Ontario, and local exhibitors more or less enjoyed the ponies like anybody else. Great variety was seen in the current pictures and patronage generally was up to summer average.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" at the Regent Theatre proved to be very enjoyable, and there were good crowds both matinee and night. They went away smiling.

Plenty of action and much change of locale were seen in "Hold 'Em, Yale," at B. F. Keith's Theatre, which filled out a well-balanced program there. Rod LaRocque might have been miscast but he works strenuously to put the picture across.

The many patrons at the Imperial Theatre opened their eyes when they saw Anita Page in "Telling the World." She was as much the picture as William Haines. Big crowds enjoyed this comedy-melodrama all week, even though it looked like blood-and-thunder in spots.

"Fashion Madness" made a good eyefull at the Center Theatre for the first half, and the ladies were out in fair force to see Claire Windsor. There were considerably more men in the audience during the last half when Viola Dana was doing capers in "That Certain Thing." Business was better for the latter.

The neighborhood houses had big pictures for second run and patronage was very fair in each case—better than for the two previous weeks.

"The Gorilla" stood up well at the Columbia, but the real attraction was "The Legion of the Condemned" at the Rex, business being excellent with this one.

"Rose Marie" tickled the followers at the Fern Theatre largely because they took the picture at its face value and without thought of the stage play, which it did not resemble in the slightest. The juveniles particularly were thrilled with "Rose Marie."

Atlanta

LEADING off with a full flung banner box-office, the Howard enjoyed a glorious week with its first sound picture, "The Lion and the Mouse," topping it over the other theatres by a good margin.

Next in line came Keith's Georgia with Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in "Heart to Heart."

The Capitol, showing Dolores Del Rio in "No Other Woman," held an average week, but this picture did not live up to previous Del Rio works.

Loew's Grand fell off with Ramon Novarro and Renee Adoree in "Forbidden Hours" due most probably to the keen competition next door, the Howard.

The Rialto enjoyed a fair run playing Madge Bellamy in "The Play Girl," while the Metropolitan dropped with "Lingerie."

"The Red Raiders" and "Tumbling River" held the Tudor steady.

The New Alamo had a week of second runs to usually good houses.

Tampa

(Previous Week)

IT might not be such a bad idea for the theatres of Tampa to arrange to put the weather man on the pay roll, either straight salary or percentage, and have him cook up a string of "rainy Sundays" during the summer. Last Sunday, like the previous one, was an all day drizzle and it produced another big day's business for the show folks by keeping the crowds away from the beaches.

The Tampa opened the week with "Dressed To Kill" and it brought good business Sunday but following right behind "The Racket" it seemed to suffer a little by comparison and the following three days went over just about average.

"Hot News" was featured the last half and Bebe did better, giving the house three days of nice business.

"The Jazz Singer," brought in for a return date at the Victory where it played to big business for two solid weeks in February, has simply repeated the draw and held the business right up to "big" for the full week. On the same program were four excellent Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News.

The Strand had a good week. "Buck Privates" started the week with two very good days. "13 Washington Square" did nicely but not a real draw, and "Skirts," used the last two days, went over the top to excellent returns.

"Green Grass Widows" drew nicely for the Franklin the two first days of the week. Then the four days of second runs, with "Phantom of the Opera" and "The Garden Of Eden" featured, kept the crowds coming, the Chaney film having a little the best of it. "The Phantom Of The Range" used for Saturday only was just about average.

Tampa

DOWN here the usual thing, during the "rainy season," is a daily tropical downpour, followed by sunshine. Last Sunday was an exception to the rule with one of those long drawn out "drizzles" which started about noon and continued through the supper show. The drizzle played into the hands of the show folks by keeping the crowds from the beaches and most all Tampa theatres enjoyed a very good day.

The Tampa, with "The Cossacks" featured, pulled the best business in many months, and followed up this Sunday record with three more good days. "The Racket," featured the last half, went over good, giving the house a very satisfactory week.

The Victory continued to pull big business. "The Crimson City" was the feature attraction, but two of the "talkie" acts were the real features. Irene Rich, in "The Beast" was the feature of the four Vitaphone presentations, and Raquel Meller, the Spanish Concert Artist, was the Movietone feature.

"Let 'er Go Gallegher" pulled a very good business on Sunday for the Strand, but it failed to hold up and Monday went over just fair. "Honor Bound" failed to develop a draw showing only fair returns for the three days showing. "Three-Ring Marriage" drew about the average business the last two days.

The Franklin had a good card in "The Sunset Legion," starting the week in good shape. "Across To Singapore" and "The Crowd" were the second runs used this week and they both did nicely.

"The Pinto Kid" was used for Saturday showing only and did fair.

Harrisburg, Pa.

THOUGH continued excessive heat kept kept down attendance at all the theatres to some extent, those who saw the pictures offered in the first-run houses during the week had flattering things to say about most of them.

"Diamond Handcuffs," appearing at Loew's Regent, and featuring Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel, Gwen Lee and Charles Stevens, seemed to make an especially favorable impression.

The Victoria's offering was Clara Bow in "Ladies of the Mob." Miss Bow has grown to be a great Harrisburg favorite.

Billie Dove, in "The Yellow Lily," made a good impression at the Colonial.

At the State during the first half of the week the film show was "Broadway Daddies," a light production that seemed well adapted for midsummer entertainment, while the last three days the picture feature was Lionel Barrymore in "Royal House," which had popular appeal.

Dallas

(Previous Week)

UNUSUALLY hot weather failed to effect Dallas theatres the past week as business at all of the first run houses has been very satisfactory. Grosses show substantial increase over the past two weeks at the leading theatres.

"Half A Bride" with Esther Ralston and Gary Cooper brought the Palace some unusually good business for the seven day run. Good publicity and special Lou Forbes week helped to boost the totals.

At the Melba "Glorious Betsy" with Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel brought the Melba its best business of the year. The Melba has steadily increased its patronage since its opening and since the late installation of Movietone, business has been all that could be expected.

"The Play Girl" starring Madge Bellamy brought the Majestic its usual good receipts and turned the patrons away well satisfied. A good Interstate bill was responsible for a large part of the business and was well received.

"Women's Wares" with Bert Lytell and Evelyn Brent proved a good bill for the Capitol theatre and business for the week showed a substantial increase over the past few weeks.

"For the Love of Mike" with Ben Lyon and George Sidney brought the Old Mill average business although the picture was a little below par.

Receipts at the Arcadia, the suburban deluxe theatre of Dallas, maintained its exceptionally good average and the totals for the week were unusually good with a lot of the credit going to "Love Me and the World is Mine," starring Norman Kerry and Betty Compson.

Milwaukee

THE mid-summer slump was very apparent in the down town picture houses last week. Good old-fashioned hot weather in large doses is very probably accountable for the poor business the theatres experienced

The Wisconsin offered "Easy Come, Easy Go," which was accorded moderate patronage.

The Garden was an exception to the prevalent poor business. "Lights of New York" was featured and each night a long line formed at the box office at an early hour and continued until patrons were turned away. The picture is being held over for several weeks showing.

"His Tiger Lady" at the Merrill was not very well attended.

"Detectives" at the Strand drew very slim houses.

The Alhambra offered "The Hawk's Nest" and here too business was very slow.

The vaudeville theatres too felt the effects of the hot weather. At both the Palace and Riverside, things were far from brisk. The Palace offered "A Ship Comes In" and the Riverside featured "The Yellow House."

Neighborhood theatres experienced the same depression in business. "The Big Killing," featured at the Uptown, Garfield, and Modjeska, was far from average as a business getter.

"Across to Singapore," the offering at the Oriental and Tower, met with much the same results.

"Ramona" was fairly well attended at the Venetian.

Salt Lake City

SOME very unusually good reports regarding business at the Salt Lake first-run houses have been made this past week, considering the exceptionally hot weather which has been experienced here for the past few days.

"Tempest," John Barrymore's newest production, is packing the house at the Capitol, with many having had to be turned away for the first few nights. In addition to this production, the stage offering, Fanchon and Marco's "Bird Idea," has proven to be a very well-liked bit of entertainment.

The Victory Theatre is continuing to keep up the record-breaking attendance reports since the installation of the perfected Vitaphone, and this week's presentation of "The Lights of New York" has packed the houses nightly.

Madge Bellamy and Johnny Mack Brown, in "The Play Girl," has done a fairly satisfactory business at the Paramount Empress this past week.

Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris, in "Powder My Back," at the American Theatre has been well received by moderate crowds.

Unusually good business was enjoyed at the Pantages, which, possibly, was mostly due to the personal appearance of Mae Murray at this house, and with a good share of honors going to the picture presentation "Bringing Up Father."

"The Sunset Derby," with Mary Astor, William Collier, Jr., and Ralph Lewis, was well received by good-sized houses at the Gem Theatre.

The Isis, a second-run house here, reports very good business for the summer, and the Rialto has done an average business this week on the second showing of "The Patent Leather Kid," which was liked immensely as a rule.

Detroit's "Movie Season" Opens August 4

Detroit's 1928-29 film season will open Saturday, August 4, with the launching of the annual "Greater Movie Season" observance in virtually all the local picture houses. To start the season, theatres and producers are announcing many special features for the month.

H. M. Richley, manager of the exhibitors association, while reviewing the past accomplishments issued the following statement: "Last year brought forth many exceptionally fine pictures, and Detroit picture fans were more enthusiastic than ever over screen entertainment. The outstanding innovation, of course, has been talking films. There has been an elaboration of stage and musical features, lending new attraction to local screen programs. Talking pictures will be improved and the possibility of this form of amusement seems unlimited."

Opinions on Pictures

Beau Broadway

No Great Shakes, But Pleasant Enough

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

AN old recipe is served here, that of the weather-beaten man-about-town who, tiring of playing fast and loose, takes up the more than pleasant pastime of seeking favors with a girl who has both youth and beauty and innocence. He has had a deep-dyed past which fascinates the youngster. Naturally the latter is attracted to him after she has shown mild interest in a youth of her own age. But all parties in this quadrangle are paired off at the finish. The discarded woman in the philanderer's life takes to the young man, while the fast-aging roue finds a measure of happiness in his ward. The girl, you see, had been intrusted to him by a dying gladiator of the prize-ring. You also see that Mr. Roue is a promoter of fights.

That's about all there is to it insofar as outlining the story is concerned. You have it under your belt now—so make the most of it. The good points are the scenes of "give and take" indulged in by the four principals. It isn't very authentic. Some two or three shots of Broadway and environs are shown to present the atmosphere. The action is mild—the fight scene not registering very well. The best feature is the acting as turned in by Lew Cody in one of his typical roles, Aileen Pringle, who gets all there is out of the role of the other woman, and Sue Carol, who is vivacious, pretty and talented to boot. Keep your eyes on this girl. She's stepping fast these days. Hugh Trevor is okay as the youth. There have been better Cody-Pringle pieces.

Drawing Power: Title and cast should attract them for any house. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Bill as diverting picture of the power of love. Play up stars and Sue Carol.

THEME: Romantic drama of elderly playboy who gets new lease on life and finds happiness with his ward.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, six reels. Released, July, 1928. Cast: Lew Cody, Aileen Pringle, Sue Carol, Hugh Trevor, James J. Jeffries, Heinie Conklin, Kit Guard, Jack Herrick. Director, Mal St. Clair.

At Yale

Fair Enough of Its Kind

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

BRIGHT college years sure must have their innings on the screen. The newest campus essay is "At Yale," written by no less an authority on affairs at the New Haven institution of learning than Owen Davis—an alumnus. But if the author dashed this off as representative of Yale it indicates that he hasn't been back among the elms for some time. The author is okay with his satire and the mechanics of the story. There is some very good fun derived from the piece in considerable of its incident. But like all college pictures it misses the mark.

Rod La Rocque, the star, has a Merriwell character to portray. Coming up from the Argentine he falls in love with the ONE GIRL who inspires him to die for dear old Yale if necessary to win her. He saves her brother from disgrace and attends to several small matters that need clearing up. But on the eve of the big football game he dislocates his shoulder—which does not hinder him from scoring the necessary touch down to beat dear old Princeton.

They haven't collected any authentic atmosphere of the Yale campus. And La Roeque is much too vehement for the role. He screws up his features to register extreme agony, and is altogether too collegiate. A Yale man never acts all over the place. The Merriwell boys, who may still be at Yale for all we know, had what may be called campus etiquette (the hail-fellow-well-met stuff combined with poise). Jeanette Loff is the girl friend. In all it's fair enough and should please the younger set. The boys at New Haven may give it a good-natured kidding.

Drawing Power: Title and star. Suitable for program houses. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Play up as story of college life. Project a campus atmosphere in your house—with appropriate music, etc.

THEME: Comedy-romance of collegian who makes good for Yale and the girl.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Length, 7,056 feet. Released, May 14, 1928. Cast: Rod La Rocque, Jeanette Loff, Joseph Cawthorn, Hugh Allen, Tom Kennedy, Lawrence Grant, Oscar Smith, Jerry Mandy. Director, E. H. Griffith.

Roadhouse

Exciting and Jazzy Underworld Melodrama

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THERE is something of the preachment in this melodrama which tells an exciting story well and holds the interest throughout. It is the story of an indulgent father who is too tolerant with a jazz-mad son, with the result that the latter becomes involved with a gang of yeggs and goes on trial for a murder all because he becomes enamoured of a girl of the underworld.

It is a somewhat daring story and it rings fairly true because of the capable manner in which it is handled. Director Richard Rosson did a splendid job in that he kept all of the characters well within bounds and permitted little exaggeration in details or acting.

Lionel Barrymore, Maria Alba and Warren Burke head the cast. Barrymore is splendid as the indulgent father, the hypocrite leader of the reform forces, who has a penchant for gambling and liquor. He is a visitor at the roadhouse when his son is induced to join the yegg band in the holdup which results in the murder. Maria Alba is Spanish Marie, roadhouse habitue and member of the yegg gang. Her acting is highly commended, as is that of Warren Burke, the misguided son.

All in all it is a picture of the characteristic vogue of underworld stories now so popular and it bids fair to register successfully in any type of house.

Drawing Power: It is a very popular type of picture and being extremely well done should prove a good attraction for the first run or the neighborhood house. Exploitation Angles: It offers a splendid opportunity for the discussion of indulgent fathers who are too tolerant with jazz-mad sons; the splendid work of Lionel Barrymore and the entire cast.

THEME: Jazzy melodrama in which son of prominent citizen becomes involved with a band of yeggs who commit murder. He is tried, released, and his father blamed as the real culprit for his indulgence with his son.

Produced and distributed by Fox Films. Released, July 15, 1928. Length, 4,991 feet. The Cast: Maria Alba, Warren Burke, Lionel Barrymore, Julia Swayne Gordon, Tempe Pigott, Florence Allen, Eddie Clayton, Jack Oakie, Jane Keckley, Joe Brown, Kay Bryant. Director, Richard Rosson. Story by Philip Hurn. Scenario by John Stone.

Loves of an Actress

Fair-to-Middlin'—with Negri Romancing Around

POLA NEGRI'S last picture for Famous gives her more opportunity to flash her real self than anything she has had in America with the exception of "Fordbidden Paradise." They don't make her a clothes-horse here, nor do they attempt to make her kittenish or suppress her emotions. She looks older—more like the matured actress she is than someone imitating a Hollywood ingenue.

The star plays the celebrated personality of the Comedie Francaise—the woman known as Rachel. And the story presents her various adventures in the garden of love. It shows how she rises, a beggar child from the streets, to conquer Paris with her art and beauty. It becomes rather monotonous because it plays the love theme most of the time. And this theme is expressed with much demonstration of the kiss.

It isn't the world's greatest picture. It does lack the variety of scene and incident of some previous Negri films. But it has a dash and swing to its action whenever the Negri is in sight.

Drawing Power: Depends on Negri's popularity. Should draw because of title and publicity. O.K. for all houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up as one of the best of Negri's—with star playing the celebrated French actress, Rachel. Use stills of her in costume, etc.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, August 11, 1928. Cast: Polo Negri, Nils Asther, Mary McAlister, Richard Tucker, Philip Strange, Paul Lukas, Nigel de Brulier, Helen Ciere. Director, Rowland V. Lee.

Hit of the Show

Fairly True to Type—New Screen Star Good

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE influence of the back-stage life of troupers which has marked the Broadway stage the past two years crops up to make an average picture—one done quite true to type—and which scores through the realistic performance of Joe E. Brown, a stage comedian. The backgrounds are an actors' boarding house and scenes behind the footlights. And the interest is built up around a show in rehearsal, and, later, its premiere. There's your plot. As for Brown he scores as an entertaining funmaker. Possessing one of the largest and most mobile mouths in existence he capitalizes it to a fare-you-well. Between him and Daphne Pollard, another old-timer from musicals and vaudeville, they put it over.

It spins a typical theatrical yarn, involving a society girl, the stage people and the customary landlady of the rooming house. It's gagged pretty well, though show people will discover several errors of more or less consequence. The atmosphere is good enough and the players are "typed" very well. The captions are neat. All things considered it shapes up as tolerable entertainment—one that hits and misses, but hits more often than it misses. It's suitable for the average houses.

Drawing Power: Title and show life. Suitable for everyday type of house. Exploitation Angles: Play up title, stressing fact that it is representative of show business. Play up Joe E. Brown, a newcomer from the stage.

THEME: Comedy-drama of theatrical life—with its various ups and downs.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Length, 6,337 feet. Released, September 23, 1928. Cast: Joe E. Brown, Gertrude Olmstead, William Bailey, Gertrude Astor, Lee Shumway, William Francis Dugan, Ione Holmes, LeRoy Mason, Frank Mills, Daphne Pollard, Cosmo Kyrle Bellew. Director, Ralph Ince.

"Out-Numbered"

(Pathe—One Reel)

THIS Paul Terry Aesop Fables release is just about average. The cartoonist has slapped together a jumble of animated situations that are sort of worn from use. There is an exception, however, in one situation, that of a checker game between a mouse and Farmer Al, which is quite amusing. The film will no doubt draw the laughs, despite the "gag" repitition.

The old farmer plays a game of checkers with a blindfolded mouse, while cat chases other mice up and down the hall. The mice catch Henry in a trap and give him a beating. Henry breaks free and races after the mischievous mice, followed by Farmer Al. They are both doused with soap suds, when they crash through a door. Matters go from bad to worse, until Al in desperation, chases mice and cat over the hill.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Fighting Orphans"—"Evening Mist"

(Educational—One Reel)

THE first portion offers some fairly interesting and amusing scenes of a pair of bear cubs. They invade a camp and grub a meal and create quite a mess in their efforts. Their wobbly gait, friendly little spats and all the characteristics of young bears are on hand to create a ripple of amusement.

The other subject reveals a glimpse of the Pacific, misty in its perspective, its water a ghostly gray and the sky a mixture of colors lined with gold. The mist or wraithlike effect is distinctly charming and you cannot help but wonder how it is done. The jutting rocks silhouetted against the shadowy background of sun and fog intermingled is another snatch of splendid photography. Amateurs and professionals can learn from these Bruce scenics how artistic can be camera interpretations of nature. —RAYMOND GANLY.

"Her Mother's Back"

(Fox-Imperial—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

VERNON DENT and Billy Bletcher are a new Fox comedy team that will become very popular if given material such as this for a regular diet. This two-reeler is brim-ful of action, gags and comedy situations that are all good for laughs. Their antics in the repairing of a flat tire are extremely mirth-provoking, as are a number of other incidents in the course of the two reels.

Dent is ejected from the house by his irate wife and is accompanied by his Pal Billy, in search of a job. They come upon a motorist in distress with a flat tire and agree to fix it while the owner is in an office building transacting some business. Their clumsy efforts result in almost completely wrecking the car and they are forced to take flight with the return of the owner.

Their next undertaking is that of window cleaning and to make the job doubly certain they arouse the wrath of a street worker, who in his effort to smear them with mud soils the window. They apply for and get the job of cleaning the window and again they go through some very funny antics, which result in the complete demolition of the front of the store. Amusing incidents follow so closely from start to finish that it is almost a continuous laugh.

"Kid Hayseed"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

"BIG BOY," the young Educational star, has a fair comedy here.

The first half is livened with some good comic material. The second half, however, balances these initial spurts of fun with a mediocre assortment of gags that put the production on an average keel. There were several little things that could have been seized upon and elaborated into a series of laugh-provoking incidents. Instead of dwelling on the prize fight that "Big Boy" has in the second reel and stretching it out to too great a length, the slow motion scenes of roosters and the little pig would, it seems have made a much stronger appeal if more film had been devoted to them. Slow motion scenes of animals are laughable. Hal Roach did wonders with them in "Dog Heaven," to mention but one case.

Then again, more of the boyish pranks played on the willing Jack Miller would have provided a fresher and more potential outlet for laughs than the prize fight with its attendant "limburger cheese" gag and the like.

"Big Boy's" moments for comedy are all too few. The fault, of course, is in the story, which was made to dwell too much upon an incident in which the laughs steadily diminish.

Charles Lamont directed.

"Troubles Galore"

(Educational—One Reel)

THIS is an instance of fast and snappy pacemaking in a comedy. Monty Collins, its star, has had peppy numbers before but here he has one that is even peppier. This Cameo goes down the laugh chute with a fine splurge. It'll make the fans laugh out loud.

Young Monty loves Ruby McCoy. She tells her folks he is a chef so when he comes to call on her, they put him to work preparing a turkey dinner. As he is a barber and knows nothing about cooking, things go wrong for Monty from the start. Taffy gets entangled all over the kitchen and the place is pretty much of a wreck when this scene is over. To cap the fun, the turkey dinner is ruined when some gunpowder, included by mistake in the stuffing of the bird, explodes as the family is settling down to the repast.

One scene is very funny. Monty is asked to dress the turkey and not knowing of any other method to get rid of the bird's feathers, he gives it a shave and follows it up with bay rum, powder and all the other tonsorial touches.

Glen Cavender, Ruby McCoy, Al Thompson, Eva Thatcher are in support of Collins, who was directed by Francis J. Martin and photographed by William Hyer.

"Wedded Blisters

(Educational—Two Reels)

THIS Tuxedo comedy is the first of that series for the season and the first two-reeler to star Wallace Lupino. It was directed by Jules White, photographed by Jay Turner, and has Louise Carver, Betty Boyd and Jack Richardson in support.

It is not so good as a laugh number and some of Lupino's Cameos in the past have been much funnier. However, there are some laughs that pop up throughout its length. They occur frequently enough to give the comedy a passable rating.

The story concerns a hen-pecked husband, quite an insignificant worm in the eyes of his wife and her charming mother. He buys his wife a car and she takes it into her head to move. They use the car to carry their belongings and while careening along the avenue, with the car heaped high with household utensils and with Lupino sitting on top of them, they get in the path of a fire engine. In escaping the engine, they wreck the car smash the contents and everything ends in chaos.

Lupino puts over whatever gags there are in the comedy which would have been much more of a success if there were only more of them.

8 New Subjects on Pathe's Program for August 5

The first chapter of "The Terrible People," the last chapter of "The Yellow Cameo," "The Girl from Nowhere," a Mack Sennett girl comedy; "The Supple Sex," a Grantland Rice Sportlight; "Our Little Nell," an Aesop cartoon; Topics of the Day and the Pathe Review No. 32, and Issues 66 and 67 of the Pathe newsreel are the 8 new subjects comprising the Pathe schedule of releases for the week of August 5.

The new serial co-stars Allene Ray and Miller, and was produced under the direction of Spencer Gordon Bennett. "The Girl from Nowhere," a two-reel comedy featuring Daphne Pollard and Mack Swain, was directed by Harry Edwards. The concluding chapter of "The Yellow Cameo" is entitled "The Lost Treasure."

Pathe Review includes: "Making a Circus Out of a Canary," "The Farce Islands, Home of the Vikings," "How to Make Movies, Taught in One Easy Lesson" and "Here's One with a Kick in It."

News Shots to Show on 2 Coasts Within Hour

NEWSREEL shots obtained in New York can be shown in Los Angeles, San Francisco and even in London within an hour's time, says John Nickolaus, head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer laboratories. Through the transmission of motion picture films by telephone wires and cable, Mr. Nickalous claims the feat is easily possible and that a few months may even see films transmitted by radio.

"The process is fairly simple," explained Nickolaus. "The film is developed, cut into small strips and mounted on plates five by seven inches in dimension, which are transmitted just as photographs are. At the receiving end the strips are spliced together into a continuous film again. We have demonstrated this with film sent by wired transmission in small lengths, and know it can be done for almost any footage. There is no doubt but that world events in the near future will be shown in the principal cities of Europe and America within an hour or so of their occurrence."

Regional News from Correspondents

Salt Lake City

THE Orpheum theatre of Ogden, Utah, under the management of A. L. Glasmann, has been operated for the past six weeks under a policy of Vitaphone for five days and Pantages vaudeville for two days of each week, and is reported to have played to exceptional business during the summer, which is quite phenomenal in consideration of the fact that the theatre has been closed each summer previously for the past twenty-six years. The excellent entertainment and the efficient ventillating system, which was just installed, has increased the summer business tremendously, it is stated here. The Orpheum theatre is operated under the direction of The Orpheum Theatre Operating Company, headed by A. L. Glasmann, as president.

Manager W. E. Shipley and P. C. Peterson, assistant manager at the Gem theatre, have left for a vacation trip into Los Angeles.

Harry Ashton, manager of the Paramount theatre of Ogden, Utah, and Ray Hendry, local manager of the Victory theatre, have returned from a vacation trip to the Coast.

Grant Withers, star of "The Road to Ruin," which just completed a two weeks' run at the American theatre of this city, arrived here by airplane a short time ago and made personal appearances at the local play house in the evenings during the second week of the showing.

Withers is a westerner and intends visiting his parents in Colorado while on a vacation from Hollywood. J. B. Melton, owner of the picture, is featuring him in several of the big cities throughout the intermountain states. Withers delivered a short address at each performance of the picture.

Cincinnati

WHAT is considered the most extensive as well as the most expensive cooling system in this section has been installed by the Albee theatre, Cincinnati, where a uniform temperature of 70 degrees is maintained regardless of the heat on the street level. Specially cooled air is sent through the theatre at the rate of 100,000 cubic feet per minute, it is claimed. The system is said to have cost in the neighborhood of $250,000.

Cincinnati exhibitors are inclined to feel that there is always someone taking the joy out of life. Although they are already weighted down with strenuous opposition, a bad matter has been made worse by the inauguration of a traveling theatre sponsored by the Public Recreation Commission. The "theatre on wheels" is moved to a different vicinity each evening, where a series of acts and a feature picture are presented.

Griff. Granger, manager of the Kaypee theatre, at Mt. Gilead, O., the smallest first-run house in the state, celebrated the seventh anniversary of the theatre's existence by installing a new cooling and ventilating system, as well as giving his patrons a daily change of pictures for the week, and adding three acts of vaudeville to the regular program for the six days.

Trade and public circles were shocked at the passing of Mr. Weiberg, owner of the Royal theatre, at Salem, O., whose sudden death was due to septic poisoning. The theatre is being operated by his sister for the present.

There is an unconfirmed rumor in circulation that Piqua, O., is to have another movie theatre, sponsored by out-of-town capitalists. This is said to be in addition to the house which is to be erected by Lancaster, O., parties. No details of the new venture appear to be available.

K. M. Gentholtz, Garretsville, O., has acquired the Snow theatre in that city from the original owner, L. D. Snow.

Harry Silver, manager of the Palace theatre, Hamilton, O., is the ace ticket-seller for an old fashioned chicken supper to be given by local retail merchants in one of the suburban towns.

Joe Mayer, publicity director of the Palace, Hamilton, announces that the publication of the theatre's house organ will be resumed in September, and that the magazine will be bigger and better than ever.

Ed Keen, manager of the Oxford theatre, Oxford, O., accompanied by his family, is enjoying the cool Michigan breezes at Sturgis, where Ed maintains a summer home.

In an effort to stimulate business, the Lyric and Capitol theatres in Cincinnati will hereafter open their weekly programs on Saturdays instead of Sundays. If the experiment proves as successful as the Keith-Albee owners now anticipate, it is likely that all other Cincinnati houses in the chain will follow suit.

A culprit was apprehended in Cincinnati recently for having stolen a saxaphone from the Albee theatre, thereby greatly handicapping the act in which the instrument was used. The affair made the front page of the local dailies.

Work is progressing very rapidly on the New Clifton theatre, which is being built by H. E. Clifton at Circleville, O., to seat about 800 on one floor.

This is a new venture for Mr. Clifton, who has for many years been in the automobile business here and is now on the way to give Circleville a modern theatre. Contracts for projection, musical and other equipment have not yet been closed. This theatre will be of the Spanish design and have a 25 foot stage for presentations and vaudeville will open about Oct. 1st.

Note.—The above theatre project was erroneously reported as being in Greenville, O., in July 21st issue of Motion Picture News.

Harry Abram, who operates the Hippodrome theatre in Lancaster, O., and his associate, Mr. Kessel, one of Lancaster's leading department store owners, are breaking ground for their new modern theatre in Lancaster, which will be ready to open about Christmas of this year and will seat about 1000.

Contracts for projection, musical and other equipment have not yet been let out but will in the near future.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY police answered what they believed a riot call one evening last week from the Bonaventure theatre, suburban house, but when they arrived with machine guns and what not they found peace and quiet reigning. It developed that a group of disorderly small boys had created a disturbance in front of the house and police headquarters had misunderstood the "seriousness" of the affair and believed it a riot. The youngsters, who were tipped off the police were coming had left in a hurry before the "wagon" arrived.

The Pantages theatre, Kansas City, received front page stories in daily newspapers recently that were unexpected. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bruce, patrons, left their 2½ year old son, Floyd, in the nursery, and when the maid turned her back Floyd went out a side door and crawled onto a street car unnoticed. The next five hours saw the entire police department searching for kidnappers. The newspapers "splashed" the story on the front pages. Then finally a call came from an outlying police station that a small boy, identity unknown, was there. It was none other than Floyd, who was having a great time being entertained by the patrolmen.

The Crystal theatre, Nevada, Mo., has been purchased by C. A. Bowman from Mrs. C. S. Biles.

For nearly two decades Kansas City's "North End" had the old Bijou theatre as its entertainment center. Then Denny Costello, owner, sold the house, which was remodeled as a shoe store. But Mr Costello plans to re-enter the motion picture business and has leased the Ocasco theatre nearby and will rename it the Bijou theatre in memory of the old house.

The Reynolds building, Mountain View, Mo., has been purchased by James Buchanan and J. B. Lillian, who will remodel the structure into a motion picture theatre. The Durr building, Boonville, Mo., has been leased by the Miller Theatres Company and will be remodeled for motion pictures.

A new theatre combination will be formed soon at Topeka, Kas., and will be headed by Nate Block of St. Joseph, Mo., head of the Lawrence Amusement Company, according to a persistent rumor.

Bryant Washburn, one of the screen's veterans, is now with Sterling Pictures for whom he is to make "Undressed"

The new Mainstreet theatre, Beloit, Kas., has been re-opened by R. R. Wertz and E. R. Moreland has re-opened the Pastime theatre, Grenola, Kas.

Work on the new Plaza, suburban house of Kansas City, is progressing rapidly, but no opening date has been decided upon yet.

G. A. Maloney, manager of the Ritz theatre, Kansas City, was returning home one night last week in his motor car with the receipts of the theatre. Just as he was about to drive into his garage the lights of a neighbor's car revealed two bandits waiting near Maloney's garage. Maloney backed out hurriedly and the bandits fled.

Ben Rosenberg, district manager for Fox and R. C. Hildreth, home office auditor for Fox were Kansas City callers the past week.

The Kansas City Blues, American Association baseball club, were guests at the re-opening of the remodeled Globe theatre last Saturday night to witness Paramount's new sound picture, "Warming Up," featuring Richard Dix in a baseball story.

Quite a few years ago a dirty faced boy asked John Tackett of Coffeyville, Kas., for a job in his "hay barn" theatre. He asked five times and was turned down as many. Only recently Tackett opened his new Tackett theatre in Coffeyville. The editor of the Coffeyville News gave Mr. Tackett and his theatre one of the greatest send-offs a newspaper ever has given a theatre or an exhibitor in Kansas. The editor of the News was none other than the boy whom Tackett had finally given a job, and who later became Mr. Tackett's assistant, and then editor of the News.

Loew's Midland Theatre, Kansas City, came in for liberal praise from daily newspapers when it agreed to give a benefit show for the purpose of raising funds for the family of a patrolman, "Happy" Smith, who was killed when attempting to capture some bank bandits. About $4,000 was taken in at the benefit performance.

The Majestic and Ashland theatres of Wellington, Kas., have been purchased by O. K. Mason and Myron Leehman from Roy McDonald and W. F. McDowell. S. E. Pirtle has assumed the management of the Grand and Royal theatres at Macon, Mo. A rumor of long standing that Fox intended to build a large first run down town house at Thirteenth Street and Grand Avenue, Kansas City, was exploded recently with the announcement that an eleven-story office building was to be erected on that site. A new 400-seat theatre for Plains, Kas., is being planned.

Lee Marcus, general sales manager for FBO, and Cleve Adams, short subjects manager of that company, were Kansas City callers.

Fourteen Universal branches were represented at a sales meeting at the Hotel Muehlebach recently. M. Van Praag, sales director of the Western Division, presided. Fred J. McConnell, short subject manager, and G. E. Rosenwald, Pacific Coast division manager, also attended the meeting.

St. Louis

CONSTRUCTION has started on the remodeling of the Home theatre, Blytheville, Ark. The improvements include the remodeling of the interior and redecorating throughout, the installation of fireproof projection room and a hot air heating system. The work will cost about $15,000.

Gill & Jackson, 520 Buder Building, St. Louis, Mo., are preparing plans for a new theatre in Pacific, Mo. The structure will be one-story, 45 by 105 feet, and cost upwards of $25,000. It will seat 600 persons.

Charles Sinclair, Inc., which produced musical comedies at the Garden theatre, Olive street road and Creve Coeur Lake car tracks in St. Louis County, this summer until financial reverses caused the closing of the amusement place, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court in St. Louis on July 28. Liabilities were listed at $35,682.33 and assets at $3,833.76.

Columbia Mid West Exchanges, Inc., is the name selected by the national organization for the distribution of Columbia Pictures in St. Louis. Claude McKean is manager of the St. Louis office. A. H. Fischer, district manager for Columbia, was in St. Louis the past week.

St. Louis film stocks closed July 28 as follows: Skouras A, $40 bid and $43 asked, and St. Louis Amusement A, $30 asked. Skouras A dropped down $2.50 a share, while a year ago St. Louis Amusement A was held at $39 a share.

C. D. Hill, manager in St. Louis for Pathe, is confined to his room in the Melbourne Hotel by illness.

Jimmy Bradford continues to bring in fat contracts for Pathe.

Eddie Saunders, Western Sales Manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was in St. Louis on July 25 and 26. He left for Chicago the night of July 26.

William Bishop, exploiteer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Detroit, passed through enroute to Oklahoma, where he plans to spend a well earned vacation. He formerly handled publicity for the St. Louis office.

The Empire theatre, Olive street, just west of Grand boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., has been leased to the burlesque organization of Irons & Clamidge, who operate stock burlesque organizations in Chicago and Detroit. They plan to open early in September. It is reported along the Rialto that they are paying Skouras Brothers $30,000 a year for the Empress.

Dame Gossip is walking along the highways and and byways of St. Louis once more. This time the Old Girl has it that some of the more prominent St. Louis picture houses will figure in a big merger to be consummated within the next few weeks. There is always the possibility of something of the sort going through, but the chances are also it may merely be talk.

Hugh McLean, who covered Southern Illinois for Fox Pictures, is recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident several weeks ago. Two vertebra in his neck were fractured, but fortunately the spinal chord was not affected. He hopes to assume his old duties in the near future.

Lou Penny, district manager for Fox, visited St. Louis on August 1. He spent several days in the St. Louis territory.

The Lead Belt Amusement Company, operated by Dr. C. A. Tetley, of Farmington, Mo., and John Karsch, of Flat River, Mo., will split up. Tetley will operate the theatre in Farmington, while Karsch takes the Flat River and Bonne Terra houses. The theatre in Elvins, Mo., has been closed.

Visitors of the week along film row included Amy Jones of Tamarora, Ill.; Steven Farrar, Harrisburg, Ill.; Julius Schmidt, of St. Jacob and Trenton, Ill.; Dominic Fresena, Taylorsville, Ill., and Dr. A. C. Tetley, of Farmington, Mo.

Jack O'Toole has resigned as local manager for Play Golf to take over the management of the Tiffany Stahl exchange in Milwaukee, Wis.

Cleveland

AS one exhibitor to another, Allen Simmons of Akron is trying to sell an airplane to Milton Bryer, also of Akron. Simmons owns the Allen theatre. He is also president of the Akron Airport, Inc., an airplane sales organization and flying school. He has tempted Bryer with several demonstration rides, and if the picture business picks up, Bryer will probebly turn his automobile over to the other half of his family and take to the air himself.

Maurice Kaplan, Jr., who hasn't bought any theatres recently, went shopping last week and came home with the Arion theatre, Kinsman Road, in his possession. He bought it from Sam Lurie. Kaplan also has the Camera, Payne Ave. and East 33d St.

The E. E. Oliver Moving Picture Supply Company, now located on the second floor of the Film Exchange Bldg., will shortly move its sales department to a store room on the 21st elevation of the Film Bldg., using the upstairs room for storage and repairs. Oliver distributes Superior Projection machines in this territory, as well as all other projection room equipment. The Superior projector, according to Oilver, is now being equipped with attachments for Vitaphone and Movietone.

J. E. Beck, manager of the Cleveland office of Independent Pictures, Inc., announces that the Lefkowitz Greenberger circuit of this city has purchased the Independent product 100 per cent for all of their theatres.

R. F. Woodhull, president of the M. P. T. O. A., spent last week-end as the house guest of J. J. Harwood, president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, and vice-president of the M. P. T. O. of Ohio.

The Cleveland Film Board of Trade, through its president Oscar J. Ruby, has notified the members that meetings will be held every alternate week until further notice instead of every week as formerly.

R. E. Bishop has joined Independent Pictures, Inc., as sales representative in the Toledo territory. Mr. Bishop was with Vitagraph for many years, going to P D C when the company took over Vitagraph, and then with Pathe.

P. T. Tanner, of the Transit Film Company, is in the midst of a two weeks' vacation. He is motoring through the east.

Dave L. Schumann, pioncer Cleveland theatre owner, and for the past year affiliated with the Ohio Amusement Company, is now heading a new circuit of his own with office headquarters in 214 Film Exchange Bldg. Schumann is starting out with two theatres, the Marvel and the Lorain Fulton. The Marvel is opcrated by the Solben Amusement Company, and the Lorain by the Saramore Amusement Company. Schumann is president of both. He states that he will acquire other houses as the opportunity develops.

William A. Haynes, manager of the Allen theatre, has been promoted to the position of assistant general manager of the Loew chain of theatres in Cleveland, effective August 1st. Fred Desberg will continue as general manager of the houses. This is the first change of personnel to affect the Cleveland Loew houses since they were taken over by Loew's Theatres, Inc. Haynes has been with the organization about a year and a half as manager of the Allen. Until Publix Revues were brought on, he supervised all presentation acts, and arranged musical scores for overtures. This promotion cuts short a vacation trip in Canada which Haynes and his family were enjoying.

Ben Z. Levine, for the past nine years owner and manager of the Erie theatre, Woodland Avę. and East 22nd St. has sold the houses to Messrs. Jack L. Kane and Max Rosner. FBO SMASHES HYSTERIA

FBO HAS SCORED A CLEAN KNOCKOUT OVER SOUND HYSTERIA.

A few iced compacts placed by FBO on the fevered brow of the industry have subdued the panic.

THE SHOW GOES ON!

Hundreds of exhibitors have written and wired their commendation to FBO for its courageous and far-visioned stand on a problem that threatened dire results for the industry at large.

FBO has stood firm as the Rock of Gibraltar in the sound crisis and will continue this common-sense and unflustered policy of Master Showmanship.

FBO HAS NOT FORGOTTEN ITS OBLIGATION TO THE THOUSANDS OF EXHIBITORS WHO CANNOT POSSIBLY OBTAIN SOUND DEVICE INSTALLATIONS FOR MANY MONTHS TO COME. THEY ARE THE BONE AND SINEW OF THIS BUSINESS AND IT IS FOR THEM PRIMARILY THAT FBO HAS FRAMED ITS SMASHING PROGRAM OF SILENT BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTIONS.... THE VERY FINEST IN THE HISTORY OF THIS AGGRESSIVE YOUNG COMPANY

Nor is FBO missing any bets in the field of sound showmanship.

AND NOW "THE MAN WHO LAUGHS" IS READY FOR you to HEAR as well as to SEE.

NOW YOU WILL HAVE THE BEST OPPORTUNITY YOU ever had to realize how much a glorious picture—perfect in itself—can be improved by the addition of cleverly directed sounds.

WITH ALL THE WILD TALK ABOUT SYNCHRONIZATION which has had the whole industry standing on its head, it is no wonder that confusion has been worse confounded.

AND NOW OUT OF THE CHAOS OF GUESS-WORK AND gossip, comes the supreme achievement which will prove without the shadow of a doubt that when even a perfect picture is properly synchronized with all due regard for theatrical effects, it can be made even better than perfect!

NEVER HAS THERE BEEN A MORE CONVINCING demonstration of the possibilities of the movietone process than you will get when you SEE and HEAR "THE MAN WHO LAUGHS".

DURING THE SCENES AT THE FAMOUS SOUTHWARK Fair, you will hear the cries of the barkers, the shouts of the happy people, the blowing of their horns and the throbbing of their other merry-making noise-machines.

THROUGHOUT THE SCENES WHEN GWYNPLAINE IS is amusing his audience—that audience which rocks with laughter—you will HEAR the gales of laughter and you will hear the tumultuous cries "Gwynplaine! Gwynplaine!"

IN THE MOB SCENES, PANDEMONIUM IS LET LOOSE and the movie fan does not live who will fail to get a terrific "kick" from this grand combination of eye and ear entertainment.

THE MUSICAL SCORE IS A GEM IN ITSELF, BRINGING out with even extra emphasis the fine points of this exquisitely directed picture.

AND ONCE MORE I WANT TO SAY TO THOSE EXHIBITORS who have no sound equipment in their theatres just this:—Whether your patrons simply SEE "The Man Who Laughs" or whether they both SEE and HEAR it, they will be entertained and uplifted in spirit as no other picture has aroused them for a long time.

WHETHER THEY'RE SILENT OR WHETHER THEY'RE otherwise Universal has the pictures!

CORRECTION

Due to somewhat peculiar circumstances surrounding the case, an error was made in our advertisement which appeared on page 117 of the Showman for July (published in Motion Picture News, issue of July 14th), which gave an erroneous impression concerning the air conditioning equipment installed in the Texan Theatre at Houston, Texas.

The Texan Theatre is equipped with a complete air conditioning system including refrigeration designed and installed by the Carrier Engineering Corporation of Newark, New Jersey, and has been featured in various advertisements published by that company.

The Texan Theatre is also equipped with a drinking water system, designed and installed by the York Ice Machinery Corporation. It is hoped that the publication of this explanation will correct any erroneous impressions gained from our advertisement containing the inadvertant error referred to above.

"HEART TO HEART"

DEAR FOLKS: I take typewriter in lap this bright summer day to tell you about one of the best little pictures I have seen in so long a time that I seek in vain for a milestone to designate as marking the beginning of same. In fact, when I think it over, I doubt that I have ever seen a picture just like "Heart to Heart"—and I betray no confidences by telling you that I have seen more pictures than anybody else I know and I know quite a few people who have seen pictures quite steadily over a considerable expanse of calendar.

Yessir, this "Heart to Heart" is a different kind of picture. And it is an excellent kind of picture. It is the kind of picture I used to try to describe as a "good little picture"—meaning that it was extremely good, even if it didn't contain an earthquake, landslide or tornado—but it is not at all a little picture in the usual sense of that term. It is, in significance if not in point of overhead and trick scenery, a great big picture. I think we can use about as many more like it as Hollywood can turn out, even if Hollywood suddenly goes logical and turns out one good picture after another.

The people in this picture are many, and all of them are good. Best, I think, is Louise Fazenda, enacting a small town homebody whose sight isn't what it used to be. I ask you to look at this and see if you can recall a more completely consumate performance. I cannot.

Others whose good performances are assets of the picture include Lloyd Hughes, as an inventor always just a bit tardy with his devices, and Mary Astor, who is no less beautiful than ever but more at home with the tasks given her and so more effective. And then there is the gentleman who plays the husband wed to the wife played by Louise Fazenda, and whose name always evades me. This gentleman is so good, however, that his name doesn't matter. Indeed, I think it is his knack of effacing self for role—in other pictures as in this one—which makes it impossible for me to remember his name. Wouldn't it be great if all the actors were that good? (Now I remember his name! Lucien Littlefield!)

The story is about a small town which is host to an Italian princess—or something—and [illegible] ld be the last guy in the world to [illegible] ore about it. Stories like t[illegible] ot read. I think, [illegible] the point, that t[illegible] but time [illegible]

Volume XXXVIII NEW YORK CITY, AUGUST 11, 1928 No. 6

Highlights of the Week

Brief Comments on Important Topics

By William A. Johnston

THE sound movie upheaval continues. . . . A significant development is the holding of exhibitor meetings in several sections to discuss what it's all about . . . and what to do. . . . Never has the exhibitor been as perplexed as he is now. . . . And with good reason. . . . Meanwhile, signs of steadying influences begin to appear. . . . Carl Laemmle issues a warning to his studio folk, telling them to keep their feet on the ground and remember that the picture is the thing. . . . Good, solid, common sense. . . . Joseph P. Kennedy, in a notable interview obtained by Edwin Schallert, who is a special writer for us in addition to being the outstanding photoplay editor on the Coast, counsels conservatism. . . . R. A. Rowland, resigning from the industry after long and valuable service, urges that the executives get together to solve the two big problems of negative cost and theatre overseating. . . . All of which indicates that those in high places see the imperative necessity of keeping the ship on an even keel in these hectic times.

Rowland's retirement removes from the industry a veteran. . . . He goes for a long rest. . . . Maybe he'll be back. . . . Only time will tell, as he remarks. . . . Among many other qualities, Rowland never fell a prey to the illusions from which a good many people in this industry suffer. . . . Last week we said that no clear statement on interchangeability had been forthcoming. . . . Well, David Sarnoff, head of RCA, comes forward with one this week. . . . Says Photophone is completly interchangeable, as to film, with Movietone. . . . We print his statement in full elsewhere. . . . But Western Electric declines to make any comment. . . . As we have remarked before—and cannot repeat too often—this is the show business. . . . The sound picture thing is a show problem. . . . And will have to be worked out that way . . . in the public interest. . . .

On one of the hottest nights of the year, "Lilac Time" opened for its New York run. . . . But not too hot to be able to see that this is a real box-office picture. . . . The sound effects had to be given in the usual backstage way, owing to a row between two unions as to installation. . . . A condition, by the way, that prevails in several cities. . . . Shortly thereafter, F B O's "The Perfect Crime," came into the Rivoli. . . . A box-office picture, sure enough. . . . And notable, too, for this: It shows how sound effects and dialogue can be attached after a film is made and in such a way that the sound stuff can be later separated from the silent, without injuring the latter. . . . This is very important. . . . Make 'em equally good, sound or silent, and you've done something. . . . Also, Universal gave a trade showing of "Uncle Tom," synchronized. . . . Very good effects with negro spirituals, steamboat whistles, etc. and some dialogue.

And just when the sound revolution is at its height, we read a newspaper headline: "Motion Picture Shown by Radio". . . . It's only in the laboratory stage now, but it is said that regular transmission of movies will begin from the Westinghouse station within a few months. . . . No reason to get excited. . . . But it's all very interesting. . . .

Along came Ruth, the same Ruth who flies in airplanes. It may be that she will also soar as a screen star. At any rate, Miss Elder is shown above with Director Frank Strayer, Linton Wells and Cameraman Cronjager, about to start "Moran of the Marines"

Ted Lewis renders a solo number with his pen while Sam E. Morris looks attentively at the proceedings. The musical star is seen signing an agreement with the Warner Brothers for a Vitaphone roadshow to be entitled "Is Everybody Happy?" A solicitous title, eh?

Joe E. Brown, of the delectable grin, puts on an elephant act in FBO's "Circus Kid"

Cute and quite flapperish. Alice White is an ideal choice for the role of J. P. McEvoy's heroine in "Show Girl," the novel which First National is now filming

Elephants predominate this time. Sunny McKeen does an elephant skit, also, for "U"

They're both crackerjacks in their line. George McManus, creator of "Jiggs," and Milt Gross, creator of "Nize Baby," introduce themselves on the M-G-M lot where "Nize Baby" is to be filmed

Those brilliant cinematographers, explorers and co-workers, Ernest Schoedsack and Merian Cooper, are back again at the Paramount studio assembling prints of another "Chang"-like production

Exhibitors and Sound Pictures

Views Gathered First Hand in Middle West by Charles E. Lewis; Conditions in Several Territories Set Forth

(Editor's Note.—This is the second of a series of articles by the exhibitor member of the staff of Motion Picture News. The next will appear in an early issue.)

By CHARLES E. LEWIS

Editor, "The Manager's Round Table Club"

TOLEDO, OHIO, August 5.—At this point it might be wise to sum up the various conditions encountered on the trip thus far. Showing a comparison of opinions, as expressed by different exhibitors, will tend to give other theatre men an opportunity of judging for themselves.

In discussing the sound picture question with Manager Byron R. Lynn, of the Capitol Theatre in Bloomsburg, Pa., we find him one of the most optimistic types of managers with regard to talkies. His theatre has been equipped for quite some time and business has been exceptionally good. His patrons like this new phase of entertainment and he is drawing plenty of extra business from surrounding towns. But Lynn recognizes one fact, and it has him a little perplexed, that is: with the coming of sound equipment in surrounding towns, what turn will his business take? But this is just another one of the problems that time will answer.

"Eat" Them in Steuben

Manager William L. Hendricks, of the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, is another great booster of the "talkies" and his business confirms his own views regarding it. Steubenville is a good show town, and even during the hot spell when I reached there, it looked like mid-season business. In his town, Hendricks told me, they "eat" every bit of sound picture stuff that is fed them. There preference is for plenty of or all-talking sequences, but if they can't get it that way they are contented to patronize any kind.

In Zanesville, Ohio, I had a brief chat with Owner Brown, who heads the corporation controlling the theatres in that town. He had had Vitaphone since last October, and is not enthused about it any longer, with the exception of "all talkie" pictures, which he insists his patrons want. He told me that ordinary Vitaphone acts, or even a musically synchronized feature, do not increase his receipts. In order to get additional product for his plant he is putting in the Movietone attachment.

Anderson Likes Talkies

In Anderson, Indiana, I could not get to talk to Harry Muller who runs the Crystal Theatre, the "sound" house of the town, but at the hotel I heard quite a discussion going on about the talking pictures and, from what I was able to gather, this town likes them and prefers them to the silent pictures. A congenial employee at the theatre informed me that business was great and that the boss was tickled with the talking pictures.

Then it is also interesting to look at the viewpoints of theatre men who have not as yet installed sound plants. For example, we will take O. B. Olsen, manager of the Tivoli Theatre in Richmond, Indiana, who believes that a talking plant is essential to the life of his theatre. He is a great believer in them and looks for a big future in that field.

Then we quote the opinion of Harvey "Doc" Arlington, a dyed-in-the-wool old-timer in the show business. I found him in Muncie, Indiana, in charge of several houses, the largest one being the new, beautiful Rivoli Theatre with some 1,800 seats. He does not believe talking pictures will mean anything in small towns like this. The population of Muncie is about 40,000. He takes them as being strictly a novelty which will wear off and then back to the "good" silent drama the small towner will flock. I don't quite agree with him, but in fairness I set forth his views.

Viewed as Novelty

Billy Conners, who has Marion, Indiana, all sewed up, takes the attitude that he is not so keen about them himself, but feels that eventually he will have to install a plant in his town. He is another who looks upon the whole craze as a wild novelty which cannot continue, but he is trying to analyze the thing in his own way and is following the developments concerning sound pictures through the medium of the NEWS.

Perhaps the most interesting conversation of the trip, so far, that which took place in Marion, Ohio, with G. H. Foster, an experienced theatre man who had kept watch of every progressive move in the industry. Yet, he did not rush to sink a lot of money into a plant. As he expressed

R. C. A. Claims Complete Interchangeability; Western Electric Silent

DAVID Sarnoff, President of RCA Photophone, Inc. issued a statement August 7 in which he declared that complete interchangeability of sound picture films made by Movietone and Photophone processes had been achieved.

Western Electric, when Mr. Sarnoff's statement was called to their attention, declined to make any comment.

The statement by Mr. Sarnoff follows:

"As a convenience to exhibitors and with a view of obtaining complete interchangeability of sound films made by the Movietone and the Photophone processes, RCA Photophone has now adopted a sound track 80 mils in width, but which retains the Photophone method of recording. Tests made in studios and theatres with a variety of sound motion picture subjects prove conclusively that Photophone films not only play interchangeably on Movietone projectors but also give normal and satisfactory speech and musical quality perfectly synchronized. The 80 mil Photophone sound track requires no modification whatever of the Movietone sound projector; neither is the operating procedure of Movietone changed in any way.

"I know of no reason, technical or otherwise, why sound films recorded by the Photophone process cannot be satisfactorily played on either Photophone or Movietone machines installed in theatres. Also, the Photophone Company has no objection to sound films recorded by the Movietone process being played on Photophone machines installed in theatres."

Omaha Trade Board and Exchanges Charged With Restraint of Trade

THE Omaha Film Board of Trade and the Omaha branches of nine film distributing agencies constitute a monopoly and are operating in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota in restraint of trade, it is alleged in a suit filed by Victor Newton and Thomas H. Leddy, owners of the Garden theatre, Omaha, in federal court last week.

Newton and Leddy aver the defendant concerns were responsible for the closing of their theatre January 7, 1927, and that since that time they have been unable to rent films. They seek $105,000 damages, which they claim is three-fold their actual damages, but which they claim they are entitled to under a special act of congress.

Distributing companies named in the suit are: First National Pictures, Inc.; Columbia Pictures Corporation; Educational Film Exchange of Iowa; Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation; F B O Pictures Corporation; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation; Pathe Exchange; Producers Distributing Corporation; United Artists Corporation; the Omaha Film Board of Trade, and the following branch managers of the film exchanges: Leo Blank, A. Mendenhall, Sherman W. Fitch, William C. Brimmer, Frank C. Hensler, Roy O. Pearson, Albert Danke, James F. Ambrose and Joe White.

The Omaha Film Board of Trade is charged with having been organized "for the purpose of enabling distributors of films to control prices and dictate terms to movie owners in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota."

The plaintiffs represented by Attorney George Thummel, state they bought the Garden theatre from L. H. Wagner and that they had contracts with all the defendant companies except the Producers Distributing Corporation, and the Columbia Pictures Corporation. The former of the two, it is alleged, was responsible for the filing of a charge with the Film Board of Trade, charging Newton and Leddy had assumed contracts from Wagner, agreeing to play certain pictures, and then had failed to carry them out. The "board of award" of the Film Board ordered them to carry out the contracts, it is charged, and all of the defendant companies demanded that they post $250 bonds to insure fulfillment of the contracts then existing.

Failing to post these bonds, Leddy and Newton claim they were cut off by the organization without any films whatsoever, and as a result had to close their theatre.

Courts to Decide Fate of Block Booking

Case May Be Eventually Carried to Supreme Court for Final Verdict

WHETHER block booking is to continue in the industry, or branded an unfair trade practice and eliminated, depends upon outcome of the Federal Trade Commission's action to enforce its cease and desist order against Paramount. The action for a court order requiring Paramount to comply with the edict issued in July, 1927, was filed last week in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

Because of the commission's determination to outlaw block booking, the Paramount case is to serve as a test of the commission's power to eliminate trade practices which it considers unfair. The commission for some time has planned action against every distributor employing the block booking method of sales, but whether such steps will be undertaken depends entirely, it is believed, on what disposition the court makes of its petition for an order to enforce its block booking ban. Whatever the outcome in the Court of Appeals, it is believed that the case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

German Theatres' Capacity Placed at 1,700,000 Seats

Motion picture theatres in Germany have a seating capacity of 1,700,000, the Department of Commerce in Washington is advised by Assistant Commercial Attache Douglas Miller, Berlin. The figures of the report are as follows:

Theatres with 2,000 to 2,500 seats—6 operating daily; theatres with 1,500 to 2,000 seats—17 operating daily; theatres with 1,000 to 1,500 seats—106 operating daily; theatres with 750 to 1,000 seats—137 operating daily and 8 operating irregularly; theatres with 500 to 750 seats—473 operating daily and 101 operating irregularly; theatres with less than 500 seats—1,207 operating daily and 3,095 irregularly.

The total number of theatres operating daily is 1,946, while the total number of theatres operating irregularly is 3,204. The estimated total seating capacity of the theatres operating daily is 820,000, while the estimated seating capacity of the theatres operating irregularly is 950,000.

The theatres that do not operate daily run into a majority as such theatres are usually operated in connection with bars or small restaurants. Many of them have a seating capacity of from 100 to 250 and cannot really be called motion picture theatres. Most of them operate only on Sundays, or Saturdays and Sundays.

Several New Firms Are Chartered at Albany

Motion picture companies incorporating in New York state at Albany during the past week included the following: Mi-Mark Hanaphone Corporation, capitalization not specified, with Nat Nathanson, George K. Rolands, Frank R. Portes, New York City; Brooklyn Rivera Theatre, Inc., capitalization not stated, Solomon M. Strausberg, Rebecca Strausberg, George M. Carle, Brooklyn; Van Buren Enterprises, Inc., $10,000, Clayton J. Heermance, S. Whitney Landon, Ethel Borut, New York City; Hoffberg-Cornfeld, Inc., $10,00, Jacob Hoffberg, Blanche Berger, New York City; Sammie Cornfeld, Berlin, Germany; Fitzer-Buffalo Corporation, $75,000, Mitchell Fitzer, Nathan Abelson, James P. Martin, Syracuse; Fielder's Film Facts, Inc., $10,000, Edward C. Fielder, Ormonde W. McClave, Ruth A. Conlan, New York City.

European Producers Form Firm to Release in U. S.

Twelve European producing companies have organized to form Affiliated European Producers, which will release their product in the United States. Their representative is N. J. Gourland, formerly an agent for several of the companies. Associated with him is Irvin Shapiro. Bernard Shultz will be sales manager.

Poli to Retain Interest in Theatre Chain

S. Z. POLI, who has transferred his theatres to the Fox interest for a consideration said to be $26,000,000, will retain an interest in the Poli chain, a statement issued by his New Haven representative this week indicates. "I shall continue to be financially interested in my circuit, and from time to time advise with the purchaser," the statement reads. This is taken to mean that Mr. Poli will continue in an advisory capacity with the Fox interests insofar as the Poli chain is concerned.

Interest in the Poli chain is now centered on the question of vaudeville bookings. Keith-Albee's announced intention of placing its own theatres in every Poli city has not as yet been contradicted following the Fox announcement. The K-A plan was announced when it seemed probable that Schoolman interests would acquire the Poli theatres. K-A have either acquired sites by purchase or holds options on sites in all the Poli cities.

Woodhull's Warning on Oral Agreements

A WARNING is sounded against the use of oral agreements between exhibitors and film salesmen and others, in a statement issued this week by R. F. Woodhull, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

"Very few concerns in any line recognize oral statements by their representatives," Mr. Woodhull pointed out. He branded this method of conducting business as "unsound" and stated that "any exhibitor who is following this practice is traveling toward a dangerous situation." The policy can only end disastrously, the statement reads.

"I am compelled to sound this warning once again because of two or three recent decisions rendered by arbitration boards against exhibitors. . . . Have all special understandings reduced to the old 'black and white' and see that every copy of the application reads the same. If you are buying pictures for one house and running them in another, by special oral agreement, both yourself and the salesman know it is wrong. Start with your next purchase and have all special concessions, if any, plainly stated in your approved copy of the contract," the statement concludes.

"Film Teaching" Decreed In Hungarian Schools

"Film teaching" is declared obligatory for more than 200 schools in Hungaria, according to a decree recently by Count Kuno Kleberlsberg, the Hungarian Minister of Public Instruction, a press report received at the Department of Commerce in Washington from Trade Commissioner George R. Camby, Paris, advises.

Films are to be shown in the schools and exhibitors are obliged to place their theatres at the disposal of such schools as have no adequate show-rooms. Conferences under the charge of the Pedagogical Film Factory in Budapest, will be held in the provinces by the Hungarian-Dutch Cultural and Economic Company. In Budapest, obligatory film shows organized for the past 15 years for public and secondary schools, will be intensified during the coming season.

While Germany has officially recognized the film as the most important modern educational factor, in Germany only occasional conference speeches are made in this connection and a small number of pioneer school people with insufficient subventions are endeavoring to introduce film tuition into their establishments.

Mo. Town's Sunday Shows Stir Opposition

Asserting that Columbia, Mo., a town of 10,000 people in which the University of Missouri is located, is responsible for "moulding the morals" of 5,000 university students, ministers of Columbia are waging a war against the opening of motion picture theatres on Sundays. The merchants of Columbia, asserting that 90 per cent of the population favors Sunday shows and that business is greatly damaged by the younger generation leaving the town on Sunday, are rigidly opposing the ministers.

Pettijohn Attacks Bill Sponsored by Chase

Tears to Pieces Measure Introduced in Congress by Representative Hudson

C. C. PETTIJOHN, general counsel of the Hays organization, in an analysis made public this week of the Hudson motion picture bill, condemns it as the most radical and revolutionary measure affecting the picture business ever introduced in Congress.

This is the bill which is being sponsored by Canon William Sheafe Chase, who is a professional reformer and a long-time enemy of the motion picture.

Mr. Pettijohn shows in his analysis that the bill is predicated on the false premise that the picture industry is a public utility. He points out that the first section of the bill, which stipulates that the industry is declared to be a public utility, would mean that all concerns engaged in any branch of the business would be immediately transformed into public service companies.

Mr. Pettijohn argues that none of the component parts of the industry have the necessary essentials of public utility companies and Congress cannot change their nature by merely passing a law declaring them to be something they are not.

He further argues that if this industry can be transformed into a public utility by legislation, then in the same way the automobile, clothing and other industries could be brought under governmental control, regulation and operation.

Mr. Pettijohn denounced the bill as vague, ambiguous and contradictory. He points out that it is useless because it attempts to create a new agency to enforce the anti-trust laws which are being ably enforced by governmental agencies which have been functioning for years.

He declares that the effect of this measure would be to put the government into the picture business and emphasizes the point that the bill is contrary to public opinion because the people of this country are against censorship. The measure, Mr. Pettijohn declares, is impractical and unworkable because it would be utterly impossible for the commission which Chase and Hudson propose to set up to obtain the services of men and women able to carry out their aims and purposes.

Mr. Pettijohn goes on to point out that the proposed commission would be given sweeping power to control and dominate the whole picture business and everybody in it.

Sunday Showings Bring Complaint in Alice, Tex.

The latest complaint in Texas on Sunday shows comes from Alice, where a spirited fight is being waged on the question of desecrating the Sabbath by the operation of motion picture shows. The Charles Bros. operate two theatres in Alice and on July 12th they opened with three shows; on the following Sunday they asked for the signature of citizens petitioning the next legislature to pass a law making Sunday shows legal and over seven hundred names were secured.

Director of "Potemkin" May Produce for U. A.

S. M. Eisenstein, Russian director who made "Potemkin," may come to the United States to produce for United Artists, the publicity department of United Artists announces.

Joseph M. Schenck, president of U. A., left Berlin on August 3 for Moscow at the invitation of the Sovkino, it is said, to discuss the exhibition of United Artists pictures in the Sovietland and the possibility of bringing to the United States some of the Russian actors and directors.

Paramount Planning Huge Newspaper Ad Campaign for August 12

BEGINNING on August 12. Paramount will launch a nation-wide newspaper campaign which will carry Paramount's advertising announcement of the features and short subjects which the company will release during the first three months of the new film season. The announcement is planned to reach the population of the principal cities and will be read, it is estimated by more than 100,000,000 readers of the 695 newspapers in 413 of the principal cities of the United States.

Different copy will be placed in each paper. Paramount announces. The announcements will measure seven columns and will be of full depth. Three or four of the principal newspapers in each city will be used and the ad copy will be so arranged so that one paper, in a city boasting three or four papers, will carry the announcement on Sunday, August 12, while the other ads will follow later, the last appearing the following Sunday, August 19. One point that will be stressed in the advertising is the 11th annual Paramount week.

In cities where the first runs playing Paramount pictures are equipped for synchronization, special ads will be used calling attention to the sound pictures on the Paramount program.

C. B. De Mille With M-G-M

Company Announces Acquisition of Producer-Director and Personal Staff; Sells Interest in Studio to Pathe

TEN months of speculation as to Cecil B. De Mille's future plans were set at rest this week with the announcement by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer that the producer-director and his personal staff had been signed to contracts, whereby De Mille would make a series of super-productions.

Within a month, the new producing unit at the Culver City studio of M-G-M will have moved from the De Mille studio and will begin its initial production shortly thereafter. Mr. De Mille declared after signing the contract that he had sold his interest in the De Mille studio to Pathe, "for which company," he said, "I have the very highest regard." The title of his first production for M-G-M has not yet been disclosed, but that it will be a modern story has been revealed.

Louis B. Mayer, in charge of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, in commenting on the affiliation of Mr. De Mille with his company, expressed himself as follows: "The acquisition of Cecil B. De Mille to the M-G-M fold is one of the most important moves in the history of our company. The name of De Mille represents a type of entertainment that occupies a warm spot in the hearts of the motion picture public throughout the world."

Exhibitors Oppose Law

Legal Battle Over Juvenile Regulations Begun by Quebec Showmen; to Conduct Campaign for Sunday Movies

EXHIBITORS of the Province of Quebec are engaging in double-barrelled hostilities with the Provincial Government as a result of prohibitory measures directly affecting the moving picture field.

A legal battle was started at Montreal on August 2 in opposition to the law barring all children under 16 years of age from the moving picture theatres of the Province when an action was entered in the courts to restrain the magistrate at Montreal from proceeding with the hearing of 50 charges against exhibitors of Montreal for alleged violations of the juvenile regulations. James Duhamel, owner of the Passe Temps Theatre, Montreal, entered the writ of prohibition which is looked upon as a test case, the hearing of all charges being held over pending a decision on Duhamel's petition.

The question raised is whether the Quebec Provincial Government has the power to enact legislation under the British North America Act, the constitution of Canada, to prevent all children from attending all film houses at all times or not.

The authorities at Montreal have announced that, if the test case is thrown out, they will cancel the theatre licenses, of offending exhibitors.

The other half of the warfare concerns the Sunday shows in the Province of Quebec. Ascertaining that the chief complaints to the Quebec Government against Sunday shows emanated from the rural districts, the new Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of Quebec has organized an educational campaign to be conducted through the weekly newspapers of the country sections to show the rural residents the need and benefits of Sunday performances.

If the Lord's Day Act of Canada is upheld in the present test cases of Premier L. A. Tasehereau against exhibitors of Montreal and Quebec City, the exhibitors hope to have aroused such public opinion in the rural communities that the people will voice a general protest against a ban on Sunday performances.

Sax Denies Report He Will Leave Gotham

Sam Sax, president of Gotham Productions, this week denied as "preposterous" a published report that he will join First National.

3 Paramount Specials Set for Current Release to Theatres

PARAMOUNT'S three specials—"Wings," "The Patriot" and "Wedding March" will be generally released to motion picture theatres shortly.

"Wings" to be released either the third or fourth week of September, has just reached the first anniversary of its premier at the Criterion last August 12. It has been roadshowed in the larger cities of the country during the same period. As a result of its decision to release the aviation film, the Paramount road show department will forego and cancel road show bookings already made in several cities. The picture will be equipped with full synchronized sound accompaniment.

"The Patriot" will have its premiere showing in New York at the Rialto on August 17. It, too, will be equipped with sound effects. "The Wedding March," to be released the first week of October will have Technicolor and sound.

Exhibitors Die Hard in Sunday Show Case

CARL KOEHNLINE, manager of the Elzane theatre, and Louis Eick, manager of the Fenray, at Martins Ferry, Ohio, laid their plans well in advance when they recently opened their theatres on Sunday after advertising the fact that they hoped to thus improve general business conditions of the city. Shortly after opening, both managers together with the entire house staff were arrested, but while appearing before the Mayor, another staff of employees, trained for such an emergency, continued to operate the house. They were also arrested, when the third shift was called into action only to meet a similar fate.

The arrests continued during the entire afternoon, until seven trips had been made taking the "belligerents" from the theatre to the police station. His Honor, however, evidently became weary, and left town for a short vacation, consequently the late-comers to the city prison were held until almost 11 o'clock, securing their release only after the chief executive returned to his native haunts. The congregation of blue law violators all entered a plea of not guilty at the hearing Monday and were bound over to the grand jury. The exhibitors declare the end is not yet, and that they will fight the case to a finish.

Theatre Corporation Head Exonerated of Charges

Edward M. Dangell, head of the Atlantic Theatres Corporation, New England, is completely exonerated of all charges of mismanagement of the affairs of that company in the finding of a master, Edward R. Hale, whose report has been filed with the courts in Boston.

Hearings before Master Hale started last April on complaint of Isaac M. Fienberg and others against the theatre corporation and others. Feinberg is a bondholder to the extent of $16,400, Aaron Feinberg, $600, Grover C. Burkhardt $10,000, Joseph M. O'Callaghan $8,100 and Luther E. Lewis $2,300. They charged they would lose the value of their bonds unless certain acts of Dangell were annulled.

The matter finds that Dangell has in no way acted fraudulently or against the best interests of the company.

"Conquest" Title of Third Barrymore U. A. Vehicle

John Barrymore's third starring vehicle for United Artists will be "Conquest," an original story, not a film version of a stage play. Ernst Lubitsch will produce the picture and Camilla Horn will again be opposite the star. She is now returning from Germany to New York and Hollywood. Production on "Conquest" is expected to get along toward the end of August.

Mary Brian Again Opposite Charles Rogers

Mary Brian, Paramount featured actress, has been named as Charles Rogers' leading lady in "Just Twenty One," the tentative title of his next starring vehicle. Frank Tuttle will continue to direct him. Monte Brice and Frank Butler wrote the story.

News and Comment on All Phases of "Sound" Pictures

Exhibitors Express Views on Talkies

himself, he has so many of his surrounding neighbors doing it that he thought the wisest move he could make was to sit back and see what happened to them. And that is exactly what he did do. Now, more than ever, he is at sea as to the advisability of buying a plant. He cited the Lima, Ohio, condition, where he gave me to understand that a pile of money was being lost. But as I made quite a study of conditions in Lima, I cannot agree with Mr. Foster as to the talking picture business in that town. He called my attention to Zanesville and other places which he had been, and still is, watching. And the more he watched the less enthused he became over the prospect of spending a lot of money—and then, as he puts it, to be at the mercy of the producers for pictures to use on his plant. But he is still laying back and up to this date had only bought one product for next season. Then again, he has another cloud coming on the horizon with a new atmospheric theatre due to open this fall and designed by no other than John Emerson, of Chicago. He tells me that even the new house is not certain of installing a sound plant. Mr. Foster's advice to the theatre-men at large is that they should keep a careful eye on nearby towns with talking equipment and see what they do, rather than to jump into so big an investment without knowing what it's all about.

I could cite a dozen more exhibitors on both sides of the fence, but instead I have picked these few at random and you can draw your own conclusions from what they have to say on the subject. But there is one point upon which almost everyone of the exhibitors I talked to, agreed, that is: the sound pictures are here to stay. This is almost unanimous and while few would venture an opinion as to what the future would bring in this new form of pictures, they were certain that great strides would be taken within the next year or two. In other words, the greater majority have taken sound pictures for granted and are convinced that they are not a passing fancy with either the public or the industry.

Al Jolson Signs Long Term Contract As Warner Bros. Star

AN event of importance in the field of talking pictures is revealed in an official announcement this week from J. L. Warner that Al Jolson has signed a long term contract to star in Vitaphone productions for Warner Bros.

In spite of the fact that his first picture, "The Jazz Singer," was a box-office sensation and that the star is now at work on his second vehicle, "The Singing Fool," up to this week Jolson had not committed himself regarding his future screen activities. His contract with Warner Bros., however, now provides for his remaining in pictures permanently. The Warner Studio officials are highly gratified at having secured his signature as others were angling for his services.

According to Jolson's new arrangement with Warner Bros., he will not give up the stage but will make trips to the studio in Hollywood at specified intervals in order to assure a consistent output of his productions.

Loew Policy Defines Synchronized Film

AN important point in connection with the present confusion of terms for talking and synchronized film is brought out in a report from the NEWS correspondent in the South that the Loew theatre organization is using strict care in all their advertising and publicity on this type of product.

So that the public may fully understand the difference between a picture with synchronized music, or sound effects, and one with dialogue, or all three, the Loew policy is one to carefully explain this in all announcements.

Movietone made its debut at Loew's Vendome in Nashville, Tenn., last week. The program included Ben Bernie's band, Fox Movietone News and Lindbergh's reception in Washington. Paramount's "Warming Up" will be the next sound picture.

Public Ready for Talkies, Says Pinanski, But Must Be Good

VIEWS on talking motion pictures were recently expressed by Samuel Pinanski, president of the New England Theatres Operating Company, a theatre chain which has rapidly expanded in New England territory during recent years. Mr. Pinanski believes that the talking motion picture is a great step forward and that the possibilities are limitless but thinks that the producers should carefully watch their step at this particular time:

"The danger of the talking picture at the present moment is that it may be gone into too suddenly and be given a false expansion that will and can only result in a slowing up period of adjustment a little later. Because of the tremendous success of "The Jazz Singer," in which we shared to a considerable extent in our theatres here in New England, all of the producers have gone "talking mad." Most exhibitors are in even a worse state. The danger lies in flooding the market with too many poorly throughout productions whose only possible appeal lies in their mere novelty. . . . it should never be overlooked that it is motion pictures—not freak mechanism—that is being sold.

"That pictures can talk with amazing fidelity to tone and that the studios are able to produce every conceivable sort of sound, does not and never should excuse the need of a good story with which to work."

Mr. Pinanski thinks the picture industray should give thanks to the radio for the development of the talkies and sound pictures:

"To the radio, and to the radio alone, this industry should give thanks for a very real service rendered. Mechanical music, as has been pointed out by prominent men in the musical profession, can never be quite what the real thing can be. But, so familiar has the public become with the reproduction of music and voices by means of the radio that they are now ready to

Universal's Plans for "Minstrel Show" Nearing Completion; Has Movietone

PLANS rapidly approaching completion at Universal City for the production of "The Minstrel Show," from the pens of George R. Rogan and Norman Sper. indicate that the pictnre will be one of Universal's super-prodnctions for next season. It will be made with Movietone throughout inclnding dialogue.

The story is being built up around the life and adventures of Banks Winter. famous black-face artist and will contain a story laid against the back-ground of minstrelsy from the early black-face days of 1885 down to the present day.

It is very likely that "The Minstrel Show" will go into production after "Showboat" and "Broadway," with a chance it will be contemporary with "Broadway," at the big coast studio.

Curtis Benton is now at work on the adaptation and continuity.

M. H. Hoffman, of Tiffany-Stahl, Discusses Sound Pictures

M. H. HOFFMAN, vice president and general manager of Tiffany-Stahl Produetions, at present at the Hollywood studios of that company, thinks that it will be at least two years before an appreciable number of theatres throughout this country will have sound pieture apparatus installed.

Mr. Hoffman believes that there are 18,000 or 19,000 theatres without sound equipment, speaking of those exhibitors who are in haste to have their theatres wired for sound apparatus. As for Tiffany-Stahl's plans in this field, he stated that his company will synchronize their pictures with sound but leans toward the belief that theatres need the silent drama. "Tiffany-Stahl proposes and intends to make pictures which will be good box offiee drawing cards regardless of whether they be shown in sound equipped theatres or whether they be shown as regular motion picture entertainment," said Mr. Hoffman.

Along with other producers Mr. Hoffman believes that the quality of forthcoming product must not be neglected with the innovation of sound effects: "There isn't a doubt but that sound pictures are coming along and will give an additional impetus to the business," said Mr. Hoffman. "Sound must be added to excellent pictures for if we neglect quality in our enthusiasm over sound, the public will advise us to shut up sound and give them back their money.

Double Turn-table Device Used Successfully in South

NOTWITHSTANDING the absence of authentic information showing the actual number of theatres that have successfully utilized non-synchronous devices in providing musical accompaniments for pictures, it is certain that several theatres in the South have solved an important problem by the introduction of the double turntable in connection with the Western Electric system. Several others that have no wiring for sound pictures have made their own provision for cueing pictures with records.

Some six months ago the Imperial Theatre, Jacksonville, Fla., did pioneering work in this direction. This house, then and now under the direction of E. J. Sparks, with John L. Crovo as manager, is wired for Vitaphone and Movietone—the Western Electric system. Vitaphone and Movietone subjects are featured on the program. But lacking an adequate number of synchronized feature-length productions, Mr. Sparks and Mr. Crovo sought a solution of the problem that presented itself when no synchronized feature picture was available. And "baby Vitaphone" offered the solution.

The term is used to designate the non-synchronous device used in connection with the Western Electric system. By means of a double turn-table equipped with a small device known as a "fader" two records are in place at all times and the switch is made from one record to another with the "fader" without destroying continuity.

Using as a guide the cue sheets prepared by producers, stock records are selected from the Victor output. Since the non-synchronous device is connected up with the Western Electric system giving the same reproduction afforded Vitaphone and Movietone it is not surprising that in many cases theatre patrons have been unable to distinguish between the synchronous and non-synchronous accompaniments.

Outstanding in the long list of pictures for which the Imperial Theatre provided a non-synchronous accompaniment was "Rose Marie." Happily for the presentation, some excellent records of the hits from that highly successful operetta were available. "Rose Marie," I Love You" and "The Indian Love Call" were repeated with fine effect in the non-synchronous score.

That is but one instance of the Imperial's very successful scoring. As a matter of fact, that theatre has used "baby Vitaphone" many months.

The Metropolitan Theatre, Atlanta, resorted to the double turntable immediately following the notably successful presentation of "The Jazz Singer." After an eight weeks' consecutive run of this first smashing Vitaphone success it behooves the Metropolitan to uphold its standard. But no Vitaphone feature-length picture was available. So Manager Carter Barron met the situation with "baby Vitaphone." He continued to present Vitaphone vaudeville and subsequently added Fox Movietone News, but the musical accompaniment for the feature picture is the result of his own enterprise. He uses the cue sheet as a guide, and each week buys from Cable Piano Company the stock records necessary to score the picture. Incidentally, he obtains the cooperation of the Cable Piano Company's department head in charge of records.

Two suburban theatres in the Atlanta district, neither of which has wiring, have been equally enterprising in handling music for their pictures. The Empire Theatre, of which Alpha Fowler is manager, installed Orchestraphone with loud speakers and ever since its opening, many months ago, has cued pictures from stock records.

Some two months ago Mr. Fowler inaugurated a new feature which likewise utilizes Orchestraphone. This is a song slide feature with the Orchestraphone providing the music. From the Orchestraphone, located in the pit, a buzzer system connects with the booth, and the organist who operates Orchestraphone signals the operator. In this way there is smooth coordination. The song slide number with Orchestraphone accompaniment has been a tremendous hit at the Empire—so good, in fact, that Mr. Fowler is receiving numerous inquiries from various exhibitors who either have heard and seen the numbers, or whose account of them from others prompted inquiry.

Another suburban theatre that is using a non-synchronous device of a different character is the Tenth Street Theatre, of which Frank Harris is manager. Mr. Harris employs the double turn-table, installed near the booth, and connected up with loud speakers located on each side of the screen. Like the others mentioned, he chooses records from stock to fit the cue sheet; and he reports that his patrons are highly pleased with the result.

Dorothy Sebastian Lead in "The Rainbow"

The leading role in "The Rainbow," Reginald Barker's next special production for Tiffany-Stahl, will be portrayed by Dorothy Sebastian.

Schenck Gives Talkies Five Months

"Badly Done Novelty", Is Quoted By British Paper

IN an interview with the London press, during a combination holiday and business visit in England, Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, is quoted as scoring the talking picture. In an interview in "To-Day's Cinema," an English film paper, Mr. Schenck also commented on the British Quota, hinted at a deal with the Russian Sovkino and confirmed the purchase by Allied Artists of a play which has had a successful run at the St. James theatre in London.

Will Not Make Talkies

In his attack on the talking picture Mr. Schenck as quoted, stated: "We are not going to make talking pictures. We have not shown any talking pictures and I am not going to show them until I am convinced that the public wants them.

"I do not believe that the present talking picture craze is more than public curiosity in a novelty. It is a novelty and a badly done one. I prophesy they will not last more than four or five months.

Continuing the interview Mr. Schenck said, "I have heard Vitaphone features and I find them artificial and too mechanical. For topicals Movietone—which I like best—and Vitaphone are excellent. But for full length feature pictures it is unnatural and robs the picture of sincerity by its mechanical quality.

Equipped for Sound Films

"The danger is that the public may be poisoned by the talkies. We have equipped sound studios for sound-films and synchronized music and sound effects for which I think there is a great future. At the same time I do not think that the big key theatres will ever give up their orchestras and musicians need not fear mechanical music in the way some people believe.

"Synchronized music will simply kill the two-man 'dud' orchestra of the small houses while 'short talkies' may take the place of costly presentations, which are a ghastly and expensive failure in America."

Mr. Schenck announced that Allied Artists, the English United Artists company, has secured for their next British picture "S. O. S.", a play with a successful record at the St. James theatre. Robert Loraine has been secured for the leading role by the production sponsors, the Strand Film Company. This picture will be directed by Leslie Hiscott.

Says Quota Ill-Advised

Questioned by the press concerning the British quota, Mr. Schenck stated: "Do I think the British quota a good move? No, sir. It is the most ill-advised move that could have been made. What you should have instead is a high tariff against foreign pictures. Then you would get only good pictures over here and the junk would never reach you."

Asked about his Russian plans, Mr. Schenck stated that while his company had sent no pictures to that country for three years there were a lot on the shelves that Russia would like to have and that at the invitation of Sovkino he would pay the country a visit whereby a releasing deal might be put into effect.

Mr. Schenck, commenting upon British pictures, said: "To tell you the truth, I don't think that I have ever seen one. But I believe that they are too local in appeal." In his interview with "To-Day's Cinema," Mr. Schenck told the representative of that film paper that, "If I can find those qualified to turn out British quota pictures of the right standard, I am here to do business with them."

Will Hays Praises Sound Pictures During Kansas City Visit

WITH the Newman and Loew's Midland Theatre, Kansas City's two largest first run downtown houses, being prepared for Vitaphone pictures, it begins to look as though the "talking picture" soon will predominate in Kansas City. The Newman for several days has been using trailers, exploitating and endeavoring to familarize the public with the new move. Will Hays, who was in Kansas City the other day, had nothing but praise for the sound pictures.

"Talking pictures have the motion picture world by the ears," Mr. Hays said. "Sound adds to the total dramatic value of the picture. It will add great new interest: make possible inestimable value in pedagogic and scientific pictures. George Bernard Shaw, who always said he wouldn't, was heard in New York. Mussolini is giving speeches in various cities in this country. The Prince of Wales soon will speak in Kansas City. All that is made possible by the audible pictures.

"The sound picture, moreover, does not mean any less quality or attention bestowed on the silent parts of the film. The emphasis on the sound part merely is a phase of the picture."

Le Baron En Route to Confer on Talkies

WILLIAM LE BARON, vice-president of F B O Pictures Corporation in charge of production, is expected to arrive in New York City the latter part of this week or the first of next week to confer with Joseph P. Kennedy, president of the company, and J. I. Schnitzer, senior vice-president, on the subject of talking pictures.

Mr. Le Baron will remain in New York for several weeks and, while there, will search for suitable talent for the talkies. It is reported that negotiations are already under way between Mr. Le Baron and three well-known stage stars and it is probable that these players will be signed during Mr. Le Baron's stay in the city.

Theatres Suffer From Dispute Over Sound Installations

THE controversy between the electricians' union and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators as to which union is to have the right to make sound and talking picture installations appears to have reached a point where theatres are suffering from the action of the two bodies. The electricians think that they should be the ones to make the installation; while the I. A. T. S. E. contend that they have juriediction over the matter.

At any rate, it was impossible for "Lilac Time," First National's sound picture to use its synchronized score for its premiere last week at the Century theatre in New York City. As soon as the house can be wired this picture will utilize the Vitaphone accompaniment but for the present will continue the opening program of a regular orchestra. Reports from Chicago and Boston are to the effect that theatres in these cities are experiencing similar trouble.

An executive of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. Operators is reported to have stated that the maintenance of sound picture apparatus is unquestionably under the jurisdiction of his unions, installation work coming under the jurisdiction of the electrical workers in the Building Trades Union. This executive is said to have denied that there is any dispute between the two unions on the installation of sound picture apparatus.

Fox Films Signs Movietone Corps for Work in Talking Pictures

IT was announced this week by Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of Fox Films, that his company had signed a Movietone corps consisting of one producer and twenty-one directors, writers and players to work on forthcoming productions from the Fox studios.

Albert Lewis, who staged "The Jazz Singer." "The Spider." "The Nervous Wreck" and "Rain" is the producer and he will act as the New York City representative for the company in the matter of assembling talent for sound pictures.

The directors are Charles Judels, Earl Lewis McGill, Donald Gallagher and Marcel Silver; the writers, Eugene Walter Tom Barry, Edwin Burke, Edmund Joseph and Dave Stamper; the actors, Chick Sale, Clark and McCullough, Lumsden Hare, Gilbert Emery, Clifford Dempsey, Sylvia Field, Ben Holmes, Arnold Lucy, Helen Twelvetrees and Paul Fung.

Voices, Mr. Lewis is quoted as saying, will play an important part but he does not state how far sound effects will be carried out in screen fare. Lewis, according to the statement, also does not think that dialogue will be carried all the way through the pictures. In order to transfer stage plays to the screen Mr. Lewis believes that they will have to go through the process of adaptation.

Niblo Airs His Views on Talkies in West Coast Interview

IN an interview with Jerome M. Strauss, of the "Los Angeles Examiner," Fred Niblo, well known director, airs his views on talking and sound pictures and decries that the industry "plunge blindly into unknown lands." Mr. Niblo is "frightened and afraid" and believes that apathy on the part of the public for silent film has not progressed to the point some persons think and, if it has, points to other reasons which might be the source of the trouble.

To quote from the Examiner article:

"I would like to sound a warning against this stampede. At least, let us take time to consider where we are going.

"I do not believe that public interest in the silent film is flagging to the point where innovations are demanded. The trouble lies in theatre development, more seats than can possibly be filled. Turn half our theatres into garages and there will be no more complaint on the score of patronage.

"The silent drama has a great clientele. Shall we jeopardize this by tinkering with the type of pictures that has built up this following? Shall we drive film patrons from theatres by presenting them with mediocre talking pictures?

"What of the quality of the conversation in the 'talkies?' What will the actors say? Who will write it for them? As it is, there is a shortage of good writers in the industry. Where will we find Oscar Wildes and Bernard Shaws to write dialogue for the 'talkies?'

"The public loves youth and beauty on the screen. Shall we sacrifice youth and beauty to voice? And a good voice in a talking picture will be a canned voice, nevertheless.

"What will become of our foreign market? What will become of our foreign stars, with imperfect knowledge of our language? And what will become of some of our greatest actors, who are not especially favored as to voice? I fear that many an idol of the silent drama may have a tongue of clay—or rather of brass—in talking pictures.

"One of the greatest assets of pictures is the musical score. Whatever happens, let us retain this, either by sound device or orchestra.

"Motion pictures are modern fairy tales. They are essentially the art of pantomime. Music heightens illusion, speech may destroy it.

"I would suggest that we go in for sound pictures before embarking upon talking pictures. Reproduction of sounds may be very effective. I would have liked sound effects for such scenes in 'Ben Hur' as the galley-fight and the chariot race.

"I have said I would like to see half our theatres turned into garages. I would rather see them turned into juvenile playhouses.

"Second to theatre overbuilding, I regard the policy of trying to appeal to all types of minds as the worst curse of the industry. An intelligent adult may read Schnitzler, his little boy 'The Youth's Companion.' But the intelligent adult and his little boy go to the same show.

"If we make Schnitzler on the screen, and eliminate the subleties for the sake of the child, we have neither Schnitzler nor 'The Youth's Companion.'

"If the intelligent adult and his little boy went to different theatres or to different performances—one with plays for the adult, the other with plays for the juvenile mind—then we could draw the line somewhere in making pictures.

"Certain theatres already have made a start in this direction by giving children's matinees.

"I have done considerable viewing with alarm," said Niblo in closing. "Despite everything, I believe the industry rests on a firm foundation. I want to see it stay there—to continue to rest on the fundamentals that have made it so great."

Vita Stages Busy With 8 Warner Talkies

Every available inch of space on the Vitaphone stages of the Warner Studio is now in use to meet the company's activity in preparing their program of talking pictures. Recording of dialogue and song sequences as well as symphonic accompaniments is under way at the present time for eight sound features.

Al Jolson is busy on one stage Vitaphoning "The Singing Fool" under the direction of Lloyd Bacon while another large section is devoted to Archie Mayo's unit making "My Man" with Fannie Brice as its star.

Vitaphone equipment is in constant use by Director Bryan Foy, now occupied with an all-talking version of George M. Cohan's success, "The Home Towners." Monte Blue's starring special, "Conquest," is also employing the sound device extensively as is "The Redeeming Sin" starring Dolores Costello.

In addition to these Road Shows, three other Warner Pictures are now being Vitaphoned with sound effects and dialogue. They are "The Outlaw Dog," the temporary title of Rin-Tin-Tin's next over which Ross Lederman has directorial charge, "Stolen Kisses" starring May McAvoy directed by Ray Enright and "Hard Boiled Rose" with an all-star line-up headed by Myrna Loy directed by F. Harmon Weight.

Washington, D. C. Local Presents Demands

DEMANDS for an increase in wages over the present scale and additional help in the projection room of those theatres using sound picture apparatus were made on August 1 by the Washington, D. C. moving picture operators union for the coming contract year. The present contract expires August 31.

For the five largest theatres in Washington the operators want a wage scale of eighty-five dollars per week. This is a fifteen dollar increase over the present scale. Demands were also made for increase in operators for the smaller houses.

In booths of houses where sound picture apparatus is installed, the union demands that six men be used. This is an addition of one operator.

Equity States Attitude on Talkies

Urges Members to Hold Out for "Equitable Pay"

IN the July issue of Equity, the official organ of the Actors' Equity Association, Equity's attitude on the matter of relations of its members to making contracts to work in talking picture productions is gone into in length by the Association's Executive Secretary, recently returned from the West Coast where he has been in close contact with many important actors in the motion picture field. His report states that the motion picture producers are convinced that the talking pictures are beyond the stage of a toy; that they are engaged in lining up actors and actresses from the legitimate stage and that more and more legitimate players may expect to be approached for work in the talkies.

To quote from the Equity article:

"Here is about the way the producer works, or expects to work his players. The actor, on being signed up, is handed the manuscript of his part and is told to get up in it.

"Then the cast is called for rehearsal and, after one day of this for shooting as it is needed. With ordinary care and planning the whole picture may be shot in eight days, and if the actor appears in but one act, he may be used for only a day or two. It is for the time that he is actually before the camera that the actor is paid.

"Now that is the way the proposition is put up to many legitimate actors, and they accept it because they are used to giving four weeks of free rehearsals in the legitimate theatre.

"But they do not stop to think what they are getting in return for those weeks of rehearsal on the dramatic stage, which are not being offered by the talking motion pictures.

"There is, at the very least, the guaranty of two weeks' employment or its equivalent in pay, whatever the run of the production. The talking motion picture producer offers just the time he needs the actor.

"Then, if the legitimate actor is lucky, he may have a part in a hit which will run a season or more in New York and perhaps another season or two on the road. There are never many such plays in any one season, of course, but there is always the chance in the mind of an actor of the legitimate theatre that this play may be one of them.

"There isn't any possibility of such a thing taking place in this motion picture proposition. The film may run in New York for a year or two. It may go on the road, or abroad, but the actor does not go with it. He is going the rounds of the studio looking for another chance to work two days or two weeks.

"The actors who are approached for this new venture may as well make up their minds that what they get for the making of a talking picture is all they will ever get from it.

"But, returning to the predicament of the actor who is approached for work of this kind, what is Equity's recommendation? Not to go into it at all? No, Equity believes that it is here to stay, and that it will offer far more empoyment for the good actors and actresses of the spoken drama than its silent predecessor.

"Equity does believe, however, that in view of the handicaps imposed upon its members by the conditions which enter into the making and showing of this form of contract they ought to stand out for a more equitable arrangement in pay.

"Every actor who signs for work of this character ought to insist on being paid from the time the manuscript is put into his hands to study, until he finishes his work in that picture.

"The motion picture actor is now paid from the time that he receives his call, the player in talking pictures is practically in that position when he begins his study.

"While the actor is getting up in his part he is working in that picture, cannot undertake any other employment, and deserves to be paid for his work.

"Of course there will be a protest from the producers of talking pictures when these demands are presented. There always is when the actors ask for what is fair and due.

"The producing managers of the legitimate stage swore that they could never get productions ready in four weeks of free rehearsals, and they could never make any money with a basic week of eight performances. But they have done both of these things and that system is firmly established.

"The motion picture producers denied and continue to deny to this day that they could run their studios on a basic week of forty-eight hours. But they are going to come to it yet, and when they do they will find that they can accomplish about as much as under the present regime. It will take a little more efficient planning, and there will not be such opportunity for wholesale inspiration at the last minute as the studio executives now enjoy. But it can be done, and the studios will do it, in time.

"So it is likely that the producers of talking motion pictures will assert, and probably with some degree of violence, that such a request is entirely out of the question. And they will offer to produce assorted bales of arguments to show why it is impossible.

John Barrymore to Do First Talking Picture for Warner Bros.

FOLLOWING the announcement that Warner Bros. had signed Al Jolson to a long term contract, H. M. Warner, president of Warner Bros., informed the press this week that his company has contracted for the appearance of John Barrymore in his first talking film which will be made as a special Vitaphone production.

An influencing factor in Warner Bros. securing Barrymore's services was his former affiliation with the company during the making of "Don Juan," "Beau Brummel," "The Sea Beast" and "When a Man Loves." The first public presentation of Vitaphone with symphonic accompaniment was made with the latter picture.

"Picture Backbone" Says Sax, But Will Make Sound Film

SAM SAX, president of Gotham Productions, summing up his observations on the subject of talking pictures, is of the opinion that the talkies may eventually enhance a picture's entertainment value but that the picture will always be the backbone of the show. Mr. Sax stamps the current controversy over the talkies as "transitory" but admits that his company is taking steps to synchronize product in order "to swing along with the tide."

Mr. Sax senses a sudden halt of business initiative in the industry, "both production and exhibition because of the uncertainty of the future silent pictures as opposed to talkies or synchronized films. Apart from the serious condition this inertia is leading to in the marketing of pictures, the situation is the most absurd thing in the world," he says.

"It is no secret that the vast majority of exhibitors couldn't have their houses wired for sound installation for a year.

"In the meantime, what? Is the exhibitor to stop giving a show?—or allow the public to sense that an impasse of some kind is keeping the best pictures from being shown until the question of sound pictures will have been settled.

"In my personal opinion, the exact position of sound right now, is that it is something that may possibly be counted on as a universal thing, somewhere in the far future. For the present it is having its place in the headlines just as presentations had.

Mr. Sax believes that time has proved that good pictures have always dominated the show. "The picture made the motion picture theatre popular. If there had been any need for presentation acts the fans would have stuck to the vaudeville houses in the first place. The fact that picture houses gradually put vaudeville in the shadow proves that the silent drama had a distinct edge in appeal.

No Let Down on "Silents" Says Laemmle

To Go Ahead With Promised Schedule for 1928-29 Season

CARL LAEMMLE, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, has just taken strenuous measures to keep his studio force on firm ground during the present Hollywood excitement concerning talking pictures. Universal has mapped out a definite sound-picture policy. However, that company is going ahead vigorously with its regular schedule of silent pictures. Laemmle has just published the following instructions to his organization, with special reference to his studio force. The message is entitled "Sound Business and Common Sense."

"Keep your eye on the ball.

"Universal is in the business of making first class pictures.

"At the beginning of the picture year, Universal promised to exhibitors a full program of high-grade pictures. It was a definite promise and it must be kept 100 per cent.

"It is up to you to do this.

Plans for Talkies

"The company has formulated definite plans for a careful and well regulated sound picture schedule. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Man Who Laughs" already have been synchronized. The results are marvelous. Our Sound and Talking Picture activities are being handled by experts. "Red Hot Speed," "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," "Show Boat," "The Last Warning," "Broadway," "The Girl on the Barge" and many others are being or will be made with sound or synchronized.

Will Hold Up Quality

"But all of our pictures will be released to thousands of theatres un-equipped for sound. No Universal picture must depend upon the novelty of sound and dialogue to get by. Each picture must stand on its own feet as excellent entertainment.

"Universal is fortunate in that thirty-five of the promised sixty-seven features for 1928-1929 are already completed. They are outstanding pictures, every one of them. We must make sure that the remainder are of the same high quality.

"This warning is addressed to You, Mr. Scenario-man, and to You, Mr. Director, and to You, Mr. Cameraman, and to You and You and You, whatever your job is. With or without sound and talking, Universal pictures must have good stories with suspense and appeal, they must be well conceived, well directed, well enacted and well photographed. All the music, or sound or talking in the world will not take the place of the four cardinal principles of the motion picture—story—direction—action—photography."

(Signed) Carl Laemmle.

Second Warner Talkie to Premiere Aug 15

THE second "all talkie" from Warner Bros., "The Terror," will have its world premiere at the Warner theatre, New York City, on Wednesday evening, August 15. It is a mystery comedy melodrama from the stage play by Edgar Wallace. Roy Del Ruth directed the production and the cast includes May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda, Edward Everett Horton, Alec Francis, Matthew Betz, Holmes Herbert and John Miljan.

The production of two negatives on "The Terror" is in line with the Warner policy of making their pictures in a double version to render them suitable for theatres whether or not they show talking films. The only exception to this policy is "Lights of New York" which is available only in a Vitaphone version.

Cleveland Co. Equipped to Take Sound Pictures

Tri-State Motion Picture Company steps into the limelight as being the first company in Cleveland territory to be equipped to take sound pictures. Jack Flanigan, head of Tri-State Motion Picture Company, is getting Rathophone RCA Corporation equipment and within thirty days will be prepared to take sound effects and talking movies. He will also be prepared to print and develop these pictures in his own laboratories in the Film Exchange Bldg. Associated with Flanigan in the company is Gilbert Hamilton, well known west coast director. He is in charge of the directorial department of the Tri-State Motion Picture Company.

Frank Walsh With Selwyn-Hammerstein Sales

Frank V. Walsh, until recently associated with the William Fox office of New York, has been appointed assistant general sales manager of the newly-formed Arthur Hammerstein-Arch Selwyn Motion Picture Distributing Company. Mr. Walsh will make his headquarters at the Hammerstein Theatre Building.

The Hammerstein-Selwyn Motion Picture Department is at present active in the distribution of "The End of St. Petersburg" and "Dawn."

In addition to the motion pictures already contracted for, Hammerstein and Selwyn will shortly become active in the distribution of Sound Pictures. It is their intention to make their musical comedies and dramas into synchronized pictures, with musical accompaniment and dialogue, after they have completed their tours of the major cities on the legitimate circuits. Negotiations are now under way with other prominent legitimate producers who distribute their product through the motion picture distributing office already formed by Hammerstein and Selwyn.

"But they are going ahead to produce more talking motion pictures. And to do them adequately they will have to avail themselves of actors with trained voices as well as trained bodies—and that means the actors of the legitimate stage.

"If these actors will stand out for what Equity believes to be a fair request, in view of the disabilities connected with the case and—if they are pressed too hard—if they will call upon their Association to negotiate these points for them, Equity believes that they will receive the pay to which they are entitled.

"It is a point and a situation in which Equity is greatly interested. Let the actors make these demands firmly and stick to them and the problem will be solved before it becomes serious.

"The development of talking motion pictures has proved conclusively the fundamental error committed by the group of important and influential motion picture actors who, just a year ago, blocked Equity's organization of the motion picture field and the establishment of an Equity Shop.

"It may bring home to these actors now the justice of Equity's contention that as individuals they are helpless and that in organization only is there hope for protection from economic injustice."

accept this new device as cheerfully as they did it in their homes.

"Many changes will have to be made as regards studio technique," Mr. Pinanski adds. "It will be discovered, when the tumult and the shouting of discovery dies down, that sound, like every other thing in the world, can be too liberally supplied. Some sounds are unpleasant. Silent fights give people a thrill. Fights with all the attendant sounds of ugly blows, the groans of the injured, etc., might be unbearable to the majority—as would vile or strong language—which at the present time often gets by in silent dramas. But the public is ready for talking pictures and we have the theatres. What we next need, and we must see that we get them, are pictures worthy of the means now placed at our disposal in the making of them."

EVERYBODY NECESSARY FOR THE TALKING PICTURE

8 New Shorts Listed for Aug. 19 Release by Pathe

Headed by "Canned Thrills," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, the Pathe program of short subjects for the week of August 19 also includes seven other subjects. Another subjects. Another highlight of the list of shorts is "Smith's Restaurant," a new Mack Sennett comedy, with the Smith family trio.

The other six numbers are: "The Claws of Death," chapter three of the current Patheserial, "The Terrible People"; "A Cross Country Run," a new Aesop Fables cartoon; Pathe Review No. 34; Topics of the Day No. 34; Pathe News Issues Nos. 70 and 71.

The Pathe Review includes: "Lumbering for Camphor in Formosa Jungles," "Orphan Annie's Friend," "Harold Gray, "Ferocious Vegetarian," "America's Birthplace," "New York Architecture."

New Faces in Educational Comedy Subjects

Kit Guard, comedian, who has been appearing in comedies for the past two or three years, makes his debut in Educational comedies as one of the principal supporting funmakers in a Mermaid comedy featuring Monty Collins.

Another newcomer to the Educational banner, this time a beauty contest winner, is Adrianne Dore, who was "Miss Los Angeles" at a recent Atlantic City beauty pageant; she will be seen opposite Collins. In a new Cameo comedy, Billy Cinders, now on his second picture for Educational, is being featured with Gene Stone and Ruth Eddings. All these are newcomers, Miss Eddings having recently completed a role in a new Lupino Lane comedy.

Fairbanks Begins Filming "Musketeers" Sequel

"The Man with the Iron Mask," the Dumas story which will be Douglas Fairbanks' next United Artists production and sequel to his "The Three Musketeers," was launched into production at the United Artists studio in Hollywood last week, the first scenes of the historical romantic film story dealing with the Palace of St. German. This set is the works of Fairbanks' technical department, in addition to Lawrence Irving, painter and son of Sir Henry Irving, and Maurice Leloir, French authority on Dumas and French art.

The initial scenes of the new Fairbanks vehicle were inaugurated by Robert Fairbanks, general manager for his brothers.

Columbia Signs Directors for 3 New Productions

Columbia Pictures last week signed three directors to handle three feature productions on the new program of release for the coming season.

Frank Capra, who has just finished "Submarine," was engaged to megaphone Bert Lytell in "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," to go into work inside of three weeks. John Adolfi was signed to direct "Sinners' Parade," the script of which is now engaging his and Beatrice Van's attention. Erle C. Kenton was signed to direct "The Street of Illusion."

U's 1928 Profits May Top 1927, Says "Journal"

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL estimates that Universal Pictures Company, Inc., will experience earnings in excess of those reported for the twelve months ended Nov. 5, 1927, when the financial report for the new fiscal year to end about next Nov. 3 is turned in. The profits for the period last year were $1,672,000, equal, after all charges, depreciation and taxes, to $4.60 per share on the 250,000 shares of no par value common outstanding.

Net profits estimated at $651,133 are reported for the six months ended on May 5, 1928. This sum is equal to $1.94 per share on the common outstanding, after preferred dividends, compared with $538,814, or $1.46 per share on the common the same time a year ago.

Net income during the first six months of Universal's fiscal period ended around May 5, together with the equivalent per share value on common is compared by The Wall Street Journal as follows:

6 Mos. Ended	Net Income	Earned on Common
May 5, 1928	$ 651,133	$1.94
May 7, 1927	538,814	1.46
May 8, 1926	725,843	2.16
May 9, 1925	1,248,754	4.23

Rowland Sees Problems

Retiring First National Executive Views Negative Cost and Theatre Overseating as Economic Difficulties

RICHARD A. ROWLAND, who resigned last week as general and production manager of First National Pictures, in the statement of his resignation, stated that two economic problems confronted the industry at the present time. He mentioned them as negative cost an over-seating of theatres. These difficulties could not be solved, said the retiring First National official, except by the leaders of the industry getting closer together and effecting some sort of regulations so that the industry will be returned to the proper amount of dividends to which it is entitled considering the sums invested.

Mr. Rowland declared that Joseph P. Kennedy "will be very instrumental in solving conditions in common with the heads of the other companies. This would be a step in the right direction. It would be a fine thing for the industry within itself to solve these matters rather than have other powers regulating its affairs." He regards the coming period as a "new era of things."

Mr. Rowland has been associated with First National since May, 1921. Two years ago he announced that he would not renew his contract with First National when it expired, and he saw through this resolution even though Mr. Kennedy requested that he remain. His contract expired last Thursday, August 2.

Mr. Rowland, in his statement of resignation, expressed his enthusiasm that Al Rockett will continue as head of the Burbank studio, and also felt elated over Ned E. Depinet's supervision of sales. "I am positive First National will see its best year," he said.

The statement concluded with the following: "I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the many friends and associates I have within the organization. For a long time I have been wanting a complete rest—now I am going to take it. Perhaps after a time I may get the fever again. This only time can tell."

Glazer Studio Advisor for F. N. and Pathe

BENJAMIN GLAZER will be production advisor at the First National and Pathe studios in sole charge of the sound production activities of both companies. Joseph P. Kennedy, president of F B O, has just announced the appointment, also, of Mr. Glazer as his personal representative.

Mr. Glazer recently finished his contract at the Paramount studio, where he served as a writer of original stories, adaptor and supervisor. Before his association with the films, he did dramatic writing for the stage. He assumes his new duties at the Pathe plant at once.

Cast Chosen for Douglas MacLean Picture

The complete cast for "The Carnation Kid," the Christie-Douglas MacLean feature for Paramount, has been chosen by Director E. Mason Hopper and Al Cohen, who have been conducting talking and film tests for the past two weeks to determine the list of players. The story of "The Carnation Kid" has been planned with sound and talking sequences in mind, but two versions have been prepared by Cohen, author, and Henry McCarty, scenarist, one of which is intended for sound while the other is planned for the silent picture.

In the role of the girl will be Frances Lee, while the other important feminine role will be portrayed by Lorraine Eddy.

:: "The Check-Up" ::

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who consider it "Fair"; the third, the number who consider it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who consider it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.

In and Out of Town

WILLIAM ROSENTHAL, special representative for United Artists, is in Chicago on a sales trip in the interest of the 19 new productions his company has scheduled. His present trip will take in other mid-western cities.

GAVIN C. HAWN, former Paramount exploitation representative and now with Publix theatres, left New York last Sunday for Kansas City, Mo., to arrange for the re opening of the Newman theatre there as a Publix house. He will return to the home office early in September.

ALBERT A. KAUFMAN, who returned to New York about a month ago from Europe, left last Thursday evening for Hollywood where he will assume his new duties as assistant to Jesse L. Lasky.

DOLORES DEL RIO arrived in New York last Monday morning, August 6, on the Twentieth Century. She was accompanied by Senora Asunsolo, her mother, and Edwin Carewe, who directed her in "Revenge," her latest United Artists vehicle. On August 18 the star and her party plan to sail on the Ile de France for Cherbourg and a tour of Europe. It is not the present intention of the star or the director to make a film in Europe it is said.

JOHN LODER, English film player recently signed by Paramount, arrived on the Berengaria in New York last Friday. His plans to remain in the city for several days were cut short when he was summoned to the Paramount studio on the coast. He departed for Hollywood Monday evening, August 6th.

HERMAN STARR, Warner Bros. executive, sailed for Europe on the Olympic August 8th, for his semi-annual trip abroad in the interests of Warners' foreign distribution. He will visit London, Paris and Berlin. He plans to inaugurate in each city a sales drive on Warner Bros.' new program of sound films.

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, president of FBO, returned to New York last Tuesday, August 7, after a coast trip lasting one month.

L. A. YOUNG, president of the L. A. Young Spring and Wire Company, of Detroit, also president of Tiffany-Stahl Productions, and Grant L. Cook, secretary and treasurer of Tiffany-Stahl, sailed on the Majestic last Saturday, August 4, for conferences with the Tiffany-Stahl representatives in England and on the continent.

EDWARD LAEMMLE, Universal director, returned to the United States on the Columbus last week after five months abroad. He will remain several days in New York to supervise "Man, Woman and Wife," on the Movietone before returning to the coast.

CAMILLA HORN, young German screen actress who appeared in United Artists' "Tempest," sailed for America on the Ile de France last Wednesday, August 8. She will work in a forthcoming United Artists film.

"White Shadows" Shown at Grauman's Chinese

Premiere of New M-G-M Feature Well Attended; Players and Director Introduced in Talkie Trailer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—Grauman's colorful Chinese theatre was the scene of another gala opening last Friday night. There was the usual outpouring of screenland's celebrities, beautifully gowned women and hand-shaking escorts. The street was packed with thousands of spectators who greeted each new arrival with cheers that drowned out the megaphone announcer's voice. Fred Niblo presided as master of ceremonies in the lobby. Motion pictures were taken in the forecourt under the supervision of James Cruze, which are later to be used in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production. At the close of the performance the featured players, Monte Blue and Raquel Torres, as well as the director, W. S. Van Dyke, were introduced by Sid Grauman in a novel Movietone trailer.

The M-G-M feature "White Shadows in the South Seas" was well received by the packed house. The same cannot be said for Sid Grauman's prologue called "The Tropics" which consisted of instrumental music and native dances by Samoan Chieftains, headed by Prince Lei Lani, Kenneth Olds, famous Hawaiian dancer and the well known Brox sisters. This was given against a background of cocoanut palms and a south sea drop. The whole was rather listless and lacked the snap of former Grauman prologues. A Fox Movietone comedy, "The Interview," with the vaudeville team of Clarke and McCullough, received a good hand as did the Movietone news reel. Then followed the "Marveltone" announced as the first time anywhere, "the motion picture that thinks," presented by George Lovett, with George Templeton, "the girl with the X-ray mind" and Elsie J. Brown "the musical oracle." This feature did not click principally because it was too long and finally was taken off before it had run its course. It consisted of two motion picture characters on the screen answering questions written on slips of paper by the audience or playing popular selections requested by anyone. It was quite mystifying but failed to hold the crowd.

New Strides in Production

With August 11 marking the start of the 1928-29 motion picture season, production activity at Paramount studios in Hollywood has reached a new seasonal peak. Nine pictures are under way with several others due to start and six more being edited, titled and made ready for release.

Chief among the productions in the studio cutting rooms are "Just Married," from Anne Nichols' farce co-starring Ruth Taylor and James Hall; "Beggars of Life," the hobo story with Wallace Beery heading a big cast; "Forgotten Faces," hailed as an outstanding special and the part Technicolor Zane Grey production, "The Water Hole," with Jack Holt and Nancy Carroll.

Jannings Begins His Fifth

Emil Jannings has started work on his fifth American-made motion picture. This one will have sound accompaniment, and is "Sins of the Fathers," adapted by E. Lloyd Sheldon from an original story. Ludwig Berger is directing and a cast of important players has been selected to support the character star.

Re-united

Gilbert, Garbo and Brown!

The "big three" which scored such a sensational success with "Flesh and the Devil," are united again. John Gilbert and Greta Garbo are to be co-starred under Clarence Brown's direction in "A Woman of Affairs," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and in the supporting cast of the Michael Arlen story will also be Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., John Mack Brown and Lewis Stone. Bess Meredyth wrote the adaptation.

A Day's Schedule

Many scenes for the forthcoming Warner Brothers picture starring Al Jolson, "The Singing Fool," are being shot in the Warner Brothers Theatre in Hollywood after the last performance at night. Due to this schedule, Betty Bronson has little spare time. Arriving home about eight in the morning, she sleeps until three in the afternoon. A dancing lesson with Marion Morgan is taken at four; a voice lesson with Emily Fitzroy at five. Thereafter, she partakes of food, a little rest and reports for work again just before midnight.

Leroy to Direct Alice White

Mervyn LeRoy will direct "Ritzy Rosie," starring Alice White for First National. He recently completed the Colleen Moore picture, "Oh Kay," and also directed "Harold Teen," one of the year's big successes.

Vacation

"Synthetic Sin," Colleen Moore's next, will not go into production until the middle of September. Meantime, the First National star, her husband, John McCormick, her brother and cousin will sail away on Colleen's spacious yacht, "Aimee," and cruise the deep blue seas.

Completes Role

Louise Dresser, prominent on stage and screen, has completed her role of the mother of Dave Rollins in "The Air Circus," Howard Hawks' Fox Film production, based on commercial aviation.

"The Devil's Apple Tree"

Elmer Clifton, having completed "Beautiful But Dumb," starts direction this week of another Tiffany-Stahl special, "The Devil's Apple Tree," starring Dorothy Sebastian. The background of this picture will reveal picturesque scenes in the jungle of New Guinea, which Clifton photographed last year during his trip around the world. Sound effects will also be added, including the cry of the tiger, the tom-tom of the native drums and many other jungle noises.

Dorothy Devore

Her first starring comedy in the new series of six that she will make for Educational this season has been started by Dorothy Devore, with Charles Lamont doing the megaphone work.

Leads Engaged for "Stolen Love"

F B O last week engaged Marceline Day and Owen Moore as the two leading players in the forthcoming F B O special, "Stolen Love," from a story by Hazel Livingston. Lynn Shores is scheduled to direct. The story, it is said, will be serialized in all the Hearst papers at the time of its showings throughout the country.

Educational's Featured Players

Estelle Bradley, blonde player among the Educational ranks of leading women, is seen opposite Jerry Drew in "Just Dandy"

Wm. De Mille Returns to Paramount

WILLIAM DE MILLE, after being absent from the Paramount studio for five years, will again affiliate himself with the company and will work with Roy J. Pomeroy, director of sound effects in the development of audible motion pictures. For the past two and one-half years, Mr. De Mille has been producing for the Cecile B. De Mille Company.

Hollywood—Continued

a new Mermaid, which concludes the Mermaid productions on the 1927-28 program. . . . Robert Graves, comedy heavy, is also one of the featured Educational players in the month's new crop of comedies, appearing in "Wife Trouble," reeently eompleted under the direction of Wallace McDonald.

Tuttle to Direct Menjou

Frank Tuttle will be Adolphe Menjou's new director, when the French star begins work on his next Paramount vehiele, the script of which is now being prepared by Ernst Vajda. . . . H D'Abbadie D'Arrast will direct Florenee Vidor when the star returns from Europe. . . . The next Charles Rogers film will be directed by F. Richard Jones, who is taking the place of Richard Wallace originally scheduled to direct the production.

Death Valley Location

The Tiffany-Stahl studio reeently sent out a caravan of 125 automobiles, trucks, camera cars and busses from Hollywood to Death Valley where scenes are to be photographed for the Reginald Barker special production, "The Rainbow." Several trucks filled with camping equipment and a huge crate of ehiekens were some of the principal items for the commissary department.

"U" Signs Grecian Beauty

Elene Aristi, Grecian actress who performs a bit in "The Last Warning," has been placed under a long-term eontract by Universal to play featured roles.

Frazer in Indian Role

Robert Frazer, well known for his character delineations in "Desert Gold," "Secret Orders," "Lightning" and other plays, has been cast for the Indian brother in "Sioux Blood," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will film in Glaeier National Park. John Waters will direct the new picture, at the conclusion of which he will begin another starring Tim McCoy, entitled "Humming Wires."

Homeward Bound

Cornelius Keefe has been signed for the juvenile lead in "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," by Universal and has departed for his home in Brookline, Mass., where he will visit with his parents for a few days before joining the east of the picture in Atlantic City, August 12.

Lois Wilson's Sister

Constance Wilson, sister of Lois, eompletes work this week in an important role of First National's "The Show Girl," starring Alice White and directed by Al Santell. This engagement followed elosely on the heels of another First National pieture, "The Barker," in which Constance played a small part but did it so well that Director Santell wanted her immediately for "The Show Girl."

Production Ended

Alfred E. Green, Fox Films director, has eompleted the screen version of the George Ade comedy, "Making the Grade."

Goes Into Work

"The Floating College," directed by George Crone, has gone into production. The company will migrate to San Diego and Ensenada, Mexico for exteriors. William Collier, Jr. and Sally O'Neill have the leads.

Del Ruth's New Picture

Roy del Ruth has been assigned the direction of "Conquest," based on the novel, "The Candle in the Wind," by Mary Imlay Taylor. It will be a sound pieture and is to be made on an elaborate seale.

Klein Starts "Fog"

Charles Klein, newly signed by Fox Films to direet, has started work on his initial production entitled, "Fog." This is an original story written by Charles Franeis Coe, author of "Me, Gangster" and "The River Pirate," which were filmed early this season.

"Dry Martini" Done

Harry D'Arrast, prominent young director, has just written 'finis' to his first production for Fox Films, "Dry Martini." This film entertainment is taken from the story of that name by John Thomas and was seenarized by Douglas Z. Doty.

Tentative

Irving Cummings is about to start production on a pieture tentatively entitled "The Woman," and will have in the east Mary Astor and Ben Bard.

Born in Illinois and Florida

The man who wrote the adaptations and continuities of "The Cat and the Canary," "The Jazz Singer," "The Cohens and the Kelleys in Paris," "We Americans," "The Last Warning," and numerous other box office successes is Alfred A. Cohn, at present supervisor of productions at Christie's, and writing "The Carnation Kid."

Cohn started his professional career early in life in his home town, Freeport, Illinois, beginning in a newspaper office and going right through the mill. His first association with motion pictures was in connection with a staff job on "Photoplay Magazine" and then during the war period he served as publicity director for Mary Pickford.

His next step was continuity writing and he has been at it ever since. He is interested in everything that has to do with writing and as a tireless worker has done much for the organization of writers in Hollywood, being one of the founders of The Writer's Club. For several years he was a director of the Screen Writer's Guild of the Author's League of America.

Evelyn Brent, one of the most successful featured actresses of the screen today, was born in Florida. Three times she became discouraged with her progress in motion pictures and forsook the screen for the stage, and three times the lure of the camera has recalled her.

Miss Brent started as an extra when she was still a school girl in New York. With a number of girl associates, she worked after school and on Saturdays in mob and atmosphere scenes and her work, even at that time, attracted attention.

After leaving school she was given a contract by the World Film Company and was soon playing important parts. From there she went to Metro under contract.

While in England on the speaking stage, she was persuaded to try pictures again and made a series of them in and around London, for a British film company. Paramount then sent a company to Europe to make "The Spanish Jade," and assigned Miss Brent the leading feminine role. She soon returned to the United States and has been working constantly ever since.

One of Miss Brent's most successful achievements was the leading feminine role in "Underworld," in which she scored individual success.

Jean Hersholt

Jean Hersholt has completed two pictures simultaneonsly. Universal's character star divided his time between the sound version of "Abie's Irish Rose," at the Paramount Studio, and the final scenes of "The Girl on the Barge," at Universal, and finished in both this week.

A Surprise Vacation

As a mark of appreeiation for her work in "The Terror," ehief executive Jack L. Warner of Warner Brothers granted May McAvoy two weeks' vacation.

Jackie Logan Ends Role

Jacqueline Logan has completed work in the starring role of "The Lookout Girl," a Quality picture directed by Douglas Fitzgerald.

Edmund Goulding's Next

"The Pagan," John Russell's famous story of the tropies, with Ramon Novarro as star, will be Edmund Goulding's first production since his return from New York to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Goulding, who directed "Love," in which John Gilbert and Greta Garbo scored, and other sueeessful produetions, is also a playwright of note and the author of many successful photoplays.

Plan Motor Trip

Marie Prevost is planning a motor trip to New York with her husband, Kenneth Harlan, who is considering an offer to appear in Gotham in a stage production.

Joins "Outcast" Unit

Louise Fazenda, one of the most popular fun-makers on the sereen, will provide much of the comedy for First National's "Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith. She has just been added to the east.

King Signs Fred de Gresac

Madame deGresac, long identified with United Artists, has been signed by Henry King to write the sereen version of Rupert Hughes' story "She Goes To War." Madame is author of many stage plays and among those which have been presented successfully in United States are "Marriage of Kitty," "The Enchantress," "The Purple Road," and "Flo Flo." She wrote the adaptation also of such film successes as "La Boheme," "The Son of the Sheik," "Camille," and "The Darling of the Gods."

Columbia Adds to Writing Staff

Under the editorship of Harold Byron, the Columbia scenario staff has been greatly augmented. Three writers of considerable note have been signed to work on the next three stories on the Columbia 1928-29 program. They are Beatriee Van, Sonya Levien and Lillie Hayward. Other writers will be added to Byron's department within the next few weeks, according to Harry Cohn, vice president, in charge of production.

Exhibitors Service Bureau

Music Stores Cooperate

Campaigns for "The Cossacks" Show Tie-up with Photoplays Are Popular with Local Dealers

ONE of the most widely, and generally, exploited feature offerings of the summer season is "The Cossacks," in which John Gilbert is starred with Renee Adoree as leading lady, and one of the remarkable factors is that while no particular song has been tied up with this picture the music dealers have been important contributors to the publicity and advertising put on in many of the key cities.

No doubt the success attending theatre-dealer tie-ups on such pictures with theme songs as "Ramona," "Laugh, Clown Laugh" and others is largely responsible for the interest in motion picture publicity which has been evidenced by several co-operative stunts put on in behalf of "The Cossacks."

The Russian background, a very obvious angle, is the feature which has been seized upon as a tie-in between theatres and music stores in connection with "The Cossacks." In the past there have been many pictures providing angles seemingly more adaptable to direct cooperation between films and music which nevertheless did not succeed in attracting the music men to the extent that has "The Cossacks"—a fact which would appear to prove that the film theatres have effected a closer bond of mutual advertising operations with these merchants.

The Gilbert starring vehicle has been the subject, and the beneficiary, of many excellent campaigns, but to review all of them would constitute a voluminous work in which there would be much repetition. Consequently, there is outlined below three major campaigns, which about cover the important exploitation ideas the showmen have developed in drives for "The Cossacks." These are the campaign put on in Milwaukee, by the Merrill; Buffalo, by Shea's Buffalo theatre, and Sapulpa, Oklahoma, by the Majestic theatre.

Book display windows as well as many other forms of promotion work were engineered by Manager Arnold Saxe of the Merrill theatre, when "The Cossacks" played in Milwaukee.

A panatrope was borrowed from "Kosselman and O'Driscoll" and this was placed in the lobby of the theatre and Russian dances and songs were played in advance of the picture with a sign reading "'The Theme' of the Cossacks is now being played."

Twenty special compo frames, size eleven by fourteen, were made by the Midwesco sign shop and in each was placed a black and white still. These were placed in twenty of the leading jewelry stores in the city.

Mr. Arnold Saxe got out an eleven by forty-two snipe with the following wording on it: "The Cossacks are coming." One thousand of these were sniped in the best location available.

Hook-up with a local radio station and a prominent music firm were valuable factors in the fast-stepping campaign for "The Cossacks" at Shea's theatre in Buffalo.

For six days before the opening of the picture radio station WMKA gave one-half hour daily of their regular music program to a discussion as to what feature was liked best. Between each musical number the name of the picture and play date was given. A photograph of either John Gilbert or Renee Adoree was mailed to every person sending in a reply to the station.

A splendid tie-up was put over with the Wurlitzer store in Buffalo, which provided space in its front window for two large cutouts. These carried stills from the picture and invited the public to come in and hear the latest Russian music.

Shea's theatre used special billing for the Polish and Jewish sections of the city, since in other cities the picture had demonstrated its popular appeal among foreign-speaking people other than Russians. This billing was printed on one sheets in the two native tongues.

A good combination of newspaper teaser ads with clever display features provided a well-organized campaign in Sapulpa.

Teaser ads and a number of short write-ups broke in the local papers seven days before the film opened. The press book color contest utilized in many larger communities went over effectively and the crossword puzzle, coming from the same source, was run in the Sapulpa Examiner.

Arrangements were made with the City Drug Store for a tie-up between Jergens Toiletries and special stills of the production. The caption used effectively on other tie-ups of this kind was used, viz: "John Gilbert says Renee Adoree has a skin you love to touch. You can have it if you use Jergen Toiletries." Another panel in the window carried the name of the theatre and the play date.

Des Moines Organist Form Song Club for Youngsters

Every Saturday morning at the Capitol theatre Des Moines children, some thousand or more of them, meet for an hour's fun with Herbie Koch, organist.

They sing, new songs and old, while Herbie plays the big pipe organ.

These kids have great fun, a membership card, a password and everything. It's a standing rule that if a child whispers the pass word to Herbie, as he walks down the street, then Herbie must fish into his pocket and pass over a penny to the youngster.

The time is 11:30 a. m. The admission to the Organ club is 10 cents, but this permits the youngsters to stay and see the regular stage and screen show.

Showmanship Briefs

A NOTEWORTHY lobby decoration has been arranged at the Capitol Theatre, Salt Lake City, recently for the hot weather, with the use of ferns, hanging baskets and scenery which suggests the coolness of the interior of this high-class house, one of the Louis Marcus Enterprises, and which is under the able management of George E. Carpenter.

MANAGER MARSLINE K. MOORE arranged a tie-up with the Postal Telegraph Co., whereby they delivered 1,000 telegrams advertising "The Patent Leather Kid" playing at the New Theatre, Fort Smith, Ark. Five messenger boys on bicycles delivered the telegrams to all parts of the city, the 'grams reading, "With great pleasure and as manager of your local Publix theatre I wish to personally indorse and urge that you see one of the year's greatest motion pictures, Richard Barthelmess in The Patent Leather Kid, which opens at the New Theatre today for a three-day engagement at no advance in prices."

MANAGER GEORGE M. WATSON made excellent use of a wagon wheel for a lobby display in advertising "The Wheel of Chance" at the Garden Theatre, Davenport, Ia. The large wagon wheel was mounted on a stand and fixed to resemble a wheel of chance. Nails were placed at even intervals around the rim and one letter was placed between each nail so that as the wheel slowly revolved, one could read the words, "Richard Barthelmess in The Wheel of Chance." A yard stick was fastened to the stand and placed in such a position so that as the wheel revolved, the nails hit the stick and sprung it against the next nail, etc. This made a light ticking noise and attracted considerable attention. The wheel revolved constantly by the use of a very small motor and pulley.

THE Ohio Theatre, Mansfield, Ohio, had two special features at the recent Wednesday matinee, which were given in addition to the regular program. A newspaper coupon and ten cents admitted children to witness a magician's performance, candy and other prizes being distributed to the youngsters. The other attraction was for ladies only, after the usual afternoon performance, and consisted of a psychic demonstration in which intimate questions were answered, each lady attending receiving a crystal gazing ball and book of instructions.

J. V. WARD, manager of the Queen's Theatre, Niagara Falls, Ontario, got an unexpected ballyhoo for "The Vanishing Pioneer" when a band of Indians in full regalia and with a band of their own visited the city from their reserve at Brantford. They paraded the streets and paid a visit to the theatre, attracting a good crowd. Manager Ward was as much surprised and pleased as anybody.

LIGHTS for smokes will be a prominent exploitation feature of campaigns for "Lights of New York." Warner Bros. exploitation department has placed a large order for match books with billing for the picture to be included in the line of accessories on the first all talkie film.

Sells Ad Space to Merchants at Advance of 5 Cents Per Inch

MANAGER C. T. PERRIN had a full-page newspaper display on "Slightly Used" to advertise that picture at the Sterling Theatre, Greeley, Colo.

Perrin went to the newspaper and contracted for a full page at the regular rate of 35c an inch and then went to a large furniture dealer and an automobile agency and sold them space at the rate of 40c an inch.

Both the furniture dealer and automobile agency featured "Slightly Used" bargains in their ads while the theatre ad showed a cut of May McAvoy and selling copy about the picture, theatre and play dates.

By selling the ads himself, Perrin greatly reduced the cost of his large ad and at the same time the ad had more attention value.

2,000 heralds distributed in the residential district also helped to make "Slightly Used" one of the most profitable pictures of the week.

Laemmle Letters Used in Local Drives for "We Americans"

PERSONAL contact letters, written and signed by Carl Laemmle, head of Universal, served to introduce a new type of exploitation for local presentations of "We Americans." The letters are addressed to a list of prominent citizens in towns where exhibitors took advantage of this novel service provided by Universal on "We Americans."

According to a statement from the company more than five hundred exhibitors have taken advantage of this personal service and have supplied lists of leading residents of their town which the exhibitor selected to receive the letters from Laemmle.

The letters drew the attention of the citizens to the enterprise of the exhibitor and to the entertainment qualities of the picture. They also invite the recipient to a special or a regular showing of the picture, through co-operation with the exhibitor. One of the letters, special in form, goes to the mayor. Enclosed with each letter is a copy of a clipping of an editorial on "We Americans" printed in the Milwaukee Journal.

An example of the appreciation on the part of exhibitors for the service is indicated in the following letter received by Laemmle from O. T. Kirby, of the Palace Theatre Company, operating a string of houses in North Carolina and Virginia. Writing from the Palace Theatre in Roxboro, N. C., he said:

"I want to thank you for the twenty letters you sent out for our We Americans showing July 16-17th, to our prominent citizens. The letter of invitation was honored at the box office and each one of the twenty had to stop on the way out to thank us for such a picture and for the invitation you mailed."

Extensive Campaign in Houston for "A Certain Young Man"

A COMPREHENSIVE campaign, combining many notable exploitation ideas, is the best description of the campaign used to put over "A Certain Young Man," when it played at the Loew State Theatre, Houston, Texas. Manager Sparrow and Publicity Director McCallam, assisted by an M-G-M exploiteer, put on the campaign.

One week in advance all paper was posted, the trailer run, and an underline placed in the usual theatre ads.

One week in advance a special painting of Novarro six feet in height, with appropriate copy was displayed in the foyer and was spot-lighted.

A play in the newspapers, was strived for and secured, rather than outside exploitation. The keynote of the campaign—was that "A Certain Young Man" revealed Novarro for the first time in a "straight" role. Special stories and layouts were secured in all three dailies, in addition to the regular Sunday layout and stories. A three column twelve inch layout was secured in the Press; a two twelve in the Post Dispatch; and two twelve in the Chronicle. All which had generous underlines. A half page cooperative ad was secured in the Post Dispatch with the J. E. Rogers Co. Inc.

Real Veil Adds Realism to Lobby Cutout Display

Manager Tom Holliday got more than the usual amount of attention when he exhibited a cutout of Gilda Gray from the 24-sheet in dancing pose in front of his box office. The cutout was one of the mediums used in advertising "The Devil Dancer" playing at the Imperial Theatre, Columbia, S. C.

A veil stretched across the outstretched arms of Gilda moved in the breeze, caused by an electric fan above that could not be seen by the public.

Seven-Star Drive Exploits "Telling the World"

The Keith-Albee theatre in Youngstown, Ohio, staged in the interests of the engagement there of "Telling the World" a drive that might be called a "seven-star campaign."

The following outline summarizes the highlights in this well-planned campaign:

(1) 50,000 four-page heralds printed and distributed in Youngstown and surrounding smaller towns.

(2) Four big advance stories and the serialization of "Telling the World" run in Youngstown Telegram.

(3) 500 display cards 10 by 21 inches in size (with 10-inch cut of Anita Page in colors) placed in several hundred carefully chosen stores throughout city.

(4) Attractive float designed representing the lighthouse (trademark of Scripps-Howard papers). This float was used in city and in many smaller towns.

(5) Special trailer designed and run at Keith-Albee Theatre, calling attention to the serial story in the Telegram.

(6) Regular-size stills from the picture mounted on printed cards carrying name of theatre and paper and placed in downtown centers.

(1) Full page of cooperative merchants advertising run in Youngstown Telegram, day before opening.

Ball Teams Honor Guests at "Warming Up" Show

The Birmingham and Nashville baseball teams were honor guests at a night performance of "Warming Up" when that picture headed the program at the Alabama theatre in Birmingham.

The whole idea was nicely handled. It began with a telegraphic request from Richard Dix to Zip Newman, sports editor of The Birmingham News, requesting him to invite the Birmingham and Nashville teams to attend the showing of "Warming Up" as his guests. Zip Newman lost no time in carrying out the suggestion, and Manager Sidney Dannenberg of the Alabama Theatre made the occasion memorable not only for those special guests but for other patrons as well.

Chicago's Largest Banner Heralds "King of Kings"

Probably the largest theatrical banner ever displayed in Chicago, is hung on the north wall of the United Artists Theatre, extending from the alley to Dearborn Street. The only wording on the huge banner is "King of Kings" and the display is causing considerable comment.

50 Cents Admits Whole Family at This House

BILL REEVES, manager of the Princess theatre in Hopkinton, Ia., is working a neat and profitable plan. Bill designates a certain night every week as "Family Night" and lets 'em all in for fifty cents. Regardless of the number of people in the family, they all get a flat rate—and Bill states that it not only improves business, but his theatre is serving as a meeting place for "all the folks in the community."

HEAVED anchor in Pittsburgh and sailed through Washington, Pa., thence pass the state line into Wheeling, W. Va., and no sooner did we reach this part of the country, than the lazy feeling came over the ship and we just sailed along nice and easy. . . . No one seemed to want to hurry about anything. And I almost fell asleep at the helm, but managed to keep awake and finally dropped anchor in Wheeling's business district. . . . A beautiful 3,000 seater is rapidly nearing completion. . . . The theatre that attracted my attention was the talkie house, the Court, it did not take me long to pay it a visit, but Manager Schaeffer was vacationing down Atlantic City way. . . . so I watched the end of the matinee and the handful of customers took everything sort of apathetically and when the show was over went out with nary a word about what they saw or whether they liked it or not. . . . So abandoned my plans to stay over night and set sail north for Steubensville and was rewarded for my decision by meeting brother member Hendricks, of the Capitol and Olympic Theatres, who extended the glad hand and made me feel at home. . . . after watching his show. . . which I tell about elsewhere. . . . we partook of some midnight supper and this being the night of the big fight ??????? we talked about everything but the big (?) fight. . . . and then turned in for the night. . . . Met Hendricks again the next morning after breakfast and looked through his most interesting scrap book which brought to light many fine things he has done in his career as a theatre manager. . . . Rain let up about 11 A. M. and set my course northwest for Dennison and Uhrichsville, and kept sailing into Neweomerstown, where we lingered for a while then on again into Cambridge. . . . niee town this one. . . . and a good drawing population surrounding it. . . . looks good for theatre business. . . . and apparently it is. . . . decided to leave immediately after dinner for Zanesville even if it did bring me there a day ahead of schedule. . . . but arrived in a nasty storm. . . . so dropped anchor and called it a day. . . . Called on friend Brown, head of the local theatre company and spent a very pleasant hour with him talking talkies. . . . and talkies. . . . and talkies. . . . enjoyed the surroundings of his beautiful Liberty Theatre and then to bed. . . . Off for Newark. . . . and the old town is changing a little theatrically. . . . a nice new theatre under construction. . . . and business in the other houses very nice notwithstanding the weather. . . . On to Columbus. . . . but the story in most of the bigger cities is about the same. . . . so took a look in at the bigger houses. . . . and they were all playing to capacity. . . . said hello and good-bye. . . . then. . . . On once more we sailed along some beautiful country, this lower part of Ohio. . . . into Springfield. . . . Dayton. . . . then stopped off for the night at Richmond, Indiana. . . . peppy town this. . . . and lots doing for the amusement of the movie fans. . . . stopped to say hello to Manager Olsen of the Tivoli Theatre, a big beautiful theatre that would look O. K. right on Times Square. . . . and Olsen knows his "stuff" on running it too. . . . had a nice chat with him about things theatrical in this portion of the state and then ran over to see Bob Hudson of the Hudson Theatre. . . . but Bob was listed as missing and whereabouts or returning time, unknown. . . . Up early and cruised into Indianapolis with the "crew" on the sick list with tonsilitis. . . . (and here I've been all these years thinking I never had such things) . . . well this trip has brought out many other strange facts, so I guess I should not be surprised at this one. . . . anyway I called in the ship doctor who put me to bed for the day and the next day, and on the next day I decided I would get better if I started moving. . . . so off the ship sailed for Anderson. . . . but Manager Muller was not to be found. . . . However, a congenial young man told us lots of niee things about the NEWS and talkies, etc., ete. . . . so we left our card and regards for Muller and cruised on to Muncie. . . . here we shook the hand of a real "old-timer" . . . and we don't mean in age. . . . but in theatrical experience. . . . Harvey "Doe" Arlington is the man. . . . he runs the houses in this town for Fitzpatriek & MeElroy Circuit. . . . and his Rivoli is a "peach" . . . gosh, this trip is bringing to light some almost forgotten "slang" but you know how "sailors" are. . . . so overlook it. . . . maybe it's second childhood. . . . who can tell. . . . and who eares. . . . until next week the Good Ship "NEWS" will be cruising around the mid-west. . . . where we go, what we do. . . . and how we do it. . . . we will let you in on in the next issue. . . . six bells. . . and all's pretty good. . . .

Growth of the Club Idea

UP in the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre section of Pennsylvania, according to Manager Byron Linn of Bloomsburg, the theatre managers formed a Round Table Club patterned after the "parent" Round Table Club of the NEWS. The purpose was the same as set forth by this club only they were working in a smaller group.

So we extend to this regional club our best wishes and suggest that they send their ideas in to the parent club. In this way they can be certain that every one will read it, not only their own group, but all the other members and readers of the NEWS.

The Manager's Round Table Club is very much in favor of the formation of these regional clubs and will cooperate in every possible way with any group or groups desiring to form such units.

Remember our promise: That we would make the MOTION PICTURE NEWS the Clearing House for all Box Office Problems and Theatre Operation. And that is what we are striving and succeeding in doing. If there is any doubt in your mind as to the class of men who belong to the club, just glance over the first list of members soon to be published and you will readily see that this membership is composed of the "real" managers and exhibitors from all over the world.

Take a friendly tip and "shoot" that application blank into the club as soon as you can fill it out.

Hendricks Issues Giant Passes

Running theatres on the big city de luxe plan seems to be Manager William L. Hendricks' specialty. He handles too of them in Steubenville, Ohio, and both of them show careful management and supervision. The Capitol is the vaudeville house of the town and the Olympic is the "talkie" house.

What impressed me most of all at his Capitol Theatre was the brisk peppy staff that handled the patrons, while Hendricks himself stood in the background with his eye on everything in general.

As a ballyhoo for a special stage attraction he was getting ready to use an advertising pass about 18 by 22 inches in size, and distribute them just the same as he would regular passes. No question about the idea spreading around town, and it's sure of a laugh because everyone who gets hold of one of these giant passes is going to show it to some friends and in that way it will serve to advertise the attraction.

Montague Salmon Joins the Club

We welcome Manager Montague Salmon, of the West Coast Boulevard Theatre, Los Angeles, California, into the CLUB. We are looking forward to some mighty interesting contributions from him in the near future. On "Finders Keepers" he worked the phony money stunt with the imprint on the back "Don't try to spend this—But spend two hours seeing "Finders Keepers" at the Boulevard Theatre. Since there are so many pictures that lend themselves to this type of exploitation, we suggest that interested members write Mr. Salmon, who we are certain will be pleased to send a copy of the money used.

Finds Club "Just the Thing"

Manager Harry Kusel, of the State Theatre in Ozone Park, N. Y., is one of the younger bloods in the managing field and realizes the value of capitalizing on the other fellows' experiences and suggestions. He says, "This is my first manager's position and I realize that this Club is just the thing that can help me along with my work." That's the spirit Harry, and there are hundreds of others just like you. But don't forget that if the suggestions you find here are of value to you, then perhaps some of your own suggestions will be of some value to the other members, so send them along.

A Message from "Way Out West"

From "way out west" comes word from J. D. Marpole, manager of the New Tokay Theatre, in Lodi, California. We have a weakness for reading anything from that part of the country so you can be sure "J. D." that your letter was carefully read through. That spirit of "holding your own" is just what we like to hear, so keep right at it and let me hope that the Club can claim some of the credit when the "battle" is over. O. K.?

"J. D." worked a peach of a stunt on "The Raider Emden" which we must pass on to the other members. Having quite a colony of German people in Lodi, many who never, or very rarely, attend the theatres, he made up a snappy letter about the picture, translated the letter into German and mailed them out to German people throughout the town.

"J. D." tells me that the idea went over very big and besides it started many of them coming to the theatre much more often than they had previously. Keep in mind, brother members, that here is an idea that can be converted for use on any good picture that comes along. If your population happens to be Jewish or Italian instead of German, just have your letter translated accordingly.

MANAGER'S ROUND TABLE CLUB

List of Charter Members will appear in next week's issue.

Every type of theatre, from "shooting gallery" to magnificent De Luxe Theatres, are represented on the membership list.

And all believing in the Slogan—"USE THE NEWS".

FOR:

a—Up-to-the-minute Reviews of pictures.
b—Interchanging of ideas.
c—Reference guide.
d—Box Office Problems.
e—General Get-together.
f—The Clearing House for all things theatrical.

If your name does not appear on the first list, be sure that it is on the next one. Here is the application blank, send it in right away, with your own photo if possible. Motion Picture News, 729-7th Ave., N. Y. C.

Key City Reports

New York City

AN abnormal hot spell failed to shake the Broadway theatres from what may be accepted as their normal business—a most encouraging indication that the pictures show definite signs of grasping the public interest again after something of a trend toward apathy.

There were no extraordinary box office stunts aside from the performance of "Street Angel" turning in a sum well over the hundred thousand mark in its third week at the Roxy. That was for the regular run pictures. In the two-a-day group Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new candidate for Broadway fireworks, "White Shadows," ran up high figures at the Astor after its opening on Tuesday night.

The Capitol had a weak entrant in "Beau Broadway" and the count-up told the usual story when this is the case—the house dropping under the marks it has been making these past few weeks with such fare as "The Cossacks" and "Telling the World."

"At Yale," the Strand's feature, supported by a bill of shorts, mainly of the sound variety, did a rather brisk business. The "whole show on the screen" (and in the loud-speakers) policy appears to have found a firm footing at the Strand, judging by the returns of last week.

The Paramount with "Loves of An Actress" did a good average business, something less than it did with "The Racket" and "Warming Up" but considered satisfactory just the same. The two latter productions, which ran almost neck and neck at the Paramount went into competition—if it could be called that—last week. The Meighan starring vehicle was at the Rialto and did a better business than "Warming Up" was able to turn in at the Rivoli. The Dix picture had a synchronized score and some interpolated sound effects, while "The Racket" played straight "silent drama."

The remaining continuous house to be reported is the Cameo, which featured a double revival bill composed of "Ivan the Terrible" and "Potemkin," and ground along at the gait it has been showing for the past several weeks.

As already reported the newest two-a-day offering rushed into first place as the money-getter of the group now on Broadway. Two other new ones are "Lilac Time," which is showing real strength at the Central, despite the fact that it is running without benefit of the synchronization prepared for it; and Fox's "Lost in the Arctic" which on its performance so far appears unable to make the grade as a two-a-day attraction.

"Wings" at the Criterion ran up to the completion of a solid year on Broadway with very good returns and it may be expected to spurt under the stimulus of the exploitation on the angle of its "second year." "Tempest" has completed its twelfth, and next-to-last week at the Embassy with a good gross and is certain of showing a fine record at the completion of its two-a-day run this week. "The Lion and the Mouse" closes at Warners Sunday with a run of nine weeks to very satisfactory business. The Globe with "Red Dance" and a Movietone supporting bill dropped back still further and announcement of its withdrawal to make way for another Fox picture may be expected any time now.

Los Angeles

BUSINESS on the whole strikes a happy medium. Some attractions are not turning them away, yet most pictures are enjoying comfortable patronage.

The Novarro-Adoree combination in "Forbidden Hours," at Loew's State, opened to promising business.

"Caught in the Fog" also caught the crowds at the Metropolitan where Conrad Nagel appeared in Person, as well as on the screen and spoke on the significance of talking pictures to the future of the motion picture industry.

"Lilac Time," continues to draw Colleen Moore enthusiasts at the Carthay Circle and reports excellent business as does "Tempest" at United Artists Theatre where John Barrymore remains the star attraction on the screen.

Crowds throng Hollywood Boulevard outside Warner Brothers Theatre in Hollywood where "Lights of New York" with Vitaphone accompaniment does capacity four times daily.

The reopening of Grauman's Chinese is expected to stimulate business in the palatial Hollywood house. "White Shadows in the South Seas," a Metro Goldwyn-Mayer presentation, and their first sound picture opened to a packed house and indications point to a gratifying run.

ATLANTA theatres rolled up good box-offices last week, with the Howard leading the march showing Paramount's first picture with sound, "Warming Up." This picture was well liked by Atlanta theatre patrons and brought loud applause.

Keith's Georgia with Buster Keaton in "Steamboat Bill, Jr." drew second place in the box-office line, followed by the Capitol with "San Francisco Nights," materially assisted by the popular Eviston-Napier stock company.

Loew's Grand playing Ralph Forbes and Marceline Day with "Flash," the wonder dog in "Under the Black Flag" enjoyed a fair week.

The Rialto gathered above the average week with the first all-talking picture, "Lights of New York," which will be held over for a second week's run.

Three westerns brought the Tudor an average week, while a week of second runs, did not fail to keep the New Alamo's box-office at a steady gait.

Although all theatres had very good receipts, sweltering heat no doubt prevented several from going higher.

Chicago

THE great crowds which thronged to see "Lights of New York" the first all talking picture to be exhibited in Chicago, were the feature of the local business situation during the week just past. McVickers, which has been doing well with "The Street Angel," during its run, took "Lights of New York" and despite lukewarm or disparaging press criticisms, the talkie is going over big.

"King of Kings" shown at the United Artists Theatre for the first time at popular prices, also got away well despite the tremendous heat.

Jackie Coogan in person was the featured attraction at the Chicago, where the screen offering was "The Mysterious Lady" the combination proving of such drawing power that the Chicago did a capacity business for the week.

At the Oriental "Red Lips" on the screen and Al Kvale and his gang in Cairo, heading the stage show, played to normal business.

"Sunrise" went into its last week at the Roosevelt Theatre and continued to hold up well.

The Fur Fashion Show and Pageant of Beauty on the Granada stage and "Say It With Sables" on the screen, plus Vitaphone and Movietone Specialties, pleased north-shore patrons, while "The Toilers" on the screen and Meroff's stage show enjoyed a fair week at the Marbro.

"The Wheel of Chance" as the feature picture and Waring's Pennsylvanians, favorites of Chicago audiences, were the featured offerings at the Uptown where the box office report was satisfactory.

The same feature with a special stage review, headed by Lou Kosloff, accounted for fair business at the Tivoli.

"The Lion and the Mouse" brought better than average business to the Avalon while "Bringing Up Father" played to normal attendance at the Capitol.

Cincinnati

ALTHOUGH the break in the hot weather was only temporary, the stimulating effect which it brought seems to be more or less permanent, the Cincinnati theatres enjoying an appreciable upward trend in attendance despite the return of excessively torrid atmosphere.

"The Yellow Lily," at the Albee, got an exceptional break for the week, and the picture as well as the six acts of vaudeville drew favorable comments both by the critics and the patrons.

Bebe Daniels in "Hot News," at the Capitol, in addition to short talking subjects, rolled up a nice gross.

The Lyric, with "The Cossacks," got off to a flying start on their new policy of making weekly changes on Saturday instead of Sunday, and kept the customers coming throughout the week. The picture was well liked.

"Freckles," at the Strand, proved a good draw, although business was not quite up to the comparative returns of the other houses. However, the management has no particular "kick" coming, everything considered.

Keith's, with Navarro in "Forbidden Hours," showed very considerable improvement, and receipts were up to a higher figure than they have been for quite some time.

The Family presented "The Count of Ten" for the first half, and "Husbands for Rent," last half, with business somewhat above that which has prevailed for the past few weeks.

Tampa

THE past week has been a little off. The reason seems to be that the pictures failed to click. Only one program went over very good, and furnishes the evidence that the people will respond when they have something they want to see.

The program referred to was used by the Tampa the first half. "Wheel of Chance"

The Victory had "Love Hungry" as the feature, backed up with four of the Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News. The picture lacked the punch and the business was not up to the standard set by this house since the installation of the talkies.

"The Shield of Honor" held the spot at the Strand for the first two days. It gave the house a weak opening.

Dallas

AT the Dallas first run theatres for the past week business has been exceptionally good and although the weather has been rather hot the theatres report unlooked for big business. In fact, several of the managers were talking in terms of record runs which means that receipts were more than satisfactory. No bad business was reported for the week.

"Warming Up" with Richard Dix brought unusually good houses to the Palace for the seven day run. A good musical show and stage presentation served to bolster up the program. A record attendance was being discussed the first of the week.

At the Melba "State Street Sadie" with Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy filled the house and gave the theatre another banner week which has been an ordinary thing at the Melba for the past several weeks. Business has been very regular and receipts satisfactory since the first few weeks experimental stage as a Publix theatre.

At the Majestic "Road House" starring Lionel Barrymore proved a good drawing card and attendance for the week was all that could be expected. A good Interstate bill was well received and helped business out.

"Powder My Back" with Irene Rich brought good business to the Capitol, and served to increase receipts over those of the past two weeks.

"Bringing Up Father" with Marie Dressler, J. Farrell McDonald and Polly Moran and "Heart to Heart" featuring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes were responsible for good receipts at the Old Mill theatre. Business was above the average.

The Arcadia checked off its usual good business with "A Night Of Mystery" with Adolphe Menjou and "The Blue Danube" with Leatrice Joy and Nils Asther. The Arcadia can be depended upon to turn in totals on the right side of the ledger each week.

Minneapolis

THE State theatre in Minneapolis broke an all-time record when it was forced to hold "Lights of New York" over for a second week. No other picture except "The Jazz Singer" has ever been shown at the State two weeks, and that not for two consecutive weeks.

"Lights of New York" proved a genuine surprise, as no one expected that this all-talking Vitaphone picture would approach record business. Yet in the first five days of its showing it was seen by 41,365, and it was evident that it would at least have to stay a fortnight to satisfy the crowds.

At the Minnesota "Warming Up" was the attraction, and it proved a good one. It was the first sound picture shown at the Minnesota and this undoubtedly accounted for some of its popularity.

The Tunney-Heeney fight pictures came into the Lyric the last part of the week, and of course drew the fight fans in great numbers.

Pantages supplemented its vaudeville program with "A Thief in the Dark," while the Hennepin-Orpheum was showing "Hell Ship Bronson" successfully. Altogether it was a very good week for the movie theatres.

Harrisburg, Pa.

TEMPORARY relief from the extreme heat of July was reflected favorably in the receipts of the picture houses the first half of the week, but the return of extremely hot weather the last three days cut down attendance.

The verdict of those who saw Ramon Navarro making love in a light-hearted way to Renee Adoree in "Forbidden Hours," the feature attraction at Loew's Regent, was that it was very acceptable summer entertainment.

"Hot News," starring Bebe Daniels, at the Victoria, was liked by fair-sized audiences, and the bill contained also "The Raider Emden," which materially increased interest in the program.

Milton Sills brought more than average midsummer crowds to the Colonial in the film play "The Hawk's Nest," in which, as a newspaper reviewer wrote, "he threatens to steal Lon Chaney's laurels by appearing in the early scenes with a grotesque, misshapen face."

Irene Rich, in "Beware of Married Men," proved popular light entertainment at the State.

Delores del Rio returned to Harrisburg in "Ramona," and brought good business to the Russell.

The Grand did well at the box office with a double bill, consisting of Tom Tyler in "Splitting the Breeze" and "The Scarlet Brand."

Boston

THE week was decidedly spotty in downtown Boston theatres, while business was nothing to brag about in the suburban houses. Theatres able to maintain low temperatures through cooling plants were not so badly off as the others, but the week's heat wave certainly has been a strong deterrent in keeping people away from the city.

The Metropolitan has been getting a good percentage of the summer tourist trade but even with this, attendance dropped considerably, with "Warming Up" as the film.

"Steamboat Bill Junior" at Loew's State played to fair houses in comparison with the general average about town.

The Modern and Beacon theatres, with their double feature bill of "Road House" and "Beware of Married Men," enjoyed fair business.

"A Ship Comes In" at the Keith-Albee Boston theatre also played to fair averages.

Other films showing to spotty audiences include "Tenderloin," which played simultaneously at the Fenway and Washington Street Olympia theatres; "Skirts," at Loew's Orpheum; "Ladies of the Mob." at the Bowdoin Square, and "Hold 'Em Yale" and "Let 'er Go Gallagher" on the summer midweek change at the Exeter.

In the suburban theatres "The Jazz Singer" held sway at the Allston; "Happiness Ahead," at the Capitol; "The Jazz Singer," at the Central Square; "Shepherd of the Hills" and "Wheels of Chance" at the University; "Diamond Handcuffs," at the Codman Square and at the Waltham Embassy.

Kansas City

WITH the intense heat wave continuing in Kansas City and the cooling systems of theatres working at full blast, the week's attendance at most first run theatres was about on a par with last week, which was fair.

"The Perfect Crime" at the Mainstreet drew good, holding up well all week, while "The House of Scandal" at the Pantages did one of the biggest week's of the season, although the attendance, insofar as the large increase was concerned, probably was due to the personal appearance of Mae Murray and her Brazilian orchestra.

At the Globe, Richard Dix in the Paramount Movietone production, "Warming Up," drew well for a second week.

At Loew's Midland, D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love" attracted a fair attendance only.

At the Newman, Lew Cody in "Beau Broadway," drew better than average crowds.

Nothing out of the ordinary was used in exploitation by any of the houses.

Cleveland

THIS was a splendid week at the local theatres, especially at the downtown theatres. Pictures were interesting. And it was so beastly hot that the artifically cooled theatres were the only places where the public got any relief. It was much too hot for automobiling. The theatres were filled. Good programs, in some instances pre-releases of new product, are building up a splendid campaign for the fall.

"The Lion and the Mouse" filled the Stillman during its third and last week. A picture of great interest, intensified by talking sequences.

"Our Dancing Daughters" played to big houses all week at the State. While the picture was liked well enough, the real drag was the elimnation contest for members of the local "Our Gang" crowd of youngsters.

The Allen was crowded all week with "The Mysterious Lady" at the feature attraction, a melodramatic tale of intrigue, done with fine settings, well acted and spectacularly produced.

"The Blue Danube" was well liked by patrons of the Palace, and very well patronized. Good popular romantic fare, with enough excitement to keep the interest alive.

"No Other Woman" drew well at Keith's East 105th Street house, although the picture was only passably interesting. A woman's choice of the wrong man for her husband and the events leading up to the right mating is old stuff. It was shown the first half of the week. "Roadhouse" with Lionel Barrymore the last half of the week proved more interesting. Business held up consistently.

The Park split the week with "The Dragnet" the first half, and "Steamboat Bill Jr." the last half. Business was unusually good both halves. Neighborhood houses reported continued poor business.

Ottawa

BIG names drew big crowds, based on summer standards, to Ottawa, Ontario, theatres during the week of July 30, popular stars drawing well despite torrid heat and a couple of storms. There was Emil Jannings at the Regent, Adolph Menjou at B. F. Keith's, George Bancroft at the Imperial, George Sidney and Charlie Murray at the Centre—all of whom lived up to their names, while over in Hull, Mary Philbin drew nicely at the Laurier theatre and Helene Costello did likewise at the Eden. Neighborhood houses in Ottawa suffered most from the heat because most people are sticking to the big houses where it is 20 degrees cooler.

The Regent enjoyed excellent results with "The Street of Sin," business being quite brisk all during the week.

"His Tiger Lady," paired with a strong vaudeville card, was also seen by very fair crowds at the B. F. Keith's theatre, although matinees have fallen off.

There was a steady trade at the Imperial with "The Drag Net" because George Bancroft has been seen here quite frequently of late and has made many friends.

Manager Stapleton played his comedy hands at the Centre theatre and found they were good for the hot weather. "Harold Teen," during the first half, attracted throngs of holiday children and a good share of grown-ups, while "Flying Romeos" played to a good share of general patronage.

The theatres in Hull have been getting along just so-so but "Surrender" at the Laurier theatre had a shade better patronage than usual.

"Good Time Charlie" at the Eden theatre made a fair impression and played to fair houses.

Philadelphia

THE hottest week of the summer, with the mercury hovering around 90 all week and reaching 95 on Friday and Saturday, with vacations in full swing, did not do anything to improve box office receipts in the downtown theatres. The neighborhood houses fared still worse due to lack of refrigerating systems.

The Stanley offered Colleen Moore in "Happiness Ahead" and on the stage the distinguished tenor John Steel and an elaborate revue "It Might Happen," with Jack Kaufman as master of ceremonies. The picture was highly praised by the critics but played to rather slim houses on account of the heat.

Dolores Costello in "Glorious Betsy" was the attraction at the Aldine, with moderate success. Philadelphia has a special interest in this picture due to the fact that one of the incidents took place here.

The Fox presented "Road House," which started out as a 5-reel film but ended here as a two-reeler after the censors were through with it. There was a good surrounding bill featuring Natacha Nattova aided by Geral in the sensational "Moth and Flame" adagio dance.

The Karlton offered "Three Ring Marriage," which was only fairly successful, the Tunney-Heeney fight pictures proving the redeeming feature of the bill.

"Drums of Love" drew the D. W. Griffith fans to the Stanton this week and they were not disappointed in this splendidly directed film.

The Arcadia showed "Half a Bride" with a fair degree of midsummer success.

The Carman with "Fleetwing" on the screen and a stageshow entitled "Rainbow Follies," did fairly well.

The Forum showed "The Night Flier" and a stage show "Yale Collegians" the first half of the week with "Rose Marie" the muscial comedy success, and a complete stage show "Dancing Tambourines" the second half of the week.

Of the second run houses, the Victoria with "No Babies Wanted," the Palace with William Haines in "Telling the World," and the Capitol with Buster Keaton in "Steamboat Bill, Jr." played to only fair business.

Albany

IT required a mercury standing in the nineties to demonstrate last week what a talking movie could do toward attracting business to a motion picture theatre in Albany, which under ordinary conditions would have played to a rather slim audience. In other words, "Lights of New York," the first 100 per cent "all talkie" to come to Albany, packed and jammed the Mark Strand night in and night out with hundreds of men and women wiping the perspiration from their faces as they stood in line waiting for a chance to enter a theatre with a seating capacity of around 2,000 persons. The business done by the theatre during the week was practically on a par with the best week of the past winter. The lobby was so jammed, with a line standing a block or so outside, that the side exits were used in order to let the crowds out. The remainder of the bill was made up of an "Our Gang" comedy, a newsreel and two Vitaphone presentations, one of which was extremely poor.

The Mark Ritz did a good business with "United States Smith," and also with the official Tunney-Heeney fight pictures, which went over big at every theatre in this section where they were shown.

The Leland in Albany handled fair-sized crowds during the week with "Chicken a la King," but there is no question but that weather conditions made serious inroads at this theatre.

The Clinton Square Theatre in Albany ran fair with "The Kid Sister" and "The Swell Head."

Neighborhood houses, with the exception of the Eagle, reported business as poor. Proctor's Grand in Albany used Charles Ray in person for three days in an effort to brace up business. In the neighboring city of Troy, "No Other Woman," running for the first four days, played to excellent business. The house used the Tunney-Heeney light pictures, which attracted business that might otherwise have gone elsewhere or been lost entirely.

The last three days found only fair business with "Partners in Crime."

The Lincoln Theatre played to fairly good business with "Modern Mothers" for four days and then coupled "Chicken a la King" and "Hell Ship Bronson" for the last three days, and panned out rather well.

Proctor's Theatre in Troy used Charles Ray in Person the last of the week.

Pittsburgh

BUSINESS was very good at Loew's Penn, where "The Ballamy Trial" was the screen attraction. This proved to be an excellent dramatic offering, and the press and fans alike were loud in their praise of the production's merits. The stage attraction, Publix Unit, entitled "Ocean Blues," was little more than average entertainment. It was saved by the dance ensembles of the 20 Foster Girls, as well as the appearance of Moss and Frye, the Original Blackbirds.

The Stanley Theatre also had a big week, where the first all-talking production, "Lights of New York" was shown. The novelty seemed to make a hit with the local picture fans, many favorable comments being heard on all sides. The stage presentation, "In Jail," was but of average entertainment value.

The Grand did a fair week's business with "Sailor's Wives." According to critics the best part of the entertainment was the sincere work of the principals, Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

The Cameraphone did better than average with the ever-beautiful Esther Ralston in "Half A Bride."

At the Liberty, first half of the week saw Richard Barthelmess in "The Wheel of Chance," getting average business. This is one of the best dramatic subjects of the season. The last half of the week, "Hellship Bronson," was the attraction, and got average business.

Both the Grand and Liberty put on the Tunney-Heeney championship fight pictures on Wednesday, and played them the balance of the week. As the prints had just arrived the first announcements were made in the Thursday morning newspapers. The fight films helped to get a share of the business, judging from the way they were received by the audiences.

Indianapolis

CONTINUED rise of the mercury last week proved a disappointment to theatre owners in Indianapolis. Business was off all week as a result of the extreme heat.

None of the downtown houses did expected business.

Buddy Rogers in "Red Lips" led downtown houses the past week. Charlie Davis' stage band made its last appearance before taking a New York trip. Charlie will return in a few weeks, continuing the stage band policy, although the talking films will be started Saturday.

Florence Vidor in "The Magnificent Flirt," the Vitaphone picture, did fairly well at the Apollo.

William Haines in "Telling the World" and Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree in "The Michigan Kid" were the attractions at the Palace and Circle respectively.

Neighborhood houses suffered their share of the loss of business.

Seattle

LAST week was one of moderate business at most of the first-run houses, with the exception of Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre.

At the latter house, "Lights of New York" opened an indefinite engagement to tremendous business, establishing a new Saturday house record and eclipsing all former attendance marks, even including the "Jazz Singer" record. Opinion of the audiences is divided on the merits of the film, but there is no denying that it is a great box office film, and it played to absolute capacity day and night for the first week.

Second in the popularity league came came "The Racket" at the Seattle Theatre, which was highly praised and very well received by most audiences. The Publix stage show, "Gallopin' On," had strong moments but lacked the punch. Business was a little better than average for the week, but still below par.

At the Fifth Avenue Theatre "Hot News" was the screen attraction. It was better than most of the recent Daniel films, and played to average houses despite the warm weather. Fanchon-Marco's "Great White Idea" on the stage was rather weak. Hermie King and the Fifth Avenue Band again triumphed with their specialties. An average week at the box office.

"The Strange Case of Captain Ramper" was the screen feature at the Columbia Theatre, and extra exploitation and advertising brought increased business to the Universal house. The film was well liked, for its type, and had a better gross than recent films at this theatre.

"A Woman's Way" at the United Artists Theatre was not much of a box office attraction, and business was just fair, despite the 25-cent admission price.

"Tenth Avenue" was the attraction at the Orpheum, but it was just a fair program film that was secondary to a mediocre stage bill.

"My Lady of Whims" at Pantages was another picture lacking in drawing power. Both vaudeville houses had business below par.

"Quo Vadis" was brought back to the Embassy Theatre with big exploitation of the Jannings name, but even this failed to bring much business for this over-worked production.

Portland

CURIOUS theatregoers in quite considerable numbers dropped into two of the large first-run houses to discover what the new entertainment policies were like, and in other cases to escape the torrid weather, the thermometer registering close to the 100 mark, yet in spite of this the attendance figures practically held their own.

A few months ago Gilda Gray made her personal appearance in Portland at the Columbia and promised to return. She kept her promise this week but via the screen taking the stellar role of "The Devil Dancer," which was enjoyed. "In a Chinese Temple Garden" was the musical selection of Joseph Sampietro for his all-artist orchestra, and was most appropriate for the screen offering.

Two musicians who have pleased Californians during the past year, dropped into the Portland theatre for a long stay, Don and Iris Wilkins, the latter at the console of the Wurlitzer who made a strong bid for popularity. They introduced Fanchon & Marco's "Bath Tub Idea," which was appropriate for the hot weather. Oscar Taylor registered most acceptably with rich baritone voice. Little Kenneth McKenna, the 5-year-old xylophone marvel, practically stole the show.

On the screen Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Woman," Sweet William and Bad Bill, Brunswick recording artists, gave a delightful piece of blackface patter and dance.

"United States Smith" took well at the Oriental and lively bits of humor hugely enjoyed. Srodka and his orchestra made a hit also with the new success "Two Lips," finishing with selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana." Shirley and Grant held the stage in "Tunes and Taps," while Glen Shelley put over nicely some old familiar airs, "Tiny bits of Irish jigs and wee bits of Scotch reels."

"Street Angel" at the Broadway inaugurated the new policy, the stage attractions being dispensed with, and the splendid work of Charles Farrel and Janet Gaynor again pleased their fans, who crowded in in such large numbers they almost broke the house record. Many a tear glistened at every performance, and even the sterner eyes grew misty. George Stoll and band are still retained and they put over some fast college selections that took well. The Movietone score was excellent.

"Blondes by Choice" was the opening attraction at the New Capitol, and the house had a nice run the entire week. Mayor Frank Edwards, in fact, came from Seattle to assist Manager Harry Akins to open the cozy house. Ray Lucas, organist, offered some musical novelties which took well. The Khorassan Four held the stage to advantage.

"A Texas Steer," with Will Rogers, was an acceptable screen offering at the Pantages, backed up by the usual half dozen snappy and entertaining acts.

A nice line-up of offerings is scheduled for the Hollywood, starting this week, with "The Legion of the Condemned," and for the latter half Lillian Gish in "The Enemy" and "Baby Mine."

Baltimore

THE week beginning Monday, July 30, started out with cool weather but the last three days of the week proved to be scorchers with the business barometer taking a terrible tumble for low patronage.

Loew's Century proved the best house for business during the week with Thomas Meighan, and Marie Prevost in "The Racket," and a stage presentation act entitled "West Point Days," headed by Ted Claire and his syncopators with the Gamby-Hale ballet chorus and cadet corps and other featured vaudeville headliners.

The New Theatre opened on Saturday, August 4 with sound mechanism working and the first feature attraction was "Street Angel," co-starring Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor. Despite the terrific heat on that day and this house being cooled only with fans, the S. R. O. sign was up practically all the afternoon and evening.

"The Hawk's Nest," proved a fairly good business getter at the Stanley with a presentation act called The Garden Party.

"The Raider Emden," and the reissued version of "Nanook of the North," were shown by the Motion Picture Guild at the Little Theatre and business throughout the week despite the heat was fairly good.

"Bare Knees," was the featured film attraction at the Keith-Albee New Garden. On the same bill was the Texas Guinan revue "Padlocks of 1928."

The Rivoli, now equipped with sound mechanism, showed "State Street Sadie" for its second week and played throughout the entire six days to good business.

The first week of Loew's Valencia without orchestra or organ music, all music for the pictures being furnished by sound mechanism, proved only a fair one with "Diamond Handcuffs."

"Stormy Waters," with Eve Southern and Malcolm McGregor was shown at the Keith-Albee Hippodrome where a less than fair business was reported. Five acts of Keith-Albee family time vaudeville were on the same bill with the Charlie Holt revue for a second week.

Salt Lake City

LARGE first run houses of this city are enjoying splendid summer business due to the first class selection of pictures and also the modern ventilating systems used.

The Capitol Theatre has been playing to capacity business throughout the week during the presentation of the feature picture "Forgotten Faces," a Paramount production which was received with unanimous favor. The stage offering, which was a Fanchon and Marco presentation, titled "Sally of Hollywood," and which featured Sally Rand, assisted by Harvey Karels, Treen and Barnett, the Crosby Brothers, and a male Ensemble of twelve, made up a very high class offering in addition to the splendid music offered by Ralph Pollock and the Capitol Band and Alexander Schreiner at the organ.

Fairly good business for the mid-summer was reported last week at the Paramount Empress theatre during the showing of "Harold Teen." A good deal of unusual and effective exploitation was used here for this production with satisfactory results ensuing.

The Pantages Theatre experienced an exceptionally good week, with Wm. Haines in "Telling the World."

Richard Dix in his first sound picture, "Warming Up" was well received by good houses at the Victory, where the Movietone news is also shown.

John Gilbert and Bessie Love in "St. Elmo" proved to be a very good drawing card at the American Theatre.

Junior Coghlan in "Let 'er Go, Gallagher," with Harrison Ford, Elinor Fair and Ivan Lebedeff, drew highly satisfactory crowds to the Gem Theatre.

Ramon Novarro in "Across to Singapore" played to fairly packed houses as a second run offering at the Rialto.

"The Devil's Skipper," featuring Belle Bennett, and Dorothy Gulliver, a Utah star, in "The Collegians composed the State Theatre offering this week, which played to good sized houses.

Pola Negri in "Barbed Wire" was featured at the Tower Theatre, a neighborhood house here.

Some of the smaller houses are experiencing quite a summer slump in box office receipts but as a general rule theatre business is holding up wonderfully here. The past two weeks of hot weather seems to have abated and this week's weather was refreshing and cool.

Milwaukee

EXTREME hot weather caused a decided slump in theatre business throughout the entire week. Milwaukee is experiencing a long stretch of usually torrid weather and theatres are suffering as a consequence.

"Lights of New York" at the Garden, in its second week, succeeded in drawing fair business.

Patronage was slim at the Wisconsin, where "Telling the World" was featured.

"Skirts" was fairly well attended at the Strand.

"The Racket" failed to connect at the Merrill. The Alhambra is closed for several weeks.

The Palace drew very slim houses. Its program was mediocre, introduced by "Chicken a la King" as the photoplay feature.

The Riverside offered "The Devil's Trade Mark" to very moderate houses.

Business at the neighborhood houses was also very poor. "Shepherd of the Hills" was featured at the Oriental and Tower with moderate success.

"Across to Singapore" drew very little business to the Uptown, Garfield and Modjeska theatres.

The Zenith enjoyed rather good patronage with "Hangman's House."

Opinions on Pictures

Forgotten Faces

Good Crook Picture—Well Done Throughout

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

NO one can go wrong on this one. Here's a crook story that is well constructed—that carries a first rate idea and is dovetailed with clever incident and situations. Moreover, it is acted with imagination and sympathy. The characters are clearly defined, and it stands as a credit to Victor Schertzinger, the director, who handled it with a fine grasp on its dramatic possibilities.

As the title indicates the story deals with crime and points the moral that the virtue is rewarded while sin is punished. It is worked out so that it projects a deal of suspense and a creditable atmosphere of mystery. It features a hold-up man who kills his wife's lover—and who, after spending a time in jail, is pardoned, but who finally is shot as he tries to prevent his shady past from being revealed to his daughter.

The theme has considerable sentiment and it isn't so new as to design. But it has been treated so cleverly that it seems genuinely novel. Clive Brook as the hold-up man and Baclanova as his wife contribute excellent performances. And William Powell and Fred Kohler also act effectively.

Drawing Power: Cast and story. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Mention that it is a clever crook story and feature the cast.

THEME: Crook melodrama of hold-up man who shoots wife's lover and who is eventually shot himself trying to keep his past a secret.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Clive Brook, Baclanova, Mary Brian, Fred Kohler, William Powell, Jack Luden. Director, Victor Schertzinger.

The Mysterious Lady

Picture is Fair, But Garbo is Good

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WHATEVER Greta Garbo tackles in the line of stories she has the personality and technique to make it interesting. The Scandinavian star rises above this particular yarn. She has that "Itty" quality—the w. k. allure and, in the role of a spy of the late war, she surely shows to very good advantage. It is her job to tempt a man to his doom. In order to accomplish her object she pretends to fall in love with him—and then discovers that her heart has truly gone pit-a-pat.

It develops that the fair spy is after the papers, but after she has capitulated to romance, her accomplice, a man who doesn't trust a beautiful woman with a good-looking man, does his best to frustrate her love affair. Which is where Greta furnishes some emotional fireworks. She even indulges in one of those big sacrificing moments.

"The Mysterious Lady" has been done time and again on the screen. It is so old of plot that even the merest tyro at picture-going can spot it all of the way. It is fair enough because of the presence of Garbo. Conrad Nagel is opposite her for a change and acts very creditably. And so does Gustav von Seyffertitz as the oily villain. The picture is handsomely mounted.

Drawing Power: Sure to attract because of star's personality. For any type of theatre. Exploitation Angles: Play up Garbo as the languorous lady of the North. And mention that she plays with Conrad Nagel here. Bill as story of intrigue and how lover conquers all, etc.

THEME: Romantic drama of feminine spy who seeks ruin of man only to find herself in love with him.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, seven reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Greta Gargo, Conrad Nagel, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Edward Connelly, Albert Pollet, Richard Alexander. Director, Fred Niblo.

Celebrity

Pleasing Comedy Well Directed

(Reviewed by Ray Murray)

TAKING its cue from the recent exploits of Champion Gene Tunney who addressed a class at Yale on the subject of Shakespeare, Pathe has turned out a nifty six-reeler made for laugh purposes only.

"Celebrity" is the name of it. And Tay Garnett is the director. It is Mr. Garnett's initial directorial effort and bespeaks further work for this bright young man who formerly was on the writing end of making pictures.

The story concerns a champion prize fighter whose very active manager sees an opportunity to break into the society columns of the newspapers by having his cauliflowered protege address a woman's club meeting on the subject of "George Washington." The scenes in the hall are particularly funny and the gag where the Champ. loses his notes carefully concealed in his hat got plenty of applause.

Robert Armstrong carried off the honors as the champion pug and shows unusual versatility as a comedian. Clyde Cook was an excellent foil for Armstrong. Lena Basquette, as the girl, contributed a charming bit and made a pleasing contrast to the stalwart, slow-thinking prize fighter.

Drawing Power: Will please fight fans, as there is an intensely interesting fight sequence and while the comedy is broad it is clean and of rapid fire order. Explcitation Angles: Dress up lobby with boxing gloves, and other pugilistic training paraphernalia. Emphasizes the picture's parallel to Tunney's recent Yale address. Bill as a comedy of the prize ring.

THEME: Comedy drama of a dumb pug of the prize ring, whose manager launches him upon a society career in which he comes to grief.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. The Cast: Lena Basquette and Robert Armstrong. Story by Elliott Clawson. Director, Tay Garnett. Cameraman, Peverell Marley.

None But the Brave

Spotty, Slow Romance of the Beach

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THIS story has a very flimsy structure and, though it clicks in spots, it is entirely too slow to hold the interest. It is almost without incident, is silly in its sentimentality and is decidedly unconvincing. Charles Morton and Sally Phipps head the cast, the former as a recent college graduate after an athletic course, and the latter as the proprietress of a beach hot dog stand. Aside from a ready smile which is much overworked, and an athletic build, Morton does not offer much. Miss Phipps has a role which gives her little opportunity.

The story is poorly directed with many of the sequences much exaggerated, and the picture is saved only by the surrounding atmosphere. There is much of the gayness of the beach and the college campus about it and there is a beauty contest done in color that adds much to the general effectiveness.

The story is of the young college graduate egotistical because of his success in sports, who starts out to conquer the world via the insurance route. His first mission takes him to the beach and his career is forgotten for the time being while he is falling in love with the girl at the hot dog counter. Eventually he remembers he started out to do something and he succeeds after a series of highly improbable incidents.

Drawing Power: The general atmosphere of the picture may make a fair draw of it. Exploitation Angles: The beauty contest in which a number of really pretty and shapely girls participate. The college atmosphere, the motor boat race and the beach scenes.

THEME: Romance of the beach in which the college athlete falls in love with the young proprietress of the hot dog stand, puts over his first successful business deal and wins the girl.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Length: 5,713 feet. Released, Aug. 5, 1928. The Cast: Charles Morton, Sally Phipps, Farrell Macdonald, Sharon Lynn, Tom Kennedy, Billy Butts, Alice Adair, Tyker Brooks. Directed by Albert Ray. Story by James Gruen and Fred Stanley. Scenario by Frances Agnew and Dwight Cummins.

"Pathe Review No 34"

(Pathe—One Reel)

A NUMBER of interesting subjects have been corralled for this Pathe Review release, making it a good added attraction. The various scenes presented include: "Lumbering for Camphor in Formosa Jungles": Japan's little known of drug industry revealed deep in the wilds of the most savage island; "Orphan Annie's Friend, Harold Gray": intimate shots at the Chicago home of the popular newspaper cartoonist; "Ferocious Vegetarian": scenes ing the vicious Sun Bear, filmed at great per" to the cameraman; "America's Birthplace": relics of Jamestown in Virginia, founded in the year 1607; "New York Architecture": an intensive study of the skyline and building contensive study of metropolis buildings.

The Perfect Crime

Rather Tricky Here and There, But Not a Smash

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE is certainly enough mystery in this melodrama—so much so that one has a tough time trying to guess what its all about. And the mystery isn't cleared up to any extent, what with all the synchronization trying to be effective. This is one picture which expresses sound all over the place. To keep up with the times is perfectly Okay, but faulty synchronization can do much to make the talkies unpopular unless the sounds are attended to carefully.

The idea here is to let the audience in on the crime but to keep the boys and girls in the dark concerning the motivation of the plot. Clive Brook has the central role, a sort of Sherlock Holmes character. He has it that there's no such thing as a perfect crime, then proceeds to develop one in his mind. A sort of variation of the dream situation as it were. It is quite confusing, and naturally difficult to follow. But the radio figures as providing a prop upon which to hang some of the synchronization. There is some creditable atmosphere. And the cast works easily enough to put it over. Clive Brook, always restrained in his acting, handles his role with excellent poise. Irene Rich is good and the others are competent enough.

Drawing Power: Title and cast. Suitable for average houses. Exploitation Angles: Make capital of the title asking patrons if they can define a perfect crime. A teaser campaign would stimulate interest. Play up Brook as being ideal for the part of the detective.

THEME: Melodrama of detective fashioning the perfect crime just to show that it can be accomplished, although it is developed along the lines of the dream situation.

Produced and distributed by FBO. Length, 6331 feet. Released, August 19, 1928. Cast: Clive Brook, Irene Rich, Gladys McConnell, Edmund Breese, Tully Marshall. Director, Bert Glennon.

Midnight Life

First-Rate Underworld Story

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

"MIDNIGHT LIFE" is an excellently contrived story of the underworld, boasting capable acting, fine direction and a surprise climax. It has a simplicity and a reality about its many scenes which lend it all the semblances of first-rate melodramas. Harold Shumate adapted the story from "The Spider's Web," a novel by Reginald Wright Kaufman and Scott Dunlap megaphoned it into its celluloid form. It certainly deserves the label: "satisfying entertainment."

Francis X. Bushman is seen as a phlegmatic detective lieutenant, who sets about by himself to clean up the underworld gang which bumped off his pal. While accomplishing this task, he incidentally saves a chorine and her lover from the leader of the gang, who wanted to get rid of them because they knew too much. The characters are painted very well, Gertrude Olmstead as the girl and Eddie Buzzell as her lover and dance partner offer a strong contrast to the bunch of crooks infesting the night club where they work. Bushman's work is the best of all. He could have made his delineation of the copper according to the old formula of righteous wrath and indignation indicated by blazing eyes, clenched mouth, etc. However, he makes his character all the more effective by portraying him as an emotionless chap, slow moving but quick thinking, taciturn but very determined. He continually rolls a toothpick in his mouth and always conveys the impression of untapped strength.

With a somewhat unexpected climax wherein the chief villain meets the fate he had prepared for his previous victims, the film cannot be classed with the usual cut and dried crook dramas. Another of its effective points is the placing of the love climax before the last reel which is devoted to the wiping out of the gang's nest.

Drawing Power: Good. Exploitation Angles: Make up a regular underworld ballyhoo, showing weapon display. Also make use of a cutout of an owl, which is seen constantly in the film as the mark of the crooks' hideout.

THEME: Underworld drama in which a gang of crooks murder friend of detective. The detective goes on their trail and rounds them up. He sends their leader, a man of the world posing as a public benefactor, to the death prepared for himself. He also saves a girl and a boy from the clutches of the gang.

Produced and distributed by Gotham Productions. Released, Aug. 12, 1928. Length, 6,200 feet. The Cast: Francis X. Bushman, Gertrude Olmstead, Eddie Buzzell, Cosmo Kyrle Bellew, Monte Carter. Director, Scott Dunlop.

The River Woman

Mississippi River Front Story Well Done

(Reviewed by Ray Murray)

THE entertainment value of this screen play is confined almost entirely to the excellent acting of Lionel Barrymore and Jacqueline Logan, ably assisted by Charles Delaney and Harry Todd. It is a story of a river front saloon with most of the action taking place within its four walls. Considerable interest and suspense is worked up by Director Joseph Henaberry in the early footage but the story proved too weak to sustain this interest to the end.

The "Duchess" is one of the entertainers in Bill Lefty's saloon and upon a trip down the river to buy some new finery she meets Jim Henderson, a country boy who has become a stoker on the river boat. She becomes infatuated with the youth and he falls in love with her at first sight. Later he docks at the town and finds the girl is not a school teacher as she represented herself, but an entertainer in a cheap bar. The river is rising and the saloon is threatened. He persuades her to leave Lefty and run away with him. Bill Lefty, however, saves her from the clutches of a former convict and she promises to marry Lefty. Seeing he is breaking up a youthful romance, however, Bill Lefty steps aside and bids the two god-speed as he dies amid the ruins of his saloon. With Movietone this would be an exceptional sound picture. It is destined to attract comment as it is.

Excellent photography, cheap sets. Good river shots.

Produced and distributed by Gotham Productions. Released, August 26. Length, 6,800 feet. The Cast: Lionel Barrymore, Jacqueline Logan, Charles Delaney, Harry Todd, Mary Doran, Sheldon Lewis. Author, Harold Shumate. Cameraman, Ray June, Director, Joseph Henaberry.

"Just Dandy"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS one is quite a merry affair and pleasantly nonsensical. The dapper Jerry Drew is starred and in his support appear Estelle Bradley, Georgia O'Dell, Kewpie Morgan and Wallace Lupino. Stephen Roberts is credited with the direction and Dwight Warren with the photography.

Drew is seen as a rich man's son, who shirks his father's work to mingle intimately with the models of a shop nearby. The models are attractive, so much so that the burly Kewpie Morgan looks after them and bounces any ogling Johnny. In this case it is Jerry who does the ogling and who is pursued all over the building by the aroused Kewpie. There are some excellent moments of gaiety and fun and slight chuckles are increased to louder and stronger indications of enjoyment.

One gag that is worked very well shows Wallace Lupino as a painter working on the stairs. Painstakingly he varnishes the several steps but his work is always spoiled by the footmarks caused by Drew running down the stairs with Kewpie in threatening pursuit. At first the painter becomes perturbed and peeved, but as the interruptions persist his control slowly gives way and he gradually becomes mad. The antics of the various players in this scene are first rate laugh attractors. There are many more, too, in the other sequences of the comedy.

"The Elephant's Elbows"

(Fox—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

A PRETTY lively little comedy is this animal picture, which displays some exceptionally trained animals, as well as clever youngsters. It fairly bristles with action, and there are a number of sequences that should provoke much mirth. The animals go through some very funny antics, as do the youngsters.

The story is much more attractive than is usual to comedies of the type. Johnny's father is the proprietor of a circus that is in financial distress, so in the father's absence Johnny takes a hand. He gets a job at an automobile service station, where much of the comedy is provided by his animal assistants. The animals display rare intelligence in the tasks handed them and many funny situations are developed. In the end Johnny clears up the circus indebtedness and all ends happily. Laon Ramon is Johnny Smith and Paralle Coleman, Demi-Tasse, the little colored girl.

"Canned Thrills

(Pathe Sportlight—One Reel)

JOHN L. HAWKINSON, who has been turning out consistent winners in the single-reel Grantland Rice Sportlights, has added another corking good number to this series. The producer's camera on this occasion, finds its way to Coney Island, the world's greatest amusement center, and has caught thousands of thrill and laugh seekers making the rounds of the various concessions. A fine program filler, as any class of audience, in any part of the country will enjoy it.—GEORGE J REDDY.

"The Lofty Andes"

(Fox Varieties—825 Feet)

THIS is one of "The World We Live In" series, and in it is displayed all of the grandeur of scenery to be found in and around Ecuador in South America. There are some very beautiful shots of the surrounding snow-capped mountains and in the valleys. There are also some interesting revelations of the native Indian life, and some picturesque shots of the old Spanish city of Quito, with its beautiful cathedral and serene monastery. All in all, it is an attractive subject.—CHESTER J. SMITH.

Regional News from Correspondents

Albany

MOTION picture operators at the Griswold and Proctor theatres in Troy have been granted an increase in wages, which becomes effective early this fall.

Harry Rose, of Troy, who has been handling the King Theatre in that city, and who recently disposed of the house to Schenectady parties, has taken a job as assistant manager of the Avon Theatre in Watertown, which is one of the Schine chain. John H. Thoma, who has been handling the Avon, has been made a district manager, and in conjunction with Mr. Powers, of Oswego, will handle all of the northern New York houses.

Charles Chapel, of Horicon, now managing the Plaza Theatre in Chestertown, has remodeled his house and made it most attractive. The house is now giving two shows a night and will continue throughout the summer season.

John Augello, owner of the Family Theatre in Utica, is complaining this summer that he has had strong competition from the summer parks, and that business has not been up to expectation. The weather has sent the people evenings to the parks, and now Mr. Augello is contemplating installing a cooling system for next year.

Jake Rosenthal, owner of the Rose in Troy, is seriously considering the advisability of installing equipment that will permit him to handle the talking pictures.

J. A. Fitzgerald, manager of the Strand Theatre at Hudson Falls, has returned from a fishing trip in Maine, having been accompanied by his brother who resides at Bridgeport, Conn. They spent two weeks along the Maine streams, and on many days caught the limit.

Edna Pfister, secretary of the Albany film Board of Trade, is in Montreal, instructing future secretaries of boards. She will probably be absent from Albany for three or four weeks.

John A. Castle, formerly of Port Leyden, is now running a theatre at Harrisville, which he has taken over from a Mr. Carney. Edwin A. Ross has acquired the Community Theatre at Brasher Falls.

Mrs. Brown, who operates the theatre at Old Forge, reports this week that tourists are beginning to flock to the well-known Adirondack resort and that business is picking up. A new hotel, built at the resort, is also bringing many people to the mountain town.

Up to the present time the Schine brothers, according to authentic reports, have not put their signature to a single new contract for the fall product. Their headquarters at Gloversville have been besieged by managers and film salesmen, and one day last week a number of the home officials of the Universal Company spent the day with the Schines.

According to reports, the Majestic Theatre in Utica, which is now on its forty-ninth consecutive week with stock, may go into pictures this fall. The theatre is one of the Schine chain.

Prize fights in Troy are hurting the motion picture theatres, according to reports. These fights are held on alternate Monday nights, and attract huge crowds. Summer carnivals are also making their inroads in the theatres of Watervliet, North Troy and Cohoes.

The projectionists of Troy have completed plans for an outing on August 14, to be held on the farm of Senator Williams. Operators from Cohoes, Schenectady and Albany have been invited to attend.

The Academy theatre in Sharon Springs, is being operated this summer by Jacob Krohn, who was formerly a salesman at the Metro exchange in Albany. The house has a seating capacity of about 550, and is doing a fine business this summer as the resort town is filled with guests.

Pop Linton, of Utica, is back home after doing a bit of fishing in Maine. Mr. Linton reports luck as having been good. His theatre was run by his son during his absence.

Harry Brooks, a well known operator in Troy, has been selected to attend the State Conference of Projectionists which will be held in Rochester the latter part of August. Mr. Brooks is back from a vacation that took him to New York City, Connecticut and Rhode Island. James Kelly, operator at the Palace in Troy, has returned from a motor trip to Canada. Charles McCarthy, operator at the Proctor house in Troy, is also back from Canada.

Up to the present time, no decision has been reached by the Albany Film Board of Trade, over the annual outing. There is a division of opinion as to when it should be held and also as to the place, with the result that no definite action has yet been taken.

Louis Benton, of Ballston Spa, Frank Shay, of Schenectady; Henry Frieder and Sam Hochstim, of Hudson, and Clarence Dopp, of Johnstown and Broadalbin, were in town the past week.

William Smalley of Cooperstown, is still ill and is able to be about only for an hour or so a day. He is to have his tonsils removed in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Stern, of Troy, have returned from a motor trip to Atlantic City. Mr. Stern is manager of the Lincoln theatre.

Tom Clark, manager of the Strand in Albany, is back from a vacation. During his absence, the theatre was looked after by Uly S. Hill, general manager of the Stanley houses in Albany and Troy.

Cleveland

HISTORY was made twelve years ago when the Stillman theatre was built, the first of the elaborate motion picture houses created in Cleveland. History will again be made this fall when the Stillman closes its doors forever. Other interests have taken over the property.

Ever since the house was opened, it has been maintained as the home of the choice pictures. Long runs has been its policy, with special orchestral overtures and synchronizations arranged by Maurice Spitalny. All this will be moved over to the Allen theatre as soon as the pictures now contracted for exhibition at the Stillman have been played. These are "Glorious Betsy" and "Lilac Time." Allen pictures and Publix Shows will be shown at the State when the change takes place, and the State combination policy will be the policy at the Park. William Haynes, former manager of the Allen, has been made assistant general manager of the Loew circuit in Cleveland. Fred Desberg continues at the helm of the organization. No other changes in personnel are announced at this time.

Keith theatres and Loew theatres in Cleveland will split the Paramount and the First National program fifty-fifty for the coming season, according to the announcement given out by Frank A. Hines, manager of Keith's Palace theatre. The big stars will show an equal number of pictures on both circuits for the first time in local history. Keith has also closed for the entire Fox output for 1928-9 for Cleveland. This puts at rest definitely all rumors that Fox will build a first-run house in Cleveland. With a 100 per cent first-run outlet ready at hand, there is no necessity for building a theatre of his own.

John F. Royal, manager of Keith's Palace theatre until his recent promotion as eastern general manager, was looted of $100 last Tuesday night, when a robber entered his home at 12711 Cedar Road, Cleveland Heights. New England

FIRE starting just after midnight back stage in the Metropolitan Theatre, Boston, last Saturday morning, resulted in damage to stage curtains and drops estimated at from $15,000 to $25,000. The fire interfered but little with the Saturday shows, however, although it was necessary to give the presentation with several scenes and drops not originally intended for the performance.

Only about a dozen employees were in the theatre when the fire broke out. They immediately started fighting the fire. The heat from the flames sounded the automatic alarm and firemen quickly responded. A spiral stairway was about the only means firemen had to reach the fire but quickly subdued the flames.

An emergency crew worked through the night and early morning cleaning up and preparing substitute drops for the show so that the theatre opened on time Saturday forenoon. The asbestos curtain prevented the fire from spreading into the auditorium.

The Metropolitan is Boston's largest and newest theatre and is a Publix theatre. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

The Publix circuit offices for New England, which have been at 1105 Commonwealth Ave., Boston for the past few years, have beeen removed to the Scollay Square building in Scollay Square, Boston. For some years the offices were located in the heart of the down-town shopping district and then were removed out beyond the automobile district to the Commonwealth Ave. address, from which they now return to the down-town section.

The Amusement Hall at Standardville, Utah, has had a new screen installed by the local branch of National Theatre Supply.

Milwaukee

THE safe of the Merrill theatre was cracked by professionals and relieved of $3,000 last Monday night. Entrance to the theatre was gained by jimmying a door on the Second Street side and then forcing open the door to the manager's office. After the robbery the doors were again locked. Arnold Saxe, manager of the theatre, visited his office at 12:30 A. M., but found everything all right. Cleaners discovered the robbery at 7:30 the next morning.

Frank Cook of Sheboygan was in the city last week with Arthur Lugg who recently purchased the Gem theatre from Mr. Cook.

Art Desormeaux of the Strand theatre at Madison was also a recent visitor at the exchanges.

Charles Koehler, booker at Celebrated office, is taking his first vacation in seventeen years. He is making it cover a long period of time by taking it in small doses.

Fred Knispel, district representative for Pathe, spent a few days in Milwaukee, recently.

The M-G-M Efficiency club enjoyed its annual picnic at Cedar Lake last Sunday. About forty-five members and their friends were present.

Rose M. Browder, cashier of the Des Moines Pathe exchange visited the Milwaukee branch while in the city recently.

A. L. Merritt, manager of the Princess theatre at Oconto was in Milwaukee this past week.

Owen McKivett, former manager of the Orpheum at Racine, has just returned from an extended visit in California.

Peter Gottsacker's new theatre at Sheboygan, the Star, will be opened in about thirty days. The Star is being built near the Uptown which Mr. Gottsacker formerly managed. The Uptown has been closed for some time.

Tom North, special representative for Pathe is reported to have left Milwaukee.

Kansas City

AFTER August 11 the stage shows at Loew's Midland, first run downtown house, will be discontinued, according to a report which the management declines to verify or deny. The Midland will resort to a straight picture policy, it is said. Although that theatre's business has been larger in proportion to many of the other downtown houses this summer, the attendance has not justified the large expense involved in the stage presentations, it is said.

The old Crystal theatre, St. Joseph, Mo., is being remodeled and will be re-opened again about August 16. It is to be operated by the new Crystal Amusement Company and managed by William Howard.

The Orpheum theatre, first run motion picture and vaudeville house is up against a perplexing problem when it opens for the season next fall. The management—Fred Spear—is undecided whether or not the theatre-going public of Kansas City desire a reserved seat policy at the house or not. Last season the theatre tried out the policy of reserving seats on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays only. Therefore, through stories in daily newspapers, Mr. Spear has requested that the public send letters to the management and express a desire concerning the question. The majority will determine the policy of the theatre, Mr. Spear said.

One day last week a cattle train was wrecked in the railroad yards of Kansas City. Many hundred head of cattle were soon running in Kansas City. With such circumstances prevailing it remained for a large, shaggy bull to stampede down through Kansas City's movie row. It was there the bull was captured.

3 Theatres in Zanesville, Ohio, Pass into Control of Brown Co.

In a transfer of properties recently, the entire theatrical holdings of the Imperial Theatre Company of Ohio became a part of the theatre chain controlled by the Brown Theatrical Company. The theatres involved in the transaction are the Imperial, Quimby and the Schultz, all in Zanesville. With the possession of them, the Brown circuit is increased to six houses. Actual transfer takes place on September 2.

While the consideration involved in the purchase has not been made public, it is believed that the investment is in the neighborhood of $600,000. In each instance, the leases on the properties included in the transaction run for a period of 25 years.

Sam E. Lind, president of the Imperial Theatre Company, is retiring from the theatrical business. He expects to devote his time to the management of his many interests in Zanesville. Al C. White, with whom he entered the motion picture business in 1914, goes with the Brown company and will be actively identified with the management of the merged theatres. Caldwell H. Brown is general manager of the Brown company, and Frank M. Ransbottom is president. The Liberty, Weller and Grand are the other Brown houses.

ing and other changes. Altogether $30,000 will be spent on this theatre and the Grand. Extensive remodeling of the Schultz will also be undertaken in the near future. Definite plans for the operation of the theatres are not yet determined.

Building of Comerford House Moves Rapidly

With work rapidly progressing toward the completion of the new $600,000 Capitol theatre, which the Comerford Amusement Company, of Scranton, is erecting on the site of the old Sterling Hotel, Williamstown, Pa., which was destroyed by fire several years ago, some new details of the construction plans have been disclosed.

These show that the theatre will have a seating capacity of 2,700—1,500 in the main auditorium and 1,200 in the balcony—or only 300 less than in the new Fox theatre in Philadelphia.

Mr. Ryan, the construction superintendent, has announced the brick work has been completed together with the roof, and that with the building thus entirely enclosed the interior work is being rushed rapidly ahead by a force of 80 workers. The steel girders are all in place and the steel lathe men have begun their work, to be followed immediately by the plasterers.

A feature of the construction is a tunnel about 6 feet tall being laid all around the theatre to contain all the wires, water and heating pipes used by the theatre, and it also will provide a means of going entirely around the building without entering the auditorium.

Placing of the organ will not be started until the plasterers have completed their work.

Ben Ali, Lexington, Ky., Opens After Remodeling

Redecorated and re-equipped, the Ben Ali Theatre in Lexington, Ky., constructed originally at a cost of $500,000, was formally opened for the summer and fall season recently. Owned by the Phoenix Amusement Company, the theatre was built by the late James B. Haggin in 1913 and is regarded as one of the finest houses in the South catering to motion picture entertainment. All the contracts for the extensive remodeling, estimated to have cost $35,000, were given to Lexington firms.

Stanley Philly House Now Being Re-equipped

The Metropolitan Opera House, Broad and Poplar Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., which has been leased by the Stanley Company of America, is now occupied by a small army of carpenters, painters, upholsterers, electricians and other workmen who are busy converting the house into a thoroughly modern and elaborately equipped theatre to be devoted to motion and sound pictures as well as stage features.

The Stanley Company is expending $100,000 for alterations and improvement, including the installation of a magnificent orchestral organ. These improvements, which will make the house one of the finest in the city, will be completed the latter part of August.

"'The Racket' makes a motion picture play of really worthwhile proportions, and I advise the film patrons of this town to go without delay and see a motion picture actor playing sensibly and with fine, dignified control in a story which seems almost to fit him in every detail. It is a pity that so able a performer as Mr. Meighan does not find more often the opportunity to show what he can do."

—Quinn Martin in the New York World

A Statement to Exhibitors

by S. R. KENT

¶ Paramount's leadership of this industry for 17 years has depended upon supplying the best quality product in the largest volume to all classes of theatres at right prices.

¶ We are keeping that fact in mind for the present season.

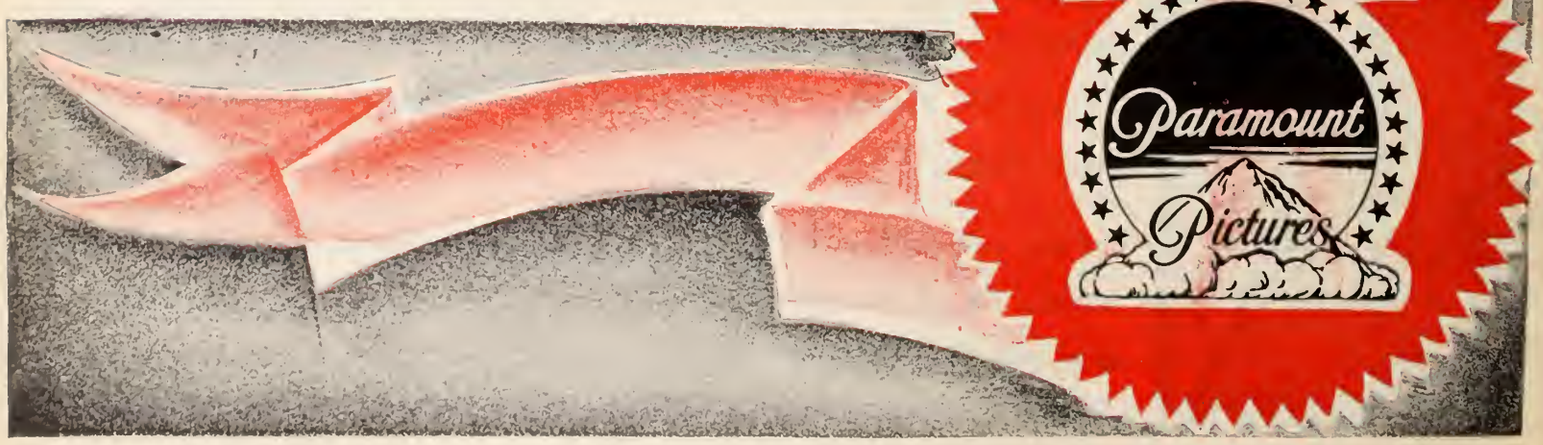
¶ A good show makes good money in any season. "Warming Up," sound or silent, is cleaning up for theatres. Silent productions like "Forgotten Faces," "The Racket" and "Speedy" are clicking big everywhere.

¶ First and foremost, between now and next August, Paramount will release 70 great feature pictures. In stories, stars, casts, showmanship and production values they constitute Paramount's finest line-up since this company has been in business. These include "Wings,"

PARAMOUNT POLICY 1928-29

"The Wedding March" and "The Patriot," all available in the next three months.

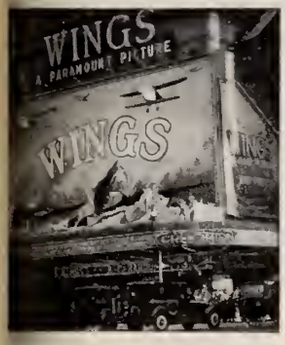
¶ Fifty or more of these features will be synchronized, most of them with talking sequences.



¶ Both silent and sound prints will be available on all 50. Each individual attraction is being produced to sell profitably to the public either silent or in sound. In either form they are Paramount box-office quality to the last foot.

¶ The Christie Comedies output of 32 class short features can be played either silent or in sound. Paramount News will soon appear in a sound edition. But Paramount News in its present form, which in a year has become the industry's leading news reel, will continue to be available to all houses. Additional shorts, silent and sound, will be announced.

¶ Paramount guarantees to the 19,000 theatres not now equipped with sound as well as to those with installations a continuous flow of the best pictures this company has ever released.



¶ Whether you need sound or silent pictures, or both, Paramount is your one backbone service, your one main reliance, in 1928-9.

Scores Hit at Mark Strand N.Y.

Hot, July weather—the period of vacations—

Against these odds, Rod LaRocque in "Hold 'Em Yale" breezed through a week at the Strand, packing 'em in, standing 'em up in the lobby, lining 'em up in the street and sending them away from the theatre as happy as a Yale crowd after a Yale victory on the gridiron.

"Hold 'Em Yale" has everything. The critics laud it in the language of the box-office—

Bland Johaneson in the New York Mirror.

"Rod is a riot in 'Hold 'Em Yale.' Harold Lloyd, Harry Langdon, all the big-time comedy boys, can take some lessons from LaRocque, erstwhile romantic actor, who plays some of the funniest comedy which has hit the screen . . . . The picture opens with a laugh, closes with a laugh, and is drenched in laugh all through the middle."

Mark Barron in New York Herald-Tribune

"A humorous, whimsical romance of college life."

New York Evening Graphic

"Should be a box-office success for Pathe . . Packed with excitement, carries a pleasing love story."

Regina Cannon in the New York American

"'Hold 'Em Yale' is the most entertaining of the new pictures on Broadway . . Has its quota of thrills, laughs and love interest."

The Hotel Gibson Roof, where Manufactured Weather makes "Every day a good day"*

Ralph Hitz

MANUFACTURED WEATHER* on the Hotel Gibson Roof

"Increases the Average Check, Builds Good Will"

Ralph Hitz, General Manager

People are flocking to the roof atop Cincinnati's very popular Hotel Gibson, not in spite of, but rather because of, the sweltering weather. They know that they will find at all times a cool, fresh atmosphere where they may dine, dance and be entertained in perfect comfort. They have learned to feel for themselves and to recognize *Manufactured Weather.

Mr. Ralph Hitz, General Manager of the Gibson, known to hotel men and the traveling public throughout the country, attributes directly to Manufactured Weather* the immediate popularity of the Gibson Roof.

This is the same system of air conditioning, including Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration, which provides Manufactured Weather* in such great theatres as the Roxy and Paramount in New York, in the new Stanley in Jersey City, and in an ever widening circle ot progressive theatres and public buildings in which the health and comfort of the occupants assumes a place of first importance. Watch the popularity of the Carrier Conditioned Theatre.

With the desire to acquaint everyone with Manufactured Weather* and its applications we have prepared a very interesting Bulletin, No. TS-58, which we shall be pleased to send on request. We shall also be pleased to have you, without obligation, describe your theatres and ask for a visit from one of our engineers.

Mr. D. C. Lindsey,
Carrier Engineering Corp.,
750 Frelinghuysen Ave.,
Newark, N. J.

Dear Sir:

Mr. Dahl, Service Manager of the Ahrens Publishing Company of New York, publishers of Hotel Management Magazine and Restaurant Management, has asked me to write to you about our experiences with the Carrier ventilation equipment which you installed in our Roof Garden.

I am very glad to do this because we find that it is satisfactory in every way. It not only increases the average check, but builds a great deal of Good Will.

My experience in several of the leading hotels of the country proves that the reason people eat less during the summer months is because of the heat and foul air in the average dining room. When such dining rooms are well ventilated there is always a larger check average and consequently more profit.

I shall be very glad to recommend the services of your organization at every opportunity, because I am sure it can increase business for others just as it is doing for us.

Very truly yours,

Ralph Hitz
General Manager

A great new comedy series with a fast rising star

IDEAL COMEDIES

with JERRY DREW

Motion Picture News says: "This dapper comedian, cut out in sartorial splendor, with the polite manners and individual technique, is mighty effective. He is a comer, beyond a doubt, and he gives every assurance that his new series, the Ideal Comedies, will swing the laugh pendulum vigorously."

One of the screen's most promising young comedy stars .... snappy stories.... beautiful girls, and plenty of them! A most welcome addition to Educational's championship line-up of Short Features is the Ideal Comedy series. You'll agree when you see the first one—

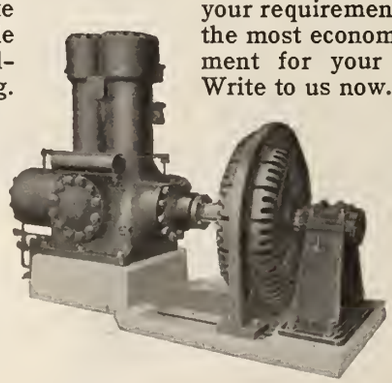
Make it comfortable for the summer fans



THE ranks of Fandom are diminished by the summer exodus. The movie has considerably fewer potential patrons. The theatre owner must use extraordinary means to attract the largest possible percentage of the available fans.

There is no better way to summer profits than to make your house comfortable with adequate air-cooling and air-conditioning.

YORK air-cooling and air-conditioning equipment represents many years of engineering experience in the theatre field. It is economical to install, is most efficient and can be depended upon to keep your theatre comfortable in the hottest weather, and with the minimum of attention.

Highlights of the Week

Brief Comment on Important Topics

By William A. Johnston

LUNCHING with J. D. Williams the other day brought out some new angles on the sound picture revolution. . . Jaydee, keen as ever to grasp the essentials, pointed out that the talkies would bring, inevitably, greater individuality in production. . . . The public, he said, had naturally got tired of the standardized picture. . . . They knew before reel one was over what the finish would be. . . . But in the talkies the standardization thing is out. . . . It comes down to a matter of brains . . . on the part of everybody concerned. . . . No chance here for factory methods. . . . If quality is to be achieved. . . . And it will have to be. . . . The human voice is capable of infinite variety . . . and the use of it requires mentality. . . . The talkie takes brains . . . in every department of production. . . . And out in front of the screen it'll take more mentality to respond to the talkie. . . . Which is a good thing all around. . . . Moreover, the field of physical action is very limited and always was. . . . Did you ever try to make a list of all the physical things through which actors can be put in the course of a picture? . . . Try it, and it won't be long before you have exhausted the possibilities. . . But the voice, and what it can be made to say, has no limitations. . . Words, spoken and written, have made, unmade and remade the world for thousands of years. . . The number of things people may say to each other dramatically is infinite. . . Such is the talkie. . . Not as it is now, but as it will be. . .

* * * *

But there should be no forgetting the fact that the silent picture will be the chief entertainment of the public for months to come. . . We asked Western Electric this week how many installations had been made to date in theatres. . . The figure they gave is 445 . . . with a total of 1,000 to be made before the end of the year. . . It is plain enough that the great bulk of the public will not be seeing and hearing sound pictures for a long time. . . So it's up to the producers to guide their studios, and up to the distributors to guide their sales, accordingly. . . And it is up to the exhibitors not to be panicked one way or the other. . . Let's all take a large view of our big job which is serving the public with the best entertainment.

* * * *

One of the major developments of the present appears to be the end of the roadshow. . . At least the customary heralding of roadshows in the announcements is notably absent this year. . . Pictures are now going more and more into picture theatres Who would have predicted this a few years ago?. . . Still, we wouldn't be surprised to see somebody come along with a big sound production which will be to this era what "The Birth of a Nation" was to 1914. . . That may be a long time off, and again it may not. . . Let's see: "Street Angel", at the Roxy grossed $479,000 plus in four weeks, breaking two records—length of run for the house and gross. . .Yes, fine pictures do the trick. . . Sound or silent. . . It doesn't matter which. . . We shall keep on repeating that simple fact. . . Because it's vital right at this moment. . . .

Extra Arbitrator is Present But Does Not Vote in Cleveland Case

FOR the first time since the Cleveland board of arbitration has been in operation, a case was heard last week before a seventh arbitrator and award made by the board without a vote by the arbitrator. It has always been the practice in Cleveland to submit the evidence of a tie case to the arbitrator and let him render an award. In the case which was heard on Monday, the evidence previously submitted was reviewed in the presence of the arbitrator together with new evidence. The board sat in judgment before this evidence and made an award in favor of the exhibitor. The arbitrator was on hand, however, to break any deadlock that might ensue.

Judge Thomas E. Green was the arbitrator. The procedure followed was according to his direction.

The case was entered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer against L. W. Lundren of the Globe theatre, Columbiana, claiming damages to the amount of $352.00 for alleged breach of contract.

The board gave the award unconditionally to Lundgren stating that the action of M.G.M. was a breach of contract. The award called for cancellation of the contract with Lundgren, and for reimbursement to Lundgren for his expenses in defending the case.

Lundgren, in a subsequent case, asked $500 from M.G.M. for damages caused him by their breach of contract. A cash damage settlement was not awarded, but Lundgren was given the right to choose gratis the unplayed outstanding pictures in the contract under controversy.

The Reader Has His Say

Los Angeles, Aug. 9, 1928.

Mr. William A. Johnston
Motion Picture News
729 Seventh Ave.,
New York City, N. Y.

My dear Bill:

Have been looking over the Motion Picture News of the last issue, and enjoyed going through it. I am particularly pleased to note that the News is right in the front with the attention it is giving to sound synchronization.

I read with interest the article by Victor A. Rigaumont, architect, who has an idea of sound stations throughout the theatre. While in theory this might look good, I am inclined to think that it would break the illusion. By having the voices come from the screen, it gives the effect of the characters speaking. But can you imagine watching the screen talk and having the noise come from above you? It seems to me that this will not work out at all.

Every one in this part of the country is hopped up over sound synchronization and there is no doubt that the pictures that have talking sequences have a lot of value at the box office, although our experience would indicate that pictures with score synchronization alone or sound effects, do not mean much.

We are reopening the Criterion Theatre, after having it thoroughly equipped and renovated, with "The Street Angel," to be followed by "Wings," "St. Petersburg," "The Wedding March," "The Patriot" and others of a like character.

In addition, we are finishing up new theatres at San Bernardino, Oakland, Portland, Riverside, Whittier Boulevard, Los Angeles, Redlands and Redondo, so you can see that this keeps us quite busy. And together with greater movie season, which starts next week, this is a handful, but results are beginning to come through because of all this effort.

Kindest regards,

Sincerely,
HAROLD B. FRANKLIN,
President, West Coast Theatres, Inc.

An Exhibitor Protests

Tulsa, Okla., August 1, 1928.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

A serious situation is developing in this business caused by the great number of underworld, gang war, Limehouse, Chinatown, hobo, circus roughneck, and carnival tough guy type of picture now flooding the release sheets. Apparently, there is no relief in sight, as all the companies are announcing one or more of this type picture for release this fall.

The public has been remonstrating rather gently for months against this ridiculous number of rough and raw melodramas. Within the past few weeks, judging from our ushers' reports and my personal contact with a great number of patrons, Mr. and Mrs. General Public is getting darn sore.

Yours very truly,
RALPH TALBOT,
President, Ritz Theatre, Inc.

Shall the Public Know?

Burlington, Iowa, August 6, 1928.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I would like to see a discussion in your Round Table on the advisability of acquainting the public with the details of sound pictures. That is, should the public be acquainted with the mechanism, the how and the why of it, or should it be left a mystery, for them to puzzle over, discuss and figure out as best they can.

To the many who are now planning their sound campaigns for fall opening, this discussion should be enlightening. No doubt those that are now running the sound pictures have opinions in regard to this.

Yours very truly,
HAROLD D. BARNES,
Rialto Theatre, Burlington, Iowa.

[Editor's Note.—Our own view is that the giving away of production and technical secrets to the public is a grave mistake. We shall be glad to have our readers' views on this important subject.]

$1,000 Reward Posted for Theatre Bomber

A reward of $1,000 for the apprehension of the person or persons responsible for the throwing of a "stink bomb" in the Brentwood Theatre, Garriek, Pittsburgh, on the evening of August 9, was authorized August 10 by the M. P. T. O. of W. Pa. at a special meeting.

The bombing is believed to have been the outeome of a dispute regarding the hiring of a union miner as a projeetionist instead of an operators' union man.

The theatre was threatened with further bombings, but these did not materialize, probably due to the eordons of police on guard.

200 Sound Pictures Definitely Planned for 1928-29

Also 75 All-Talkie Two Reel Comedies, According to News Survey; Number Will Probably Be Increased

APPROXIMATELY 200 feature productions for release during the 1928-29 season will include either musical synchronization, sound effects, dialogue, incidental songs or other musical effects, or a combination of several, according to information obtained this week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS. In addition, there will be at the very least 75 all-talkie two-reel comedies and many other vocalized short features.

The above figures will undoubtedly be considerably increased during the coming season, but these, as they now stand, and the following listings have been given out by the several producers as definitely scheduled and MOTION PICTURE NEWS, in presenting them to its readers, is doing so with the idea of giving them, in concrete form, what sound pictures they may expect, according to the producers' present plans.

Paramount

Paramount, in an announcement this week, states that out of 70 features to be released between now and next August, more than 50 of them will have talking sequences. For the first quarter of the 1928-29 season, 11 out of 17 features scheduled will include synchronized effects. These are as follows: "Warming Up," "Loves of an Actress," "The Sawdust Paradise," "The Patriot," "Beggars of Life," "Varsity," "The Wedding March," "The Fleet's In," "Docks of New York," "Moran of the Marines," and "The Carnation Kid."

In addition to the Paramount features listed above, there will be five two-reel short features available for the first quarter of 1928-29. These include "Dizzy Diver," "Hot Scotch," "Stop Kidding," "Skating Home," and "The Sock Exchange."

Warner Bros.

All Warner Bros. pictures for 1928-29 will be produced with two negatives—one for Vitaphone and one without Vitaphone. Thirty-four are listed at the present and include "The Jazz Singer," "Tenderloin," "The Lion and the Mouse," "Glorious Betsy," "Lights of New York," "The Terror," "The Singing Fool," "My Man," "The Desert Song," "Conquest," "The Redeeming Sin," "The Home Towners," "Madonna of Avenue A," "Stark Mad," a third Dolores Costello picture not titled at present, "State Street Sadie," "Women They Talk About," "Caught in the Fog," "The Midnight Taxi," "Land of the Silver Fox," "Beware of Bachelors," "Kid Gloves," "From "Headquarters," "Stolen Kisses," "Hard-boiled Rose," "The Little Wildcat," "One Stolen Night," "The Million Dollar Collar," "She Knew Men," "No Defense," "Fancy Baggage," "The Greyhound, Limited," and "King of the Wilderness." Rin-Tin-Tin features are included among the foregoing.

M-G-M

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announces that almost all of the more important of forthcoming releases will be synchronized with musical and sound effects. No complete list is available at present, but definite synchronizing plans are announced for "Dancing Daughters," "Excess Baggage," "While the City Sleeps," "The Bellamy Trial," and "Nize Baby." M-G-M's debut in the sound picture field, "White Shadows of the South Seas" is now showing in New York City and other points.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" will be M-G-M's first all-talkie.

Short features tentatively announced for synchronization include "Imagine My Embarrassment," "Early to Bed," "The Ol' Gray Horse," an Our Gang Comedy "School Begins," another Our Gang and probably thirty more comedies from the Hal Roach studios. All Great Events series will be produced with sound, and all the Oddities will also be handled with sound accompaniments and effects.

Vocalized short features, handled by the film method of producing sounds, will include a special variety program, with selections from the following: Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw, Louise Groody and Eddie Allen, Keller Sisters and Lynch. Mabel Wayne (composer of "Ramona") Colonial Sextette, Lucas Sisters, Sunshine Sammy, Walter Roesner and the Capitolians, Paul Tieson's string orchestra, Arnaut Brothers (musical clowns), Elsa Ersi and Nat Ayer, Miller and Lyle, as well as many others.

The M-G-M News will also be produced in connection with movietone.

First National

The first sound picture to be released by First National is "Lilac Time," which had to be given its New York premiere without its synchronized musical score owing to a dispute among the electrical workers. This picture has opened in Los Angeles with its regular score, and the dispute is said to have been settled. Approximately 30 others are planned for the present year's program.

The first dialogue picture from First National will be "Changeling," going into production during August at the West Coast studios, where necessary equipment is now being installed.

Other First National product being prepared for the new process will include three Colleen Moore specials in addition to "Lilac Time," "The Divine Lady," reproducing the Battle of Trafalgar in sound; "The Barker," with sounds and dialogue of a carnival; "The Whip," with Dorothy Mackail, and a Billie Dove special; "The Good Bye Kiss," "The Squall," from the Broadway play; Corinne Griffith in "Outcast," "Paid For," "Saturday's Children," and another as yet untitled; "Scarlet Seas," "Diversion," and two others with Barthelmess; Billie Dove in "The Night Watch," "The Heart of a Princess," "The Other Tomorrow," and "Pleasure Bound"; "Hard Rock, "The Spotter," "The Eagle's Trail," and "Captain of the Strong," all with Milton Sills; "The Show Girl," with Alice White," and three mystery dramas, "The Haunted House," "Seven Footprints to Satan," and "Sh! The Octopus."

Universal

Eighteen of Universal's productions for 1928-29 will be "Sound" pictures, some synchronized with music and sound effects only, some with talking sequences also, others as all-talking pictures. Definite information on fourteen of these is given below.

Music and sound effects: "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Man Who Laughs," "The Last Warning," "The Girl on the Barge," "Man, Woman and Wife," and "Give and Take."

Music and sound, plus talking sequences: "Lonesome," Paul Fejos production, starring Glenn Tryon and Barbara Kent.

All talking picture: "Red Hot Speed," Reginald Denny starred.

Talking sequences only: "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City."

Also "East Side," a novelty two-reeler with sound; "The College Hero," a screen musical comedy; "The Minstrel Man," a screen minstrel; "Broadway" and "Show Boat."

There will also be a one-reel all-talkie made by Bill Bailey, vaudeville star, of Bailey & Barnum. W. K. vaudeville team.

Universal's schedule of silents will include 26 regular feature productions, 8 Hoot Gibsons, 7 western dramas, and 7 other melodramas, 6 Rex-Jack Perrin productions and 2 aviation pictures.

F B O

FBO's sound picture schedule at the present appears confined solely to a group of six pictures classed as specials. They are: "The Perfect Crime," now showing at the Rivoli Theatre, New York City; "Taxi 13," "The Hit of the Show," "The Circus Kid," "Gang War," and "Blockade. These specials will have synchronized music, sound and several talking sequences. FBO's entire 1928-29 schedule calls for 60 features and 5 series of short subjects. Thus it will be seen that there will be 54 features from this company without sound unless future changes occur.

Wesco Seattle Theatres Change Policies

The change of policies in the Seattle and Fifth Avenue Theatres, Wesco's houses in Seattle, were put into effect last week when Herschel Stuart, general manager of the Pacific Northwest division of theatres for West Coast, instituted the new stage entertainments at the Seattle and the new policy of pictures at the Fifth Avenue. Theatre screens and press notices widely heralded the change to the public.

Under the new plans, the Fanchon-Marco acts will replace the Publix acts at the Seattle. Gene Morgan becomes master of ceremonies. The leading releases, with the exception of roadshow and special releases from the programs of the various companies, will be played on the Seattle screen.

The Fifth Avenue will book the roadshows and specials under a positive "one-week only" plan. In features and shorts, the Movietone will be used extensively, it is said. Hermie King and the Fifth Avenue orchestra will remain as a musical attraction for each show. Admission prices remain 50c and 60c with loges 75c.

Publix Will Again Enter K. C. Theatre Field

The Newman and Royal theatres in Kansas City will again be operated by Publix. Milton Feld, the Publix district manager recently was in the Missouri city in connection with his company's plan to again place the two houses under its wing.

The Newman and Royal were taken over by Loew's last season, following the opening of the Midland, a Loew house. Since passing into the control of Loew's the Newman has been dark. Now Publix plans to wire it for Western Electric sound projection. No decision has been reached on the Royal.

Father of Claude H. MacGowan Dies

The father of Claude H. MacGowan, general manager of Columbia Pictures, died at his home at Springdale, Conn., last week The elder McGowan, a Civil War veteran, had reached the age of 84. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Adela Coykendall and several children, grand-children and great-grand children.

Eli F. MacGowan was for 32 years a civil engineer in the municipal government of New York City, and for 22 years was superintendent of the East River Ferry Company, Brooklyn. He was a member of the U. S. Grant Post of the G. A. R. and was a prominent Mason.

Kennedy Signs Five Year Contract with First National

UNDER the terms of a contract signed this week, Joseph P. Kennedy will direct the affairs of First National for a period of five years. The operations of the company will be in charge of E. B. Derr, secretary and treasurer of FBO.

It is understood that Mr. Kennedy has an option to buy 25 per cent interest in First National any time within the five year period.

The signing of the contract took place at the meeting of the First National Board of Directors, which also heard an outline by Mr. Kennedy of plans to effect 40 per cent reduction in negative costs. Mr. Kennedy also told the Board that the Pathe production activities will be moved to the First National studios at Burbank.

It is understood that he has reduced the studio overhead about $20,000 per week and further economies are under way.

Al Rocket is in charge of production for First National.

Woodhull Urges Presence

Meeting of M. P. T. O. A. in Toronto Will Grapple with Perplexing Problems, Says Exhibitor Head

MEMBERS of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America were urged by their president, R. F. Woodhull, in a recent speech, to attend in force the convention of the national organization which will be held in Toronto, Canada, on October 16, 17 and 18. In his message to theatre owners, Mr. Woodhull pointed out that the several perplexing problems now confronting the industry, which he named the talking picture situation, the labor situation and general changed economic conditions, can best be solved by the majority stating their opinions and threshing out the many aspects of the questions. So he urges a large attendance at the forthcoming meeting.

"Some elements seem inclined to rush blindly on without considering these changed conditions," said Mr. Woodhull. He asked who can tell just what the talking picture will bring about in the future and what radical changes it will create in production and exhibition.

The labor situation in the motion picture business was given prominence in the speech. "There are five applicants for every four jobs," said the exhibitor leader, in speaking of the present economic conditions of the country which he declared were due to labor saving devices and widespread efficiency.

"Labor cannot logically demand more than it has and those of its members engaged in and about our business must yield to the economic pressure of the new condition," it was asserted by Mr. Woodhull. The present economic situation in the industry cannot, he said, be laid at the doors of either labor or the theatre owners. "The reasonable thing to do is to face this problem of natural progress honestly and arrive at conclusions of mutual benefit."

A warning was sounded that the theatre owners who carelessly increase their overhead or the labor organizations who demand more than the traffic will bear will be forced out of the picture.

"If you have any new ideas on Music Tax legislation, general over seating or other situations, come along with your plans," Mr. Woodhull said. "We can settle things best by pleasing the greater number. To do this the greater number must state their position."

500 Under French Quota

Number of Films to Be Admitted During Period Is Comparatively Small; New Regulations to Apply

DURING the first period under France's new quota law extending from March 1 last to September 30, 1929, but 500 pictures will be admitted to France. During this period, also, the new quota regulations will apply.

The following rules must be observed before a picture can be regarded by the French as a French picture and therefore classified in the first category:

Author of the story must be French. Director and scenarist must be Frenchmen, as also must be assistants, cameramen, and operators. Interiors must have been taken in France, and French material used for the scenery. Seventy-five per cent of the artists must be Frenchmen. For pictures of the second category the above rules are modified, and only fifty per cent of the personnel above enumerated are required to be French.

Every French film listed in the first and second category will be licensed for exploitation in France and the French colonies. A producer of a picture of the first category will receive licenses to exploit seven foreign pictures in France. All companies selling their pictures for showing in a foreign country will receive two additional licenses.

Foreign features will need licenses before they may be screened in France.

"The Patriot"

Reviewed by Edwin Schallert

Editor of the Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News

LOS ANGELES, August 15.—Probably no motion picture this season will mean more to intelligent audiences than "The Patriot." It is a great accomplishment of directing and acting. With Ernst Lubitsch as director, and Emil Jannings as star, it presents one of the most striking combinations of artistic talent that films can offer. Excellent performances are given by Lewis Stone and Florence Vidor. Miss Vidor reveals a new personality, and does the best portrayal of her career. Lubitsch hasn't had a release in nearly a year. The last was "The Student Prince," but between that romance, and the realism of "The Patriot" there is a huge chasm.

The fact that "The Patriot" is laid more than a hundred years ago doesn't mean anything. Its emotions are modern and one step ahead of that. Smart audiences will see a lot behind the screen in many situations. And even an audience that can't solve all subleties is bound to be caught by the drama and portrayals. Appeal to the intelligent will, however, be greatest.

Jannings as the Czar Paul of Russia gives the greatest interpretation since coming to this country. He is a symbol of intense tragedy—a half mad monarch, enmeshed in a web of conspiracy. Stone is the main instigator of the plot, while Miss Vidor is the decoy. The climax of the Czar's death is one of the best moments ever screened for sheer power. In many ways, this picture is Lubitsch hitting at his old stride, with perhaps less glamor and glitter, but with full dramatic force. Even some weakness of story can be overlooked in the general effect, because there are so many high spots of interest. And the story itself is exceptional from screen standpoint.

Closing scenes of the picture go to Stone and Miss Vidor in the dramatic death episode. The acting of these two principles in this and other scenes is amazing. Production has quality in settings and photography.

Film Article of Commerce

Texas Court in Important Decision Declares Status of Film in Interstate Dispute

THE renting of films by a Colorado corporation to a theatre in Texas constitutes interstate commerce was a recent important decision regarding the status of film. In the case of Alexander Film Co. v. Lazeras and Morfesy, 7 S. W. 2nd, 599, the Court of Appeals in Texas ruled, in brief, that the Colorado film company, which had not obtained a license in Texas, could recover from the Texas company for unpaid rental although the Colorado company did not have authority to do business in Texas.

The Texas company contended that the Colorado company could not sue in Texas because it did not possess a license to do business in that state as required by statute. The court, however, overruled the contention, holding that the film company was entitled to recover as payment had not been made the Colorado company on the films shipped to the Texas firm for many months. The court said that the only question was whether this was a transaction in interstate commerce. If it were so, he declared, then it would be necessary for the film company to show that it had obtained a permit to do business in Texas. The court concluded that the transaction, as evidenced by the contract and the facts, was one of interstate commerce and that since the transaction was of such a nature the film company might recover therein, even if it was doing business in Texas contrary to the laws of the Lone Star State.

The Colorado film company was incorporated and had its principal place of business in Denver. It had not obtained a license to do business in Texas. It was represented by a special salesman who worked on a commission basis. The salesman negotiated with theatre owners in El Paso, obtained their signatures to a contract whereby the film company agreed to supply to the theatre a series of advertising films for a continuous period of 12 months at an agreed rental charge. In substance the contract provided that the Colorado film company would ship films to the Texas theatre at the rate of one every two weeks, provided each film was returned at the end of its screening period of two weeks. The rental charge was $15 per month. The contract provided that it should not be binding until countersigned by the film company at Denver, Colo. This was done. The company supplied films pursuant to its agreement, but payment was not made for some months. The suit followed.

British Film Quota Disliked by New Zealand Houses

Proposed enforcement by legislation of the screening of a quota of British films at every picture theatre in New Zealand is reported being condemned by leaders in the picture industry in New Zealand. Objections were made to the proposed quota on the grounds that it was against all principles of ordinary trade, and that it savoured far too strongly of Government interference in perfectly legitimate private enterprise.

British films have already received assistance from the Government, being admitted free, whereas a duty of 1 pence per foot was imposed on all foreign films. This duty was equivalent to 20 per cent and for every large American "special" three or four copies were released.

A representative of British films in New Zealand advocates the adoption of the bill on the grounds of allowing British film producers to regain the ground lost during the war.

Texas Unit Declines to Consider Producer's Claim

The M. P. T. O. of Texas members declined to consider a claim of Tiffany-Stahl against Marvin Woolridg, Altus, Okla., for selling his Altus theatre without having the purchaser assume the contracts. The reason given for this procedure was that the M. P. T. O. of Oklahoma has always demanded the right to hear the arbitration claims of its members discussed in Oklahoma.

J. K. Emmet Made General Manager N. Y. Capitol

Joseph K. Emmet has been appointed general manager of the Capitol Theatre in New York by Major Edward Bowes. At one time, Mr. Emmet figured on the stage as a star but for the past five years he has been manager of the State Theatre. His father was the famous "Fritz" Emmet, yodeler and comedian who entertained the older generation.

First Publix Musical Play at Paramount Theatre

The usual Publix policy of stage shows and ensemble entertainments will be deviated from next week at the Paramount Theatre in New York where "Wonderful Girl," called by Publix "a pocket edition of a legitimate musical comedy with book, lyrics and score," will be presented.

The production has been conceived and staged by Joseph Santley, former legitimate stage player who recently joined the Publix unit. Santley composed the score in collaboration with Harry Ruskin. Paul Ash and his orchestra will be featured and others in the footlight cast will include Helone Heller, George Riley, Al and Ray Samuels, the Paragon Quartet, Willard Hall, Marie Pauli and Dave Gould's troupe of dancers.

Violation of Quebec Law Brings Stern Punishment

Drastic action was taken by the authorities at Quebec City, capital of the Province of Quebec, on August 10 when the license of the Arlequin Theatre, a neighborhood house, was cancelled and theatre closed after the proprietor had pleaded guilty to the charge of permitting the admission of children under 16 years of age to the theatre in contravention of the new Provincial law.

Proceedings were instituted against this theatre by the Quebec Government as a test case. In addition to the cancellation of the license, a fine of $10 was imposed by Hon. Judge Lachance who presided at the hearing.

Utah T. O. Change Name of State Organization

The name of the Motion Picture Theatre owners organization of Utah has been changed to "The Intermountain Theatre's Association" in order that they can have as members all the theatre owners served by the Salt Lake exchanges. This change was agreed upon at the regular monthly meeting held in Salt Lake City a few days ago. It was further decided that the arbitrators appointed by the exhibitor's organization should not sit on a case by or against an exhibitor who is not a member of the organization, according to Holmgren, Anderson and Russell, attorneys for the association here.

Blank Retaining His Interests in F. N.

ALTHOUGH A. H. Blank will sell out completely to Publix, he will retain his interests in First National, of which he has been director over a length of years. It is understood that he has already sold his interest in his Iowa chain to the Publix shows. He sold a half interest in half of his theatres some time ago. It is understood that Harry David, who returned from New York to Des Moines last week, will be district manager of the Des Moines territory for Publix, succeeding Mr. Blank. Milton Feld and L. E. Schneider, two of the Publix officials, were in Des Moines last week negotiating with Mr. Blank.

Distributor, Electric Group Forming Production Unit, May Join Theatres

THE newest development in the plan to amalgamate unattached theatres in the New York territory was heard in theatre circles this week when the story gained credence that a large electrical group and an important distributor had been approached with the proposition to join forces with 200 independent New York theatres. The principal factors in the plan are reported to be B. S. Moss, Aaron Sapiro and Herbert A. Ebenstein. Their plan is to use the electrical companies and the distribution corporation as a nucleus of a producing, distributing and exhibiting organization which is to be later expanded to national proportions.

Approximately $25,000,000 per year represents the box office intake of the theatre interests which wield a film buying power of about $4,000,000 annually.

Several years ago operators frowned on suggestions that they submerge their individual identities to become housed with one consolidation of theatres. Now they are reported to be favorably inclined towards such suggestions. Meetings of different organizing companies are being held daily. If the merger does go through, the houses in the pool will become known as Moss theatres, the idea being to build up a circuit name which will represent goodwill and buying strength. The producing unit is proposed to operate as a separate unit under the suggested holding company.

It is not known at the present time in what manner the Sapiro unit, the M. P. Exhibitors' Association, Inc., will play a part in the plan. The buying power of the consolidation, if the latter be perfected, would naturally make the present scope of the Sapiro unit largely unnecessary. It is also possible that absorption of the I. M. P. E. A. by the larger unit will be the ultimate result, but this is not strongly advanced by those who are familiar with the situation. But if these moves of absorption are developed, the purposes of the Sapiro association will have been accomplished it is said.

The work of organization and promotion will continue, but it is not thought that the production end of the plan will be worked out for this season.

Neighborhoods Hard Hit

Baltimore Operators of Residential Theatres Confronted by Complicated Product Availability Question

THE recent move whereby the Stanley became a part of the Loew chain in Baltimore has changed the aspect of the theatre field of the Maryland city, in so far as the availability of product is concerned. The operators of residential houses are concerned over the question, as the length of availability on pictures has been tightened, it is said. To mention but one case, the Parkway, a second-run Loew house, ordinarily follows the Century and Valencia theatres, both first runs, but will now, it is said, be forced to follow the Stanley in additon to the other two. It is believed that no definite play dates will be available for the house, which heretofore has played pictures somewhere within 30 days after their first-run showings. Neighborhood theatre operators are of the opinion that there is no way of ascertaining how soon after the first run a picture will become available.

The product of United Artists, M-G-M, Paramount and First National are the pictures involved. The question has been taken up by the Maryland M. P. T. O., and a committee will probably be appointed shortly to solve the question.

When the new policy came along the Valencia lowered its admission prices, and the same scale of prices soon became available also at the Parkway, which, like the Valencia, adopted the new policy. It is claimed by the Maryland M. P. T. O. that the Valencia's announcement that the elimination of orchestral forces and installation of sound apparatus has enabled it to reduce its prices will give the public the impression that the identical condition will prevail at the other residential houses.

Exhibitors explain that the prevailing admission prices of 20 cents will have to be increased to 25 cents to meet the additional expenditure in neighborhood theatres for the installation of sound devices and the booking of sound films.

Scottsbluff in Favor of Sunday Movies

Scottsbluff, Nebraska, voted in favor of Sunday motion picture entertainment, at a special election held July 26th, by a ballot of 717 for and 135 against such entertainment. The new ordinance became effective at once, and Wm. Ostenberg, Jr., owner and manager of the Orpheum in that city, held the first Sunday show in years on July 29th following the election. This vote speaks highly for Mr. Ostenberg as a theatre manager who furnishes entertainment of the highest class.

FBO Films 75% Finished

Production Pace Maintained by Kennedy Organization Leaves But Quarter of Program to Film

FBO PICTURES CORPORATION is now in the position of having 75 per cent of its feature pictures for the season of 1928-29 completed. The last quarter is confidently expected to be completed by the first of the year. Six of these productions are specials, one of which has already been synchronized with sound effects while the remaining four of the completed specials are having or will have sound effects added to them.

The five finished specials are "The Perfect Crime," now playing at the Rivoli in New York with a complete synchronization of music and sound; "Hit of the Show," now being synchronized; "The Circus Kid" and "Gang War," both of which will have sound effects added. These sound specials are available, FBO says, both with and without the synchronizations.

Other of the completed productions are "Danger Street," "Stocks and Blondes," "Charge of the Gauchos," "Singapore Mutiny," "Sally's Shoulders," and "Sinners in Love." Finished Gold Bond releases are "Son of the Golden West," "Dog Law," "Fury of the Wild," "Terror Mountain," "The Avenging Rider," "Tyrant of Red Gulch," "Trail of the Horse Thieves," "Gun Law," "Idaho Red," "Heading for Danger," "Captain Careless," "Lightning Speed,' "The Young Whirlwind," "Rough Ridin' Red," "Orphans of the Sage" and "The Vagabond Cub."

Now in production are "The Air Legion," a story of the air mail; "Stolen Love," which Lynn Shores is directing; "His Last Haul," a story of crooks and the influence of the Salvation Army; a new Tom Mix vehicle in which the setting is Araby; "Come and Get It," a story of the prize ring; "The Freckled Rascal," under the direction of Louis King, and "Tracked," a new dog vehicle which Jerome Storm is making.

SLATED TO HEAD A. M. P. A.

Allied Amusement Elects New Officers

The Allied Amusement Industries of California held their annual election of officers for the fiscal year on July 17. The officers and the Board of Governors named to serve for 1928-29 were: A. M. Bowles, divisional manager for West Coast Theatres, chairman of the board of governors; I. C. Ackerman, T. M. Newman, C. Work, Rodney Pantages, R. Marshall, J. C. McCann, A. E. Aruks, Sol Lewis, L. R. Greenfield, S. Levin, and Joe Blumenfield, all members of the board of governors.

Ackerman was chosen vice-chairman, Greenfield was chosen trustee-treasurer and Thomas D. Van Osten was chosen secretary-manager.

The organization members have been advised that the Standard Exhibition Contract, which was adopted May 21, 1928, and originally provided that members of the San Francisco Film Board of Trade should have 20 days in which to approve applications for contracts taken in San Francisco, has been referred to the joint Contract Committee for recommendation and it was unanimously agreed upon a change.

New Canadian Firm Granted Charter

The Gaumont-British Corporation of Canada, Ltd., has been granted a charter of incorporation by the Canadian Federal government which empowers it to produce, distribute and present films throughout Canada, as well as buying or building theatres. The company will have its head offices at Toronto and will also have branch offices to be opened at St. John, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver. The company will each year release from 24 to 30 features, to be chosen not only from the program of Gaumont Company, Ltd., of England but other English companies.

President of the new firm is Lieutenant-Colonel A. C. Bromhead, C. B. E., who is chairman of the board of directors of the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation, Ltd., of London. Arthur A. Lee, president of the Ameranglo Corporation of New York, is vice-president. Reginald C. Bromhead, F. C. A., is treasurer of the new company. Edward Auger is managing director and William F. Barrett is secretary.

Producer and Exchange Erase Differences

A tentative agreement ending all controversy is rapidly ironing out the differences between Columbia Exchanges of Salt Lake City and Columbia Pictures Corporation. Last week J. T. Sheffield, representing the exchange, and Robert McKain, representing the producing company, agreed to a settlement whereby the complaint filed against the producing company will be withdrawn. The dispute started when Mr. Sheffield requested that Columbia Pictures be restrained from using the name "Columbia" in the distribution of films in the Denver and Salt Lake territories.

The agreement provides for an immediate transfer by Sheffield of all unplayed contracts on Columbia pictures to the newly opened Columbia Pictures exchanges in Denver and Salt Lake for which it is said Mr. Sheffield is receiving a substantial consideration. After the transaction has been completed, the exchanges operated by Mr. Sheffield will be re-named, it is said.

Norman, Okla., Decides on Sunday Shows

As the result of an election held last Tuesday in Norman, Oklahoma, Sunday shows will again make their entranee into the lives of the townsfolk. This question, voted on at an election early last spring and defeated then by a small margin, was favorably decided at the election last Tuesday, the "ayes" winning by a good majority.

Norman, being the seat of the state university, has long debated the subject of Sunday shows. In the spring election students demanded the right to vote on the question, but the local authorities denied them the privilege. The election last Tuesday was for citizens only. Local newspapers took no part in the campaign so the results can rightfully be said to clearly express the wishes of the people.

Large Theatre in Sydney, Australia, Planned

It is reported that the De Luxe theatre in Sydney, Australia, will be torn down soon to make way for the erection of another large city theatre by the Hoyts organization. The area in question should give sufficient room for a 2,500 or 3,000 house, and definite action on the proposal to erect the cinema will come within the next three months, according to report. It is not known yet whether the atmospheric idea will be developed in this theatre.

200 Sound Pictures Already Scheduled

Survey Indicates Much Activity on Sound Pictures

en route will make a number of stops to feel the pulse of exhibitor opinion. The plans of Gotham's executives will be predicated on the reaction Mr. Sax receives. A specific statement will be forthcoming shortly, Sax states, and adds that negotiations for synchronizing Gotham pictures have been practically completed. How many and what the titles of these are to be could not be learned from Gotham this week.

Fox

Fox Film Corporation, in their 1928-29 schedule announce from August 19 to January 6, 1929, 20 features for release. Of these one is definitely to have dialogue and fifteen others to include sound or musical synchronization or incidental songs. Thirty all-talkie two-reel comedies are also definitely scheduled, and three of these are available right now for release. Fox also has other synchronized shorts available.

Columbia and Tiffany

Columbia Pictures Corporation is not ready at the present time to make any announcement of its plans as regards talking or sound pictures, and neither is Tiffany-Stahl, according to telephone conversation between a NEWS representative and the publicity offices of these companies.

Pathe

Pathe, in offering sound pictures for the coming season, is keeping in pace with latest developments, according to Colvin W. Brown, executive vice-president. The RCA Photophone process is being used, and the line-up of pictures for sound recording includes "The King of Kings," "The Godless Girl," eight special features, Mack Sennett Comedies, Aesop's Film Fables, and Pathe News.

"The King of Kings" has already been shown with special sound and synchronized musical effects at the Rivoli Theatre in New York.

"The Godless Girl" will have a complete musical synchronization, and in addition there will be certain dialogue sequences that lend themselves to this vehicle for presentation.

The eight special features selected for sound accompaniment are "Show Folks," "The Spieler," "Annapolis," "Ned McCobb's Daughter," "Noisy Neighbors," "The Leatherneck," "Square Shoulders," and "Listen, Baby." In the case of these features, musical synchronization is either under way or set for early recording.

Short product will also be given sound presentation by Pathe and used wherever practicable to improve the entertainment value of the films.

Mack Sennett, producer of numerous series of Pathe Comedies, has announced that he considers that talking and sound mark the greatest advance in short subjects since he made the first two-reel comedy. Sennett's new studio at Studio City already has sound stages. Just what way and in what comedies Sennett will use sound and talking he is keeping as a surprise.

Editor Ray Hall, of Pathe News, is very enthusiastic over the use of sound for news films. He recently expressed his views in these words: "The news reel will be the best, the most effective, of all phases of sound reproduction." It is understood that the Pathe News technical staff has solved most of the difficulties to be overcome in presenting the best in the way of sound news reels.

Pathe pioneers in offering the world's first animated cartoon in sound. President Amedee J. Van Beuren, of the Van Beuren Enterprises, has announced that Aesop's Film Fables in sound will be available to all theatres equipped with sound projection.

United Artists

All the 18 United Artists features for 1928-29 will have synchronization or sound effects and in some of them dialogue will be used. Hugo Riesenfeld will do all the scoring and Irving Berlin has been engaged to write original songs.

In "Queen Kelly," Gloria Swanson and Walter Byron will talk, and in "Rescue," there will be dialogue by Ronald Colman and Lili Damita.

Lupe Velez will sing an original song by Irving Berlin in "The Love Song," a D. W. Griffith production and in others there will be the use of the voice.

"Nightstick" will probably be an all-talkie, but this has not been definitely decided. In "Awakening," Berlin's songs will be sung by the different characters in the picture.

445 Sound Installations Completed by W. E.; 1,000 by End of 1928

UP to the present time Western Electric has completed 445 installations of sound projection equipment in various parts of this country and the company's schedule calls for a total of 1,000 by the end of 1928, according to reliable information obtained this week.

From an authorative source it was further learned that the controversy over the installation of sound projection equipment has at last been amicably settled with the electrical unions and it is now believed that Western Electric will be able to speed up any installations which have been held up owing to a difference of opinion as to whether the unions or others should do certain work.

Electricians are said to have returned to the deserted jobs in New York, Chicago, Boston and other points and it is more than probable that First National's "Lilac Time," which was to have opened with sound accompaniment, will soon dispense with the regular orchestra the management was forced to engage on account of the delay in wiring the theatre.

Warner Bros. Sets Dates on Four Features

Four Warner Bros. feature productions have been scheduled for release during August, September and October.

"State Street Sadie," with Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy, will be released on August 25. "Women They Talk About," with Irene Rich and William Collier, Jr., will be issued on September 8. "Caught in the Fog," co-starring May McAvoy and Nagel, will arrive on September 22. "The Midnight Taxi," featuring Antonio Moreno, Helene Costello and Miss Loy, is set for October 6.

More Sound Installations for Cleveland

More installations for sound movies have been announced in Cleveland territory. The Cameo, a Loew house, is being equipped with Vitaphone, and will be ready to offer talking movies by September 1st. J. J. Harwood has installed a Phototone instrument in the Lexington, and the Liberty, Akron is getting a Phototone, also. This is made by the Platter Cabinet Company of North Vernon, Indiana.

Talkie Here to Stay, Says Jack Warner

Novelty of Silent Film Has Passed He Declares

By EDWIN SCHALLERT

(Editor of Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News)

LOS ANGELES, August 12.—"It is not the novelty of the talking picture that will wear out; it is the novelty of the silent picture that has worn out."

Thus Jack L. Warner, vice-president and director of production at Warner Brothers studio, defined to me the status of the sound film, basing the statement on a year's observation of developments in this new field. Already financially and speculatively a center of interest, the Warner company is launching on a large new program of talking features. Some pretentious pictures are either already completed or being completed for fall release, one or two all dialogue. Forty, in whole or in part talkie, will be finished by the end of the year, including all films with spoken word made to date.

This is the first word regarding certain new activities of the organization that has pioneered in the sound field, and the highlights as told me by Mr. Warner are as follows:

Pauline Frederick will appear in an all-talkie version of Elmer Rice's stage play, "On Trial," one of the theatrical sensations of a few years ago. This will be Miss Frederick's first talkie engagement.

John Barrymore will make not one, but a series of pictures for the organization. He will be on their regular Vitaphone program.

The Al Jolson and Fannie Brice productions are completed. Al was doing the final Vitaphone scene the day that I was at the studio. He will have six or seven new songs in the picture. One of these is a theme song that will be repeated. It is a pathetic number, reflecting his love for a son, who dies during the plot unfoldment.

Jolson will go right ahead making other pictures for the organization, it is understood, probably very shortly. The next may be an all-talkie. I did not learn this fact from Mr. Warner personally, but it is virtually certain.

Monte Blue's film, "Conquest," will be all dialogue and sound effects, with the dialogue practically continuous. Telling as it does of a South Polar airplane flight, this picture promises to be unique. "Stark Mad" another film of adventure, laid in South and Central America, will be all talkie. Warner informs me that this will be an unusual thriller.

"Noah's Ark" is to have no dialogue in the five reel biblical story, but effects will be used consistently. The modern story in seven reels will be dialogued.

The company is completing its first steel and concrete stage—twice the size of any of the three wooden stages now in operation. Another steel and concrete stage, a duplicate of the new one, will be built soon.

At the present time developments at the Warner studio are probably the most positive barometer to the talking picture situation in Hollywood. Looked at in this light, their scope is amazing. All that I have said in no way reflects the entire activities of the company. They are constantly making pictures that I have not named, that are in part dialogue. They are also producing an endless succession of short subjects.

These facts speak strongly, but some of the new technical advances outlined to me in conversation by Mr. Warner speak even more forcibly. Chief among these he pointed out the fact that Vitaphone is rapidly becoming a more flexible medium. The stilted poses of the actors will in the future be more and more eliminated.

"I might say that we can do anything today with Vitaphone," he declared. "We can erase and add to the records. We can synchronize the voices of the players at one time, and the musical accompaniment at another. We can adjust the microphone to fit almost any condition. We are beginning to use the traveling microphone, just as we already have a traveling camera. This will enable us to follow the players about in their changes of position in a scene, which we do not wish to cut, just as is now done in the silent drama. I might say that any scene that can be enacted in

Sound Pictures Versus Vaudeville

Vaudeville Agents Show Deep Concern Over Talking Film

By CHARLES E. LEWIS
Editor of The Round Table Club

THAT sound pictures have cut deeply into theatres formerly running vaudeville and that agents for this type of entertainment are deeply worried over this new form of competition, was emphatically brought out at the convention of Gus Sun managers, attended by about forty Indiana, W. Va., Pennsylvania and Ohio exhibitors and held August 7th and 8th at the Breakers Hotel, Cedar Point, Ohio.

This invasion of the "talkies" into the vaudeville field prompted a series of expressions in the various speeches that unquestionably aired the views of every vaudeville agent in the country. But while it was noticeable that they could not talk the majority of the managers out of Sound Pictures at this time, the feeling of the convention was that talkies were only a novelty and would be played out in less than two years.

Gus Sun's Speech

Gus Sun, veteran theatrical man in the vaudeville field made quite an unusual speech, in that he attacked the sound pictures from an entertainment standpoint and then ended up by recommending apparatus made by one of the leading manufacturers to the managers at the convention, if they felt they must have sound devices. He told the meeting that talkies are not here to stay. People would soon tire of them and in his opinion two years would see the craze relegated to history and everything back to normal in the business. But where managers feel they must have sound pictures he recommended, first, the equipment mentioned above, and second that they only run them one half a week, devoting the other half to the old established policy of vaudeville and pictures. He was very optimistic, in spite of the present business depression, and told the convention that without a doubt business in general would become much better immediately after the presidential election. Another point of Mr. Sun's speech was the plea that exhibitors get together with their opposition, either by buying them out or by pooling their interests, thereby controlling the towns in which their theatres are located, for their mutual interests and profit.

Billy Diamond

The next speaker was Billy Diamond a vaudeville agent from Chicago, who told the convention that talkies could only be taken as a novelty and cited several theatres that he knew of who were sorry they had installed talkies and hoped that they would get their money back. He quoted Milwaukee and the first all-talkie "Lights of New York" and went on to tell how ridiculous the picture was but had to admit that it was doing a terrific business. He recommended that managers should use talkie acts, if they felt they had to have them, but suggested that such acts be booked by their vaudeville bookers in conjunction with regular vaudeville acts, thereby making up a diversified program giving the public a little of everything. He said that for the present time such a combination program would solve the problem for managers who had, or were going to get, talking plants. He emphasized the necessity of the talkie acts being booked properly and pointed out that his suggestion, if followed, would require that the talkie and "real" acts be booked by one and the same booker so that variety and entertainment factors would be looked after.

This suggestion created quite a bit of discussion after the meeting and many thought it a splendid idea. They felt that their patrons wanted to see "live" acts as well as "talkies" and in this way they could give both. Diamond quoted Joseph P. Kennedy and called attention to the fact that vaudeville was NOT dying out because Kennedy had ordered his vaudeville bookers to secure the finest talent available and would revive the former two-a-day policy in many cities.

Earl Meyers, theatre manager from Chillicothe, Ohio warned the meeting of the danger of buying Vitaphone from anyone but the Electrical Research Co. and told of his own experience when he bought through another source, contracted for "Jazz Singer" and several other synchronized pictures, started his advance advertising and then, four weeks after signing the contract he was notified that he could not get his installation for six months. This, he said, put him back just that time and left him with these expensive pictures which would be worthless by the time he ran them with Vitaphone and certainly would be if he ran them without.

Mr. Wood

P. J. Wood, Business Manager of the Ohio M. P. T. O. spoke about legalizing Sunday shows in Ohio and read letters sent and received from the various candidates for Governor. "Pete" also surprised the meeting by recommending increased admission prices where talking pictures are being added to regular shows—Which was a distinct upheaval as most exhibitors realize the necessity of keeping the scale down to where it will not drive business away.

William James, a prominent figure in Ohio exhibitor circles (but who not so long ago sold his interests to the Loew Co.) and president of the Gus Sun Manager's Association, and O. M. P. T. O., pleaded that vaudeville be kept as clean as the pictures are at present, emphasizing the fact that the picture industry was clean and that pictures are produced on a clean scale.

He insisted, and told his hearers that he was speaking from experience, that sound pictures are in the experimental stage and called attention to such pictures as "Don Juan" and "The Better 'Ole" as being two of the finest synchronized productions made; after these two, James said, they started to become inferior, with only the sound angle making them desirable. And then came Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" and the entire industry went into a hysteria.

Mr. James outlined the history of the Motion Picture Industry from its inception, the history of theatres from ages back, and insisted that talking pictures were now in the same stages of development. Perhaps they would be so improved, and the class of productions so good that they would eventually become the popular form of amusement now enjoyed by pictures, but all this he doubted and looked upon the entire excitement as a craze that would wear off in about two years, after which the public would come back to it's first love, "A good picture."

Advice from Mr. James

His advice was, "Let the other fellow experiment, let your opposition put it in for the present." He urged his hearers to sit back and wait until they could see what was going to happen after the first noise was over. He warned the exhibitors that once they signed for a plant they were at the mercy of the distributors and they would "get you coming and going."

Over 40 exhibitors from Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Indiana were present at this convention and to me it was amusing to note the many diversified opinions as regarding the sound picture question. One fact seemed apparent, both at this meeting and along the line of my trip. Those exhibitors who have had the sound device installed for any great length of time (Toledo excepted) were suffering from a "slump of interest" in their equipment, while those who have had it for only a short time are both enthused as to the idea and the business.

This is caused by the fact that the earlier installations suffered for want of features to present on their plants, while those who recently installed them have plenty of material to select and can consistently (for the time being) offer full synchronized shows with many more due this coming season.

After the meeting a dinner was served and on Wednesday the entire party, ladies included sailed across Lake Erie to several Canadian Islands.

This meeting, and the very pleasant time I had, was a delightful diversion to this trip and I could not close this article without expressing, through this medium, my sincere thanks to Gus Sun and all the others who made the entire affair so pleasant for me. I am sure that Mr. Johnston joins me in expressing our appreciation for their courteous attention to the representative of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Talkies May Be Reason for Decline in Film Incorporations

WHETHER the situation regarding talking pictures is influencing business in the department of state at Albany, N. Y., in so far as the incorporation of companies is concerned, is a question that has been asked by the secretary of state during the past few weeks, when it became noticeable that a marked falling off had occurred in the incorporation of producing companies as well as concerns incorporating to conduct motion picture theatres in New York State. There is no question but that exhibitors planning to erect theatres are hesitant these days as to whether or not they should install the necessary equipment for the talkie. Wherever exhibitors gather these days in central and northern New York, the one subject of conversation is the future of the talking picture. Although many exhibitors are talking of installing the necessary equipment, there is up to the present time no action along this line.

The fact remains that the talking picture has been able to attract crowds in Albany and Troy during weather conditions that left other houses practically stranded. Motion picture companies incorporating in New York State these days are few in number as compared to a year or so ago when each week saw the incorporation of a dozen or more companies, the majority of which had substantial capitalization.

Musicians' Wrangle Involves Missouri Governor

GOVERNOR SAM BAKER of Missouri and his Police Board in St. Louis were accused of breaking faith with organized labor by Stephen J. Butler, business agent for Musicians Union No. 2 at a meeting of the St. Louis Trades and Labor Union at Unity Hall, St. Louis, Sunday, August 12.

Butler made his attack on the governor and police commissioners during a debate on a resolution against "canned music" in motion picture houses, theatres and other amusement places and against the advance in admission prices contemplated by some theatres in St. Louis.

The Central Trades and Labor Union reiterated its previous stand against the use of mechanical music in amusement places and delegates to the body were instructed to agitate through the membership of the unions they represent to agitate for a lowering of admission prices to neighborhood theatres.

The resolution finally adopted also demanded that Governor Baker instruct his St. Louis Police Board to issue orders to the police to observe strict neutrality in strikes and other labor disputes, and to restrain them from arresting union men for attempting to proclaim their grievances in a strictly constitutional manner by distributing handbills or cards.

Replying to a story printed in a St. Louis Sunday newspaper that the management of the Missouri and Ambassador theatres are contemplating raising their admission price from 65 to 75 cents because stage hands have presented demands for an increase in pay ranging up to some 25 per cent and that the musicians are preparing to do likewise, Butler declared that the Musicians Union has not only postponed the adoption of a new salary schedule but had volunteered to permit some neighborhood shows to employ musicians at $13 a week less than heretofore.

On motion of Mary Ryder, delegate of Typographical Union No. 8 and official of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of the Central Trades again pledges itself to fight against the use of mechanical music in theatres, etc.

Florida Reports Fifteen Sound Installations

Western Electric Company equipment (Vitaphone and Movietone) is being installed in approximately fifteen theatres over the state. "Sound pictures" are gaining more favor each day and all of Florida's leading theatres will soon be offering them to patrons.

Signs Well Known Players for Talkie Contracts

Leo Morrison has signed Van and Schenck with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to make four Movietone pictures. He has also contracted for a number of other stars before leaving for Los Angeles. He has been commissioned to negotiate for a number of prominent stars and authors, and is on his way to California to consummate dealings for them which are now pending. Also leaving for Los Angeles on the Century is Miss Sylvia Field, who is under a long-term contract to make Fox Movietone pictures.

Clark and McCullough, famous musical comedy comedians are leaving August 19th to fulfill a long-term contract with Fox Movietone. Both of the above contracts were arranged by Leo Morrison.

Before leaving, Mr. Morrison is taking larger office space, and during his absence Maxwell Arnow and Ansel Wright will take active charge of the artists that he represents for talking motion pictures.

the silent form can be, or will soon be done in the talkie form. If necessary we can arrange the shooting of exteriors with Vitaphone. But this necessity will not arise very often.

"Sound picture results have improved 100 per cent in a year, though that is a purely arbitrary figure. They will improve perhaps even more than that in another year. There is no way to estimate them. We will be a huge step ahead of anything we have previously accomplished, for example, when we start operations on our new stage. It represents the fulfilment of our study of the sound picture situation since we have started.

"The talking picture is going to require the utmost of the actor. It is going to demand constant and careful study of this new art. My personal belief is that about 80 per cent of the players will survive the change. I think that about 20 per cent will leave, because of their lack of adaptability. The fact that 80 per cent will stay does not mean that we will not develop new personalities. There will be many changes. However, it is the player who knuckles down and takes the talkies seriously that will win out. They require a new type of effort, and it isn't something to be shouldered lightly. Our experience has shown that."

Rin-Tin-Tin Will Bark for Vitaphoned Picture

Not to be outdone by other celebrities, Rin-Tin-Tin, Warner Bros. star, is soon to be heard on the Vitaphone. He will be the first canine player to be starred in sound pictures.

The Warner Studio has announced that two Rin-Tin-Tin pictures with Vitaphone are already finished. They are "Land of the Silver Fox" and "The Million Dollar Collar." In both of these Rinty will say it with barks and there will be other sound effects on the Vitaphone to supplement the action of the stories.

Indiana Circuit Will Be Equipped for Talkies

Murl B. Hornbeck, secretary-treasurer of the Hornbeck Amusement Company of Logansport, Ind., has announced that his company's theatres in that city all will be equipped shortly with Movietone and Vitaphone.

Roxy Gives Views on Sound Pictures

Will Never Entirely Displace Stage and Music Acts, He Thinks

By THOMAS C. KENNEDY

S. L. ROTHAFEL, guiding genius of the Roxy Theatre, and a pioneer in presenting sound pictures, does not believe that the new invention ever will entirely displace from the programs of the big metropolitan theatres the diversified entertainments composed of musical renditions and stage features.

As the originator of the "unit program," which in various forms is the standard entertainment in the bigger motion picture theatres, and one who has offered both Vitaphone and Movietone pictures on several occasions since the opening of his "Cathedral of the Motion Picture" a year and a half ago, Roxy is perhaps the best qualified authority on the relation of synchronized pictures to existing forms of film presentations and the reaction of the public to the new device.

Asked if he could say whether his presentation of sound pictures has thus far been productive of any tangible evidence that the public is more interested in sound pictures than the silent ones, Roxy said that he could not state that there has been any such evidence.

The Amusement Seeker

"The amusement seekers," he said, "don't know what they want, beyond their desire for entertainment, relaxation and emotional stimulation of a kind lacking in their usual environment. They do not specify in their own minds the precise character their favorite form of amusement will take."

There is no immediate danger of the Broadway stage dominating the picture industry if Roxy is right in his contention that talking pictures—that is films which depend upon dialogue for their dramatic effect—in their present form do not realize the full potentialities of the new invention and in the main are an imitation of the speaking stage and lacking in the qualities that make for lasting appeal.

The use of sound as a complement to the illusion of the picture is another matter. In this application, Roxy believes, the synchronized sound brings one of the greatest single advances ever developed for pictures, and brings films closer to the place they eventually will occupy as important factors in stage presentations, replacing with projected scenes the present type of stage setting for the drama.

Boon to Small House

The sound picture, he says, is a boon to the small theatre as well as the large one. The big metropolitan houses probably never will run their programs with an entirely mechanical show, but the smaller theatres possibly will. This, Roxy says, will not rob the theatre of its individuality, which the showman will preserve in his house by means of his service and possibly musical programs by orchestra or organ.

"I welcome the invention with as great enthusiasm as any man, in or out of the industry," he said. "Indeed, I was an advocate of the illusion of sound in film presentations, long before there were any sound pictures, and for many of my presentations produced sound effects to harmonize with screen action by means of orchestral, organ and mechanical 'effects.'

"Synchronized sound immeasurably heightens the power of the motion picture as a creator of illusion. It is a development harmonious with the ideals sought in motion pictures as an entertainment and an art. It gives the creative forces another dimension in which to work the magic of emotional stimulation. The great success of the motion picture is due to the fact that pictures are the world's greatest playground for the imagination. The spectator experiences an emotional reaction proportionate to his or her capacity for emotion. The illusion of sound properly employed to heighten the illusion on the screen gives added scope to motion pictures.

New Strata Added

"A new strata is added to the structure. To the work of the writer, the director and the actor is added another potent illusion force—illusion for the ear as well as the eye, an atmospheric background giving more realism to the impressions made upon the spectator and auditor.

"The resources of the orchestra, playing a synchronized score, are increased by the manifold 'effects' it is now possible to bring into the 'picture.' I am preparing to score a picture, 'The River Pirate,' with orchestral and sound accompaniment. The locale is the river front and it will be my business to make the auditor receive a true and convincing impression of sounds which characterize that locale. The shrieks of the tug boat whistle, the rumble of railway and motor traffic on the bridge nearby, the full-throated blast from the whistles of huge passenger ships, the hissing of steam escaping from valves of derricks and winches, and a miscellany of other sounds which make up the composite.

"The 'sound director' now supplements the work of the scene director and increases the power of his productions. These same effects will have as great value as a setting for presentations on the speaking stage as they have for the screen. Imagine the value to the stage production of a realistic background projected in colors and with sound effects. Thunder and lightning storms, tornadoes and other effects which for the most part are now attempted with pathetic results on the stage, despite the use of all the resources of stagecraft, will have the power to really grip the imagination and create a real illusion. We frequently have used pictures in conjunction with stage scenes at this theatre."

Regarding Dialogue

Regarding the use of dialogue with pictures, Roxy said he has his ideas of what will eventually develop, but for the present the use of dialogue he believes makes the motion picture a type of entertainment which currently appeals more because of its novelty than its artistic qualities. He indicated that he has not yet seen a talking picture or a talking sequence that he considers worthwhile.

Before the new medium of sound pictures is developed to a point where speech will add definite power and bring a new force to the motion picture there will have to be an entirely new technique, to which not only the writer and director will contribute their specialized talents but as well the technician and the engineer, possibly bringing ultimate changes which will affect the present standard of method and apparatus for making and projecting motion pictures.

Rivoli Booking Sheds Further Light on Interchangeability Issue

CONSIDERABLE interest has centered upon the premiere and three weeks' showing of "The Perfect Crime" (FBO) at the Rivoli theatre New York City, in as much that it has shed further light on the interchangeability issue on sound projection apparatus, and is also credited with possessing some novel points.

It is evident that interchangeability can be achieved in view of the fact that this FBO sound picture was synchronized by the RCA-Photophone method and is being run off on a Movietone machine. RCA-Photophone method is also being used on five other FBO sound pictures.

William Le Baron adapted "The Perfect Crime" from a story, "The Big Bow Mystery," by Zangwill, and the picture is said to contain the first court room scene to be reproduced in dialogue. Other sound effects are the groan and rush of wind, mystery effects and the crack of lightning and thunder.

Wall Street Muddled Over Sound Pictures

WALL STREET is having a difficult time keeping up with the rapid developments in the motion picture field with the almost chaotic conditions recently caused by the industry's wholesale interest in talking pictures. Talk of new mergers, new companies and new inventions is becoming so involved that some of the banking companies interested in this field are rather up in the air.

To quote from "The Wall Street Journal":

"Undoubtedly, a lineup of new organizations gradually will evolve from the mixed situation with small companies going into larger ones and a gradual elimination of the poorer equipment and inventions as the new industry develops."

Reports on Talking Picture Situation in Canada

AN important pronouncement has been made by O. R. Harvey, manager of the Research Products Bureau of the Northern Electric Company, Montreal, regarding the talking picture situation in Canada. The Northern Electric is the Canadian affiliation of the Western Electric Company of the United States and the Canadian organization is busily engaged in the production of audible film equipment for theatres in the Dominion.

Mr. Harvey announces that the first wire installation for Famous Players Canadian Corp., will be in the Palace Theatre, Montreal, which is now closed for extensive stage and street front alterations. This theatre is having a full-size stage installed for special presentations and bands at the same time that facilities are being constructed for sound pictures.

According to Mr. Harvey, the important theatres in the large centres of Canada will be wired before the end of 1928 while it is expected that many theatres in all cities and towns of the Dominion will be equipped by the end of 1929. Ten theatres of the Famous Players Canadian Corp., had already been licensed for the use of sound film equipment. Before the end of next year, Mr. Harvey believed that talking pictures would be quite universal in Canada.

Major film producers of the United States had been licensed to make audible pictures under Western Electric patents and these patent rights would be controlled by the Northern Electric Company in the Dominion. There was little or no danger of a shortage of sound films.

All Christie Comedies Will Include Sound and Music

AN important announcement, made by Paramount this week in connection with the two reel comedy field, states that all Christie comedies from this date on will include talking parts as well as synchronized musical and sound effects. Production has been stopped in the Christie studios on all pictures which do not include actual dialogue sequences.

The Victor Talking Machine Company, in connection with Paramount's music department, have created specially designed records synchronized with the film for the reproduction of sound effects and music for the comedies produced during the first part of the production season.

For Christie's own Hollywood studios, sound production equipment is being shipped at once from the East and work on sound-proof stages is proceeding at a satisfactory rate. While installations are being made, all two reel comedy production will be stopped, so that as much of the product as possible can be recorded with original dialogues and other sound effects. It is expected that the actual start of production on talking comedies will begin by October 1.

It is thought that this brief shutdown of the studios will make unnecessary the usual early-Spring shutdown. No changes in Paramount-Christie product line-up are anticipated, but announcements will be made soon of the material which will be filmed in talkies for release by Paramount during the coming season.

Nancy Carroll's voice will be heard in two songs written especially for her by Victor Schertzinger as a part of the new Paramount sound picture of New York stage life in which she is being co-featured with Richard Arlen.

This announcement was made at the Paramount studios in Hollywood following the completion of the songs by the composer of "Marcheta," "Just An Old Love Song" and other now famous ballads.

The songs written for Miss Carroll are "Gotta Be Good" and "Another Kiss." Schertzinger recently completed "Rose of Erin," which he wrote for John McCormack at the great Irish tenor's request and which will be part of McCormack's fall concert program.

Talkies Make Debut at South Bend, Ind.

The new Colfax theatre in South Bend, Ind., got away to an auspicious start and incidentally showed that city the first talking pictures. The Paramount theatre, New York orchestra, was secured for the opening under the direction of Nathaniel Finston. "Loves of an Actress" was the film used for opening.

The theatre will show two shows each evening. The theatre was built by the H. G. Christman Company and is operated by the Publix organization. The house is equipped for Vitaphone and Movietone. Maurice A. Baker will be managing director. He goes to South Bend from Richmond, Va., where he had charge of the Mosque theatre. Previously he had been manager of a theatre in Miami, Fla.

Large Cast Selected for W. B.'s "Stark Mad"

"Stark Mad," the story by Jerome Kingston which the Warner Bros. studio is about to convert into a Vitaphone special, will have a large cast of players portraying its important roles. Thus far, H. B. Warner, Louise Fazenda and Jacqueline Logan will have the more important roles while assisting players will include Henry B. Walthall, Claude Gillingwater, Warner Richmond, Andre Beranger, John Miljan and Lionel Belmore. The picture will be an "all-talkie" and will be launched into filming work just as soon as Director Lloyd Bacon has received the script from Harvey Gates.

Two U. A. Sound Pictures for Early Release

August 25th synchronized prints on "Tempest," the John Barrymore film for United Artists, will be available to exhibitors. Hugo Reisenfeld has completed the score and sound effect synchronization, which will be heard for the first time when the picture is shown at popular prices at the Rivoli, New York, August 18th.

September 7th synchronized prints on "Two Lovers," final Colman-Banky picture, will be available. Dr. Reisenfeld has also scored this Samuel Goldwyn picture, hitherto exhibited only in one theatre, the Embassy, New York, at $2.

"Lilac Time" Exploitation

Extensive Drive Typical of Los Angeles Premieres Heralds Opening at Miller's Carthay Circle

A NUMBER of circumstances peculiar to Los Angeles make that city a veritable playground for the exploiteer assigned to campaign for a motion picture premiere, and a place which contrasts greatly with the majority of cities in which showmen are called upon to turn on the high-pressure ballyhoo for photoplay shows. Among the advantages which L. A. holds over most places is the fact that the producer of the picture frequently takes the occasion of these premieres to demonstrate the exploitation angles of his production, and in so doing is liberal of his exploitation talent and his treasure.

But while the Los Angeles campaigns for these and other reasons among them, (its great out-door activity with consequent opportunity for display and the strongly developed advertising instinct of its merchants and business men, which means receptivity to tie-up proposals of the theatre man) the drives staged have their value in supplying general outlines upon which theatre men in other sections of the country can formulate their campaigns for a particular picture, or turn about and make adaptable to other attractions.

One of the most recent, and a campaign typical of Los Angeles for a premiere, was the drive staged for the opening of "Lilac Time" at Fred Miller's Carthay Circle. This exploitation covered a wide range of ideas, as will be seen from the highlights of the drive outlined in the following account.

Airplane Display

A wrecked airplane was placed in a wire enclosure in the forecourt of the Carthay Circle Theatre. The entire plane was of tan-colored linen, including wings, fusselage, etc. A signboard explained the wrecked airplane. Theatres having no forecourt can use the wrecked airplane on the marquee.

A de luxe teaser 28-sheet bill board with copy reading: "It will soon be LILAC TIME in Los Angeles" was used in various sections of the city. The poster had a lilac background, with black and white letters. Later a narrow strip was posted across the large letters of Lilac Time reading. "And then you'll hear Photophone."

The chain of 80 Owl Drug Stores in Los Angeles and suburbs gave displays of the Colleen Moore toilet articles which it merchandises together with stills, photo enlargements and special cards on the "Lilac Time" showing at the Carthay Circle. The window displays remained up for two weeks. The Owl Drug Stores also got up a special Colleen Moore vial of perfume. These vials were given away to ladies attending the matinee performance. A special sundae was also put out by the Owl people. A photograph of Colleen Moore eating one of the sundaes, with a description of how the sundae is made, were pasted on the store windows.

Prior to the opening, the theme song, "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac Time," was broadcast over the radio. The first 500 persons who wrote in to the station regarding the reception of the song received a photograph of James Montgomery Flagg's new sketch of Miss Moore.

One of the most effective stunts that was put out was the lining, for two blocks, of the avenue between Wilshire Boulevard and the Carthay Circle Theatre, with Kheg lights, using a lilac tinted glass which gave a very beautiful effect.

A small enclosed truck, carrying a loud speaker set and a Brunswick Panatrope machine which played music as the truck proceeded about town was an effective street ballyhoo. A second truck followed the loud-speaker wagon, carrying an electric sign, with white lights on a lilac background, with the title "Lilac Time." This ballyhoo got a lot of attention.

The title of the picture was placed on all the sculptural advertising used by the theatre along the highways of Los Angeles and southern California. A small model of the Carthay Circle theatre is mounted on a cement pedestal, the whole being about ten or twelve feet high. The name of the theatre and "Now Playing" are lettered on the base, with a space between for inserting the title of such new attraction to play the theatre.

The Western Union Telegraph company placed a special telegraph office just outside the theatre to handle the volume of telegraph messages sent by guests at the premiere of the picture. "Telegraph your friends what you think of "Lilac Time'" was the sign painted on a board covering the front of the telegrapher's desk.

Subscribers Write Ending for Picture Story

Manager J. L. Cartwright used both a newspaper contest and a lobby stunt in advertising the "Wheel of Chance" at the Lyric Theatre, Jackson, Tenn.

The idea of the newspaper contest was to give the contestants in synopsis form the outline of the first six reels of the seven-reel picture and then to ask the contestants to furnish the synopsis of the seventh reel.

The psychology of this contest is that nearly everybody feels morally certain that he or she could write stories for the screen if given the opportunity. The story suggesting the contest reached this vanity by emphasizing that the picture ending was basically sound and the only really logical development, and has no trick ending, but required only that the contestant logically conclude the story.

Showmanship Briefs

IN common with many other theatre managers who have played "Happiness Ahead." Manager T. Y. Walker, of the Noble theatre, Anniston, Ala., found it profitable to use a taxi cab as a ballyhoo for his presentation. Walker engaged a taxi and decorated it in flashy fashion, featuring signs inserted between the drawn curtains and the windows of the car. These signs read "Just Married," "In for Life," etc. On the rear of the car was a large banner reading "Happiness Ahead," at the Noble theatre today. Several pieces of hand luggage were tied on top and the running boards, and tin cans and bells as well as baby slippers dangled from the fenders and bumpers to give added attraction value to the ballyhoo.

MANAGER J. S. MacNEILL, of the Olympia Theatre in New Bedford, Mass., obtained a good publicity tie-up for his campaign on "Harold Teen" through the use of the cartoon strips issued as an accessory on that production. The tie-up featured a contest, in which the entrants were to supply the gags, or jokes, to fill in the "balloons" in the cartoon strip. The contestants were required to supply conversation that was appropriate to the illustrations. Other points of excellence considered by the judges were the humor of the joke or story and neatness of execution.

A UNIQUE publicity tie-up was effected by Charles Baron, publicity director for United Artists, during the showing of "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," at the U. A. Theatre. He obtained 50,000 Life Savers from the manufacturers wrapped in paraffined packages, five to a package, each of which carried an illustration and caption concerning the engagement. These were distributed around to large industrial plants, clubs, stores, newspapers and other organizations.

A LARGE banner posted over the entrance to the local baseball park was one of the exploitation aces played by Manager W. H. Hemphill, of the Rialto theatre, in Macon, Ga., for his campaign on "If I Were Single." The sign gave the title of the picture, names of stars and the theatre and play dates. Hemphill also employed radio to announce this showing. Announcements over the local broadcasting station were made several days in advance.

MARSLINE K. MOORE, manager of the New Theatre, Fort Smith, Ark., featured "Ladies of the Mob" as the picture that presented Clara Bow in a new type of role in all of his advertising. He introduced his campaign well in advance with teaser ads, identifying the theatre at which "Ladies of the Mob" would play only on his opening day. The featured line in this newspaper advertising, as well as subsequent lobby displays and street billing, was "Clara Bow—The IT Girl in a New Role of Ladies of the Mob."

THE Hal Roach M-G-M "Our Gang" contest is being conducted with excellent results in a number of the Stanley theatres in Philadelphia. The Evening Public Ledger is cooperating with the theatre in exploiting the stunt to assemble a local cast to appear in an "Our Gang" comedy featuring Philadelphia youngsters in a film made in the home town and to be shown on the screens of the local theatres.

Game of Newspaper Terms Gets Page One Publicity for Theatre

MANAGER CHAS. H. AMOS of the Riviera Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn., and the Knoxville News-Sentinel, jointly sponsored a contest tying in with "Telling the World."

The newspaper article listed 19 questions pertaining to the newspaper game, some of which were: "What is the Iron Mike?" "What is a Lobster Shift?" "What is an assignment?" "What is a scoop?" and others.

For the 25 answers nearest correct and best worded, the winners received a pair of tickets each, to see the Haines' picture.

A tie-up with the Postal Telegraph Co., resulted in that company having its messenger boys deliver telegrams which were worded, "Wish to impress you with importance of not failing to see picture showing at Riviera Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week 'Telling the World,' and starring myself. Think it my greatest effort and real entertainment.—William Haines."

Entrants of All Ages Qualify in This Harmonica Contest

DUE to a novel arrangement in which four divisions or classes were introdueed in a harmonica eontest, the Star theatre in Deshler, Ohio, recently staged one of the most successful and widely appealing exploitation stunts accomplished in eonneetion with the Educational-Hohner Harmonica tie-up featuring Juvenile Comedies.

The opportunity for people of all ages to eompete in the events held at the Star proved a stimulus to the entire movie-going population of the town, those who did not participate being directly interested through their acquaintanee with those who did, a large number due to the fact that there were no "outsiders," so far as the eompetition was eoncerned.

The theatre launched the stunt as a "free for all" by eonducting four separate classes of contest.

The first contest was offered on "Juvenile Night." In this event any boy or girl under sixteen years of age was eligible to play a few tunes in demonstration of their musical ability with a harmonica.

The second contest was advertised as "Young People's Night," when any person over sixteen years of age could compete. In the third eontest the feature was "Old Timer's Night," when the older people were ehallenged to "show up the young folks." The "Free for All" contest went on last.

Winners of first and second plaees in the preliminary contests in all four elasses met in a grand final event in which were three eash prizes, in addition to a number of attractive harmonicas supplied by the Hohner Harmonica Manufacturing Company.

The Star ballyhooed the event with handbills, distributed throughout Deshler and with lobby display material.

Kenimer Makes Good Use of U.P. Stunt for "Telling the World"

MANAGER GUY A. KENIMER turned to the Jacksonville Journal, a United Press newspaper, to put over several valuable stunts that were instrumental in boosting "Telling the World" at the Florida theatre, Jacksonville, Fla.

Several days in advanee, a full-page truek broke in the paper with every merehant participating in the co-operative page—offering free tickets to their customers upon the purchase of a certain amount of their commodities. These tickets were good only when accompanied by a paid admission.

The full page ad also offered prizes in the form of tickets to children under 14 years of age for completing the synopsis of the picture. In every merchant's ad on the co-operative page appeared part of the synopsis of the picture and the contestants were asked to clip the part of the synopsis from each ad, paste together and supply the ending of the story. For the best endings submitted, five persons received prizes ranging from 5 passes each to 2 passes each.

Fifteen days previous to the showing of the picture, the Journal ran a serial story on the picture—"Telling the World." The story usually covered about three columns by a half page daily. And the heading of the story always would appear in picture form at the Florida theatre.

Another stunt that got more than the usual amount of attention was the printing in red ink across the front page a caption reading, "William Haines Captured in China in Telling the World—Florida Theatre."

Salt Lake House Giving Movie Party for Boys

The Paramount Empress Theatre, under the management of Carl A. Porter, is offering a free movie party on August 8 to every boy in Salt Lake City who is under the age of sixteen years, in conjunetion with a local newspaper, as a tieup. The pietnre to be presented is "Slide, Kelly, Slide" as well as other forms of entertainment.

Balloons Containing Passes Stir Throng's Interest

One hundred shoppers and others who thronged the downtown district of Indianapolis recently had an opportunity to see, without cost to them, Dick Powell's stage show, "Keep Cool," and also the picture "Hot News," at the Circle theatre. Powell released 500 balloons from an airplane over the downtown seetion. Of this number 100 contained passes to the theatre for the show during the entire following week.

The plane was distinguished by its blue coloring.

"Take a Chance Week" Tried Out in Ottawa

The first time that a "Take a Chanee Week" had been conducted at a vaudeville theatre in Ottawa, Ontario, was during the week of August 11 when Manager J. M. Franklin put across this form of stunt for B. F. Keith's Theatre, with exeellent results.

Philly "Our Gang" Contest Proves Business Aid

Filming of the Philadelphia "Our Gang" comedy, the six members of which were chosen during the week ended August 11th from among 3,000 contestants under the auspiees of the "Evening Public Ledger," the Hal Roach Studios in Hollywood and the Stanley Company, was started on August 13th. Motion picture paraphernalia, two eameramen and a director, Harry Smyth, arrived from Hollywood to supervise the making of the film and the first scene was "shot" at Roosevelt Boulevard Swimming Pool. Various other Philadelphia seenes lent realistie local background to a eomedy that will be shown later at various Stanley motion pieture theatres in Philadelphia and suburbs.

The Philadelphia Motor Corporation supplied a fleet of Chandler automobiles for the use of the Gang. The eontest proved a good business getter for the neighborhood houses which took part and particularly for the Stanley Company's Earle Theatre where the eliminations were held.

Slicker Slogans Feature "Harold Teen" Stunts

THE Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, tied up with the News of that city in a Harold Teen Slicker Slogan Contest.

Fifty-five dollars in prizes, with additional prizes of tickets to see "Harold Teen" at the Circle, were announced the week before the showing for the best slogans to be painted upon a college youth's slicker coat. The first prize was $25, the second $15, with third, fourth and fifth $5 each. The next fifteen adjudged best received a pair of tickets each to "Harold Teen."

The News published the conditions of the contest under a two-column head daily for six days, running a portrait of Alice White wearing Harold Teen's be-sloganed slicker, stills of Alice White and Arthur Lake and other members of the cast.

Reproductions of newspaper displays for "Warming Up" and showing a wide range of selling layout ideas employed by first run theatres to exploit the synchronized version of the Richard Dix starring vehicle. Ads illustrated were featured by the following theatres: Shea's Buffalo, Buffalo, N. Y.; Olympia, New Haven, Conn.; Des Moines, Des Moines, Ia.; Minnesota, Minneapolis, and Loew's Warfield, San Francisco.

MANAGERS ROUND TABLE CLUB
THE CLEARING HOUSE FOR BOX OFFICE PROBLEMS and THEATRE OPERATION
By Charles E. Lewis

The Cruise of the "News"

WE cruised around the state of Indiana for quite a spell dropping anchor wherever we thought we could find things of interest and our progress was kind of slow for a few days. . . . Kokomo . . . Peru . . . Huntington . . . and then on into Fort Wayne which was in the grip of a heat wave and had them lying around gasping for breath and naturally the theatre business was hit hard. . . . Hearing lots about the Vita-Temple up Toledo way . . . prompted me to break into the itinerary to shoot up in that direction . . . and seeing is believing . . . so I must admit that I looked upon the first 100 per cent successful talkie theatre on the entire trip. . . . Jaek O'Connell is a pioneer and I had a peach of an interview with him whieh will be published in the near future . . . and everyone with a plant or eontemplating one, would do well to wateh for it . . . read it . . . and digest it carefully . . . for the present it solves the riddle . . . maybe the future will even alter that . . . but all I ean say is that I was impressed . . . and so would you. . . . Marion, Ohio rumblings were heard here and there . . . so naturally I sailed in that direction and was rewarded with a eorking conversation with Judge Foster. . . . Out aeross the wheat seas of Ohio into Mansfield and found "Tim" Roberts . . . and the first thing "Tim" said was "I don't want to buy a darned thing. . . . I have plenty of disinfeetant . . . if you are a film salesman I am NOT buying pictures yet . . . and whatever you sell I don't want." . . . and was all ready to kiek me out . . . when I finally got a word in and told him I was just an exhibitor . . . like himself . . . and then he gave me a warm greeting. . . . I met his son who runs the Ritz in that town . . . and a chip of the old block . . . "Tim" is running talkies and has for some time . . . business not bad for this time of the year. . . . Left him to run over to Ashland . . . then back to Mansfield where I pieked up "Tim" and headed north for Cedar Point and the eonvention of the Vaudeville Managers Assoeiation . . . and what a time I had . . . gosh, it was the first good break I had on my trip . . . and just think . . . Canada . . . damp???? . . . well no use getting you all worked up over it . . . too tired after getting back to Ameriean soil to go any further . . . so dropping anchor for the night and until next week. . .

Good Will and Mailing Lists

Killing two birds with one stone, and making a good job out of it is the accomplishment of Edward J. Hiehle of Newark, Ohio, who, when he took over the theatres in town decided that things needed pepping up considerably and proceeded to do it as follows: He engaged four girls, each possessed of a real personality and sent them on a house-to-house canvass of the best section of his city. They interviewed the families visited repaying them for the time they gave for the interview with a pass to the theatre. They asked questions as to the theatres they liked best to attend, what kind of music they preferred, kind of pictures they liked to see and other important things that would tend to guide Mr. Hiehle in his direction of the theatre. In this way they stirred up considerable interest and aside from the improvement in business they accumulated a mailing list of over 4,000 and Brother Hiehle agrees with the CLUB policy that a good mailing list is a real asset in any theatre. Today business at his theatres in Newark is fine and going along without struggling. In fact they have so pepped up the town that they are completing a beautiful new theatre of 1800 seats which will be one of the show-places of Ohio.

Although Mr. Hiehle is a recent member of the CLUB I am certain that he will be a regular contributor to the CLUB pages as he is completely sold on this great "get-together" idea in showmanship.

Ohio Exhibitor Okays Round Table

"I AM A MEMBER OF THE ROUND TABLE CLUB" —is all that Mr. Roberts in Mansfield, Ohio, would want to know when picking a manager for one of his theatres. Because, says Roberts, he then knows he is getting a manager who realizes the value of interchanging ideas both in theatre management and box office problems. And there are many other exhibitors like Mr. Roberts. Recognition of the CLUB as an important organization is country-wide and the pages of the CLUB are religiously read every week. Why? Because this is a department conducted by Exhibitors for Exhibitors. Use it.

Charles E. Lewis,
Chairman.

P. S.—If your application has not been sent in, DO SO AT ONCE. If possible enclose your own photo with the application and send it in care of the NEWS, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. C.

Fred E. Johnson's "Peony Matinee"

Fred E. Johnson, veteran theatre manager of Cambridge, Ohio personally described to me a mighty fine idea in local showmanship, whieh we know will meet with plenty of interest from our members and readers. He engineered a "Peony Matinee" one slow afternoon in which all children were admitted free providing they brought a bouquet of peonies. You can just about pieture the result of this speeial stunt matinee and it took several autos to deliver the flowers to the various hospitals where they were received with plenty of appreeiation. The papers and in faet everyone in the town talked about this stunt and there is absolutely no question that it created plenty of good will for Mr. Johnson's theatre. Younger "bloods" in the managing field would do well to pay partieular attention to anything put aeross by so experieneed a man as Ed. Johnson and we look forward with considerable interest to hearing often and early from him again. We had a splendid opportunity of observing him at the Manager's Convention at Cedar Point, Ohio, and we will tell the world that he knows his, and the business.

Clean-UP Week and the Theatre

Combining a civic campaign with a theatre is always productive of free publicity and good showmanship and Manager C. F. Lawrence of Schine's Ohio Theatre in Lima, Ohio, displayed such ability recently when he tied up with the city authorities during their "Clean-Up" week by advertising a Tin Can Matinee. Every child who present themselves at the theatre with six tin cans tied together and dragged along the street would be admitted free. What a stunt. From observers on the spot I am told that over two thousand of them descended upon

Preparing for "Godless Girl" Coast Premiere

Vice-President John C. Flinn Arranging for Opening of De Mille Special at Biltmore Theatre on August 20

PATHE is preparing for the West Coast premiere of Cecil B. De Mille's special production, "The Godless Girl," at the Biltmore Theatre in Los Angeles on the evening of August 20. With the arrival of Vice-President John C. Flinn activities for the opening were speeded up.

This first night is promised as something different from the usual run of movie premieres as there will be no sun arcs nor star advertising. Of course, the folk of prominence in all fields of production will be represented at the premiere.

Cecil B. De Mille will be present at the advent of his new film in company with Jeanie Mac Pherson, who scenarized the story, and the members of the cast, including Lina Basquette, Eddie Quillan, George Duryea and Noah Beery. A 25-piece orchestra under the direction of Frederick Stahlburg will render the musical accompaniment to the film. Mr. Stahlburg directed the Salzburg festival of "The King of Kings" in Austria last year.

Schrock Cancels Passage

Raymond L. Schrock, former general manager of Universal, and more recently associate producer with the Tiffany-Stahl organization, has abandoned his European trip.

Carewe Grooming Prospect

Edwin Meyers, who is also known as Ezrir Mir, is a native of Calcutta and was formerly associated with the Madan Company there, but his very colorful career, since coming to America, has culminated in his having been another of Edwin Carewe's famous discoveries. The director-producer has placed this young scholar from India under contract to handle stories and treatments for Dolores Del Rio's future screen material.

Loses Secretary

Mary Duncan, Fox star, who is playing the feminine lead in Frank Borzage's production, "The River," is without her French secretary and companion for the first time in four years. Helene Girard, who filled that dual position, has gone to her native France to be married.

Belle Bennett Busy

Belle Bennett is starring in the first of a series of four productions, an original story written for her entitled "The Power of Silence." Meantime, she is also devoting much time after hours to added scenes in "The Battle of the Sexes."

Paul Bern Appointed Pathe Producer

PAUL BERN, for the last two years identified with M-G-M, was last week appointed a Pathe producer. He assumed his new duties on Wednesday, August 15.

He was first scenario editor in chief at M-G-M and more recently was supervisor of story production. Prior to his association with Metro, he was a producer for Paramount. Among recent productions whose stories he wrote were "The Dove" and "The Beloved Rogue."

Leonard Assigned "Mrs. Cheney"

To Robert Z. Leonard falls the directorial plum of the fall producing season, according to the announcement by M-G-M that he has been selected to direct Norma Shearer's new starring picture, "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," the story of English high life.

Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., is scheduled to supervise the making of several important productions for Universal, according to announcement from the studio. Young Laemmle's success with "The Collegians," and "Lonesome," brought this reward.

McGowan Directing "Gang"

Robert F. McGowan, veteran director of Hal Roach's rascals, "Our Gang," has put his youngsters at work on another M-G-M comedy which will feature Mary Ann Jackson, "Wheezer," and "Pete," the "Gang" bow-wow. McGowan is personally directing.

Miss Logan in Quality Film

Before starting on a co-starring role in "The Spieler," for Pathe-DeMille, Jacqueline Logan will have barely time enough to star in "The Lookout Girl" for which she has been signed by Quality Pictures, at the Tec-Art Studios. The new release is being made through Quality Distributing Corporation, formerly Carlos Productions.

Meighan Vacationing

Upon completing "The Mating Call," his second starring vehicle for Howard Hughes, Thomas Meighan left for the east and will spend some time at his Long Island home.

Mother Role

Louise Dresser has begun her role in "The Air Circus," Fox production based on commercial aviation and the avidity with which young America takes to the air and conquers it. Miss Dresser has the role of the mother of David Rollins, a youngster who tries to learn flying only to develop into an air coward.

Newmeyer a Free-Lancer

Following the completion of the direction of Glenn Tryon in "It Can Be Done," Fred Newmeyer will become a member of the free-lance field. Newmeyer recently directed Richard Dix in "Warming Up."

A Crinoline Belle

Sharon Lynn, red-headed screen actress who played the lead in Fox's "None But the Brave," is performing for the FBO cameras. Sharon has reverted from a 1928 Hollywood girl to a crinoline lady—playing opposite Tom Mix in "The Son of the Golden West." Her next appearance will be in support of Jean Hersholt in "Give and Take."

"Rodeo" New Gibson Western

Three private cars carried Hoot Gibson and his entourage to Chicago where his next picture "Rodeo," based on the annual Chicago roundup shortly to be held in the mid-western city will be filmed. Hoot and his company were officially welcomed by Mayor "Bill" Thompson and other civic dignitaries. Henry MacRae will direct "Rodeo."

Exodus

Dolores Del Rio, Inspiration star, left Hollywood recently for New York where she is to sail for a tour of Europe. She will be accompanied by Edwin Carewe, her director, and Harry D. Wilson, press representative. A farewell party to the press was given by Miss Del Rio at her home.

Vidors Return Home

King Vidor accompanied by his wife Eleanor Boardman, returned home recently after several months' sojourn in Europe.

Credit

Linton Wells, former newspaper man and globe trotter, wrote the story, "Moran of the Marines."

Key City Reports

New York City

MIDSUMMER weather and vacation time meant nothing to Broadway theatres last week, as practically all houses did exceptional business for what is generally classed as an off season. Most of the big money makers were pictures which already had their premieres on the Street, testifying even more to their drawing power.

The Roxy finished its run of "Street Angel" (Fox) in a veritable blaze of glory, its four weeks' run relieving the citizens of New York City and other towns of almost a half million in real American dollars. That is going some, and is another record for the big house. "Four Sons," another Fox special, is in now and is threatening to make still another record. Let's Go!

Good business with "The Mysterious Lady" (M-G-M) prompted the Capitol management to hold this picture for another week, and down the Street at the Paramount "Forgotten Faces" (Par) brought the figures for the big Publix houses up to its regular profitable basis

At the Strand, "Glorious Betsy" (W. B.), after a two months' stay at Warner's theatre, was also held a second week after a very satisfactory Strand business. Vitaphone is still giving this theatre better business han it has had in a long time. Stand-up trade was reported for the first week.

FBO's "Perfect Crime" at the Rivoli is further evidence that a good picture plus sound effects can get by in good shape these hot days. Thispicture played its second week to excellent business and is being held a third.

So far, so good. The only bad news among the popular priced houses appears to come from the Rialto, where "Loves of an Actress," after a week's stay at the Paramount to average business, took something like a wallop in comparison to what the other houses were doing. The little Cameo, with a double bill of "A Woman of Paris" and "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," gave this revival house just mediocre trade.

Among the specials the Astor, with "White Shadows of the South Seas" (M-G-M), and the Central with First National's "Lilac Time," led the parade, with both making a fine showing. Incidentally, both of these, besides excellent attractions, include sound effects—again testifying to the popularity of the new process film. Good showmanship has been effectively used in connection with both "Lilac Time" and "White Shadows."

"Wings" (Par), the daddy of all the specials along Broadway, is celebrating its year's stay and is cashing in on the attending publicity. This popular aviation picture is likely to stick around here for some time to come. At the Embassy, "Tempest" (U. A.) finished a satisfactory three months' stay, and it is followed by "The Scarlet Lady" (Columbia), opening on Tuesday of the current week with Lya De Putti making a personal appearance. More about this one next week.

Warner's Theatre has let go of "The Lion and the Mouse" (W. B.) to make room for another talkie, "The Terror" (W. B.). The former has not made the same showing others have made at this talkie theatre, but did reasonably well during its stay. Neither the Gaiety with "Lost in the Arctic" (Fox), or the Globe with "Red Dance" (Fox) showed any strength for the week.

Seattle

LAST week was a mediocre one in Seattle theatres, due to the secondary attractions and warm weather competition.

The Fifth Avenue theatre probably checked up the largest gross for the week with Bessie Love in person on the stage in Fanchon-Marco's "Merry Ann" Idea. It was a feature that seemed to have plenty of box office appeal, particularly strong at the matinees. "Bringing Up Father" was a very weak screen feature that was not very popular with audiences. Business slightly below normal.

At the Seattle theatre, "Forbidden Hours" was the screen attraction, and drew the usual number of fans who like this type of film. Publix' "Sunshades" was the stage attraction, featuring Joe Jackson. It was the last Publix revue to play here, being superceded next week by the Fanchon-Marco acts. Sam Wineland, visiting master of ceremonies, was very well received upon his return to his former home town. Business fair only.

"Lights of New York" at the Blue Mouse theatre continued to play to very strong business in its second week, and remains on that screen for another seven days at least. It is not especially well liked, but has much interest as "the first all talkie" and is consequently doing a big business, backed up by a strong "sound" program of shorts.

"Life Savers" at Universal's Columbia theatre was a very mediocre attraction. Just a fair week.

"Man Crazy" at the United Artists theatre was another program release that did the usual business at 25c; nothing out of the ordinary.

"The Spotlight" at the Orpheum was considered the best film on that screen in many weeks, as program films go, but it was secondary to Jeanne Eagels, who pulled very big business in the headline spot.

"Road House" at Pantages was not particularly good, but also showed nice business, due to a better-than-average program of vaudeville.

"The Scarlet Dove" at the Embassy; "When Dangers Call" at the Palace Hip, and "Rich Men's Song" at the Winter Garden, were all average program films.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI exhibitors are again wearing a human smile which was so long absent from their countenances when business was so far below par. The attendance records are improving daily, and it looks now like the summer slump is practically over.

"Forgotten Faces," at the Albee, together with the six-act vaudeville program, did a splendid business, the audience placing their stamp of approval on the bill in its entirety.

Keith's, with "A Ship Comes In," attracted a good crowd for the week. The picture was good, and the press did not hesitate to recommend it, which action, however, has not always been characteristic of the local scribes in reviewing summer pictures.

The Capitol with "Glorious Betsy," with Vitaphone, was the mecca of thousands of fans, the business at this house being about the largest of the present summer season.

The Lyric, presenting "The Cossacks," came in for a share of increased patronage, which left little to be desired.

"None But the Brave," at the Strand was well liked and well patronized, the gross going up very materially as the week progressed.

Cleveland

EITHER folks are getting used to the excessive heat, or the pictures are better than they used to be, or the theatres offer the only cool spots in the city, but whatever the reason, the theatres have done excellently well—the first-run houses, we mean—during a week that has become almost historic for its continued and uninterrupted high temperature. The cooling devices in the downtown first-run theatres are responsible for the continued good business during the summer.

"Glorious Betsy" played to big houses all week and is being held over. Dolores Costello's beauty, Conrad Nagel's charm, and the romantic tale set forth are all blended to make a most engaging film. It was well liked by almost everyone.

"Warming Up," Paramount's first sound picture, caused a big stir at the Allen last week. Interest in the novelty brought crowds to the theatre. While well liked as screen entertainment, there was considerable criticisms of the sound effects.

"Forgotten Faces" did very well at the State. The father love theme was one of universal interest, and the scenes of high life added spice.

"Hot News" proved a 100 per cent warm weather entertainment at Keith's Palace, where the ropes were called into action to keep the crowds in line until available seats were forthcoming. The verdict for this picture was "bright and frequently thrilling comedy."

"Way of the Strong," unusually fine underworld picture, drew large attendance at Keith's East 105th Street the first half of the week. Strong melodrama, plenty of action, is well balanced by the contrasting human note of the blind street violinist who is befriended by the underworld czar.

"Don't Marry," the Keith's East 105th Street attraction the last half of the week, was well attended. It entertains.

The Park theatre reports very satisfactory business for the week. The Park averaged a good week wih "The Cossacks" the first four days and "Beau Broadway" the last three days.

St. Louis

THE Ambassador theatre, Seventh and Locust streets, with the Movietone feature "Warming Up" on its screen, got away to a flying start on its new Sound Picture policy.

On Saturday, August 4, this house is said to have played to the largest first day's business in its history.

Lew Cody in "Beau Broadway" held forth at Loew's State and aided by the last stage presentation this theatre will have in some time to come had a satisfactory week. Loew's goes to sound pictures the week of August 11 and will eliminate its stage entertainment entirely.

The Missouri theatre with "Forgotten Faces," an old-fashioned silent movie, and Frank Fay's stage offerings obtained its share of the cash customers floating around the Grand and Olive amusement district.

The Grand Central repeats with "Lights of New York," the first complete talking picture to reach St. Louis, and continued to gross good returns. It was the fourth week of its run, attesting to its success.

The St. Louis theatre, Grand and Delmar boulevards, had on its screen "Tenth Avenue," a New York underworld picture. It had a good week.

Albany

ALTHOUGH the weather was of the mid-summer sort in Albany and Troy during the past week, business at the motion picture theatres in these two cities continued fairly satisfactory.

At the Mark Strand in Albany, "The Mysterious Lady," featuring Greta Garbo, did good business. The feature was coupled with two Vitaphone presentations.

At the Mark Ritz, "San Francisco Nights," well advertised, played to good crowds throughout all six days.

At the Leland, there was a split week, the first in some time, enabling C. H. Buckley, the owner of the house, to clear his decks of remaining pictures, in order that by the latter part of the month he will be in shape to begin showing the new product.

For the first half of the week, "The Missing Link" played to just ordinary business during the evenings, while the matiness fell off. The remainder of the week found "Lingerie" holding the boards as the feature attraction. This picture did fairly well.

At the Clinton Square in Albany, "The First Auto" and "The Tigress" played to paying business.

Probably the best bet of the entire week in Albany fell to Proctor's Grand, where Charles Ray appeared in person to crowds that packed the theatre afternoon and evening. Mr. Ray was greeted with more applause than any of the several screen stars that have recently appeared here in person.

Business at the neighborhood houses was rather spotty, some reporting satisfactory, while others were inclined to complain.

In the neighboring city of Troy, Clara Bow in "Ladies of the Mob" went over well and made money. The titian-haired beauty is a prime favorite not only with the flappers of the collar city, but others as well, and can always be banked on to draw crowds no matter what the weather may be or how strong the counter attractions.

The Lincoln used "Lingerie" for the first half of the week to fair business and "Turn Back the Hours" with "The News Parade" went over nicely.

Apparently residents of Troy have a keen desire to get their money's worth and double features appeal at practically all houses. Proctor's theatre in Troy used Charles Ray in person to great business during the last three days of the week. Not only did Mr. Ray make a personal appearance, but the house showed his picture, "The Count of Ten." During the first of the week the theatre used "Something Always Happens," the picture apparently pleasing.

Boston

BUSINESS was reported as very fair at the down town theatres during the past week with considerable improvement over the previous week. None of the theatres look for any marked increase in business during the next fortnight, but following Labor Day returns ought to again show marked improvement.

Summer tourists have brought considerable transient business to the larger down town houses, while the suburban theatres have enjoyed an average summer to date with fewer theatres closing for the vacation season this year than ever before.

Metropolitan theater reported improved business for the week with "Forgotten Faces" as the feature film.

"The Cossacks" at Loew's State was cordially received and the box office showed improvement over the past two or three weeks.

Loew's Orpheum, with "Topsy and Eva" showed a similar improvement for the week.

The double bill at the twin theatres of the NETCO, the Modern and Beacon, showed "Lingerie" and "If I Were Single" and the box office reported a very favorable showing for the week.

Other films shown last week were "The Actress" and "The Play Girl" for a double feature at the Bowdoin Square; "The Scarlet Dove" and "Hot Heels" at the Exeter; "Street Angel" at both the Fenway and Washington Street Olympia in keeping with the new plan of Publix in showing the same film simultaneously in these two down town theatres; "The Magnificent Flirt" at the Keith-Albee Boston; "Happiness Ahead" and "Riding for Fame" at the Lancaster and "Tenderloin" at the Scollay Square Olympia where, despite the former showings in Boston, it enjoyed a good week.

Suburban films reporting good business for the week include "Easy Come, Easy Go" and "The Vanishing Pioneer" at the University; "Hot News" and "The Wagon Show" at the Central Square; "Lonesome Ladies" and "The Cowboy Kid" at the Harvard Square; "Partners in Crime" at the Codman Square; "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" and "His Tiger Lady" at the Capitol and "The Actress" at the Embassy.

Salt Lake City

VERY satisfactory business has been enjoyed for the mid-summer season at the downtown first run theatres here this past week.

The weather has varied from pleasantly cool to very warm again, but some very selective picture programs have done their share toward good business.

The Capitol theatre presented as the feature picture "See You in Jail" in addition to a stage offering titled "Television Idea," both proving to be first class drawing cards, having played to fairly good sized houses.

The Pantages theatre enjoyed a very good week, the picture offering having been Ramon Novarro and Renee Adoree in "Forbidden Hours." A vaudeville bill is also offered here.

The comedy picture, "The Head Man," with Charlie Murray, Larry Kent and Lorena Kent, at the Paramount Empress theatre, drew fairly good sized houses.

Buster Keaton's latest release, "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," at the American had exceptionally heavy exploitation and drew above the average crowds at the American.

Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel in "Glorious Betsy" at the Victory is breaking all previous records. This is in conjunction with Vitaphone.

Rudolph Schildkraut in "A Ship Comes In" did very well at the Gem.

Dolores Del Rio in the second showing of "Ramona" filled the houses throughout the week at the Rialto.

Kansas City

WITH the Newman closing the latter half of the week the first run patronage was distributed among one less house last week, the Newman closing for about two weeks for remodeling and wiring for Movietone and Vitaphone.

"Home James," starring Laura La Plante, played to a good week's attendance at the Uptown.

Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady" also did well at Loew's Midland, playing to a bit better than fair attendance throughout the week.

At the Mainstreet "Hit of the Show" also drew well, although not above the average of the last few weeks.

"None But the Brave" played to a fair week's business at the Pantages.

"Just Married" at the Newman did a good business until that house closed temporarily. The Tunney-Heeney fight pictures, at 50 cents top, drew fairly well, although the attendance did not come up to expectations.

"Lights of New York," a Vitaphone picture, held up well all week at the Globe.

Baltimore

ANOTHER stifling week of heat and humidity confronted Baltimore beginning Monday, August 6, winding up on Saturday with a heavy rain, causing havoc all through Southern Maryland, which made the thermometer drop about fifteen to twenty degrees on Saturday.

In spite of the hot weather, however, several theatres did excellent business during the week.

Among them were Loew's Century, with "The Mysterious Lady," on the same bill with Harem-Scarem, a stage presentation act. Business was excellent at the refrigerated house throughout the week.

"The Perfect Crime" proved a very good attraction at the Rivoli with sound, dialogue and musical accompaniment and other talking films on the same bill. A high average of business was consistent during the week.

At the New theatre, "Street Angel" proved an excellent patron pulling attraction for the week following its opening on the previous Saturday. This had sound and musical accompaniment and business built up as the week went on.

"Forgotten Faces" was conceded to be one of the best underworld pictures that has been shown here. It did a good business at the Stanley. On the same bill was "In Jail," a stage presentation act.

Only a fair business was done at the Keith-Albee New Garden with "A Man's Past," featuring Conrad Veidt and Barbara Bedford, which was an excellent feature production. Six acts of Keith-Albee high class vaudeville were on the same bill.

Loew's Valencia had "Circus Rookies" feature attraction but while this was fairly funny it did not match up with the two reel Hal Roach comedy, featuring Max Davidson. Business was poor despite the lowering of prices to 25 cents for matinees and 35 at night. The musical accompaniment furnished by the non-synchronized device was poor, sounding like a ten dollar phonograph.

The Keith-Albee Hippodrome had "Sally of the Scandals," starring Bessie Love and there were five acts of Keith-Albee family time vaudeville on the same bill. Business was less than fair throughout the week, although the picture and acts were entertaining.

The Little theatre had a very hard week with "The Last Moment," but this was attributable to the hot weather rather than to the film, which was thought to be very good by those who saw it.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE has finished its third week of hot weather and poor theatre business, with a promise of cooler weather and better business for the next week. Things were pretty quiet in the local theatres when the thermometer hovered around 90, Milwaukee's idea of blistering heat.

"Lights of New York" ended an extended run at the Garden, drawing fairly good houses in its last week.

The Palace-Orpheum enjoyed good business with a strong bill, headed by "The Cops" as photoplay feature.

"Forgotten Faces" at the Wisconsin favored very slim houses.

"The Raider Emden" at the Merrill and "The Magnificent Flirt" at the Strand were accorded very poor business.

The Riverside drew fairly large houses. Here "U. S. Smith" was featured. The Alhambra is dark while it undergoes installation of Vitaphone and Movietone. It will be opened about the first of September.

Neighborhood theatres too were not over popular throughout the hot spell. The Uptown, Garfield, and Modjeska, although emphasizing "cool matinees daily" did not do very well with "Shepherd of the Hills."

The Oriental and Tower featured "The Street of Sin" with about the same results.

Harrisburg, Pa.

STRONG picture offerings attracted fair sized midsummer crowds to the Harrisburg theatres, despite excessive heat for the first five days of the week. A sudden change to delightfully cool weather stimulated business to a material extent on Saturday evening.

"Warming Up," starring Richard Dix, at the Victoria, had a strong appeal for baseball enthusiasts, and the newspaper reviewers also found in it a lot that was meritorious aside from its attraction for fans of the diamond. As an added attraction "Cruising Through the Arctic," a picture of the George Palmer Putnam Arctic exposition, brought a cool breath from the ice-bound regions that was acceptable to perspiring patrons.

Greta Garbo, in "The Mysterious Lady," supported by Conrad Nagel and a number of former members of the Russian nobility, made a very favorable impression on the patrons of Loew's Regent and held public interest throughout the week.

At the Colonial, where Rin-Tin-Tin, the canine star, was the main attraction in "A Race for Life," the attendance was large considering the hot season, and critics declared the dog actor lived fully up to his reputation for providing thrilling entertainment.

The film attraction at the State the first half of the week was Hobart Bosworth in "After the Storm," and the last three days the screen play was "None But the Brave," both of which received favorable comment.

"The Lone Eagle" at the Grand did good business, and William Haines in "Telling the World," which several weeks before had made a big hit in Loew's Regent, continued to arouse interest when the picture was shown for a second run at the Russell. The author of the book on which this play is based—Dale Van Avery—is a former Harrisburg newspaperman, and this fact increased the local interest.

Dallas

A WEEK of unusually hot weather had the expected effect on the Dallas theatre business and business was off at all first run houses, but there were no losses incurred for the past seven days. In fact, business was all that could be expected under the circumstances and attendance was beyond expectations.

At the Melba "A Certain young Man" with Ramon Novarro proved to be an unusually good card and business was gratifying. Four Vitaphone shorts were included on the program and comment was very favorable. When the theatre going public of Dallas think of the "talkies" they think of the Melba first, as this theatre was the first down-town theatre to install Vitaphone, and from indications, this has meant a great deal to the Melba.

"Horsemen of the Plains" with Tom Mix checked off a good week for the Majestic, and business was much better than was expected. Mix still has a drawing power in Dallas, but is not considered an attraction of first rank at down town theatres. However, the Majestic has always made money on Mix's pictures, although attendance invariably drops below that of ordinary features when it is a Mix picture. A good Interstate vaudeville bill completed the program and pleased the patrons.

"The Mysterious Lady" with Greta Garbo and Conrad Nagel brought the Place an unusually good attendance, everything being considered. Through good publicity, the Palace has checked off two exceptionally good weeks in the face of adverse conditions and shows a very pleasing profit. The Publix stage show "Steps and Steppers," headed by Eddie Stanley, easily accounted for one-third of the business.

At the Capitol, "Husbands for Rent," with Owen Moore and Helene Costello and "Brass Knuckles" with Monte Blue and Betty Bronson, secured only a fair attendance and totals for the week were low.

"The Head Man," with Charlie Murray and Loretta Young, and "Three Sinners," starring Pola Negri, failed to account for more than the average week at the Old Mill and receipts were not big but maintained the fairly good average which has been established by this theatre for the past several weeks.

At the Arcadia, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," with Richard Barthelmess; "Wickedness Preferred," with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle, and "The Dragnet," featuring George Bancroft, Evelyn Brent and William Powell, counted for a full house each evening and totals were exceptionally good.

Los Angeles

PARAMOUNT'S first sound picture, "Warming Up," opened at the Metropolitan to capacity and is drawing better than any attraction in that theatre for some time. It is a baseball story, starring Richard Dix, and it appears that the combined popularity of the star and interest in the "talkies" has set a new speed for this down-town house.

At Loew's State business a shade above average is reported. The attraction, "The Red Dance," in which Charles Farrell and Dolores Del Rio hold forth in a Fox made offering.

Twice daily at the Carthay Circle, "Lilac Time" continues to show to capacity and as yet there is no perceptible falling off of business. This attraction, starring Colleen Moore in a First National offering is enjoying spendid business for four weeks.

"Lights of New York" continues at Warner Brothers theatre in Hollywood and is still going strong with the picture showing four times daily.

"The Man Who Laughs" succeeds "Tempest" at United Artists theatre and will have to do well to surpass the splendid business enjoyed by the Barrymore picture, which made a record.

"White Shadows of the South Seas" goes into its second week at Grauman's Chinese. Favorable reports on the picture seems to have promoted good business in general, although visiting population is no small consideration where the Chinese is concerned.

Altogether, amusement enterprises embracing motion pictures in this territory, are not curtailed for want of patronage. Give them a show and they pay.

Indianapolis

EXTREME hot weather continued to effect box office receipts in Indianapolis movies last week. None of the downtown houses did satisfactory business.

The Indiana theatre's attendance was bolstered by the talking picture policy which was adopted for the first time last week. "Four Sons," with an all-star cast, was the first sound picture at the Indiana. A synchronized newsreel and Stuart Barrie at the pipe organ were other attractions. The stage band policy was dropped temporarily during the absence of Charlie Davis' band on tour in the East.

Stuart Walker stock closed the season at Keith's last week, throwing some additional business to movies until the fall opening of the Keith house.

"Beau Broadway," with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle, the film at the Palace, did fair business. Harry Fox, master of ceremonies, ends a six weeks engagement at the Loew house with "Hello Talkies" the coming week. Loew's will start talkies with "Detectives."

"Lights of New York" was held over for another week because of its popularity at the Apollo.

"The Foreign Legion" at the Circle did below average business.

Philadelphia

ANOTHER week of extreme heat with high humidity kept business at the moving picture theatres at a low ebb. There were no outstanding attractions and grosses were rather low at all the first run houses.

The Stanley with Richard Barthelmess in a dual role in the "Wheel of Chance" and an excellent stage presentation, "A Garden Party," featuring the Marie MacQuarrie Harp Ensemble, with Jack Kaufman acting as master of ceremonies, had a fair week. The first all talking pictures to be shown in Philadelphia, "Lights of New York," will appear at the Stanley the week of August 20th.

Business at the Karlton, with Ramon Novarro and Renee Adoree in "Forbidden Hours," was better than the preceding week.

This was rather an off week at the Fox with "None But the Brave" on the screen. The only noteworthy point about this film was a good color sequence presenting a beauty contest. The stage presentation was fair and business was the same.

D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love" at the Stanton did not draw as good crowds as "Cossacks," which preceded it at this house.

The Arcadia with "Lady Be Good" had a better week than the preceding one, though business was nothing to boast of.

The Forum had a fairly good week. The first half of the week "Sailors' Wives" on the screen and the Clowning Entertainers in a lively act "Behind the Wall," pleased the audience. The second half "Burning Daylight" with Milton Sills, and a complete stage show drew fairly good evening crowds.

The Carman, with "Hell Ship Bronson," on the screen and an entertaining stage show, "Flashes of Broadway," played to fair business.

The "Our Gang" contest proved a good business getter for the Stanley Company's Earle theatre, where the eliminations in the choice of six members of the local Gang comedy were held.

Portland

UNDER the new policies now in force at some of the leading theatres attendance has more than held its own at the first run houses. This was helped considerably by the 16th Annual Buyers' Week, which brought many from all parts of the Coast, including Alaska.

Mexico's Motorcycle Cossacks on a Good-Will tour of the United States was the headine act at Pantages. On the screen "Roadhouse," starring Lionel Barrymore, brought out capacity houses.

Our old favorite, Will King, was welcomed in Fanchon & Marco's idea "Theatrically Speaking," on the stage, who was ably assisted by Don and Iris Wilkins, the latter at the Wurlitzer. "Forgotten Faces" was the screen attraction and drew fairly well.

"Four Sons," beautifully photographed and admirably acted, swelled the attendance at the Broadway. Praiseworthy accompaniment, via Movietone. George Stoll rendered his usual number of violin solos, while on Monday Herman Kenin and his Multnomah Hotel orchestra held the stage.

"The Law and the Man," with Tom Santschi and Gladys Brockwell, brought in some nice business at the Cozy Capitol theatre.

All attendance records are being broken as "Lights of New York" goes into its third week at the Blue Mouse. In addition, three Vitaphone acts and Clark and McCullough providing Movietone entertainment.

Alice White, who may compare with Clara Bow, was the main attraction on the screen at Tebbett's Oriental in "Lingerie." Glen Shelly offered a number of musical novelties on the Wurlitzer, and another good week was registered at the box office.

At the leading suburban house Hollywood, Raquel Meller rendered a bouquet of songs and on the screen Ford Sterling "Chicken a La King."

Atlanta

"STREET ANGEL," with full Movietone accompaniment, brought the Howard theatre one of its biggest weeks. The Fox opus was easily the biggest box-office attraction in town last week, and despite sweltering heat it registered powerfully. It was, however, a conspicuous fact that of the three newspaper reviewers who essayed signed criticisms of the picture, only one showed an intelligent appreciation of the production. But the public seemed to sense the "Street Angel" was out of the ordinary, for the attendance surpassed the previous week when "Warming Up" wrote up a highly satisfactory business.

Keith's Georgia drew a larger box-office than average with "A Thief in the Dark" as the picture attraction, but major credit must go to the excellent vaudeville bill headed by Lasses White, and including as supporting acts Walter McNally, Irish baritone; and Harry J. Conley, in "Slick as Ever."

Remarkably enough the Capitol rode high with a Fox reissue, "Honor First," featuring John Gilbert and Renee Adoree. John Gilbert's tremendous popularity is responsible in large measure for corking business, though the stage presentation, a tabloid version of "Getting Gertie's Garter," by the Eviston-Napier company, comes in for its share of credit.

At Loew's Grand, Greta Garbo and Conrad Nagel brought below the average house. Incidentally, the largest story on the theatre section this week was the offering of Movietone News by the Grand, this being the first big story to be given any of the theatres upon the opening of Movietone under a newspaper reviewer's name, although three other theatres installed it some time ago. Victory is sweet.

"Parisian Love," among the first of Clara Bow's releases, showed at the Metropolitan to poor houses.

The Rialto enjoyed a fair week with "Lights of New York," which is being held over for a third week's run. Although the business has not been very good, it has been steady and strong enough to stand another week.

Three westerns brought a good box-office to the Tudor, while five second runs and a "Stronger Will" held the New Alamo at its usual high peak.

San Francisco

AS the thermometer in San Francisco has not reached a high peak to date, and, especially, not during the past week, and as pictures generally were what the people wanted, the evenings and especially the two opening nights at the first run theatres, reported good business. Three leading theatres did exceptionally well.

"The Mysterious Lady," shown on the screen at the Loew's Warfield, together with the Fanchon & Marco Idea "Spangles" and Rube Wolf and the Fox "Talking News," crowded that theatre all week. Everything shown was well liked.

"Lady Be Good," shown at the Granada theatre, together with Publix Revue, "Hula Blues," and Frank Jenks' Band drew well, there being not one evening that this theatre was not crowded.

"The Lights of New York," shown at the Embassy theatre, did much better business than contemplated. The first night its box office receipts were bigger than Al Jolson's first night picture here. Business continued remarkable the entire week.

The El Capitan was crowded all week with the picture "The Toilers." Here also was shown vaudeville acts. This is the city's largest theatre.

"The Street Angel," together with Movietone Music, did not draw so well during the past week, although the picture was well liked by all who saw it. This was its third week.

The Pantages did fairly well with "Road House" and vaudeville acts, and the Golden Gate theatre reported excellent business with "Vamping Venus" and a specialty of 35 Mexican soloists and band men.

The Union Square theatre did well with the picture, "Romance of a Million Dollars," together with vaudeville acts.

In the residential districts, the Alexandria theatre reported fair business with the picture "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath," as did the Coliseum theatre where "Hellship Bronson" was shown on the screen, together with vaudeville acts.

"Sorrell and Son" drew well at the Majestic theatre.

Minneapolis

THREE of the hottest days of the summer—one of which set a season's record of 95 degrees—did much to hurt the business of theatres which were not equipped with cooling systems. Minneapolis has a great many swimming beaches within its limits, and it wasn't hard for the movie fans to forget the picture theatres during the hot spell and seek relief in the cooling lake waters.

However, the State theatre did another excellent week's business with "Lights of New York," the first picture in its history which has been held over for a second week. Minneapolis certainly seems to be sold on the talking pictures, if its reaction to this picture is any indication.

Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady" made the turnstiles click briskly at the Minnesota; much of the crowd, however, may be credited to the fact that the 28 finalists in the Tribune-Publix Opportunity contest were appearing at the theatre in connection with the Publix stage unit "Knick Knacks."

The Heeney-Tunney fight films finished up their run in the middle of the week after a profitable showing, and then Fred Thompson in "The Sunset Legion" moved into the theatre and pleased the western fans.

At Pantages, the picture attraction was "A Thief in the Dark," while Bessie Love in "Sally of the Scandals" made a very satisfactory feature for the Hennepin-Orpheum program.

Neighborhood houses suffered quite a bit during the worst of the hot weather, despite the fact that the Loring, Lagoon, Rialto, Lyndale and American were showing such pictures as "The Cossacks," "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," "The Hawk's Nest," "Honeymoon Hate" and "The Dragnet."

Tampa

ANOTHER "off" week. This time the tropical storm can be blamed for a goodly portion of the slump. During the storm period the Victory, which brought in the first 100 per cent talkie, "The Lights of New York," for a 10 days' run, was the only house that got anything that looked like a real crowd. This picture is going over very big and it looks as though it will hang up a record next week.

"A Reno Divorce" was featured for the first half. It failed to draw.

The Tampa had "No Other Woman" as the feature of the first half. Miss Del Rio is getting quite a following here and Sunday was very good. Monday also went over good. Not up to "Ramona," but still good for the time of the year. Then the storm, and blooey, business all shot.

The Strand line-up for the week didn't seem to click. There was "A Thief in the Dark," "Name the Woman" and "The Devil's Trademark." Business on all of them came up to the average of the house.

The Franklin had a pretty good week, outside of the two days of the storm. Chaney, a real favorite here, in "Shadows," did nicely for Sunday and Monday. The second runs used were "The Heart of a Follies Girl" and "The Big Parade."

Ottawa

FAIR pictures attracted more than average summer notice at Ottawa, Ontario, and Hull, Quebec, theatres during the week of August 6. The week started off with Civic Holiday and outdoor attractions were few, so the people went to the theatres. Those who went motoring over the holiday, took in the shows on Tuesday, attendance on Tuesday being the highest of the week, ehibitors reported. It was also a fact that matinee crowds were strong at downtown houses. In this connection, it is interesting that Manager Robertson of the Fern, a neighborhood house, is now running three matinees a week, instead of one, because of popular demand.

Everybody was enthusiastic about the bill at B. F. Keith's theatre, the feature of which was "Buttons," along with five good acts. Matinees were as good as evening performances in the matter of crowds, many juveniles being on hand for Jackie Coogan.

"A Certain Young Man," starring Ramon Novarro, looked like an old picture, though only recently released. People talked more about the special color picture, "Cleopatra," which went with it, this being very interesting. The two together made a show.

"The Imperial had a better week than any for some time past with "Glorious Betsy." This pleased all ages and all types of patrons who were numerous.

The Centre theatre had "Man Crazy," with Dorothy Mackaill, for the first half and it was light summer entertainment for the younger ladies who were out in fair force. "The Desert Bride," with Betty Compson, proved to be more popular, even though the Centre and the Eden theatre, across the river in Hull, played it simultaneously.

One of the most popular features of the Laurier theatre, Hull, in some weeks was "Drums of Love," the current attraction, large crowds appearing to enjoy it.

The Fern theatre enjoyed an extra bit of prosperity with the final chapter of "Hawk of the Hills," along with "The Clown" as the feature.

Business at the Columbia was average for "The Bugle Call" and an instalment of "Masked Menace."

The Rex was fairly busy with neighborhood patronage with "One Round Hogan" and a chapter of "Trail Tiger."

Pittsburgh

LOEW'S PENN had another big week, with Greta Garbo and Conrad Nagel in "The Mysterious Lady" as the screen attraction. This is an enthralling photodrama, with Garbo and Nagel doing the best work of their careers. The stage presentation, the Publix Unit, "West Point Days," was a beautiful offering, breath-takingly costumed.

The Stanley turned in another big week with the third of the "talkies." This time it was "The Lion and the Mouse," and the fans here seem to have gotten a big kick out of Lionel Barrymore's voice. Stage presentation was "In Hawaii," of but average entertainment.

The Grand had a better-than-average week with "United States Smith." This is one of the best independent releases of the current season, and it went over well with the Grand audiences.

The Cameraphone had another double bill—"A Certain Young Man" and "The College Widow." Business was fair.

First half of the week at the Liberty saw "Sailors' Wives" and "Green Grass Widows" holding the screen for the last half. Both but average entertainment, and business not so good.

The Alhambra did a surprising week's business with "Bringing Up Father." The film was heavily advertised, and as a result they got the crowds. It seemed to please fairly well.

Opinions on Pictures

Just Married

A Slight Tid-Bit, Fairly Amusing

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE'S nothing much to this one. There wasn't much to it when it appeared as a stage piece, the interest being held through some amusing antics and clowning by the players. As a picture much of its effervescent charm is lost, but it succeeds in stimulating a moderate amount of chuckles through playing up the inebriated condition of a character or three. Two of the boys who are in their cups are played by James Hall and Harrison Ford. And the action for the most part transpires on an ocean liner.

The idea is based on mistaken identity with the principal prop built around much confusion. This calls for much embarrassment on the part of the feminine travelers. The bridegroom gets into all sorts of jams in trying to locate his pal. He is invariably stumbling into the wrong state-room. And that's the way it keeps going from beginning to end. It gets somewhat monotonous inasmuch as it's framed from a single premise. And slapstick enters to perk up the laughs.

Altogether it is a pleasant number for the summer trade—even with ice-cooled theatres. It doesn't demand much thinking nor much exertion from laughing. In fact it would be safer if you just smiled over its passages—and let it go at that. The actors mentioned above, contribute what sparkle it carries. Ruth Taylor dresses neatly, but hasn't revealed any growth of talent since "Gentlement Prefer Blondes."

Drawing Power: For neighborhood houses and feminine trade. Exploitation Angles: Affords many opportunities for teaser campaign through title. Might ballyhoo with ideas to embarrass honeymooners, through placards, etc. Play up cast—mentioning Miss Taylor in her earlier success.

Lost in the Arctic

Interesting Account of Life and Adventure in Frozen North

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A FIRST travelogue of the frozen North looms up as highly interesting film fare in this number. It isn't another "Nanook." It doesn't pretend to be. But it does release an authentic account of adventure in the cold spaces up yonder. The sponsors, H. A. and Sidney Snow (father and son, you know) were also responsible for that memorable wild animal picture. "Hunting Big Game in Africa." Having done a neat job by that effort one naturally expected them to duplicate it with the new opus. And it is O. K. all the way.

As presented in New York it has sound synchronization accompanying it. The effects are good enough with the sea gulls, but not so good with the walruses. This isn't so important. What is important is the kick in the picture—which shows a chase of a bear over ice floes and his ultimate capture with the lasso and a net. The camera work is particularly fine when some remarkable telephoto shots are revealed. The scene of the whales also comes in for applause.

The picture has its excuse through Stefanson's expedition to the North several years ago—which had one boat crushed in the ice and a group of sailors lost. The mystery attached to these men accounts for the present film. There is fine photograph of ice floes, glaciers and the passions of the open sea. And the bird life hasn't been overlooked. In fact it captures every specie of life in the far North. And as a result contains an educational value which can't be denied.

Produced by the Snows. Released by Fox.

White Shadows of the South Seas

Mostly a Travelogue

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE South Sea pattern has been done countless times, but the manner in which this picture was ballyhooed as something different one imagined that they would shoot the works in accomplishing an extraordinary entertainment. The original director, Flaherty, stepped out to be replaced by another. And all he's done is to capture bits of the native life and collect an array of marvelous scenes. The story is not so hot. The idea has served the screen since it wore swaddling clothes. It features a derelict who gives up civilization and who resolves to stick around on the islands, even when the white girl comes out of the West.

There are some shots which are interesting. The saving of the chieftain's son from drowning, the picturesque camera display in the skies, and the manners and customs of the natives in carrying on their daily routine—these aid in giving the picture a definite scenic appeal. But it gets nowhere in its story. And lacks any quality of action and suspense. Had the director gone about fashioning some battle scenes of warring tribes (even if this suggestion is old-fashioned) it would have contained a semblance to a kick. But the way it is treated it is nothing but an excursion with a camera. The acting is but fair.

Drawing Power: Ballyhooed it should do well enough. Suitable for average houses. Exploitation Angles: Feature author whose book created a sensation when it first appeared. Bill as scenic study of the South Seas. Play up the lives of the islanders, etc.

THEME: Romantic drama of white derelict and native South Sea girl.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, eight reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Monte Blue, Raquel Torres, Robert Anderson. Director, W. S. Van Dyke.

"Sky Scrappers"

(Universal—One Reel)

SOME of the cleverest bits of animation the writer has seen to date in a film cartoon, were witnessed in the screening of Universal's latest Walter Disney offering. The pen artist has injected many novel twists and gags into this Oswald number, which deserves a rating of very good entertainment.

Oswald this time is a steel worker, engaged in construction of a huge skyscraper. The noon whistle blows and he drops to earth, where he is met by the girl friend, who sells lunch boxes Wolf, the villainous foreman, high up on the steel framework spies the happy pair, and lets go a grappling hook, catches the lady and hauls her up for himself. Oswald, thus thrown into a rage hoists himself through the air by rope, and there then follows a hard fight between he and Wolf. Wolf chases Oswald out on a dangling girder, and they both spin round in mid-air. Finally Oswald outbalances the irate foreman, hurling him into space and then rescues the girl.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Felix the Cat in Astronomeows"

(Educational—One Reel)

FELIX takes a leaf from the scrapbook of scientification stories and like a heroic brain-child of a Verne or Wells journeys through the ether to the neighboring planets. By a method extremely simple he arrives at the red planet as the ambassador of all cats and with the thought in mind of negotiating with the Martians to obtain a part of their world where the fellow cats could settle. Felix is in revolt against old Mother Earth, where, he declares, cats live a dog's life. At first he finds Mars as rough and ready as the earth he has left, but after he has rescued a Martian emperor, he finds Mars a very comfortable place on which to live. So he notifies his brethren back on the earth, and the big migration of cats from one world to another begins.

The cartoon work is finely done, the drawings of Mars and another planet, Saturn, being very imaginative. The queer creatures that Felix meets while on Mars are also original and fantastic. Even the universe seems small for the extremely capable little black cat.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"The Newlyweds Hard Luck"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A MERRY mix-up of fun is supplied in this newest Stern Brothers Snookums comedy, presenting the talented "kid" actor Sunny Mc Keen. The young comedian aided by his usual good surrounding cast, makes of this release one of the best comedies in this series.

"Snookums" begins his mischief making with a game of golf about the house, and causes no end of damage. Mrs. Newlywed then comes across the idea that her angel child has swallowed her diamond ring, and places in an S.O.S. for hubby, who arrives on the run with a doctor. Matters looked black for Snookums until it was discovered that the pet monkey had the ring. Peace restored the Newlyweds hasten to a dinner, where hubby is to demonstrate his invention for making rain. Snookums proves a disgrace at the table, so to cover their embarrassment the newlyweds suggest an immediate demonstration of the machine. Snookums messes up with the controls and our friends are last seen scrambling in a downpour.

the theatre dragging "admissions" behind them and even the richer ones arrived in expensive cars and unloaded their youngsters with their stipulated string of tin-cans. It took a dozen city dump wagons most of the day to remove the pile of cans, reaching almost to the top of the marquee, to the dump. And the papers made a feature story out of it.

This is a corking idea and can always find a ready and willing ear from the city officials, the newspaper tie-up should be just as easy and none of us will doubt the value of these special kiddie matinees or morning shows as they always stimulate the older folks as soon as the kids get home to tell the story. Try it soon and see if it doesn't earn more than its cost in free publicity.

High Lights of the Canada Trip

On the second day of the Convention of theatre managers, a boat had been chartered and we set sail for Middle Island and Pelee Island, located on Lake Erie, and both on the Canadian side of the line. And it is well to mention right now that the spirit of the crowd was good even before we arrived in Canadian waters as was attested by the "Harmony"? singing that took place to the accompaniment of a cross between a Chinese horn and an oboe, ably played by Princess Yvonne's assistant, and "Bucky" Myers the genial mayor of Chillicothe, Ohio, who was used chiefly to balance the boat. Of course, it would not be nice to tell about Gus Sun's singing, but after the first attempt at Sweet Adeline it was conceded that someone was rotten and Gus said he might be bad too. But just the same no one on that boat could attempt to stop the punishment.

Fun Starts at Middle Island

Of course the real fun started after we reached Middle Island and tasted some of Canada's best, and aided by some food brought from Sandusky it was a great start for a great day.

It was a great trip and "Captain" Himmeloin of Sandusky deserves lots of credit for his handling as well as his nephew A. C. for the commissary dept.

I only hope I get around to the trip next year, its worth the journey.

7 Pathe Shorts Listed for August 26 Release

The Pathe short feature program for the week of August 26 is made up of seven short subjects, a comedy, a cartoon, a melodramatic serial, an educational subject and two issues of the Pathe newsreel.

Mary Ann Jackson, Raymond McKee and Ruth Hiatt are the featured players in "The Chicken," a Mack Sennett comedy directed by Phil Whitman and supervised by J. A. Waldron. The Aesop cartoon is "In the Bag." "Topics of the Day No. 35" is a collection of wit culled from the press. "Hidden Enemies" is the fourth chapter of "The Terrible People," the current Pathe chapter play. Pathe Review No. 35 is also on the list; it is comprised of "Skies of the South Seas," "Algerian Delights in Bou-Sadda Oasis," "The Gaudy Hibiscus" and "Lines of the Times," Pathe News Nos. 72 and 73 complete the shorts for the week.

"Pathe Review No. 33"
(Pathe—One Reel)

THESE Pathe Review single-reelers, rarely if ever miss out on being good entertainment, and this issue does not upset the rule. The pictorials contained in this offering are: "First Interview with Jim Crow and Family". Howard Cleaves, famous naturalist, achieves the only successful films of wild crows ever made; "Throwing a Big Party": Clare Briggs, Rube Goldberg, Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Joe Frisco and Crane Wilbur all snapped at the Actors' Equity Ball; "Tin Can Movement Takes Hawaii"; how the land of the Leis has gone very industrial by way of the pineapple can. A good release.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"The Peep Show"
(Educational—One Reel)

THERE'S variety in this latest Hodge-Podge produced by the Lyman H. Howe studio. It has widely differentiated scenes and the geographical extent as covered by the camera is also wide. The various bits of novelty and educational information are taken from Trinidad, Alaska, Island of Bali, Peru, Germany and several of the United States.

Good program filler.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"A Cross-Country Run"
(Pathe—One Reel)

ACROSS-COUNTRY marathon race, featuring Paul Terry's regiment of animal characters, and including old Farmer Al., forms the animated story of the above mentioned cartoonist's latest effort. This film, though it does not depart from Terry's usual style, contains plenty of laughs, and will please.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Regional News from Correspondents

Central Penn.

A PENNSYLVANIA charter of incorporation was issued at the capitol in Harrisburg to the St. Mary's Amusement Company, of St. Mary's, Pa., organized to "purchase, own, sell, manage and operate theatres." The stated capital is $75,000 and the full amount is paid in. There are 2,000 shares of stock of no stated par value. A. A. Straub, of St. Mary's, is treasurer and one of the incorporators, holding 60 shares of the stock. The other incorporators are H. C. Stackpole, of St. Mary's, who holds 100 shares, and Lyle G. Hall, of Ridgeway, Pa., 100 shares. Mr. Stackpole is a brother of E. J. Stackpole, of Harrisburg, owner and publisher of the Harrisburg Telegraph, a daily newspaper.

A deal that will ultimately give the Strand Theatre Company, of Allentown, Pa., operating the Strand Theatre on North Eighth Street, control of three additional Allentown theatres, has just been announced. The company has signed an agreement with Mainker & Mainker, contractors and builders, to lease the Franklin theatre, on Tilghman Street, which is now in operation, and two theatres now in course of construction by the Mainker interests. The latter two are the Nineteenth Street Theatre and the Capitol, the latter at 1020 Hamilton Street. The Nineteenth Street theatre will seat 1,000 persons and will be ready for opening about September 1. The Capitol will be completed later.

It is generally conceded the deal will place the Strand interests in a strategical position in the Allentown theatre field, where there are now about fifteen theatres in operation. Dr. Benjamin H. Stuckert and Oliver H. Gernert, owners of the Strand, will continue respectively as house manager and treasurer. Harlam E. Woehrle will be in charge of the theatres as general manager.

Announcement is made that the policy of the Strand, where first run Paramount pictures are shown exclusively, will remain unchanged. The policies of the Nineteenth Street and Capitol theatres will be disclosed later. Both will be de luxe modern theatres.

Clark Fiers, organist at one of the largest Scranton theatres of the Comerford Amusement Company chain, has been engaged as organist for the new $750,000 Colonel Drake theatre, just completed in Oil City by the Vemark Corporation. The new Colonel Drake theatre, Oil City, includes a $25,000 Wurlitzer organ in its equipment.

Two hundred employes of Stanley theatres in Lancaster, Ardmore, Chester and West Chester, held an outing at Sandy Beach, in the Susquehanna River, near Lancaster, on Sunday, July 22. There were contests and other diversions. Cleon Miller was in charge of the Lancaster contingent, while William LaPortes directed the Ardmore group; Jack Freier headed the West Chester delegation and Homer Lord, the party from Chester.

To permit faster progress in the work of rebuilding the Strand, the largest Comerford house in Sunbury, Manager J. M. Blanchard closed the theatre on August 6, and transferred the film programs scheduled for there to the Victoria, a smaller Comerford house. The Victoria programs in turn were transferred to the Chestnut Street theatre which was thoroughly renovated by a corps of 20 workers before the change was made.

Harry A. Goren, who recently went from Philadelphia to manage the Strand Theatre, Shenandoah, has just been elected a member of the Rotary Club in the latter city. He is owner of the Oxford theatre, Philadelphia, which he leased to the interests now operating it.

C. Floyd Hopkins, district representative in charge of a dozen Wilmer & Vincent theatres in Reading and Harrisburg, as "Admiral" of the annual cruise of several hundred members of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce who this year will go on a four-day jaunt into Canada, early in September, announced final details of the trip at a meeting of the committee of arrangements held August 9. "Admiral" Hopkins stated that many theatrical stunts will be provided on the tour for the entertainment of the business men. Wilmer & Vincent will take motion pictures of various incidents during the trip which will be reproduced later in one of the Harrisburg theatres.

The building formerly used as the Colonial theatre, seating 600, in Trumbauersville, was destroyed by flames on July 20, causing a loss of $10,000. The theatre had been closed for some time.

One of the features of the reports of Charles A. Ryan, superintendent of construction of the $600,000 Capitol theatre which the Comerford Amusement Company, of Scranton, is erecting in Williamsport, are moving pictures, made monthly, of the progress of the work. The first of these was "shot" when the steam shovel began operations for the foundations on February 20, and a set of movies has been taken on the 20th of each month since then. The pictures are supplementary to the daily and monthly reports of the superintendent and will probably be thrown on the screen at the opening performance in the theatre early this coming Fall.

The Comerford Amusement Company, of Scranton, announces abandonment of its intention to erect a legitimate theatre on the site of the old car barns in the central section of Scranton, and has sold the plot to the Government which will erect a new post office there. Some years ago the Comerfords bought the property for $225,000 and subsequently spent a considerable amount to transform the site into a parking place for the use of the patrons of the downtown Comerford theatres. The selling price to the Government was $300,000. The decision of the Masonic order to erect a theatre a block away is said to have influenced the Comerfords to reconsider their plan to build.

There was quite a shift, temporarily, among managers of some of the leading Loew theatres in Pennsylvania in carrying out their vacation schedule during late July and early August. While J. P. McCarthy, manager of Loew's Regent, Harrisburg, was visiting his old home town of Bridgeport, Conn., the gap was filled by the transfer of Jack Simons, manager of Loew's Aldine theatre, Pittsburgh, to the Harrisburg post. Afterward Mr. Simons relieved Robert Suits, manager of Loew's Colonial, Reading, while the latter took a rest of two weeks in Chicago, Detroit and other places in the Mid-West. E. J. Melniker, formerly manager of Loew's Regent, Harrisburg, but now manager of Loew's United Artists Theatre in Columbus, spent a vacation of two weeks in Harrisburg during July.

The Colonial Theatre, Allentown, a leading Wilmer & Vincent house, reopened with a gala special program on August 6, after having been closed to permit extensive interior renovations. Manager Robert Ferenbaugh announced there was a revised personnel of employes.

Several changes in organists employed by theatres in the hard coal mining belt have recently been announced. Philip Cusick, for six years at the console of the Savoy, Wilkes-Barre, has gone to the Poli theatre in the same city. William Keenly, organist at the Park, Palmerton, has transferred his allegiance to the Pastime, Lewistown. Harold C. May, for many years at the Garden theatre, Pottsville, has been appointed organist of the First Methodist Church, in that city, succeeding Professor C. Grant Sterner, of Ashland.

Des Moines

THE new theatre at Cedar Rapids, the Capitol, which was to be opened on August 23 will not be ready now until September. Delay in fulfillment of some of the building contracts has tied up the theatre. The scaffolding is still up and it will be impossible to open at the date originally announced. The report has not been verified but it is thought quite certain that the house will be put under the management of Everett Cummings who has been manager of the Fort Armstrong theatre at Rock Island. Mr. Cummins has directed the Publix shows at Waterloo and Rock Island since their opening a year ago.

Lew Elman, salesman for First National went to Tia Juana for the races. He is accompanied by his wife. They will join his father John Elman in California. The elder Mr. Elman is owner of the Amuzu Theatre located at East Sixth and Locust in Des Moines. This theatre is being operated by his son Rudolph Elman.

Philadelphia

AS the result of a bequest of J. Fred Zimmerman, former theatrical manager, who left a large part of his estate to the Edwin Forrest Home for retired members of the theatrical profession, the institution has moved into thoroughly modern and up to date quarters at Forty-ninth and Parkside Avenue, Philadelphia. Spring Brook, the former home of the institution near Holmesburg which was an old landmark of the city, was the country home of Edwin Forrest, containing many memorials of its actor owner. But Spring Brook was hard to maintain especially as the endowment fund amounted to hardly a quarter of a million dollars and when an advantageous offer was made for the purchase of the property at a price far above the amount paid for it, it was accepted and the Home moved to the present location, which is much nearer to the center of the city, making it possible for residents to attend the theatre much more frequently.

The Lyric Theatre, Kulpmont, Pa., has been taken over by William L. Heiss from the former owner, D. J. McFadden.

David Segal is now covering Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey for De Luxe Pictures. He was formerly with Pathe.

The Colonial Theatre, Trumbauersville, Pa., a 600 seat house, was destroyed by fire with a loss of about $10,000.

Announcement has been made of the opening of three new motion picture theatres in Philadelphia on Labor Day. They are the Sedgwick, an 1800-seat house to be operated by the Stanley Company at 7145 Germantown Avenue, the Commodore, at 43rd and Walnut Sts., owned and built by Felt Brothers but leased to the Stanley Company, a 1200-seat house; and the Admiral, 2,808 North Fifth Street, a 1200-seat house owned and operated by Fineman & Seltzer. Freed's Brookline Theatre at Brookline, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, is scheduled to open on August 8th. The Brookline is a 700-seat house.

George Sobel, formerly manager of the Stanley Company's Market Street Theatre in Philadelphia, has been transferred to the Globe Theatre also in Philadelphia, while Ben Wolf, manager of the Globe, has been switched to the Market Street.

George P. Aarons, secretary of the M. P. T. O. A. of Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, has just returned from a two weeks' vacation spent on the Great Lakes.

Vacations are in full swing up at the Universal exchange, and twenty members of the office force are either just starting or just returning from outings.

The Rialto Theatre, Lewistown, Pa., has been taken over by Mrs. Mary Check from Joseph M. Shverha.

The new Parsons Theatre, Parsons, Pa., owned by Comerford Amusement Co., opened on August 13th. The Paramount Theatre, in Parsons, closed permanently on August 11th.

Leon Behal, the short subject man who opened the Philadelphia Film Exchange in October, 1927, is making preparations to celebrate the first anniversary of the exchange after a most successful year.

UFA Eastern Division Distribution, Inc., has just opened a branch office at 1220 Vine Street, Philadelphia, in charge of Jack Meyers.

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING MOTION PICTURE FILM

Chicago

OFFICERS for the ensuing year were elected at the annual meeting of the Chicago Film Board of Trade, held at the concern's headquarters, 910 South Michigan Avenue, Tuesday, August 7th, 1928. C. W. Eckhardt, District Manager of Fox Film Corp. was elected president and N. F. Agnew, manager of Paramount Famous Lasky Corp., vice president. Irving W. Mandel, manager of Security Pictures, was elected secretary and Earl Silverman, manager of Vitagraph, Inc., treasurer. Clyde W. Eckhardt, H. S. Lorch, I. W. Mandel, C. Harthill, N. F. Agnew, Felix Mendelssohn and Earl Silverman were chosen as a board of directors. J. D. Abramson was appointed executive Secretary for the seventh consecutive term.

Balaban & Katz are reported to be rushing to completion, the big Paradise Theatre at Crawford and Washington, so that it may be opened early in September. It will be recalled that this house was begun some time ago by National Playhouses, Inc., but was taken over by Balaban & Katz last fall. The Paradise, which was designed by Architect John Eberson, in French Garden style, will be one of the city's largest motion picture theatres and will have a seating capacity of four thousand. It will be the ninth Chicago house to be operated under the B. & K. banner.

Western Sales Director Van Praague of Universal, was in Chicago recently for a conference with Manager Herbel.

H. C. Young of National Screen Service has returned from a combined business and pleasure trip to Detroit, Michigan. Mr. Young made the return journey by boat.

Clarence Phillips has resigned as salesman for Tiffany to become manager of Jerry Abrams Exchange, which, by the way, will be no longer known as the Gotham Exchange. Mr. Phillips has been connected with the sales end of the motion picture business for a number of years.

H. H. Burns, manager of Simansky & Miller's Savoy Theatre, started last Sunday for a two weeks' automobile trip, taking in Niagara Falls, parts of Canada, and Elmira, New York. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Nate Ruttenberg, popular manager of the Keystone and Panaroma Theatres, has just returned after a very pleasant vacation spent at Salt Lake City, Yellowstone Park and Denver. Mr. Ruttenberg was accompanied by his wife.

Charles N. David of the Chicago Daily News Screen Service, accompanied by his wife and children, motored to the east for three weeks. Mr. David reports the roads okay but he could not say so much for his chariot.

Bill Cook of the Tiffin Theatre, together with his family, last week drove to Virginia and Hibbing, Minnesota. Before returning to Chicago, Mr. Cook will stop off at Minneapolis to visit some of his old friends in the office of Finkelstein & Rubens where he was employed for several years.

V. T. and Jack Lynch have just returned from a three weeks' visit to Canada. Their first stop was to the birthplace of their parents at Guelph, Canada. They report having had a delightful trip.

Assistant General Sales Manager Cress Smith arrived in Chicago shortly after the resignation of C. C. Wallace as divisional manager, and expects to make his headquarters, for at least a month, at United Artists Chicago exchange. Another United Artist official in Chicago, is William Rosenthal, special representative. Mr. Wallace is at present enjoying his first vacation in several years and expects to announce his future connection shortly.

Receivership of the Admiral Theatre has been transferred from the Chicago Title & Trust Company to the City State Bank. Future plans for this house have not been made public and the theatre still remains closed.

Manager Blackmore is now in charge at the Peoples Theatre for Israel & Jesselson. Mr. Blackmore has recently been connected with the National Playhouses in a managerial capacity.

Starting on August 11th, the Chicago, Tivoli and Uptown Theatres changed their programs on Saturday, instead of Monday, as has been the custom in the past. Other houses which recently have set ahead their changing dates, are McVickers and United Artists, both of which are now putting their new features in on Friday.

Mrs. C. A. Deutsch, owner of the Seeley Theatre, is taking a two months' vacation at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, and postcards that she is having a very enjoyable time.

S. H. Selig, owner of the Kozy and Gem Theatres, left last Tuesday for a short vacation at Elkhart Lake, Wisconsin. He was accompanied by Mrs. Selig.

Harry Balaban, of Balaban & Katz, and Marian Rice, daughter of Dave Rice, theatre manager around Chicago for many years, were married at the home of Mr. Balaban, last week, and are now honeymooning at Lake Louise and Banff.

Another local exhibitor who recently became a benedict, is Arthur Schoenstadt, of H. Schoenstadt & Sons, who was married to Gwendolyn Marie Straus at the Ambassador Hotel in Atlantic City. After spending some time at that famous summer resort, Mr. Schoenstadt and his wife journeyed to Mackinac Island, where they remained a week.

Frank Schaefer is confined to his home with a serious attack of yellow jaundice. It is reported he is improving but he will not be seen on film row again for two or three weeks.

Joseph Snitzer, vice-president of F B O, was here for a day this past week for a conference with local manager Herb Washburn. Mr. Snitzer returned to New York city on Thursday.

Great States Theatres, Inc., have just completed a deal with Fitzpatrick & McElroy, whereby they will take over the Lyric and Grand Theatres at Blue Island; the Lincoln-Dixie and Washington at Chicago Heights and the Harvey and Garden at Harvey. W. J. Crowley will be in charge at Blue Island, J. G. Hruby at Harvey, and R. Howard will replace Mr. McIlanson, at Chicago Heights. It is reported that Great States will shortly take over the Hippodrome and Grand Theatres at Alton, Illinois, which are owned and operated by Fitzpatrick & McElroy.

Rose Cogan, secretary to Mr. H. C. Young, of National Screen Service, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation at Sister Lakes, Michigan.

Chuck Powell has recently been added to United Artists' sales staff and was appointed to country territory.

Among film row visitors last week were Phillip Shafer, manager of the Henry Theatre, Henry, Illinois, and Adam Dermbach of Wheaton.

Stanley Levy, formerly in charge of Louis Laemmle's Theatres, has been appointed as manager of Paul Sittner's Criterion Theatre on Sedgwick Street.

Kansas City

BETWEEN $100,000 and $150,000 will be expended in remodeling the Newman theatre first run house of Kansas City, and restoring it to its former atmosphere, Milton Feld, division manager for Publix said in Kansas City. The Newman and Royal theatres have gone back from Loew's Inc., to the Publix organization. The Newman will remain closed for about two weeks. The theatre is to be wired for Movietone, but those productions will not be used exclusively, Mr. Feld said. The Newman will re-open as a de luxe house, showing first run pictures.

The Orpheum theatre, Kansas City, will keep its reserved seat policy if it listens to the requests of its patrons. About one week ago Fred Spear, manager, announced through the daily newspapers that he would permit the patrons to determine the future policy of the house, which shows first run pictures and presents vaudeville. The result was overwhelming. The real goal, however—the creation of additional interest in the theatre on the part of patrons—was reached in flying colors.

Business was dull without having "customers" enter the theatre through the rear door, thought M Gross, manager of the Isis theatre, suburban house of Kansas City. Therefore when a 17-year-old boy broke through a rear door to see the show Mr. Gross had him arrested and confined in the Detention Home.

Fire of undetermined origin caused $110,000 damage to the building and property of the United Film Ad Service, Kansas City Sunday. Burning films threw a cloud of heavy, black smoke high against the sky, attracting hundreds of spectators and motorists, who created a traffic jam that made it difficult for the fire department to function properly. The cause of the fire, which is believed to have started in the developing room in the basement, is being investigated.

R. R. Biechele, president of the M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri, was confined to his bed last week, suffering from influenza. His condition was not considered serious, however, and he was expected to be back on his job at M. P. T. O. K.-M. headquarters soon.

The following changes in ownership and remodeling of theatres in the Kansas City territory have been announced: Crystal theatre, St. Joseph, Mo., after being dark seven years, was scheduled to reopen August 15, under the ownership of I. T. Curd; the Ocasco theatre, Kansas City, recently purchased by Denny Costello and renamed the Bijou, has re-opened; the Star theatre, Nevada, Mo., operated by the Midland Circuit, will be renovated and redecorated; the new Star theatre, Willow Springs, Mo., operated by A. J. Sass, had a formal opening last week; a new theatre will be built in Belville, Kas., by Sam H. Blair, owner of a string of theatres; the Adrian theatre, Adrian, Mo., has been purchased by Lovell Mayginnes; the Electric theatre, Springfield, Mo., is being wired for Vitaphone and Movietone; R. S. Fromley has purchased the Electric theatre at Galena, Mo., from D. M. Standridge; C. V Rose, Jr., has purchased the Royal theatre, Unionville, Mo.; P. D. Hendrix has sold his Overland theatre, Overland Park, Kas., to Mrs. Mary Cambridge.

St. Louis

A FIRE believed to have been caused by an electric spark igniting a motion picture film in the projection booth of the Union Station motion picture theatre did $500 damage recently. Patrons in the theatre at the time filed out in orderly fashion. Two thousand feet of film burned.

William Berger, operator, attempted to extinguish the flames but failed. He then advised the audience and ran to turn in an alarm.

The theatre is conducted on the second floor of the Union Station, the central railroad depot of St. Louis.

The Gem Theatre Corporation of which I. W. Rodgers, 224 Eighth Street, Cairo, Ill., is president, will take bids at an early date on a new theatre for Cairo to cost upwards of $80,000. T. S. Thompson of Carbondale, Ill., has prepared plans for the new buildings.

For the sixth time this season the performance at the St. Louis Municipal Theatre in Forest Park was stopped by rain the night of August 4 during a performance of 'Countess Maritza." There were 3,000 cash customers in the big open air theatre at the time. They were given rain checks good at shows the coming week. The loss of six performances in one season is record for the opera.

R. E. Gump of 587 North 26th, East St. Louis, Ill. is said to have his theatre on the market. It is a 500-seater and is expected to figure in a deal within a week.

A 600-seat theatre will be included in the $300,000 5-story hotel planned for Corinth, Miss., by the Corinth Chamber of Commerce. The structure will be fireproof throughout and will be built of brick and reinforced concrete with stone and terra cotta trimming. It will cover a site 100 by 110 feet.

The Atlantic Theatre, Atlantic, Iowa, operated by O. C. Johnson is being remodeled. The work will be completed about September 10. A large new organ will be installed. The improvements will cost about $50,000.

Bids are being taken on a new theatre for New Sharon, Iowa. E. Hoffman is to be the owner. Plans were prepared by A. Eaton, 112 South Market Street, Ottumwa, Iowa, and call for a one-story brick and concrete building to cost upwards of $25,000.

Skouras Brothers plan to close the Capitol Theatre, Sixth and Chestnut Streets, within the next two weeks so that complete Vitaphone equipment may be installed. The Capitol was the first sound picture house in St. Louis but the equipment was taken out after several weeks run.

Twelve one-story stores fronting on Washington Boulevard just west of Grand Boulevard and part of the new William Fox theatre building in St. Louis will be ready for occupancy about September 15 it has been announced. The theatre scheduled for opening early in December is rapidly nearing completion. The brick work has been practically finished and interior plastering is now under way.

Tom McKean, president, and Walter Light, vice-president of Progress Pictures made a joint trip through Northeast Missouri during the past week and report that general conditions in that section are favorable. They were able to close some favorable contracts for their product on the trip.

St. Louis film stocks were quoted on the St. Louis Stock Exchange on August 4 as follows: Skouras A, $41.50 asked. One year ago $32. St. Louis Amusement A, $30 asked. There was no quotation on this stock on the corresponding day in 1927.

Columbia Pictures' branch office recently opened in St. Louis will be known as the Affiliated Distributing Company until further notice. This is to be part of Columbia's own national distribution system, which it has been building up in the last few years.

Affiliated Distributing Company will handle all of the 1928-1929 product.

The St. Louis Amusement Company is erecting a new canopy in front of the Mikado theatre, 5951 Easton avenue.

Progressive Pictures, Inc., of St. Louis, of which Tom McKean is president; Walter Light, vice-president, and John Walsh, secretary, has secured the ten Chesterfield productions comprising the 1928-29 schedule. They will distribute the pictures in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

Affiliated Distributing Company is the corporate name finally adopted for the St. Louis exchange that will handle Columbia pictures in the St. Louis territory. The office is located at 3330 Olive street with Claude W. McKean in charge as manager. This new name was decided on to avoid confusion with other Missouri exchanges.

Irving Frankel has joined the local sales staff of Tiffany Pictures. Manager Roy Dickson has assigned him to travel Southeast Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Barney Rosenthal, president of Columbia Pictures Corporation, has gone to Chicago on business and probably will return in a week.

St. Louis film stocks closed August 11 as follows: Skouras A $42 bid and $44 asked. One year ago held at $32. St. Louis Amusement A $30 asked. No bid a year ago.

Minneapolis

RENE MURRAY, relief cashier at the new State theatre in St. Paul, was choked into unconsciousness last week by a nattily dressed bandit, who escaped with $24 from the box office. The robbery occurred at 7:30 p. m., just after the evening performance had begun. The bandit, who was accompanied by a woman accomplice, was frightened away by Leon Crosland, operator at the theatre, who heard the tussle in the lobby and ran to the assistance of Miss Murray.

Mae Murray will come to Minneapolis two or three days prior to the opening of her performance at the Pantages so that she may rest up at a nearby lake resort.

Tiffany-Stahl Company has promoted Bill Grant, booker for six years at the Minneapolis branch, to a sales position. Grant was formerly with Pathe as assistant booker. He is succeeded by Wm. Clayton, who comes from the Chicago Fox office, where he acted as assistant booker.

The Turner Opera House, which was recently burned, is to be replaced by a $25,000 building, according to the plans of the Turner Society of Watertown, S. D.

A theatre has been opened at Burdette, S. D., by Guy Barnes.

Sales conditions in the northwest are being surveyed by Cecil Maberry, general sales manager for Columbia Pictures, who has visited Minneapolis and Omaha as well as the smaller towns in the district.

The new theatre which is nearing completion at Hennepin avenue and Lake street in Minneapolis will be opened late this month by Finkelstein and Ruben. It is to be known as the Granada.

Carl Lindstaedt, who has gone to Austin, Minn., has been succeeded as assistant manager of the Chateau Lodge, Rochester, Minn., by F. G. Nutting of Minot, N. D.

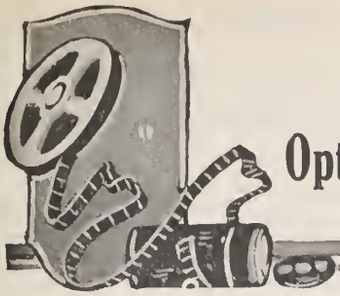
The large building campaign which has been started by Fox Company is still thought to include the construction of large theatres in Minneapolis and St. Paul and possibly even in the larger Minnesota towns.

Recent visitors in Minneapolis included John F. Royal, general manager of the western division of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, and Stanley Jacques, midwest division manager for Pathe.

The Liberty theatre at Webster, S. D., has been purchased by H. M. Schencker from Blank & Debee. Mr. Schencker plans to remodel the house.

Cincinnati

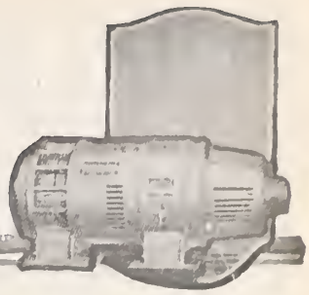
AFTER a two weeks' trial with stock musical tabs, given in addition to regular picture programs, the Boulevard theatre, Cincinnati, has discontinued the tabs and resumed a straight picture policy. It was found that the added attraction did not provide sufficient drawing power to justify the extra expense.



The Palace theatre, Dayton, O., will hereafter conduct amateur nights on Wednesday of each week, offering suitable cash prizes for the best talent which is determined by the amount of applause received.

Griff. Granger, manager of the Kaypee theatre, Mt. Gilead, Ohio, together with his wife and a party of friends, is leaving soon for a motor trip to Kenosha, Wis.

J. S. Rex, owner of the Elite theatre, Defiance, Ohio, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing his liabilities at approximately $25,000, with assets around $600.



The Rialto theatre, Hamilton, O., is being artistically redecorated during the mornings in order not to interfere with the daily programs. John Schwalm, manager of the Rialto, is spending a few weeks at Atlantic City, accompanied by his wife.

Samuel Lowenstein, 69, financially although not actively interested in the Palace theatre, Hamilton, passed away last week.

Projectionist Claims Discovery of New Law

ENGINEERS whose activities in any way touch upon the broad field of illumination and the thousands of men whose occupation is that of motion picture projectionist should be greatly interested in the conclusions reached by a Projectionist in Virginia, which, providing they are correct, will go a long way toward upsetting a fundamental law of illumination.

Also, these conclusions by this Brother Projectionist will serve to give the laugh to a number of noted scientists and investigators whose painstaking work prompted them to annunciate certain laws pertaining to the action of light subjected to periodic and repeated interruptions as occasioned by the placing of a sectores disc (more commonly known as a revolving shutter) in the path of a beam of light.

For Increased Light, Speed Up the Shutter

The gist of the "Virginia" Brother's discovery is that the screen intensity produced by the beam from a motion picture projector will be increased if the revolving shutter is speeded up to permit, the shutter openings to present themselves to the light beam at shorter intervals, thus allowing more light to pass through said openings.

His line of reasoning, as revealed by his contribution is as follows: A motion picture shutter, as every dyed-in-the-wool projectionist well knows, is comprised of a simple metal disc in which are cut openings to effect the alternate passing and masking of light issuing from the projection lens.

He then argues, as the shutter is speeded up in synchronism with the passage of the film before the aperture, the open spaces in the shutter of necessity present themselves more quickly before the projection lens. Hence, if this is so (and we certainly must admit that it is so) then the light beam issuing from the lens has more opportunities for passing through the shutter openings and then on to the screen where the intensity is consequently built up to a higher value.

Unique Reasoning

This line of reasoning, to say the very least, is quite unique and shows to what extent the human mind can so bias itself as to recognize favorable factors and overlook unfavorable ones. This Projectionist, in proclaiming this new law of illumination sees only the openings in the shutters which are favorable to that which he wishes to prove and altogether ignores the shutter blades which are not so favorable to his contentions.

He forgets, or perhaps ignores the fact that if the shutter openings present themselves more quickly as the shutter speed is increased, so also do the shutter blades, which, of necessity are part and parcel of the same shutter and so get in their deadly work to offset any advantage which increased speed may give to the shutter openings.

It seems that Brother "Virginia" is unfamiliar with the old gag concerning the equal benefits which the sauce holds for both the goose and the gander. He sees only sauce for the goose.

Shutter Speed Does Not Affect Intensity

Unfortunately for this new theory a number of noted scientists have definitely proved, and the findings have been generally accepted, that the speed of the rotating shutter has absolutely no effect upon the screen intensity. In other words, it makes not a particle of difference whether the shutter makes ten revolutions per second or 10,000 revolutions per second, the intensity of illumination upon the screen will not vary by so much as one one-millionth of a foot-candle providing other factors have not changed.

Talbot's Law

The value of the average illumination which results when light, falling on a surface, is repeatedly and regularly interrupted, is expressed by Talbot's Law which says that Removing all of the illumination part of the time is equivalent to removing part of the illumination all of the time. In other words, the only effect of a rotating shutter is to reduce the average illumination on the screen. The resultant illumination will vary in proportion to the time intervals of light and dark.

The effect of shutter speed is nowhere mentioned in the above law and we cannot bring ourselves to believe that Dr. Talbot so far forgot himself as to overlook this important factor in his tests.

Hence, our Brother Projectionist's theory, which claims increased illumination with increased shutter speed, collapses under the weight of his own explanation as to how it was derived in spite of his urgent pleadings for "somebody, somewhere, with a photometer at his disposal to try to support his claims."

When we observe the results of some projectionists' methods of reasoning, as illustrated, we entertain fears as to their ability ever to digest the principles underlying talking picture projection.

If comparatively simple matters dealing with light action are utterly incomprehensible to them, what chance have they for ever understanding the more complicated electrical and physical actions involved in the operation of amplifying systems as used in synchronized pictures?

What the projectionists of this country need—even more than a good five cent cigar—are instructions presenting in a clear, concise fashion, the true facts bearing on subjects which, of necessity, are wholly technical in their aspects.

Theatre in Anderson, Ind., To Open November 29

A modern theatre costing about $350,000, started several weeks ago at Anderson, Ind., by the Capitol-Crystal Theatre Corporation, will be completed and ready for opening on Thanksgiving Day. The theatre will be known as the Capitol and will seat 1,500 persons. E. F. Miller is the architect. The theatre project was started by Harry Goldberg and H. Coseo, Detroit men. Mr. Harry Muller, Anderson theatre owner, became interested in the venture and acquired the interests of the two Detroit promoters.

The building will be 72 feet wide, fronting on Meridian street and 144 feet deep. The stage will be 27 by 66 feet. The interior of the building is being done in an Italian design. Mr. Miller has signed contracts for Vitaphone and will show talkies, feature picture and vaudeville in season.

Construction Work Begins On San Antonio Theatre

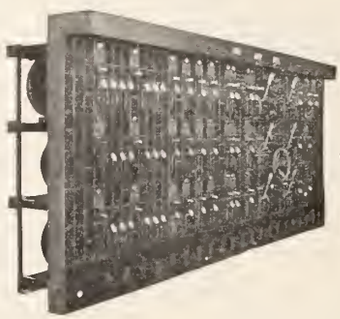
Construction activities have begun on the new Majestic theatre in San Antonio, Texas, a house being erected by the Interstate Amusement Company of Dallas and which will cost $3,500,000. Karl Hoblitzelle is president of the Interstate forces, now operating Majestic theatres in the cities of Dallas, Houston and Fort Worth, and a large deluxe combination house in Birmingham, Ala.

The new San Antonio theatre will be incorporated in a fifteen-story structure, Houston Street between Navarro and St. Mary's Streets. It is a full block in depth and extends as far back as College Street. The space unused by the theatre will be leased out as offices. The new house will have the largest seating capacity of any theatre south of Chicago, it is said, as 4,000 seats are planned for it.

The contractor is John Eberson and the building company is the American Construction Company of Houston. The cost of the site is estimated at $1,500,000. It is expected to be finished in time for opening during the fall of 1929.

Netoco Plans Egyptian Theatre for Boston Suburb

BRIGHTON, Boston suburb long without de luxe motion picture house, will soon have one of the finest theatres in the country, according to announcement made by Samuel Pinanski, president of the New England Theatres Corp.



Netoco, which through its program of expansion has now acquired over thirty theatres, has recently come into possession of a choice site on Washington Street, in the heart of Brighton. Ground has already been broken and building operations on the new edifice are now in progress.

The new theatre, it is stated, will be known as the Netoco Egyptian, and will be the only one of its kind in the East, it is said. It will follow the atmosphere suggested by its name, both inside and out. The interior will be copied after the great Temple of Karnak at Thebes on the upper Nile. From the exterior entrance, which will be patterned after the door of the original temple, the entrance to the theatre proper will be approached through a long decorated lobby into a grand foyer replete with massive pillars and murals done in the brilliant hues favored by the ancient Egyptians. The marquee will follow the style of the ancient tent canopy. These reproductions will be faithful to the most minute detail, Mr. Pinanski says.

The new Netoco Egyptian is planned to seat 2,500, and will be of the stadium type, that is, without a balcony. The stage will be modern in every detail and will allow for presentations of every kind. Vitaphone and Movietone will be installed, and the orchestra pit will be arranged on a mechanical lift so that the orchestra will be out of sight when not playing.

A ladies' smoking room, a nursery for children, men's lounge and a general lounge are included in the plans. A private parking space to accommodate over 200 cars is expected to add greatly to the service.

"Sins of the Fathers"

Talmadge Back in Harness

Production started recently at the San Mateo, Calif., studios on the first of a series of five productions starring Richard Talmadge. Talmadge, who has been out of studio life for a brief period, returns to the screen in the type of picture story which made him one of the fatest growing screen personalities.

"The Bachelor Club," an original by Anthony Coldewey, will have Barbara Worth in the feminine lead to start the series. Noel Smith has been engaged to direct. According to officials of the company sound effects will play an important part in each picture. William Jenner, formerly general manager of the Harry Langdon company, and Oscar Price are the executives behind the producing corporation which bears the name of The General Studio Corporation.

Dunlap to Direct for W. B.

Scott R. Dunlap has been added to the Warner Bros. roster of directors and has been assigned the direction of "Fancy Baggage," by Jerome Kingston, which will be placed into work soon.

Scenarizing

Warner Bros. has designated Ray Doyle to write the script for the forthcoming Vitaphone road show, "Madonna of Avenue A," in which Dolores Costello will star.

Roach Comedy Titled

"The Boy Friend" is the title of the Hal Roach all-star comedy just completed for M-G-M. The titles are, of course, by H. M. (Beanie) Walker. The latest Laurel-Hardy comedy has been given the title of "Two Tars."

W. B. Promotes Fred Fox

Fred Fox, assistant director for some time at the Warner Bros. studio, has been assigned to one of the principal companies engaged in making Vitaphone features. As a result of his promotion, he is first assistant to Bryan Foy.

"Pagan" Novarro's Next

Ramon Novarro's next starring vehicle for M-G-M will be an original story titled "Pagan." The star will start work on the production after he finishes "Gold Braid." Edmund Goulding will direct "Pagan," tropics story by John Russell.

Another for Wallace

Richard Wallace will direct "The Shop Worn Angel," co-starring Gary Cooper and Nancy Carroll, as his next assignment for Paramount. Originally the director was signed to direct "Just Twenty-One," but F. Richard Jones will handle that picture.

Bebe's Next

"Number Please" is the title of Bebe Daniels' next production listed to follow "Take Me Home," now in work at Paramount. "Number Please" will be the third consecutive production in which Neil Hamilton and the comedienne will have appeared together.

Doris Dawson

Charlie Murray will have a new leading lady in "Do Your Duty," First National comedy, in the person of Doris Dawson, recently "discovered."

"Waterfront" Unit Returns

Director William A. Seiter recently brought his company making "Waterfront" for First National back to Burbank after several weeks on location in the Frisco harbor.

Burbank Completes Eight

Eight new productions finished recently at the First National studio are: "Oh Kay," "The Divine Lady," "Out of the Ruins," "The Night Watch," "Heart Trouble," "The Wright Idea," "The Glorious Trail," and "The Whip."

Torrid Location

Richard Barthelmess will go to the Canal Zone for location scenes for "Scarlet Seas," his next First National vehicle. John Francis Dillon will direct.

German Trademan Pays Visit

George Salewski, leading German exhibitor and distributor, has arrived in Hollywood to study picture production. He is stopping at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Stars Adopt Plane Transportation

Motion picture contracts which formerly forbade contract players to ride in airplanes are gradually being changed and film luminaries are being given equal rights with the constantly increasing number of persons who travel by air. Janet Gaynor, Fox Film star, was held up for a day awaiting the sanction of Fox officials before she could take flight to San Francisco last week, where she plans to spend a few days' vacation.

U's Plans for "Broadway"

Universal will make "Broadway." This is the statement made by Carle Laemmle, Jr.: "We have been severely criticized from various angles for our seeming delay in bringing to the screen this successful stage play, especially since other producers have released pictures said to contain situations quite similar to the important ones in our story.

"We intend to make this opus on a scale that will surprise the industry. Big box office names only will be included in the cast and the story treatment, written by our editor-in-chief, Edward J. Montague, assures us in itself that the picture will be a box office sensation."

H. A. F. C. Honors Laemmle

The Hollywood Association of Foreign Correspondents held an international dinner and dance at the Roosevelt Hotel, August 1, in honor of Carl Laemmle. Sid Grauman supervised the program and Rita Kissin was master of ceremonies.

Belle Bennett Seeks Comedy Role

Belle Bennett is now completing a part in "Patience," Tiffany-Stahl. However, Miss Bennett always having had a penchant to appear in comedy, is making a search for a story of a lighter vein.

Taurog Preparing for Feature

Norman Taurog has selected Arthur Stone, former First National comedian, to play in his first Fox production.

Fox Signs Louise Fazenda

Louise Fazenda has been signed by Fox to play a lead role in "Riley, the Cop," to be directed by John Ford. Much of the action is laid in Munich.

Recognizing the fact that changes in method come in the splendid advancement of the motion picture industry, the Eastman Kodak Company continues its own forward march and maintains its supremacy in presenting to the trade

I'm proud to be in the picture business

¶ I'm proud because this business, and this business only, can produce a masterpiece of entertainment like "THE PATRIOT" and give it to the millions of the earth for their delight.

¶ I'm proud because my industry can earn words of praise like this for one of its products:

"A trio of geniuses have evolved a cinema masterpiece. Jannings, Lubitsch and Stone. It is the perfect film of 1928. Out of fairness to the cinema industry you owe it to yourself to see 'The Patriot' ". —N. Y. Daily News

"You who make it a point to keep lists of the year's greatest pictures, just chalk down 'The Patriot', for there'll be few screen plays this season which will surpass it".—N. Y. Eve. World

"One of the finest things we have seen on the screen in many years". —Brooklyn Eagle

"A magnificent motion picture. Nothing can rob 'The Patriot' of its place in the all-too-limited category of great and permanent motion pictures". —Film Daily

"For absorbing acting and direction, don't miss seeing 'The Patriot'.—N. Y. Eve. Journal

" 'The Patriot' should be remembered when all the so-called 'wonder-pictures' are forgotten. It is magnificent".

—Exhibitor's Daily Review

"'The Patriot' is, in this reviewer's opinion, the finest picture this season has yet brought to Broadway". —N. Y. Graphic

"'The Patriot' is a mightily interesting picture and ranks along with the best that the art of film-making has yet provided, for which all concerned deserve full congratulations".
—N. Y. Morn. World

"Probably no motion picture this season will mean more to intelligent audiences than 'The Patriot'. It is a great accomplishment of directing and acting". —Motion Picture News

"This motion picture is indeed a credit to the screen". —N. Y. Times

"'The Patriot' is a great picture. Nobody should miss it". —N. Y. Mirror

¶ "THE PATRIOT" is doing S. R. O. business at the Rialto, New York, where it opened August 17th for long run. Available to Theatres, SOUND or SILENT.

Gentlemen:—

UNIVERSAL'S MARVELOUS SUPER SHORTS BANQUET IS SERVED!

NOW GOING ON in all

Nation Wide Demonstra

SUPER S

RECENT developments in the industry place UNIVERSAL so far ahead in the short subject field that there is now not even a close second. For 22 years UNIVERSAL has topped the entire field. For 22 years thousands of exhibitors have looked to and depended entirely on UNIVERSAL for these subjects, and now with Carl Laemmle himself on the firing line at the studios, every exhibitor throughout the Nation, large and small alike, can look to and depend entirely on UNIVERSAL for the highest quality super shorts of the industry: Shorts that have following of millions of people —that are famous for their drawing power at the box office.

Beginning immediately—at every Universal Exchange from coast to coast—a great QUALITY DEMONSTRATION of SUPER SHORTS is now taking place. See these short subjects with your own eyes—COMPARE THEIR QUALITY—the pictures themselves will do ALL the talking.

COLLEGIANS

Millions everywhere know Carl Laemmle Jr.'s Collegians. Booked by such representative first run houses as The Indiana Thea re, Indianapolis; Strand, Montreal; Majestic, Shamokin, Pa.; Strand, Akron; Regal, Hartford. A Super-Short Series shown in lights all over the country. The biggest short subject money getter in the world—nothing compares with them.

SNOOKUMS

Stern Bros. Newlyweds baby, "Snookums" the box-office baby. A hit with millions of people. A definite, cash-in-the-box Super Short. Here are two additional first run theatres to book "Newlyweds": Orhpeum Theatre, New Orleans; Majestic Theatre, Shamokin, Pa.

LET GEORGE DO IT

Another sure-shot newspaper cartoon comedy by Geo. McManus, that's pepper for the program. "Let George Do It" is another Universal Short booked by such first-run houses as Keith's Theatre, Toledo, and the Majestic, Shamokin.

MIKE AND IKE

Mikes and Ike Comedies, Rube Goldberg's cartoon characters in films—are fast-sure-fire fun that always keeps the house filled. The Orpheum Theatre, New Orleans, and Keith's Theatre, Toledo, are the type of houses booking these Universal Shorts. Both important first-run theatres.

BUSTER BROWN

Stern Bros. "Buster Brown" comedies are so well known that to merely mention the name is enough. This super-short is first run fare and no mistake Buster and Tige are sure-fire! Shown now in thousands of theatres.

FINAL RECKONING

One of the best hung-together serials ever offered. One chapter pulls 'em in for the next. From the writings of the greatest boys' author who ever lived, G. A. Henty. Far and way above the average serial in quality.

PIRATE OF PANAMA

Bad Men in the Exotic Jungles of Panama. Full of thrills and adventure. Each one of the 12 episodes will sit 'em on the edge of their chairs. Absolutely sure-fire—just can't miss.

MYSTERY RIDER

Another gripping mystery story in 10 chapters. The first starts them—the other nine keeps them coming. Crammed with speed and Western action, the kind that keeps the crowds excited.

GO TO YOUR UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE TODAY AND SEE THESE SUPER-SHORTS

Universal Exchanges -- lion of UNIVERSAL'S SHORTS

TARZAN THE MIGHTY

These big first-run houses tell the tale of "Tarzan": Keith's 105th St. Theatre, Cleveland; New Garden, Baltimore; Skouras' Indiana, Indianapolis; The Alhambra, Sacramento, The Broadway, Richmond; The Capitol, Dallas. "Tarzan the Mighty" is on its way.

LAEMMLE NOVELTIES

Now being booked by the countrys biggest first-run theatres. A few include Roxy Theatre, New York; United Artists Theatre, Los Angeles; United Artists Theatre, Detroit; El Capitan Theatre, San Francisco. What additional evidence is needed?

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit. First choice cartoon strip comedy for all first-run theatres. Used for kid-appeal, "supper shows" and program pepper. Wilmer and Vincent, Allentown, one of hundreds of recent Oswald bookings.

JACK HOXIE (Re-issues)

The demand from many sources for these Jack Hoxie re-issues has been too great to ignore. The fans simply had to have them. Every one is sure to ring the bell! Action—action and more action.

Tenderfoot Thrillers

One of the greatest lines of 2 reel westerns ever conceived and filmed. Production costs were second to quality—which has resulted in a real de luxe edition of Short Westerns. Your box office will tell the tale.

Diamond Master

A serial by that great author. Jacques Futrelle. One of the most dramatic chapter plays ever screened. Suspense is its keynote. A hair raiser for your patrons.

Harry Carey (Re-iss.)

Has gone over big in his recent feature picture, "The Trail of '98," and his other successes. His Universal re-issues are "naturals" and just had to be. Book them!

HORACE IN HOLLYWOOD

This great series of 13 one-reelers with the original "Harold Teen" in the person of Arthur Lake is big-league. Lake is a big bet everywhere—a feature star in short subjects for you.

FOREST RANGERS

Like the "Stunt Cowboy" and "Tenderfoot Thrillers," the "Forest Rangers" are pictures that have been built and filmed for the express purpose of making them the best possible to produce. A smashing adventure series.

STUNT COWBOY SERIES

Real money was spent on this series of 12 cowboy shorts. Everybody loves these fast riding and hard shooting pictures. Wonderful for the regular or supper show business.

INTERNATIONAL NEWSREEL

"On the job when it happens" would be a good slogan for "International Newsreel." The greatest film news gathering organization insures International the livest, most interesting big-breaks hot off the griddle! Strictly first-run fare for hundreds of leading theatres.

WILLIAM BOYD IN POWER

with JAQUELINE LOGAN and ALAN HALE

"THIS picture is classed as one of the best of the month for no particular reason except that it keeps you laughing throughout.

Bill Boyd again appears as a humanly humorous smart aleck, which seems to be the type the public demands of him. This time Boyd and Alan Hale are teamed as "two-fisted workers on both dams and feminine hearts." They swing back and forth over the highest dam in the world without the bat of an eye, but when the girl "looking for 'clucks' with loose jack" comes to town, they fall like weaklings and are both duped by the same gold-digger.

Jaqueline Logan very capably plays this girl of "Quaker mien and crafty heart." There are thrilling fights and near-accidents, but the picture is essentually a comedy." Photoplay with IRENE RICH and WARNER BAXTER

"WILLIAM DEMILLE gives a brilliant picturization of a Broadway success, completely avoiding spectacular melodrama and forced situations. It starts quietly enough, but with a sure, smooth tempo, builds to a tensely dramatic finish. The director has surpassed himself in his unique power to portray the intrinsic drama of the ordinary human frailties.

Irene Rich, as a woman who married wisely, but too well, has a rare opportunity to show her gift for intimate characterization.

Warner Baxter plays the role of the slightly henpecked gentleman with marvelous sympathy and restraint. A simple story, yet its handling makes it drama of the highest order." Photoplay

Points of Trade

Did you ever stop to think how you've become accustomed to reading certain periodicals and newspapers —how other magazines and papers seem uninteresting and difficult to digest?

And further, that your favorites carry a group of advertisers that have become almost your exclusive points of trade?

You have confidence in your pet publications—they are high-class and so are the advertisers.

"A Dolores Del Rio MASTERPIECE. A gypsy romance of fire and passion, barbaric in its surging emotions, colorful as a Romany costume, glamorous with romantic charm, dynamic in its dramatic sweep."

"'Revenge is one of the finest works of screen art that Hollywood has yet produced. It will thrill you. She is a little wildcat, raging, fighting, defiant, fascinating, adorable."

"An interesting story that delights the eye and has a dramatic tensity that stirs the emotions of the heart."

"'REVENGE WILL CLICK AT THE BEST THEATRES. It has plenty of audience appeal, the women should rave over Dolores and her fight to find a man to love. One of the best staged stories of gypsy life and love that has ever been molded into a motion picture production."

"The Carnival has virtually built a campaign ahead of you—tie in with it and reap the profits of the screen's 'capital feat of production'."

"This angle would permit converting the marquee or front of the theatre into the semblance of a tent. A pink lemonade stand, a side show can be installed, both through local tie-ups."

"You can't neglect that cast. Any billing that doesn't play up the Sills, Mackaill, Compson combination will be ridiculous. They are ready-money names that sell themselves. But just to glorify the cast, without selling the individual color, life and flavor of this particular story, is like smoking cheap tobacco in a Dunhill pipe."

"'The Barker' is about show people, but a type that the screen has never really portrayed,—the cooch dancer, snake charmer, pitchman, fakir, the barker. Everyone knows them. How do they live when the day's ballyhoo is over? Here is a spark to kindle anybody's imagination."

"If all the world loves a love story, then a super-production featuring three love stories in one, three different kinds of love stories, should and will prove to be a great drawing card."

"Take your scene cut on Angle No. 1. Just picture that on the front of a theatre with Betty Compson doing a real hula dance and Milton Sills waving his stick up and down. Then take a three-sheet cut-out of Sills in that same pose and plant it in all the merchants' windows in town, tieing in the title 'THE BARKER'."

"Go to a carnival. See the people who go in the side shows, drink lemonade, eat hot dogs, win a doll baby, see the ape man and the hula dancer. Then go to the theatre. Do you see them there? No. Well, here is a chance to get new patrons and perhaps keep them coming often."

"The carnival angle is the one I am going to exploit, and have already laid my plans. I have an Arcade Theatre under my management and am going to decorate the arcade with carnival colors, 'Red Lemonade,' side shows, and even a 'Barker.' This carnival setting gives me the best break I have had for some time."

Highlights of the Week

Great Pictures Are Big News Events

By William A. Johnston

THE chief concern of this business is, or should be, pictures. A great picture is a news event of the first importance. . . . That's why we give first place in our comment this week to the "Patriot" . . . Directed superbly by Lubitsch and acted by Emil Jannings, Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor and Harry Cording. . . . A magnificent piece of work, with Jannings in the finest role of his career. . . . An inspired film, carrying powerful box-office appeal. . . . The sound effects are interesting, but they are not really necessary. . . . This picture is a credit to the screen. . . . It's the stuff by which this industry has got where it is today.

. . . Still on the subject of pictures: give a thought to "The Terror," the newest Warner talkie. . . . Box-office, sure-fire for theatres with installations. . . . Showing distinct improvements in talkie technique. . . . Unique, too, because it's the first with spoken subtitles. . . . In our opinion, the best strictly dialogue picture so far produced. . . . There are defects, of course, but why point them out when it's so obviously slated for a box-office landslide. . . .

Believing that one of the prime jobs of the trade paper is to gauge and report major trends in the big territory west of Broadway, we recently sent our exhibitor staff member out into the Middle West. . . . A summary of conditions as he found them appears in this issue. . . . There are some pertinent observations on the sound picture, as the theatre managers see it. . . . And this is one of them: the public is demanding the all-talkie.

. . . Harold Franklin pointed out in his letter to us last week: synchronized scores and sound effects don't seem to mean so much.

. . . Food for a lot of thought in that. . . . May we also rise to remark that the industry —producers and exhibitors alike—cannot be too careful how they advertise sound pictures. Meaning this: there are several kinds of sound —synchronized scores; sound effects; dialogue; incidental songs rendered during the action of the story. . . . Don't mislead the public into believing they are going to hear talk when they are not. . . . Just a word of friendly advice on the eve of the new season.

* * * *

This is the show business. . . . It is well to remember that at all times. . . . Show business means ideas. . . . In production, distribution, exploitation—all along the line.

. . . One of the best ideas we have seen recently is a little 68 page booklet issued by Universal, covering its entire product, for distribution to the public through theatres.

. . . Written, of course, in fan style. . . . Attractively put together, with the last page blank for the imprint of the name of the theatre. . . . Fine stuff. . . . Our congratulations to Nat G. Rothstein on an excellent piece of showmanship. . . .

* * * *

This is also a business of surprises. . . . Joseph P. Kennedy withdraws from First National after it had appeared that everything was set for his five year association with the company. . . . The cause: policy differences. . . . Well, you never can tell in this business what'll happen next. . . . That's what makes it so interesting. . . .

Shall the Public Know?

August 21, 1928.

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston,
Motion Picture News,
New York, N. Y.
Dear Mr. Johnston:

In the current issue of the News, I noted a letter from an exhibitor requesting information as to whether it would be right to explain the purely technical data on sound motion pictures in forthcoming publicity.

I heartily concur with your expressed opinion that it is utterly wrong. Let us save the illusion just as long as possible, and broadcast the information as to the great things being done by these instruments.

Surely, there is arising a new form of "sound showmanship," which I find ever so much fascinating. As I write this I have prepared a short announcement for our public address system. I intend using it to announce in advance the Smith acceptance speech tomorrow night, with particular stress on the importance this is to motion pictures, i.e., "the first time in motion picture history when theatregoers can see and hear an important public event in a theatre auditorium exactly as it is happening miles away, and at the same moment."

With reference to publicizing purely technical matter, I recall having protested regarding a detailed account of the technique of peparing the "flying horse" and "magic carpet" which appeared in the Sunday edition of the "Boston Post," during the run or release date of "Thief of Bagdad." The original story was in the "Scientific American" or "Popular Mechanics." To have appeared in that magazine, the story would come under the head of "good publicity," but to have appeared as a feature story in a Sunday edition of a family newspaper was, in my opinion, a mistake.

With best wishes, I remain,
Cordially yours,
HARRY F. STORIN,
Leroy Theatre Co.,
Pawtucket, R. I.

Film Pool in Canada

Half of Toronto's Theatres Identified With Movement; Much Interest Aroused

A "FILM POOL" has been organized in Ontario along the lines of the wheat, dairy and other pools among the farmers of the Dominion.

The movement has found its way to the moving picture business in the establishment of the Exhibitors Co-operative, Limited, with head office at Toronto, a joint stock company registered under the laws of the Province of Ontario. The organization was given its start at a general meeting of theatre men in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, and practically half of the 104 theatres in Toronto are identified with the "pool." During the process of organization, film buying on the part of the independents has been held up to a considerable extent and much interest is being taken in the new body by exchange and others.

The Exhibitors Co-operative, Limited, has issued a statement in which the purposes of the company were outlined as follows: "The corporation is organized on a basis of collective buying of films and supplies in order to obtain strength in combined buying power, to obtain fair treatment and to maintain fair competition. No powers whatsoever will be taken from the individual exhibitors. The Co-operative can only buy for him what he specifies and desires and at a price with which he is satisfied." The charter states that the company is for the mutual protection and benefit of exhibitors and profits, if any, are to be distributed among shareholders. All shareholders are exhibitors with the exception of the chairman, secretary-treasurer and buying agent. The board of directors is made up of 31 men, elected by the members, and powers are delegates to an executive committee and a buying board.

The officers are among the veteran independent exhibitors of Toronto, including W. A. Baillie, proprietor of the Cumbac Theatre for years, as president, and Nathan Taylor, proprietor of the Monarch Theatre for a long time, as secretary-treasurer. J. E. Lawson, a Toronto lawyer, is chairman and Bud Lennon, a veteran exchange man of Toronto, is the buying agent.

King Vidor to direct All-Negro Picture

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer that King Vidor, the director of "The Big Parade" and "The Crowd" will transfer an original story of negro life, written by himself, to the screen, starting production within a month.

The Vidor story will be made on location throughout the South. It will be based, according to the company's statement, on the totally free from any racial propaganda angle.

There wil be only one white person in the cast of the new film, which will employ a large cast of colored actors and extras.

Incorporations Filed at Albany Last Week

Companies incorporating in the motion picture business in New York state, and filing the necessary papers with the department of state in Albany during the past week, included the following: E & L Theatrical Corporation, $25,000, Lewis and Elies Moses, Hannah Graubord, Stapleton, L. I.; Kader Productions, Incorporated, capitalization not specified, Merwin F. DeVine, Albert E. Marks, Herman Roth, New York City; Wildhone Productions, Inc., $50,000, Sidney Kalfus, Bertha Safier, Rae Monsky, Brooklyn; Hyman Productions, Inc., $20,000, Hortense, Florence and Lionel Hyman, New York City; Arden Productions Co., Inc., capitalization not stated, William Edelson, Louis Feldman, Emma Dresdner, New York City; Brown, Powell & Deering, Inc., $40,000, Arthur G. Brown, George T. Powell, Ralph H. Deering, Lewiston.

Hamrick Opens Another Seattle 1st Run

Another first run theatre was recently added to Seattle's list of ten downtown houses when John Hamrick's new Music Box theatre opened its doors. Mr. Hamrick is head of the Blue Mouse Theatre Circuit, operating in Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. The new house is located on 5th Avenue between Pike and Union Streets and directly across from the Blue Mouse theatre.

The Music Box is of Spanish Renaissance in style, seats 1,000 and will be operated as a long run feature house with admission at 50c and 75c all times. Vitaphone and Movietone equipment is installed and "Glorions Betsy" was the opening attraction.

Andrew Sasso is house manager and has as his assistant Robert Murray. Vic Gauntlett will supervise advertising and publicity.

Elm Circuit Acquired by Sam Pinanski

The New England Theatre Operating Company, Sam Pinanski president, recently added to his company's theatre holdings by completing details for the purchase of the Elm Amusement circuit, consisting of the Marlboro theatre, Marlboro; the Elm theatre, North Attleboro; the Gem theatre, East Boston and the Milford Opera House, Milford. All in Massachusetts.

There had been an operating arrangement between Julius Levenson, owner of the Elm circuit, and Netoco but this deal gives the latter full control. Whether or not Levenson will retire from exhibition circles is not known at present.

Columbia Will Roadshow "Submarine"

Columbia Pictures Corporation will roadshow "Submarine," starring Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier and Ralph Graves, according to a recent announcement from the company.

Jack Holt is in the role of a deep sea diver and the film is said to contain some hazardous shots and unusual photography, along with a navy love story.

Sunday Movies Pass at Sioux Rapids, Ia.

Sioux Rapids, Iowa, recently admitted Sunday movies with the passing of an ordinance by the city council permitting Sunday shows. The council was petitioned by over 300 residents that the Sunday amusements be allowed in Sioux Rapids in spite of the state blue law.

Survey of Mid-West Theatre Conditions Completed

Exhibitor Member of News' Staff Finds Sound Pictures Regarded as Permanent; Quality as Box-Office Stimulant

By CHARLES E. LEWIS

Editor, Managers' Round Table Club

IN summing up the results of the mid-western tour, just remember that when I started out I was more or less prejudiced against Sound Pictures so far as their lasting value to the industry was concerned. Naturally, wherever I went I took all good comment with a grain of salt and all bad comment with a smile. But common sense had to prevail in the long run and before the trip was half over I had to admit that I was wrong. Sound Pictures are here to stay and when the production of them becomes more stabilized, when the quality of them improves with time, when exhibitors at large know how to sell them and present them, they are going to be a boom to the business.

The Toledo Case

How else can one look at this situation when you recall the tremendous success of the Vita-Temple Theatre in Toledo, where Sound Pictures are sold and presented better than anywhere else that I have been? When I visited towns and talked to exhibitors who showed me their books before and after the installation of the sound plants, and their figures proved that this new angle of the business lifted them out of the deep "red" into good profits, and right at the time of the year when under normal circumstances business is naturally poor? Someone once said, "There is no argument against success," and I must fall back on that expression because regardless of my own previous views, the success of the theatres where sound pictures are now playing, shows that they are what the public want and only the perfection of them is needed to place them where they will mean stimulated business and profits for the many theatres now in a bad slump and sadly in need of such stimulation.

Keep in mind that Sound Pictures were not the only reason for my trip. I was just as interested in theatres without talkie plants and during the trip I found conditions much better out in Western Ohio and Indiana than I had left them in the East. I thought that the smaller towns were presenting their shows far better than many similar towns in the east. Theatres were being run somewhat better and kept better looking, the advertising and exploitation seemed lots more "peppy" and as a whole it was both educational and interesting. It was gratifying to learn direct from the many exhibitors whom I talked to, that our Round Table Club was looked forward to week after week, that many of the suggestions were tried and found successful and increased box office receipts. That theatre operation ideas were actually in use. These things were important to me because I then knew that the CLUB was of real value to exhibitors and managers and they had faith in it because it was "Conducted by Exhibitors for Exhibitors." What they read on the CLUB pages they know was written or suggested by theatre men and was not a child of imagination. To know that the NEWS is used for the many valuable aids it offers to the theatre man was likewise of great interest because Mr. Johnston has often told me that he wanted the NEWS to be the right hand" to every exhibitor in the country. And that is what the majority of them call it. To find "real" exhibitors reading and digesting every page of every issue of the NEWS shows the interest they have in what is going on elsewhere and right now that is a paramount factor to many of them. What is the other man doing? They asked that over and over again and the best answer I could think of was "Read the NEWS." And then to find all of Mr. Johnston's editorials carefully preserved and bound in a book with the remark from the exhibitor who had it that "This is my Bible."

On Overseating

The "overseating" situation I found was not as prevalent in the mid-west as in the east, but many towns have new and large theatres in the process of construction that are bound to change theatrical history in those towns. The circuits are gradually creeping into these different towns and many instances I could not help thinking that bad judgment was used. Why is it that if a town is doing a fair business someone gets a notion that another theatre should be built? It is often proved so wrong that one would imagine that they would look twice before they leaped. And then when they do build, nothing short of a half million dollar proposition will do. Investments far beyond what the town calls for and headaches for everyone after they start business. But it's like hitting your head against a stone wall. They will keep on doing those things anyway.

Looking at the paid manager's angle in the mid-west section of the country brings out the fact that these managers are really

A New Service for Exhibitor Readers

EFFECTIVE with this issue, Motion Picture News is indicating in the "Complete Release Chart" pictures which are synchronized with sound. These are grouped in three classifications: pictures having synchronized music scores; those with sound effects; and "voice" pictures, including dialogue, incidental songs, etc.

Symbols appearng opposite the name of the picture in the "Release Chart" designate the type of sound used. Cases where pictures have more than one type of sound, as for instance, synchronized scores and sound effects; or scores and dialogue; or sound effects and dialogue, etc., are indicated.

As rapidly as additional information on sound pictures is available from producers, it will be added to the "Release Chart." About 200 features have been definitely announced for synchronization, thus far. The number will undoubtedly be considerably increased.

Raquel Torres, a new dscovery from Mexico, as she appears in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first sound picture, "White Shadows in the South Seas," a Cosmopolitan production

Adolphe Menjou, Paramount star, and his four prize winning Sealyham terriers. The one with his tongue hanging out is named Reckless; next, is Pat, and then Blick. A shadow almost obscures Jacques on the extreme right

Lya De Putti, of "Variety" fame, made a personal appearance at the premiere of "The Scarlet Lady," a Columbia production in which she is starred. This picture is running at the Embassy, New York City

The newest photo of Liane Haid, attractive Defu-star, whose latest picture 'Two Red Roses" was finished recently. She has already started on her new four-year contract with Defu, First National's German production unit. Note the doggie at her right

Milt Gross, the author of "Nize Baby," which has been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is being welcomed to Hollywood by Joan Crawford. Milt has been engaged by M-G-M as gag man and he will adapt his "Nize Baby" to the screen

Nancy Carroll, all ready to drop a football between the goal posts. Miss Carroll admits that football is her hobby but in addition does very nicely as a featured Paramount player

Hollywood and Sound Pictures

Pomeroy Film Stirs Enthusiasm; Harold Lloyd May Use Talking Sequences; Rockett Discusses Dangers of Technical Changes

By EDWIN SCHALLERT

Editor of The Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News

LOS ANGELES, August 20.—More complications are looming in the sound-film field. Some of the best recordings to date have, I understand, been made under the direction of Roy J. Pomeroy at the Paramount studios, and they represent a deviation from methods that are now in current use. It is only a slight deviation in certain aspects, but it will require additional equipment in the theatres where installations have been made.

The method which Pomeroy, who is in charge of sound production, at the West Coast studio, employs, is different to the extent that two separate films are used. On one of these the picture is photographed, and on the other the sound.

Lloyd Optimistic

Those who have heard the Pomeroy recordings are highly enthusiastic. Among them, Harold Lloyd is extremely optimistic regarding future possibilities of sound. He is now determined to have as much talk as feasible in his new comedy, and will give large place to effects. Some of the scenes of the picture will be laid in Chinatown, during a tong war, so it may be conjectured that the results will be novel and spectacular at once.

Production on Lloyd's picture will begin between Sept. 1 and 10. It will be photographed in its entirety as a silent feature first, with certain situations built up for their adaptibility to synchronization. None of these will be dialogued, however, until the film is completed, and perhaps previewed. With a finished and edited positive, the work of injecting sound sequences will be started. It means virtually that the picture will be put out in two different forms, and while this is not strictly a new expedient, since Warner Brothers have made the Jolson and other films in a similar way, it is interesting to find that Lloyd has adopted a similar plan. It seems about the only one that lends itself to the needs of the bigger stars, whose large foreign trade has to be considered.

Douglas Fairbanks had practically adopted the same plan in the making of "The Iron Mask," even before Lloyd, and Charles Chaplin is also to include edited-in sound effects, and perhaps also dialogue in his film. Whether Charlie himself will do any talking is in doubt, but the film will have some exceedingly novel effects, and possibly some dialogue, in which supporting characters will engage. Chaplin's ability as a pantominist is naturally so highly rated, and has been such an inherent part of his work over a period of years, that he probably naturally hesitates to depart too much from his accustomed style of comedying in the current film. It is generally believed that he is correct in this viewpoint.

Doug has gone much farther than he originally intended in his sound plans. At one time, he intended only to use effects, but now it is virtually certain that his film will be dialogued, as well.

Sound the Sole Topic

The sweep of sound activities has been remarkable in the past few weeks. Hollywood practically talks nothing else. The news interest in silent films has dropped to nil. On every hand is heard the phrase "the new voice of the movies."

The economic side of the situations is not disregarded, but it is rather generally relegated to an obscure place. It is felt that the profits from those theatres equipped with sound will be so great during the coming winter that it behooves everybody to plunge into the game, regardless of the fact that the total number of installations will assuredly not exceed, if it quite attains

Distribution For World Wide

Williams Completes Deal With Educational for Physical Handling of Films; Will Not Affect Latter's Sales Policy

A NEW source of feature film supply for American and Canadian theatres and a far reaching change in international motion picture commerce are promised as a result of the formation of World Wide Pictures, Inc., following lengthy negotiations on both sides of the Atlantic. The new company's officials are J. Douglas Watson, President; J. D. Williams, Vice-President; John Maxwell and E. W. Hammons, directors. Mr. Watson is chairman of United Motion Picture Producers, Ltd., of London; John Maxwell is internationally known as the head of British International Pictures, Ltd.

For the first time in the history of the industry adequate national American distribution of imported productions direct to theatres through a channel devoted exclusively to their sale and exploitation is assured. All overseas product regardless of country of origin will be handled.

"Our company is internationally financed, one of London's strongest groups have co-operated with a powerful American Banking institution to obtain the capital," states J. D. Williams.

"All 'World Wide Pictures' will be sold on merit on an individual basis. We propose to give all countries' producers an equal chance. World Wide Pictures, Inc., our importing and distributing concern, will function as the sales and exploitation ageney. A national sales staff is in process of formation.

"Educational Film Exchanges will physically distribute our product. This will in no wise interfere with that Company's short subject business.

While this new source of film supply will most benefit American exhibitors, the proposition as a whole is certain to favorably affect the entire world industry. We will brng novelty and variety of entertainment from the lands of romance overseas. We will provide an open market for producers of other countries so they ean no longer complain that their pictures have no chance in America. Entertainment value will hereafter gauge the saleability of imported pictures just as it does American films. European eountries are energetieally developing their own film industries for national reasons. Some fine, novel pictures are sure to result. We shall select only those which promise profit to American theatres. We expect to offer thirty to fifty imported pictures a year from the outset."

Announcement of initial product will be made within a few days. Selling for Fall exhibition will follow trade showing of the first group of pictures.

Arrangements for the physical distribution of World Wide Pietures' feature subjects through Educational's exchanges will not in any way affect the sales policy of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., which always has been and will continue to be a specialist in short subjects exclusively, ac-

An Important Step

J. D. WILLIAMS and his English associates are about to begin distribution of British and Continental pictures in the American market. Educational will have the physical handling of the product; Jaydee's company, World Wide, will have its own sales force.

For the first time, then, pictures from abroad will come into this market on their own—through a regularly organized distribution plan, which is most certainly the way to go about it. In fact, it is the only way in which foreign product can become established firmly in this country.

Furthermore, the World Wide will not sell its pictures in block, but individually.

The entry of World Wide into the American market is a film event of first rate importance. We welcome the company to America; and salute Jaydee as the pioncer of genuine reciprocity. W. A. J.

Predicts Warners Will Have Surplus Of $2,000,000 by End of Year

IT is predicted by Earl E. Crowe, author of an article in "The Times," a Los Angeles newspaper, that the $2,000,000 surplus required by Warner Bros. for "A" stock retirement will be reached by the end of this year. The proposed plan is to secure "B" listings on the New York stock exchange, call in the "A" and encourage conversion into "B." A deficit of $1,667,000 has been erased and the surplus now stands at about $1,000,000, according to the report.

The article goes on to state that when Paramount, First National, M-G-M and other companies catch up with their sound picture schedule, Warner's future will not be so clearly defined but that at the present, with talking picture product available and exhibitors clamoring for it, Warner Bros. have and are building up a commanding lead in the sound field.

While Warner Bros. have little theatre outlet for their product the demand has forced the big circuits to book it and in addition the company has another source of revenue from machine royalties and Vitaphone records used in prologues and vaudeville acts.

Injunction Obtained by Clinton-Meyers

Eight Companies Restrained From Refusing To Serve Films to N. W. Exhibitor

AN injunction has been obtained against eight companies for refusing to serve films to J. B. Clinton, of the Clinton-Meyers circuit, operating five theatres at Duluth and one at Proctor, Minn. A similar restraining order has also been secured by H. A. Drummond, exhibitor of Thief River Falls, Minn.

Mr. Clinton's court action was based upon a decision handed down by the arbitration board which the Northwest exhibitor unit has refused to recognize, the case being one brought against him by the United Artists, seeking the enforcement of an existing contract. Clinton questioned the authority of the existing arbitration board and refused to abide by this decision.

The board took advantage of the clause of the standard contract which provides for "default verdicts and after Clinton's refusal of the decision, eight film companies asked for deposits before furnishing service to the Clinton-Meyers houses. Clinton refused to make the deposits and suspension of service resulted.

Motion for a permanent injunction has been made by Clinton and a hearing scheduled for the past week has been postponed until the eight companies perfect their answer to the motion.

All this came about from last Spring's fight, when the exhibitor association would not permit its members to sit in on cases which involved the United Artists company, in protest against non-theatrical service. C. C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Film Boards of Trade, then declared the association members disqualified, and the Film Board named three non-members to serve on the board. The association has passed the word to its members to ignore the new board. The result of this action is that some have done so and others have complied with awards.

Mid-West Survey Completed

what their title implies and not just figureheads or office boys. They have a big responsibility and know how to look after what has been placed in their charge. They are "showmen" in every sense of the word and they must sink or swim on their own ability to handle their respective jobs. They know how to acquire the knack of affiliating themselves with the local organizations of the town, become members of the Chambers of Commerce, tie up with different merchants and in general keep strings on every conceivable angle that might mean business. It was a genuine pleasure to sit down and talk to men like this and best of all I liked their idea of jumping to nearby towns to visit brother managers. There is nothing that broadens one's views more than to get out and see and talk to others in the business. Just walking through the "other" fellow's theatre may bring to light many good ideas that could be used in your own theatre. And they are capable for their jobs and fitted to go into any town or city in the country, get their bearings and put over a house.

Good Showmanship

I found that the audience reaction differed somewhat in the Middle West. What seemed to impress me was the fact that they were getting their money's worth in entertainment. Not alone in quantity or quality, but in the way it was presented to them. After all entertainment is like food, in that no one can enjoy good food if served on a dirty or sloppy plate. And they had theirs served in a good showmanlike manner. Small details were far more carefully watched, such as appearance of ushers, doormen, cashiers, projection and lighting in and out of the theatres. These all constitute the "surroundings and atmosphere" that are so necessary to proper showmanship and it was gratifying to note how these items were so well taken care of.

Of course I found the usual quota of skeptics and pessimists—those men who can only see clouds no matter how bright the sun may be shining. But meeting and talking to them only helped to emphasize the better side of the business and the more cheerful outlook for the immediate future. In most cases where they cried about bad business I hardly wondered that it was bad. Their theatres were in bad condition, projection not poor but rotten, help sloppy and things in general run down. Looking over their territory brought to light nearby towns with good theatres where the theatregoer was finding plenty of satisfaction in the line of entertainment. And these "criers" are doomed to certain "death" unless they stop crying long enough to look around and make their theatres what the name implies and not "dumps."

Holding Back on Buying

The reluctance of almost every exhibitor in buying product for next season was a revelation. I knew that there was no particular rush to buy product, but the greater majority of them are not even giving it any thought and here we are only a short few weeks away from the next season. In some cases this condition was brought about by over-buying last year and they want a chance to run off what they already have contracted for. But in most cases they are simply holding back to see "what's going to happen." This especially applies to those with sound plants. With every big producer and many of the small ones, announcing so much sound product, they want to be sure that they are going to buy the right pictures. Several of them told me in mighty plain words that they had no intention of buying product until after October 1. Why they select that date they could not explain unless they felt that by that time they would better know what they wanted to use. If they did not have enough pictures to carry them into the season they would buy one product or independent pictures. That there is no secret about this particular statement is best reflected by a conversation I had with two film salesmen who were almost frantic because they could not get any action from the exhibitors. They told me that even the little "dumps" were holding back. And what chance did they have with the subsequent runs when they couldn't sell the first runs. And so it is bound to be interesting when they do start to buy.

Exhibitors in towns that in the past played one night stand companies are now worried about the threatened invasion of the movie field by the big New York producers with "Talkie" shows of the big successes. Their viewpoint is that a road show did not hurt them too much because it was a "regular" play and their public did not confuse it with pictures. But should the "Opry Houses" go talkie with regular shows they will find themselves with real competition on their hands. And quite a few of them feel that this will happen before long. So here again is another angle that is worth watching.

Child Ban on Pictures But Not Burlesque

A CHILD under 16 years of age may attend a burlesque show, even on Sunday, in Montreal, Quebec, but the same child is barred from entering a theatre where one or more reels of moving pictures are being presented whether he is accompanied by an adult or not.

This was brought out at Montreal in connection with the re-opening of the Gayety Burlesque Theatre in that city on August 19 for the season. This was one of the points to the situation in the Province of Quebec which has been caused by the enforcement of the new law prohibiting the admission of children to moving picture theatres anywhere anytime. The point was given prominence in the newspapers by the exhibitors association of Montreal.

Lasky Okays Schoedsack-Cooper Negative

Negative recently brought back from Africa by Ernest Schoedsack and Meriam Cooper taken during their latest expedition to the jungle, is soon to be whipped into shape at Hollywood, according to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky.

The two adventurers will begin work Sept. 24 at the Paramount studio directing episodes to be woven with pictorial matter and the title of the production, claimed to be of roadshow calibre, will be "Four Feathers."

Mr. Lasky stated that the picture is not one of the travel films but that it will combine the best production made possible by studio facilities and the dramatic force of nature. Richard Arlen has been selected as one of the cast.

"Four Feathers" will have complete synchronization, with sound effects of African wild and native life.

U. A. Executives Gather in New York City

Executives of United Artists Corporation and its unit members are arriving in New York daily. Sunday, August 19th, Abraham Lehr, Vice-President of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., came to New York from California. The following day John W. Considine, Jr., General Manager of Production of the Art Cinema Corporation, and Gerrit J. Lloyd, sound dialogue writer for that unit, reached New York. Tuesday, August 21st, there came from Europe, on the S/S Majestic, Joseph M. Schenck, President of United Artists, and Arthur W. Kelly, Vice-President and General Manager of Foreign Distribution of the same company.

Two New U. A. Films Will Have Russian Stories

"The Shop," based on a Pushkin tale, and "Taras Bulba," Gogol's story, were chosen this week as the story material for two new United Artists productions. Both will be filmed with sound and dialogue, it is announced. "The Shop" will star Rod La Rocque while "Taras Bulba," a story of the Cossocks, will be made as a special.

Schenck Returns from European Tour

Reiterates London Statement on Talking Pictures But Says United Artists Will Make Some

JOSEPH M. SCHENCK, president and chairman of the Board of Directors of United Artists Corporation, returned to New York this week after a five weeks' tour of England and the Continent and in an interview with local newspaper and trade press practically reiterated statements given to the press in London.

Mr. Schenck again expressed a personal opinion that the novelty of talking pictures would be short lived, praised the use of sound effects with the motion picture, amplified his former statement concerning the quota system, gave out some interesting information about a deal with the Soviet, discussed politics, conditions in Russia and touched on some of U. A.'s plans for the coming season.

As to his company's plans in the talking picture field, Mr. Schenck said that they would produce this type of picture just as long as there was public demand but that personally he thought little of them in the way of entertainment. Those that he had heard he deemed unnatural in tone, as far as the human voice was concerned, and admitted that he had been correctly quoted by the British papers to the effect that "they would not last more than five months."

"However, during the vogue of talking pictures, we will make them, and we won't have to call on the ranks of the legitimate players for any aid," said Mr. Schenck. "All our artists can speak a line as well as any one connected with the legitimate stage and with the exception of engaging Harry Richman, of George White's Scandals, to do a Berlin-Richman picture which will deal with the birth and history of jazz and its relation to a young singer in 'tin-pan- alley,' there has been no other effort in this direction. This picture will have dialogue and songs and will be made so as to be shown in both silent and sound equipped theatres."

The use of sound effects, such as passing of a Zeppelin, a tap on the window or other mystery effects, Mr. Schenck warmly praised as a valuable adjunct to the motion picture but he is of the opinion that "spoken sub-titles will not add to the drama of the film." On the other hand, he thinks they will detract.

Arguing that the silent drama could very well stand on its own legs in the way of entertainment, Mr. Schenck stated that all seven theatres owned by United Artists were showing a nice profit without the use of even a presentation and that there were cases where his company's product, used in connection with some method of presentation, did not come anywhere near making a proper return on the investment.

An important deal Mr. Schenck made in Russia with the Soviet Government was effecting the loan of S. M. Eisenstein, producer and director of "Potemkin." This was made through the Sovkino, the government film bureau. Plans for Eisentein to make one picture for United Atrists are definitely under way and it is possible that, on account of Mr. Schenck's business relations with the Soviet, the "loan" may be extended for a longer period than one year.

Hughes Plans Fight Against Censorship

ASSERTING that censor boards throughout the country had censored portions of "The Racket" for "political reasons," Howard Hughes, producer of the film, has declared his intention of battling municipal and state censorship. Hughes alleges that the censor bodies cut his film because of "purely political self-consciousness" and he decries the fact that the freedom of speech which is enjoyed by press and stage does not apply to the screen.

The producer bitterly denounces the supervision of censors over films in a telegram to the Hays office. Hughes says he has been advised that 25 subtitles were eliminated by the New York state censors and that the picture was barred in its entirety in Portland, Ore., and Dallas, Tex., and that other city and state boards have vented their dislike for the picture by censorship.

Goldwyn Selects Colman's Next Vehicle

Following "Resene," a Ronald Colman picture taken from a Joseph Conrad story and which is now in the final stages of production, Samuel Goldwyn has selected "Condemned to Devil's Island," a Blair Niles story, as the next Colman vehicle.

"Devil's Island" is the French penal colony in French Guiana and it is said that the French Government has promised its cooperation in the making of the picture. A large part of the picture will probably be made on actual location.

Important Role for Extra In New Barrymore Film

Ernst Lubitsch, director of various stars, has selected a hitherto unknown extra girl, Mona Rico, to play the second female lead opposite John Barrymore in his next United Artists picture, Camilla Horn is leading lady.

Victor Varconi also has been given a role in the new Barrymore film which will be a picture version of "Der Konig der Bernina," a story of a Swiss mountaineer.

F B O Signs for Phillipine Distribution

Acme Films, Inc., of Manila, will distribute all F B O product in the Phillipines, including 1928-29 releases, as the result of a recent deal effected by Ambrose Dowling, manager of the F B O Export Corporation.

Silent Shorts for "U"

Company Plans Extensive Schedule of One and Two Reelers Without Sound

DESPITE all the effort Universal is to put into music and sound synchronization of its feature product, the company is also going ahead with a production schedule of silent pictures, particularly in the short subject field. With regard to the short product, Lou B. Metzger, general sales manager for Universal said:

"Universal has not let up one whit in the making of silent short product. In fact, we actually have increased our efforts in this field. We are concentrating on the best possible one and two-reel subjects we can make. Our line-up will be stronger than ever before. The product already in hand assures this.

"Mr. Laemmle has not permitted the furors over Sound Pictures to change his silent picture policy one iota. Universal promised a full line-up of pictures, including an entire short subject schedule, for the 1928-1929 season, and nothing will make him change his plans or break his promise. What steps Universal is taking in the Sound field are in addition to our program of silent production.

"The Short Subject production is well in hand. Three serials out of five are in the making, one of them almost completed. The Stern Brothers have more than half of their scheduled 52 two-reel comedies already in the exchanges. The Oswald, the Lucky Rabbit Cartoons, the Horace in Hollywood Comedies and the Laemmle Novelties are about half-way along in production. The Third Collegians, the third series of that popular sequence of two reelers, is well into production. The Fourth Collegians will go into production late this Fall. In the two-reel Western field, we have made a number of the Texas Ranger series with George Chandler, and are well along with the Stunt Cowboy series with Bob Curwood. The Northwest Mount series, with Edmund Cobb is about half finished.

Academy and Sound

Hollywood Organization Will Vote on Sound Clause in Contract; Raps Poor Projection in Theatres

AN amendment to the standard contract was drafted last week by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and will shortly be voted on by the actors' unit. The change in the contract provides that players who work in dialogue sequences of talking pictures should work under the same conditions that prevail for retakes when a player is paid only on days actually employed. The contract referred to is that for free lancers.

Under the retake system players are asked to aid the producer and they are not restricted to accepting other engagements.

The Academy was also occupied with another matter last week, that of bad projection. This bogy to theatres the Academy blamed as contributing to the reported drop in theatre intakes. The Academy's statement declared that destructive projection exists in nine-tenths of the country's theatres.

Charles Schoenbaum said that often a bad screen should be blamed, while Arthur Miller emphasized the "vicious practice of projecting the pictures too fast." Producers and distributors, it was said, seem often unaware of the manner in which their product is exhibited.

Another point that was brought out in the discussion of perfect projection was that Electrical Research Products, which marks the Western Electric equipment for sound pictures, insists on perfect projection as essential for sound reproduction.

Caddo Will Add Sound to "Titanic"

IN line with the development of synchronized movies, the Caddo Company has decided to incorporate the latest sound innovations in its projected spectacle, "Titanic."

The decision to add sound effects to the sea film, which will be based on an original story by Wilson Mizner and Carl Harbaugh, and will be directed by Lewis Milestone, will delay production on the picture until next fall.

Meanwhile the ocean story will be scenarized, and Milestone will direct another picture to follow "The Racket," his latest Caddo release.

The new sound equipment and stages being constructed at the Metropolitan studio will be completed in the near future and will probably be utilized by Caddo for both "Titanic" and "Hell's Angels," which will have sound effects also.

Educational Has Eleven for Sept. Release

Educational has eleven pictures, all new season's product for early fall showing, which it will release to exhibitors during the month of September. This does not include the regular semi-weekly issues of Kinograms news. There are six two-reel comedies, one two-reel aviation thriller, two one-reel comedies, two one-reel novelty or magazine subjects and the Kinograms releases on the month's program.

"Big Boy's" first starring vehicle for 1927-28, "Hot Luck," sees him in the role of a mascot of a fire station house; Lupino Lane starts the new season auspiciously with a pirate picture titled "Pirates Beware"; Jerry Drew, starts the new series of Ideal Comedies in which he is to be the star, with "Girlies Behave." "The Sky Ranger," the first two-reel aviation romance in the series of "Russ Farrell, Aviator" pictures, features Reed Howes; Al St. John is back in the initial Mermaid of the new season, "Call Your Shots"; Monty Collins, who made a name for himself in Mermaid and Cameo Comedies last season, is featured in "Polar Perils," another Mermaid; Two Cameo Comedies are scheduled for the month. In one, "Cook, Papa, Cook," Henry Murdock and Lucille Hutton appear and Robert Graves, who is best known for his character roles, branches out as a comedian of rare capabilities in "Wife Trouble."

"Thrills of the Sea," is the first issue of the film magazine, "Our World Today," another group of Educational Pictures; "On The Move" is the new Lyman H. Howe's Hodge-Podge and Kinograms news reel, will have its usual highlights of the news.

FBO Studio Starting 7 New Productions

The F B O studio is now swinging into the second lap of production for the 1928-29 program, camera work on seven new productions having been announced to start within the next week and a half.

Ben Lyon will be featured in "The Air Legion; Marceline Day, Owen Moore and Rex Lease will star in "Stolen Love"; Seena Owen and Tom Moore will begin work within a week on "His Last Haul"; Tom Mix, having finished his first F B O western, will soon get into action on his second vehicle, a western story in an Arabian setting; Bob Steele is about ready to launch "Come and Get It," a story of the prize ring and the U. S. Navy; Buzz Barton will go into production soon on "The Freckled Rascal"; Ranger, the dog, will begin work, also on "Tracked."

Pathe's Short Program for September 2nd

Pathe's program of shorts for September 2nd will include the release of the first of the new "Taxicab Series," a Harold Lloyd reissue, the first Grantland Rice sportlight to be presented by Amedee J. Van Buren; Chapter 5 of the Pathe serial, "The Terrible People"; Pathe Review No. 36; and Aesop Fable; Topics of the Day No. 36 and two issues of Pathe News.

Jack Cooper will be featured in "Taxi for Two," the Sennett two reeler, and the cast will also include Virginia Vance, Andy Clyde and Otto Freis. The Harold Lloyd reissue is titled "His Royal Highness" and Mildred Davis appears opposite the star. The cast also includes "Snub" Pollard, Noah Young and Gus Leonard. "South Sea Sagas," Hawaiian reel, is the Sportlight release and "War Machine" is a feature of the Review. "Static" is the Aesop Fable, having a radio theme.

"U" Signs John Boles for Five Years

Universal last week annexed the signature of John Boles, actor, to a five-year contract. It is planned to feature him in talking and singing pictures. The actor has just completed an important part in Laura La Plante's "The Last Warning." He came from the musical comedy stage to the films to act in Gloria Swanson's "The Loves of Sunya."

Distribution Arranged for World Wide

cording to E. W. Hammons, president of Educational.

Supplementing the statement of J. D. Williams that World Wide Pictures' arrangements with Educational for physical distribution would "in no wise interfere with that company's short subject business," Mr. Hammons said:

"Educational has a splendidly organized system of exchanges, including thirty-six branches in the United States and Canada, which have the room and physical equipment necessary for the handling of this new line of feature pictures. It is entirely in keeping with the present wise trend of the industry toward avoiding unnecessary distribution expense for World Wide to put the physical handling of its pictures into these already well established and smoothly functioning exchanges.

"The executive and sales staffs of the two companies have nothing to do with each other. World Wide will sell and exploit its own product, for which purpose its staff is now being organized. Outside of the addition of such inspectors, shippers and others as may be required in some of Educational's exchanges to take care of the increased amount of film being handled, there is to be no change in Educational's organization."

Ruth Chatterton Making Film Debut With Jannings

Ruth Chatterton, a star on the Broadway legitimate stages for several years, emoted before the clicking cameras for the first time last week. She is playing the feminine lead in Emil Jannings new Paramount production, "The Sins of the Fathers."

Pathe Concentrating at Culver City

ALL Pathe production will be concentrated hereafter at the Pathe Studios in Culver City. The lease held by Pathe on the Metropolitan Studios has expired and all units working there have been moved to Pathe's own plant, it was announced this week by Colvin W. Brown, executive vice-president. Brown also said that production is so far advanced on the 1928-29 program, that the first features for release on the 1929-30 schedule will be placed in production in October.

Complete plans for sound pictures are to become effective at once, following the recent signing of a licensing agreement between Pathe and RCA Photophone. Preparations for the installation of recording equipment have been rushed. The stages are being built under the supervision of RCA engineers, and the recording equipment is now on the way to California from the General Electric laboratories.

Sapiro Denied Injunction Plea in M. & S. Buying Deal

THE U. S. Supreme Court has denied the application for an injunction sought by the Sapiro organizaiton to restrain the M. & S. circuit from buying film directly from M-G-M and other distributors. This was the second setback suffered by Sapiro and the I. M. P. E. A. in their efforts to enforce the original contracts of the buying chain.

There will probably be a considerable delay before this latest trouble is decided. Sapiro has the privelege of entering an appeal from the present ruling or waiting action from the trial, which will doubtless be deferred for some time because of crowded court schedules.

Kennedy Withdraws from First National

Severs Relations As Advisor and Sails for Europe; Difference Over Policy Seen

BY mutual consent, relations were severed late last week between First National and Joseph P. Kennedy, who had been acting in an advisory capacity to the company for several months. Official announcement of the termination of the agreement was made by Irving D. Rossheim, President of First National. Mr. Kennedy sailed for Europe August 17 on the Ile de Franee, accompanied by J. J. Murdoek and Pat Casey.

While the announcement merely said that the agreement had been ended by mutual consent, it is understood that differences over policy led to the break. Mr. Kennedy recently returned from a trip to the First National studios at Burbank.

It had been previously announced that Mr. Kennedy had signed, on August 11, a five year contract under which he was to direct the affairs of the company for that period. E. B. Derr, secretary and treasurer of F B O, was to have charge of operations under Mr. Kennedy.

According to reports in New York, Mr. Kennedy sought, at the meeting of the First National Board of Directors held last week, complete authority while the Board preferred to place some authority in the hands of the executive committee. This disagreement resulted in Mr. Kennedy's withdrawal.

Canadian Trade Normal

Buying Not Retarded by Sound Pictures, Report States; 15 Installations by End of Year

THE advent of sound pictures in Canada is having very little effect upon film buying activities, according to important film exchange executives at Toronto who have offered comment regarding the present market situation.

It is understood that there will not be more than 15 installations of equipment for the presentation of sound pictures in Canadian theatres before the end of 1928 and these will be almost exclusively in the big theatres of Famous Players Canadian Corp. One general manager expressed the belief that the maximum number of wired houses in the Dominion during the next 12 months would be from 30 to 40. Few independent exhibitors were directly interested in sound installations because of the relatively high cost of the equipment, it was pointed out.

H. L. Nathanson, general sales manager of Regal Films, Limited, Toronto, reported that sales were normal for the season of the year and that the discussion of sound pictures had had very little effect on the moving picture business in Canada so far.

J. P. O'Loghlin, Canadian Fox Film head, brought out an interesting point when he declared that the introduction of sound pictures would greatly benefit the average theatre, not as a mere novelty, but because this class of entertainment was far superior to the silent film in his opinion. Buying activity in Canada had not yet been affected but the sound pictures would obtain great publicity with the probable result that the silent films of the same productions would be in great demand by exhibitors who did not have sound installations. The first house to be wired in Canada was the Palace at Montreal which was to be re-opened September 1.

Clair Hague of Toronto, Canadian Universal general manager, declared that sound pictures had not caused much excitement in Canada insofar as picture buying was concerned because few theatres were going to be able to secure installations for sound films. There would not be very many installations before the first of the year but Universal was ready to meet the demand, a number of sound features already having been produced.

Fox Completes Two More Movietone Specials

Fox has completed two more pictures to add to its road show specials. They are "The Air Circus" and "Mother Knows Best." Both have Movietone synchronization and "Mother Knows Best" has talking sequences.

Newark Co. To Market Color Films

A DEMONSTRATION of natural color films was recently made at Newark, N. J., by O. J. Grady, of Natural Color Films, and it is claimed that successful results were obtained. The company expects to market their product within 30 days.

Mr. Grady had worked on the process, produced by a color filter composed of seven color segments instead of three, for eight years. It is said that the process can be used in professional as well as commercial work as ordinary film is used, and under ordinary lighting conditions.

It is also claimed that the film can be duplicated in unlimited quantities.

Universal Begins "Cohens and Kelly" Production

A new comedy drama revolving around the fortunes of the Cohen and Kelly screen families has been placed into work by Universal at the scene of the story, "The Cohens and the Kellys in Atlantic City." Initial filming was started last Thursday at the pleasnre resort, the entire prodnction unit having arrived from California the previous day. William J. Craft is presiding at the megaphone.

It is planned to conduct a beauty contest at the resort in conjunction with the film, the event to be incorporated into the picture. The winner will be given a screen test and a contract with Universal if satisfactory. A few scenes will be taken in New York. Talking sequences will be made when the unit returns to Universal City.

2 Pathe Melodramas Due In September

Two Western melodramas will be released by Pathe in September, "The Black Ace," starring Don Coleman, and "Burning Bridges," starring Harry Carey.

"The Black Ace," due Sept. 2, is a Texas Ranger story and in addition to Coleman the cast will include Jeanette Loff who is being featnred in a number of fortheoming Pathe feature releases. Others are J. P. McGowan, Noble Johnson, Ben Corbett, Ed Jones and Billy Butts.

Carey will play a dual role in "Burning Bridges," which there is said to be stirring climax. Kathleen Collins appears opposite the star and others in the cast are William Norton Bailey, Dave Kirby, Raymond Wells, Edward Phillips, Florence Midgley, Henry Barrows and Sam Allen.

Christie To Produce Cohen Stories

THE Octavus Roy Cohen stories of negro life in Birmingham, Ala., which have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post during recent years, will be made into a series of talking pictures by Al Christie, according to a recent announcement by Paramount. The author's contract with Christie gives the latter exclusive rights on these well known stories. No production date has been set but the producer is on the lookout for suitable types and story selections are being made.

Finney Heading Exhibitors' Service for U. A.

The exhibitors' service division of the United Artists publicity-advertising department will be headed by Edward Finney.

Originally beginning his career in the motion picture business as an exploitation worker for Samuel Goldwyn, Mr. Finney was connected with the publicity department of the old Metro company, and then for three years had charge of press sheets for M-G-M. He afterwards became supervisor of the sales promotion publication of Associated Exhibitors.

Louis John Bartels Joins "Canary" Cast

Louis John Bartels, best known as the creator of the title role in the stage production of "The Show Off," has been signed by Paramount to play the role of Mannix, one of the three suspects in S. S. Van Dine's "The Canary Murder Case." For the past few weeks, Bartels has been playing in "The Show Off" in Hollywood. Within a few days "The Canary Murder Case" is to get underway.

"Wolf Song" Will Be Gary Cooper Starring Vehicle

Paramount has purchased "Wolf Song," the novel by Harvey Ferguson, and will make it into a Gary Cooper starring vehicle. Production is due to start early in September. John Farrow has been assigned to prepare the screen play.

Talkies Interest Scott of Author's League

LEROY SCOTT, chairman of the Authors' League of New York, is registered at the Ambassador Hotel, Hollywood. Mr. Scott is there to look into the motion picture business first-hand for his organization, with particular interest in the returns to come to the Author's league fom the development of spoken pictures.

"If the latter are successful they will mark a new era of activity for authors," Mr. Scott stated, "and I am here to confer with production managers as to the possibilities of certain stories. The future can not be forecast at this time. I may say that spoken pictures still are in an experimental stage and have not yet been accepted by the public, but possibilities of their success apparently are unlimited.

Laemmle Selects Fields To Study Sound

Leonard Fields, Universal eastern scenario chief, has just been selected by Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, to make a comprehensive study of sound pictures and all talking pictures from the story standpoint. Fields will have the full co-operation of the Electrical Research Products, Inc., which markets the Movietone equipment, the sound method adopted by Universal.

Eva Le Galliene Signs M-G-M Contract

Eva Le Gallienne, founder and director of the Civic Repertory theatre, has signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to appear in talking motion pictures.

Miss La Gallienne, as a representative of legitimate drama, will be identified with representatives of the musical stage and of grand opera in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's group program in sound.

Rosenthal Appointed U. A. District Manager

William Rosenthal has been appointed by Al Lichtman of United Artists as district manager of the middle western territory that embraces Chicago, Indianapolis, Minneapolis and Omaha exchanges.

Premier May Be Guest Of M. P. T. O. A.

THE head of the Canadian Government, William McKenzie King, will in all probability be a guest of the Theatre Owners at the Ninth Annual Convention to be held at Toronto in October, according to information received from President J. C. Brady of the Canadian Division by the National office in New York City.

In conjunction with the Canadian move it is also likely that an outstanding representative of the American Government will attend and thus complete the bond of official good will.

The Voice of the Screen

News and Comment on All Phases of "Sound" Pictures

Sound is Sole Topic in Hollywood

Leading Stars Now Seriously Consider Talking Sequences

the figure of 1,000 by the first of the New Year.

I have met a few people who were bearish on the sound situation, but even they express their opinions with reserve. Their feeling is that the tide cannot be held back, and that one has to be in the swim for self-protection if nothing else. Above all things there is the balance sheet of Warner Brothers, and the sensational advance in the market price of their stock a month or so ago as an incessant goal. Nobody can afford not to be out of this sweeping new gold rush.

Rockett's Views

I had a conversation with Al Rockett of First National just a few days ago that was a highly intelligent appraisal of conditions, and sounded a worth-while note of warning as well. The tenor of this talk is that everybody had better be on the lookout for new technical developments. "It is to be remembered that when the radio and the phonograph started the devices which they employed were far from the high degree of perfection that they have reached today," he said. "Old models had to be discarded for new ones in a very short time. The life of the old fashioned crystal set with the ear-phones was memorably brief. How, too, does the original gramaphone compare with the orthophonic of today? Of course, there is a long lapse of years in this case, but mechanical innovations progress much more rapidly now. While I don't say that we are going to enter a period of exactly similar development in talking pictures, it is something to be considered, and seriously considered. While our present appliances may not seem out of date a year from now, on the other hand they may.

"However, none of us can afford to be too conservative about this sound proposition. The present commercial possibilities are too great. We have to satisfy a demand that exists on the part of the public, and that is increasing from day to day. One must be in the running to enjoy these current benefits. At the same time, each move that is made should be dictated by common sense and judgment, and the understanding that what is good today in the matter of equipment may be antiquated tomorrow.

"There is another phase of this on which I may seem bearish, though I do not mean it to be just that. This is the bringing on of stage talent in wholesale fashion. This appears to go hand in hand with sound.

Risky Procedure

"To my mind this proeedure involves decided risks. It takes no account, it would seem, of the difficulties attendant on building up box-office popularity. Such popularity is won only in the isolated instance. With all the efforts that have been made to discover new talent in the past several years, actually there are only a very few real 'finds,' and it has taken consistent work and good pictures and exploitation to make the new names marketable.

"Rushing to the stage for talent and signing up people right and left without due regard to the peculiar nature of the movie industry itself, and seemingly without consideration of the fact that thousands of theatres are not yet equipped with sound devices, can only lead to disaster. The case of Al Jolson offers no proof contradictory of this. Jolson is a personality unique in show world. He was an ideal choice, but how many others are there that might be so termed?"

The Pomeroy Experiments

What Rockett remarked regarding further mechanical innovations may be said to have some relation to the Pomeroy experiments at present carried on. Here is a device which even has some of the sceptics converted to sound, because of its reputed better quality. The addition to equipment in the theatres that it will require is fortunately not extensive, but the exhibitor has cause for though in relation to these changes. If they ever effect the fundamental qualities of the devices now in use it will be very serious. The general belief exists that they will not do this, but it is an element in the sound development that will need providing for.

In addition to the double film method Paramount will use the disc type of recordings for their pictures. They have already included talking sequences in "Varsity," while in "Beggars of Life" Wallace Beery sings a song, and in "Abie's Irish Rose" Nancy Carroll will be heard in two vocal numbers. The players who talk in "Varsity" include Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Chester Conklin, Mary Brian and Phillips Holmes.

One of the most curious undertakings that I have heard of lately is that of Universal, which is making sound pictures on an open stage in a quiet part of their famous lot, known as Universal City. Its huge acreage makes possible the securing of very advantageous results.

Tiffany-Stahl Now Synchronizing First Sound Pictures

THE first two special productions of Tiffany-Stahl, "The Toilers," a Reginald Barker Special, and "The Cavalier," are now being synchronized with sound and will be ready for showing by September 1st. Eight other special productions will also be synchronized with sound by this company.

Tiffany-Stahl also announces that they will be the first company to release, in color, pictures to be synchronized with sound. These are as follows: The picturization of the musical composition "In A Persian Market," which will be ready for release on October 1st. "The Toy Shop" which will be ready for presentation on November 1st. "The Hawaiian Love Call" to be ready for release on December 15th. "A Japanese Carnival" to be released on January 1st—this picture will be taken in natural colors in Tokio, Japan, during the coronation of the Emperor. "In A Chinese Temple Garden" to be released on February 15th, all the scenes of which will be photographed in China.

Censors Waive Claim to Pass Hoover Film

THE Ohio censors changed their attitude with regard to handling sound censroing when it came to the Fox Movietone picture of Herbert Hoover's speech accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency.

Fox had refused to submit sound to censorship and the board refused to get into any discussion on the subject regarding this picture. The board waived examination of this subject because of its nature, and passed it without hearing.

Sound Picture Reviews

By CHESTER J. SMITH

"Terry and Jerry"

FIELDS AND JOHNSON are the principals in this song and patter number taken from the vaudeville stage. They do a song or two but confine their humor largely to a gag with a long pieces of rubber. Each holds an end of the rubber in his mouth and then it is stretched to the utmost. The gag is to say "Omaha" without releasing the rubber from the mouth. Both register well on the Vitaphone. Their stuff howerve could be improved upon.

"Bright Moments"

Jack Benny is the wise-cracking vaudevillian in this sketch, in which he is assisted by Marie Marlo. Benny pulls a few good gags that should develop laughs. The girl has a "dumb" role and is made the butt of most of the jokes. They do little aside from a line of fairly good patter.

"Dixie Days"

This is the type of Vitaphone number that promises to have a wide appeal. It brings together a troupe of six or eight doing Darkey songs on a plantation and the numbers are exceptionally well rendered. Included in the song numbers are "All Along the Missisippi River," "All God's Chillun Got Shoes," "The Old Ark's a Moving" and "Hallalujah to the Lamb."

"A Friend of Father's"

Al Lydell, Bobby Higins and Lida Leah are the trio in this Vitaphone sketch which was directed by Murray Roth. It is a reproduction of their old vaudeville act and is interspersed with some fairly good patter. Higgins, a somewhat senile old man with a penchant for flappers, gives a good characterization. The act would be improved, perhaps, with a little more dancing.

"The Indian Baritone"

Chief Caupolican, the Indian baritone, has one of the best voices for reproduction that has been heard on the Vitaphone. It rings as clearly and truly as though he were appearing in person. The numbers given by him are "The Bedouin Love Song," "After Long Absence" and "Pale Moon." This is the type act that should be very popular in all classes of houses.

"The Question of Today"

This is an all-talkie sketch with the roles portrayed by Audrey Ferris, Landers Stevens, Georgie Cooper and Arthur Belasco. It is of the cheap dramatic type with a moral against the present-day flapper raiment, or lack of it. Audrey Ferris is the flapper who has been insulted by the sailor. Stevens is the police captain who justifies the action of the sailor with the preachment that the flapper raiment invites insult. It will probably go well in the smaller houses.

"The Death Ship"

Mitchell Lewis is the featured player in this melodramatic Vitaphone sketch that goes back to the old days of the ten, twent, thirt. It is the crudest type of melodrama and will probably have an appeal just because of that. The tale is of two men and a girl on a storm tossed ship and both of the men in love with the girl. They eventually cut the cards for her, the loser agreeing to jump overboard.

"Ann Grey and Her Boy Friend"

Ann Grey, assisted by a small jazz band, renders several numbers in highly approved style. She has a pleasing voice and personality and her program is a well arranged one. Her voice also registers well on the Vitaphone. The act is one that should be popular.

Vitaphone Announces New Acts for Release

Recent Vitaphone acts which are now ready for general release are Robert Ober in 2607-08, "A Regular Business Man"; Homer Dickinson in 2609, songs and monologue, Lydell and Higgins in 2620, "A Friend of Father's"; Karyl Norman in 2662, "Types" and 2663, "Silks and Satins"; Sarah Padden in 2664-65, "Across the Border"; Kitty Doner in 2668, "A Bit of Scotch"; Archie Gottler in 2670, a revue of his song numbers; 2599, "Thanksgiving Day," 2600, "Ann Gray and Her Boy Friends," "2680, Lynn Cowan in Community Singing; 2685, "The Croonaders," a popular vaudeville team in songs and musical selections; 2538, Dorothy Whitmore in a medley of popular songs, and 2539, Benny Rubin, vaudeville and musical comedy star in an act entitled "Seven Minutes of Your Time."

Switow Circuit Signs for 15 Sound Devices

Sam J. Switow, of the Switow Enterprises, Louisville, Leo F. Keiler, of the Strand Amusement Co. and Columbia Amusement Co., Paducah, and Lee L. Goldberg, of the Principal Theatres Corporation, have just returned from New York. While there they closed for fifteen new Vitaphone installations in their various theatres.

Like most of the leading exhibitors of today, they returned enthusiastic over "talking pictures." Mr. Switow at Lexington and Mr. Keiler at Paducah, have had Vitaphones in operation for over eighteen months.

Gus Edwards to Assist With Production

Harry Rapf, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer, announces the signing of Gus Edwards, theatrical producer and song writer, who will now play an important part in the production or sound and talking pictures at the Culver City studios.

Edwards will leave New York soon for the coast. He will devote all his time to the creation of new musical compositions and supervision of scenes in films involving cabaret or musical comedy sequences.

Texas Public Pleads for Talking Equipment

The theatre going public of Temple, Tex., desired that Vitaphone be installed in the new Dent theatre being built there and asked the owners if it was possible to include this modern mechanism in the theatre. As a result of the unusual interest the Temple Chamber of Commerce is promoting the sale of tickets to the theatre and as a result will have Vitaphone.

60 Chicago Houses Will Be Equipped by Fall

According to latest reports on Movietone installations in the Chicago territory, sixty houses will have Movietone apparatus in place by early fall. Eleven theatres are at present using it and work of wiring a number of other houses is under way.

Bucher Tells of RCA Activities

Kane Joins Kennedy Staff and Will Do Own Synchronizing

E. E. Bucher, vice-president of the Radio Corporation of America elucidated somewhat on Photophone conditions the other day. Among items of interest to the trade he divulged were that during the week Pathe and F B O had definitely signed contracts and become licensees of Photophone; that Bob Kane was no longer production director of Photophone; that Kane was of the staff of Joseph P. Kennedy and with Kennedy would do his own synchronizing in the future; that relations between Kennedy and RCA were most amicable, and that so far as he knew, RCA was not behind any move to finance or assist with the financing of the reported Sapiro-Moss combination.

It had generally been supposed that contracts had long since been signed between RCA and F B O and Pathe, but it seems now, according to the information dispensed by Mr. Bucher, that these contracts were actually only signed during the current week.

"Pathe and F B O have now been granted official recording licenses under the Photophone process," said Mr. Bucher. "As soon as a studio situation is available then Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Kane will have their own recording studio in New York City and will do the synchronizing of the productions in which they are interested.

"It was erroneous information that Mr. Kane was ever signed as production manager for RCA. He merely came into this office to synchronize such productions of F B O as were ready or would be ready in the near future before Mr. Kennedy established his own studio in New York.

"There has not been the slightest friction between RCA and Mr. Kennedy or Mr. Kane. They and we are merely proceeding as it was originally intended we would. They will synchronize their new pictures as soon as they become established in their plant, and RCA Photophone stands ready to synchronize the pictures of any company that want our services in this direction.

The Kennedy synchronizing studio will have the complete cooperation of RCA experts. We will furnish them men as they require them and will offer them expert advice when it is sought, the same as we would do with any company licensed by RCA under the Photophone process. There has not at any time been the slightest friction between our company and Mr. Kennedy. The best evidence of our friendly relations is the signing this week of the contract with Pathe and F B O.

"If there is any agreement on between RCA and Mr. Sapiro whereby our company is to aid with the financing of a group of 200 theatres in New York, in which Mr. Sapiro and Mr. Moss are interested, I have heard nothing of it. Mr. Sapiro was here a few moments ago to discuss a certain subject, but it was of such minor importance that we talked of many other subjects without ever getting around to it.

"No, it would seem there was no further question regarding interchangeability between Photophone and Movietone. 'The Perfect Crime,' synchronized under the Photophone process is now being shown on Movietone equipment in several theatres in different parts of the country and it has not been necessary for the owners of these theatres to get permission from the Western Electric Company to reproduce this product on Movietone equipment.

"With our sound track now cut to 80 mils not the slightest change in equipment is necessary to interchange RCA and Movietone product, so there will be no more trouble in that direction and picture house owners need give it no more consideration. I think permission from either company will no longer be necessary. What we are demanding and what Western Electric is demanding is that quality pictures only, be reproduced on our equipment. Both companies will doubtless insist upon that as it would hardly be fair to reproduce cheap product of inferior sound recording companies on equipment of this type."

Gotham to Take Over Bristolphone, Disc Sound Device

GOTHAM has a deal near consummation whereby it will handle exclusively the sale and installation of Bristolphone, a disc sound device. To equip itself for this enterprise it will organize the Bristolphone Sales Corporation with offices at 1650 Broadway.

The device is claimed to be interchangeable with any other disc reproducing equipment on the market, and Gotham has early plans for the synchronization of ten pictures. The first, which will also have dialogue, is the "Girl From Argentine," starring Carmel Meyers.

Further developments in Gotham's sound tie-up are expected to include two reel novelties and acts, the ultimate aim being to put the company in a position to market a complete program in sound.

William H. Bristol, the inventor of Bristolphone, secured basic patents of disc sound synchronization ten years ago.

Warners Book Winter Garden for Talkies

WARNER BROS. PICTURES, Inc., have signed a contract with J. J. Shubert for the presentation of Vitaphone talking pictures at the New York Winter Garden. The contract begins in September when Warner Bros., will present Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool."

The length of the contract was not given but it was stated at the offices of the Shuberts that the Winter Garden will not definitely pass from the ranks as a revue theatre.

No Picture Will Be Silent in Five Years Says, Lasky

JESSE L. LASKY, first vice-president and production head of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation expresses the belief that within five years no motion picture will be silent and that screen productions will travel two different and well defined roads.

Discussing the subject in a lengthy interview, Mr. Lasky says, in part:

"There will be the all-dialogue picture, which will utilize the best features of stage and screen technique and which will be radically different from anything we know at present. This will be one distinct type of production, perhaps the most important from a popular standpoint, and undoubtedly one which will permit the screen to attain a degree of development hitherto undreamed of.

"The second course of the cinema will concern itself with productions devoid of dialogue, but with their drama heightened by a thoughtful use of the emphasis of sound. It is of this type that 'Wings,' 'Warming Up,' and 'Loves of An Aetress,' are the fore-runners. These pictures are complete in themselves, having no dependence on sound, but they respond marvelously to the advantages of sound. This type of picture will prove particularly valuable in its relation to the foreign market. One of the industry's greatest problems lies in producing synchronized pictures for European release, for it is obviously impracticable to have American players register their voices in more than one language and still have their lips in synchrony with their words.

"The greatest benefits of the film industry will come through a policy of painstaking effort and aggressive optimism that gives no recognition to hysteria. Motion pictures will continue to appeal to the public on a basis of merit and those producers who give the public the greatest measure of entertainment on the screen will be the leaders in the future as they have been in the past. Science and art have been welded into an inseparable bond and it is a union that spells a new era of entertainment for film devotees the world over."

Paramount Installs Equipment for Cutting Sound Film

SPECIAL equipment for the cutting of sound-synchronized film has been installed in the laboratories of the Paramount studio in Hollywood, according to an announcement by B. P. Schulberg, general manager of west coast production.

Working under the supervision of Roy J. Pomeroy, director of sound effects at the Hollywood plant, and James Wilkinson, head of the cutting department, specialists in the preparation of sound film, are now engaged in the highly technical work involved in audible-picture production.

Projection apparatus working in synchrony with the sound film makes it possible to throw the images of players on a miniature screen and hear their voices and incidental sound or music effects simultaneously, just as is the case in a theatre. In addition to the sound-film projector, synchronous cutting devices have been installed to aid in this new branch of studio work.

Andy Newmen and Merrill White, two members of the Paramount cutting stff who were connected with the sound work done by Pomeroy in "Wings," have been detailed as specialists in cutting sound film.

William Le Baron Again Sounds Warning to Go Slow

WILLIAM LE BARON, vice-president of F B O Pictures Corporation in charge of production, arrived in New York City on Monday, Aug. 13, for a two weeks' conference with other F B O executives.

Several weeks ago, when the sound picture commotion first started, Mr. Le Baron was interviewed by a NEWS representative on the subject of this new process of film making, its future and effect on the industry at large. At that time, Mr. Le Baron sounded a warning to go slow, held that the talkie and other synchronized pictures would in time find their definite place in this industry, but decried the hysteria they had caused among film people in New York City. "Hollywood was not excited," he said.

In another interview with the NEWS this week, Mr. Le Baron practically reiterated his previous statement and again sounded a warning to "take it easy." In line with a statement from the Western Electric Company this week, he commented on the fact that only about 450 sound projection installations had been made up to the present time and that W. E.'s schedule called for only a round thousand at the close of 1928. "What are all the several thousand theatres in the balance going to do for pictures?" he asked. "Why, show silent ones, of course, and that is the reason why F B O is proceeding along strictly careful lines in the matter of synchronized pictures.

"I believe," Mr. Le Baron continued, "that there will eventually be three distinct forms of entertainment. First, there will be the legitimate stage play with the human person and voice; second, the talking picture or all talking picture program; and third, the old reliable form of a good silent picture program, during which the patron as to exert but one sense — the sense of seeing. This enables the patron to relax, where on the other hand, either the stage play or the talking picture brings into use both hearing and sight. The silence and relaxation afforded by the silent drama is one of the chief reasons for its tremendous success.

Another interesting point Mr. Le Baron brought out in connection with West Coast activities in relation to sound proof and other new equipment needed for the manufacture of synchronized and other sound picture product, is that the rapid rate of procedure on the part of some producers may bring on some severe headaches when it is quite possible that much of this expensive apparatus, such as thoroughly sound proof stages, may be found unnecessary.

Cinematographers Will Conduct Classes

The American Society of Cinematographers, with headquarters in Hollywood, has inaugurated a campaign of education among its membership of two hundred and fifty for the purpose of improving their technique in the photographing of sound pictures.

At a meeting of its Board of Governors the Society passed a resolution pledging all its resources to the "development and advancement of sound pictures for the benefit of its members and of the motion picture industry generally, in order that members of the A. S. C. may be able to give producers the most direct and efficient service in the combination of sound and photography, and further, that the Society lay a schedule of classes to be maintained for the instruction of its members."

U. A. Establishes Sound Service Stations

Six sound service stations, in as many cities that will serve as hubs of sales areas, have been established by United Artists' Film Maintenance Department. The stations are set up in exchanges of the company in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Kansas City and San Francisco. They started operation August 20.

New York will service Buffalo, New Haven, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, New York and Pittsburgh territories. Chicago will service Detroit, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and Chicago regions. Atlanta will cover itself, Charlotte and New Orleans territories. Kansas City will service St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver. Dallas will be handled by Dallas. San Francisco will embrace Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Salt Lake City.

"The Terror" National Release Oct. 20

"The Terror," Warner Bros. second all-talking picture, has been set for national release October 20th. It will be released that day both in its Vitaphone and non-Vitaphone version. Previously there will be pre-release runs in a number of large cities. The picture was directed by Roy Del Ruth and includes in the cast, May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda, Edward Everett Horton, Alec Francis, Matthew Betz and Holmes Herbert.

Kansas Censors to Hear All Dialogue

The Kansas State Censor Board has joined those state boards that demand supervision over the sound and dialogue in pictures. Copies of the words in talking pictures must accompany the films when they are sent to the censor's office.

Franklin Compiles Manual on Sound

West Coast Managers Get Full Instruction On Theatre Equipment

THE technical department, under the supervision of Harold B. Franklin, president of West Coast Theatres, Inc., has compiled a manual of valuable information relative to the operation and maintenance of Movietone and Vitaphone equipment. It takes in every phase of these sound producing and reproducing devices and is invaluable to the managers of the West Coast circuit.

In his customary manner, Mr. Franklin has covered the field thoroughly. His manual gives a description of the main technical features with the applications of the equipment and just how it is applied to all phases of pictures in both production and reproduction. It goes fully into the methods of recording and synchronous reproduction. It tells in a simple and intelligent way of film recording, amplification, sound projectors and synchronism. It also outlines non-synchronous reproduction.

Briefly, Mr. Franklin gives a general description of Movietone and Vitaphone installations, recording and reproduction. He covers the different angles simply and thoroughly so that they are easily understood and completely instructive to his theatre managers.

He tells, among other things, how the sound records and just how it is reproduced and he tells the function of each part of the equipment. The same careful detail in describing how the sound is reproduced and amplified is also simply explained.

In a few paragraphs devoted to "What Is a Film Noise," Mr. Franklin says in part:

"Any mark in the sound track of a film that is not part of the sound record itself and which causes a change in the light entering the photo-electric cell will give rise to film noises. Film noise results from the sum total of all the markings along the sound track that do not belong there. Dust and dirt are the most prolific causes of film noise when they pass successfully through the sound gate."

Backstage equipment for Movietone and the loud speaking receiver are other subjects covered in the manual, as are storage batteries and their care. The latter subject is covered by John McGuinnes of the Electric Storage Battery Company and a recognized expert on the subject.

There are a list of instructions for the operation and maintenance of the Vitaphone synchronous and reproducing system with a description of the apparatus and its functions. The individual uses of the amplifier system are also given in full, as are the methods of adjusting sound volume and the maintenance of the apparatus.

In a paragraph devoted to "Rehearsing Movietone and Vitaphone Subjects," the manual says:

"In order to give the satisfactory performance with synchronized presentations adequate rehearsals are necessary to cover the various points. The house manager should be present at all of these rehearsals with an observer at the telephone set which is furnished with the sound equipment and is located at the rear of the auditorium to the projection room. All subjects should be run off in the same way as for the regular performance."

This manual, already distributed among the managers of the West Coast theatres, is of such an instructive nature that it is already being much sought by outside managers. It is only another proof of the foresight and showmanship ability of Mr. Franklin, who is convinced of the stability of sound pictures and who insists that his house managers be familiar with all details of programs they are displaying to their public.

Johnny Hines Company Will First Play Talkie on Stage

C. C. BURR, head of the Burr-Hines Enterprises is making elaborate preparations for the filming of an all-talkie comedy in which Johnny Hines will be the star. The Burr plan calls for first making the picture in the regular way and then rehearsing the company and making a stage tour for several weeks, during which the laughs will be "clocked" and the spacing perfected.

The company, following this, will be brought back on the sound stage and go right through with the making of the sound picture, with the play in charge of an experienced and successful stage director from Broadway. The straight motion picture will be in charge of a regular moving picture director, so that the two versions will be made under different direction.

Beery Will Sing in "Beggars of Life"

FOR the first time in his long career before the motion picture camera, Wallace Beery is singing a song that theatre audiences throughout the world will hear. This was when B. P. Schulberg, Paramount's general manager of West Coast production, announced that vocal, sound and musical effects will be heard in "Beggars of Life," Jim Tully's story of American hobo life, which William Wellman is directing.

The nature of the song Beery sings was not disclosed, but it is known that he sings it to a group of his hobo pals in one of the "jungle" episodes.

Six More Southern Houses Introduce Sound Film

Southern theatres are keeping pace with those in the North with the installation of sound and talking picture apparatus, six more houses having recently inaugurated Vitaphone and Movietone policies.

In Memphis, Tenn., at Loew's Palace and State theatres, Movietone subjects were introduced last week to capacity audiences while at Orlando, Fla., Western Electric equipment is being installed in the Beacham theatre for a scheduled showing of a sound accompanied picture on Aug. 27.

The Jefferson theatre in St. Augustine, Fla., is scheduled for its first sound picture program also on Aug. 27. This house will use the Western Electric system. The Western Electric system will also be used in the Ritz theatre at Macon, Ga., installation to be made some time during August. The Rialto, also in Macon, inaugurated Vitaphone and Movietone several weeks ago.

In the majority of these installations, the double turn table or sometimes referred to as "baby vitaphone," has been used. This provides for the use of non-synchronous accompaniments and is said to be meeting with considerable favor among exhibitors.

Chevalier's First to Be Synchronized

A motion picture enhanced by vocal and musical synchronization, will serve as the vehicle to introduce to the world's screens Maurice Chevalier, famous on the European stage. He arrives in the Hollywood film colony early in October.

Chevalier was signed to a contract by Jesse L. Lasky, when Paramount's first vice president in charge of production was abroad in June.

H. D'Abbadie D'Arrast, personal friend of Chevalier will direct the production.

Octavus Cohen Stories for Christie

Octavus Roy Cohen's stories of colored life in Birmingham will be made into talking pictures by the Christie Company and released by Paramount, Al Christie has announced.

A contract has been signed by Cohen giving Christie exclusive rights to the stories for picture purposes. Christie is already searching for types to play such characters as Sis Callie Flukers, Lawyer Evans Chew, Bud Peagler, Dr. Brutus Herring, and Miss Lutisha Atcherson.

"All Talkie Nutty" Says Count de la Coudraye

The Marquis Henri De La Falaise de la Coudraye, better known as Gloria Swanson's husband, took occasion to air his dissatisfaction of talking motion pictures the other day.

"They're all nutty out there," he said. "Talking, talkies, nothing but talkies. They'll be sorry. People don't go to the movies to hear. They go to see. The producers, the actors, they are nutty."

Equity Gives Plans to Apply to Broadway Shows

THOUGH the proposed deal for the purchase of Vocafilm by a group of Broadway legitimate producers has been held up at least temporarily, Equity has outlined its plans for members of the association to govern working conditions on pictures to be made by these Broadway producers. These rules do not apply to contracts made with regular motion picture produeers. They forbid members of the asseciation to appear in sight and sound recording of current dramatic or musical plays in which they are appearing without first consulting Equity headquarters.

Legislation outlined in this latest edict is intended only to be temporary and to hold good only until the producing managers make a definite proposition to Equity.

The text of the Equity edict in part follows:

"With regard to future productions of that nature Equity members are further notified that they may not sign contracts which contain riders or addenda covering such appearances unless they have the approval of Equity.

"If any contracts are signed which contain these added clauses and are not approved by Equity, the association will not recognize the validity of any matter which is foreign to the text of the standard contract.

"These rulings cover only the dramatic and musical productions in which Equity members are appearing or may appear and are not intended to include such productions as are made by the regular motion picture companies for which actors are signed on separate contracts.

"For a week or two prior to the issuance of these regulations, Equity had been aware that a group of seven or eight Broadway producing managers, including W. A. Brady, A. H. Woods, the Shuberts, Arthur Hammerstein, Sam Harris, Al. Lewis, Florenz Ziegfeld and possibly one or two others were considering the purchase of a device known as Vocafilm, a disc recording apparatus, and were planning to record performances of their legitimate productions with their legitimate companies.

"Equity's executive secretary had attended one of these conferences and was aware of the plans but the discussion was tentative and before anything definite could be reached there would have to be investigation and further meetings.

"Suddenly, without advance warning, the newspapers informed Equity that these negotiations had been completed, that the managers were prepared to begin work on these productions, and asked Equity's reaction to the situation. The rulings given at the beginning of this article were then issued.

"Subsequently it became apparent from the managers that the announcement in the newspapers was premature and that plans were not nearly as far advanced as that announcement would seem to indicate. And they protested with every evidence of sincerity that they intended to lay a proposition before Equity, prior to making any requests for such services of their companies.

"Equity believes these assurances, but until the proposition is made and acepted by Equity the rulings must stand.

"Just one word as to why these rulings have been issued for this particular type of work and have not been made for every form of sight and sound recording, Movietone, Vitaphone, Firnatone and all the others of that sort.

"In these latter forms the engagement is made separately and is not conditional upon another contract for a different form of work. In other words, the Equity member does not have to throw in this work in order to get some other enggement, or to give it at a discount because of the other.

"Undoubtedly producing managers will pick some of their future casts with an eye to recording their performances. But in such cases Equity thinks it only fair that when such recordings seem likely to interfere with the run of the play, and hence the length of the employment of the members, they should receive suitable remuneration for it.

"Equity will keep in touch with developments in this field and will notify its members of any changes in these regulations."

Albany Houses Prepared for Smith Speech

The motion pieture theatres of Albany, N. Y., as well as in many other villages and cities, installed radio reception sets this week in order that their patrons might hear Governor Smith's aeceptance speech. The theatres in Albany eashed in heavily by handling thousands of persons who were unable to get within a bloek or two of the Capitol steps where the notifieation exercises were held. Thousands of persons in motion picture theatres throughout the country were also able to see and hear Governor Smith delivering his acceptance speech at Albany on Wednesday night. The Fox Movietone News Company had sent a representative to Albany several days in advance of the notifieation and had made talking pictures of Governor Smith as he read from an advanee copy of his speech. The films were released for exhibition throughout the country simultaneously with Governor Smith's speech from the steps of the State Capitol.

Enlarges Orchestra as "Canned" Protest

The personnel of the Capitol's 20-piece symphonie orehestra has just been announeed by Eph Charninsky, conductor, and will make its initial appearance on August 28th. Mr. Charninsky states that the installation of this orchestra which will be the largest in Dallas is a protest against eanned musie and that he believes the public will respond and prove that an orehestra is more appreeiated than the various sound deviees.

Six Features from FBO During September

Six features, two with music sound and talking sequences, will be released by FBO during September.

"Taxi Thirteen," one of the sound pictures, is due on September 2 and the cast includes Chester Conklin and Martha Sleeper. On the same date will be released "Dog Law," starring Ranger, an FBO dog. On September 9, "Stoeks and Blondes," with Gertrude Astor, Jaequeline Logan, "Skeets" Gallagher and Albert Conti. September 16 will see "Charge of the Gauehos" with Jaequeline Logan and Francis X. Bushman, also "The Young Whirlwind," a Buzz Barton vehiele. On September 23, another sound picture "The Hit of the Show," with Joe Brown, Gertrude Olmstead, Daphne Pollard and Gertrude Astor. Sound or silent prints will be available on the latter.

FitzPatrick to Produce "Lady of Lake"

James A. FitzPatrick, pioneer producer of synehronized music films, who recently sailed for England to make the first subjeets in a Music Travelogue Series, in sound for Paramount release, also plans to produee Sir Walter Seott's "Lady of the Lake" as a super-sound feature for a British film company.

Twelve one-reel pictures will eompose the Music Travelogue Series, and sound will be recorded simultaneously with the photographing of action at old world landmarks and locales that inspired great masters to create musical masterpieces. "Lady of the Lake" will be staged in Seotland with an English east.

Bill Bailey Completes Talkie for "U"

Billy Bailey of the vaudeville team of Bailey and Barnum has just completed a novelty talking film at Universal City. It is produced in the form of a vaudeville act, having monologue and singing, reproduced through the movietone device. Bailey introduces such songs as "Rollin' Along," "My Mammy," "June Night" and "Cantaloupe" in the film numbers for whieh he is well and favorably known on the vaudeville stage. The picture is a one-reeler.

By Charles E. Lewis

The Cruise of the "News"

AFTER bidding friend "Tim" Roberts good bye (I hope not for long) I set sail northeast and drifted through Medina. . . . not so exciting . . . Lodi . . . likewise . . . looking into some of the real smaller towns with their few hundred seaters . . . but it was easy to see why the smaller town movie fan prefers to drive to the larger cities . . . the small town exhibitor should get wise to himself . . . give them real shows and presented that way . . . instead of dishing it out like hash . . . and making them take it any old way . . . Kept on going and eased into Cleveland . . . the big town was a relief after so much time in the "tall timbers," but it gave us a chance to overhaul the ship . . . and ourselves as well . . . and also to see "Warming Up" . . . and we vote this a box office picture any day of the year and in any town . . . But sorry we could not enthuse over the addition of the "noise" . . . or do they call it "sound" . . . audience comment around me set me to thinking that it would have been just as good without the shouting, etc., but the music synchronization was good as well as the handling of the theme song . . . this, to me, seems to add greatly to the picture . . . business in this city very brisk in spite of abnormally hot weather . . . Sailed out of here into Willoughby . . . nice town this . . . and a nice new theatre all ready to open . . . looks good to me . . . thence into Ashtabula . . . this town revives memories of a pleasant acquaintance with a Mr. Seoville whom I knew back in the days of "Paul Rainey's African Hunt" . . . Gosh . . . this sounds like I'm an old man . . . but I was young once, and still am, and the picture on the top of this page was NOT taken ten years ago . . . Ashtabula's O. K. . . . and theoretically looks good and is good . . . just as one of the exhibitors there said . . . on to Conneaut . . . and into the various houses, but things are just normal and going along as usual . . . Back over the state line and once more in Pennsylvania . . . and into Erie, where theatres seemed to grow in bunches like bananas . . . took in a show at the Strand . . . business NOT so good . . . though they give you a lot for your money . . . feature "Tiger Lady" F. P. . . . three Vitaphone acts . . . News . . . Fables . . . Comedy . . . and they charge the same as the Vaudeville house round the corner . . . looked to me like the customers were not excited over the talkies . . . but the trailer announcing a Warner sound picture brought forth lots of attention from them . . . so maybe they only feel dull on straight acts . . . the vaudeville house got a better break in business tonight . . . changed my tactics here and just visited the theatres and left the managers alone . . . seemed like I ought to watch the audience a little more at this stage . . . left in the morning . . . stopped off at Westfield, N. Y. . . . ran off the course to look at Jamestown . . . back up north through Hamburg and into Buffalo . . . They are getting so many talkie houses here that I shouldn't wonder if the fans' appetite for them grew dull . . . but took in the synchronized version of "Street Angel" and liked it so well that I stayed for a second view . . . and still liked it . . . and so did the audience . . . the singing sequence of the theme song is a corking idea . . . and will save many a picture . . . that might be otherwise "not so good" . . . synchronizationally (Wot a word) speaking . . . also looked into one of the vaudeville houses . . . and business also good . . . so I guess they are all happy . . . Next through Batavia . . . Rochester . . . Auburn . . . Syracuse . . . all interesting and especially so as I was watching the audience angle more than earlier in the trip . . . Eckel Theatre had the edge on business tonight . . . and they have an organist that takes first prize as far as I am concerned . . . Forster is his name and I last heard him in the Empire Theatre . . . same town some three years ago . . . I liked Eckel's idea of music during break of show via the Vitaphone . . . it helped keep the customers happy while the crowd was moving . . . and, in fact, I was sorry when it was over . . . usually an intermission gets on one's nerves . . . but not when someone uses his head . . . and Vitaphone . . . Oneida next stop then into Utica . . . Olympic had a nice display . . . will take in a show before leaving . . . See you next week.

Notice

During my absence from the NEWS office for the past month or so, many letters and contributions were received. I could have published most of these suggestions, but would not have been able to do them justice in the presentation on the CLUB pages. Instead I filed them until my return and those of our members who may have been looking for them are advised that they will appear in early issues of the NEWS.

Meet Fred Sykes of Australia

From out in Sydney, Australia, comes the membership application of Frederick Sykes who is running the Piccadilly Theatre there. Mr. Sykes has put over some wonderful stunts out his way, and we are sure that every member of the CLUB will look forward with great interest to reading about them. So hustle some of them along brother Sykes, and let us publish them here.

It is interesting to note that membership in the CLUB is rapidly reaching to every corner of the earth. Those of you who are already members should indeed be proud of the fact that you are one of us. Right?

We Hear From R. J. Jarebek

We must again admit to a weakness for the Pacific Coast and tell you about Randall J. Jarebek, manager of the Plaza Theatre in San Diego, Calif. He writes to tell the Club members about his exploitation on "The Lion and the Mouse" and he certainly covered it efficiently, no getting away from that. He sent out 10,000 regular post cards which read, partly, as follows:

Dear Friend:

The first talking motion picture, "The Lion and the Mouse," with Lionel Barrymore, opens for an extended run at the Plaza Theatre Saturday, June 30th.

This is the newest form of theatre entertainment, and since there is no proper name to describe it we are asking for your help.

After seeing "The Lion and the Mouse," write us a letter giving us your impression of the picture, together with a word or slogan which describes the talking picture.

He then went on in another brief paragraph to set forth what he wanted. The results were greater than he ever anticipated.

Towards the end of the run he stimulated

some more interest in the picture, as well as box office, by sending out three thousand post cards with the picture of Conrad Nagel and telling them about talking pictures again.

The reason we like to publish this type of advertising is that it calls attention to stunts that can be fitted to most any picture with merit, providing it is not repeated too often. Don't make your theatre a mail box pest, if you know what we mean. And for something different, something dignified and a sure-fire business getter, try this post card or personal letter angle. We are certain you will be pleased with the idea as well as the results.

Mr. Jarebek tells us that business in general out his way is going along nice and it is indeed a pleasure to hear such sweet words.

Selling Yourself to the Public

"Telling the World" all about yourself can also be used to further the interests of your theatre if you can follow the idea suggested and executed by Manager Fred E. Johnson of Cambridge, Ohio.

Mr. Johnson recently, at the request of the local paper, wrote an interesting article for publication in that paper about his own experiences and work as a theatre manager since he entered the business. Through this medium everyone in the town took another view of both Mr. Johnson and the theatre he runs. This strikes us as being a corking idea because this business of ours certainly lends itself to a good newspaper story, and with a little common sense and imagination you ought to have very little trouble getting your local paper to run it. Everybody is interested in the life of a theatre manager and the public will "Eat" every word you write. And it just gives your theatre a little more prominence and who ever heard of that hurting. This is a great idea and should offer possibilities to those of you who have any influence with your local papers. Incidentally, if you put it over, send us a copy of the paper.

Bronx Manager Writes Bureau

Sidney Oshrin, of the Allerton Theatre, Bronx, N. Y., has already taken advantage of the CLUB personal service bureau in requesting information relative to theatre operation. These requests will be answered direct, unless the request and the answer happens to be of interest to the members in general, then we will answer it through the CLUB pages.

We urge all members of the CLUB to take advantage of this Bureau and address any request for information that they may desire. Whether it refers to exploitation on a particular picture, or some problem in theatre operation and management, makes no difference it will receive our utmost attention and the advice or suggestions offered will be based upon actual experience and knowledge. If we get a "tough" one that is too hard for us to figure out, we will let the members send in their answers.

Remember "USE THE NEWS" it's the CLUB slogan and the best advice you ever received.

MANAGER'S ROUND TABLE CLUB

If your name was not on the First Membership List be sure it's on the Second one to be published very soon.

Get into the Club if you want to be affiliated with this great group of Showmen.

Stage Weddings Popular

Revival of Old Ballyhoo Idea Proves Strong Attraction for Prospective Brides and Grooms

DESPITE the horror with which William Allen White views them, the wedding ceremony performed on the stages of picture theatres continues to enjoy considerable popularity both as a means for prospective brides and grooms to obtain gifts offered by local merchants and the public which participates merely as amused spectators.

During the past year the picture theatre managers have made much use of the stage wedding as a special attraction, usually put on in cooperation with local merchants or the newspaper. In recent months these public ceremonies have taken place at theatres large and small in cities and villages. One put on with considerable ballyhoo in a theatre in the Kansas City territory brought forth a plaint from William Allen White, Emporia newspaper editor and publisher, who registered his disapproval of making a show of something which was and should be sacred.

The success of the stage wedding from a standpoint of popular interest and the box office, however, has resulted in its application as a showmanship device in one town after another.

Two of the most recent examples of successful stage weddings reported to this publication are those put on at the Palace theatre, Jacksonville, Fla., and the Riviera theatre in Waterloo, Ia.

Advertises for Principals

Although stage weddings are not entirely new to Jacksonville, Manager C. T. Chapin decided that "Heart to Heart" a First National picture, would be an appropriate offering with which to tie up a nuptial ceremony performed on the stage of the Palace theatre.

About a month previous to the date of the showing, Chapin ran an ad in the papers featuring the following request: "Wanted—a young couple to get married, will furnish trousseau and pay expenses. If interested call 5-0163 or write c/o Box 1474 Jacksonville, Fla."

The ad was responsible for approximately 100 answers not only from the city but from different towns throughout the state as far south as Orlando. Out of this number, only three couples were asked to have an interview. The others were middle aged people who thought this ad to be a matrimonial bureau just opening offices in the city and they wrote in for photographs, descriptions and usually their last paragraphs would read, "I want a man who has plenty of money and can take care of me for the rest of my life for I am tired of taking in washings." Of the three couples first selected, one couple was finally selected to appear on the stage where the wedding was performed.

The different merchants in town contributed very generously and the bride and groom received presents that they wouldn't have received otherwise. The flowers were given for the wedding by a local florist and he also furnished the kneeling stool, four candelabrums each holding eight candles; and a fence which extended the full length of the stage with a gate in the center through which the bride and groom passes.

Mgr. H. D. Grove of the Riviera Theatre, Waterloo, Ia., was successful in arranging a stage wedding to take place during the showing of "Half a Bride."

The success of the wedding was made possible to a large extent to the splendid co-operation of the Waterloo Tribune. The newspaper broke the first story in their Sunday edition eleven days in advance of picture—following with daily stories with some of them on the front page.

Newspaper Cooperates

In addition to the articles appearing in the newspaper, the newspaper's broadcasting station was also used daily in making announcements about the wedding.

The town merchants also rendered wholehearted support by donating gifts and showing them in their windows in advance together with window cards carrying copy about the picture, wedding, theatre and play dates.

The President of Upper Iowa University performed the ceremony as both the bride and groom were students at the university. The wedding went over without a flaw and numerous favorable comments were received on the manner in which the ceremony was handled.

The stunt was responsible for building up a lot of goodwill among the townspeople and among the merchants especially. Even the editor of the newspaper said he felt quite proud to have been associated with the Riviera in this undertaking.

Novel Angle Used in Page Of Cooperative Ads

Every one of the eleven merchants participating in the co-operative page used the title of the picture, "Telling the World" in some auspicious manner—many of the ads even showing cuts of William Haines and Anita Page, the two principals in the picture.

The contest was open to everybody who cared to try for free tickets. To the first person sending in the neatest correct count of the number of times the letter "E" appears in this page, free tickets to the show will be given. Send your count to the Contest Editor. For the first nearest correct, ten tickets will be given; to the next five nearest correct will be given two each."

Showmanship

Briefs

ANOTHER theatre which has adopted the plan of ultilizing the Movietone in connection with localized news reels is the Strand, one of the leading Scranton, Pa., houses of the Comerford Amusement Company's chain. During the week of August 13 the Strand showed news pictures of the members of the Anthracite Male Chorus, an organization of Scranton male singers who journeyed to Theorchy, Wales, and won first prize in the competition in their class in the National Eisteddfod. The Scranton singers were snapped by a Movietone cameraman shortly before their sailing from New York, and are heard on the screen in two selections sung in the Welsh language.

MANAGER MARSLINE K. MOORE took to the air in advertising "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Joie Theatre, Fort Smith, Ark. Instead of circling the clouds with an aeroplane dropping heralds, etc., which has been effectively used, Moore secured gratis the use of one of the large Goodyear Hydrogen Balloons. The balloon was inflated and tied off with a rope so as to tower several hundred feet in the air over the theatre. A 30-foot banner was attached to the baloon.

AN old flivver borrowed from the local Ford Agency was the main feature of a successful ballyhoo for the showing of "Harold Teen" at the Florida theatre in St. Petersburg, Fla., recently. This stunt was staged by Manager Roy L. Smart and was similar to several other like ballyhoo ideas used for this picture. The old Ford was driven about town by a young fellow wearing a collegiate hat and a slicker.

J. L. CARTWRIGHT, manager of the Lyric theatre, Jackson, Tenn., devised an unusual lobby arrangement to stress the mystery angle of the title "The Mysterious Lady." Cartwright enclosed the front and sides of the lobby booth with panels carrying the name of the star and title of the picture. The side panels flanked a large question mark cut out in the board covering the front window of the booth. The ticket seller, a young woman, could be seen through the question mark cutout. She wore a black silk mask upon which was lettered the title "The Mysterious Lady."

ALL the girls in Mishawaka, Ind., under twelve whose names were Mary were guests at a special performance of "My Best Girl" at the Tivoli theatre, where Manager E. H. Wood acted as host at a party in honor of Mary Pickford, star of the film. The event proved a popular stunt and a means of obtaining valuable publicity for the theatre and the picture.

GREAT States Theatres, Inc., will inaugurate the fall season with Greater Show Season, in all the towns in which they have theatres. It is already being heavily advertised by local decorations, banners, etc., the publicity being in charge of Miss Madeline Woods.

RUTH HAGA, a 20-year-old Minneapolis girl was selected as the winner of the Publix-Tribune Opportunity contest conducted at the Minnesota theatre in Minneapolis. The contest was launched as a search for talent for the stage shows at the Minnesota.

"Varsity Drag" Marathoners Dance Race to Portland Theatre

LLOYD MAXWELL, new manager of the Portland Theatre, Portland, Ore., advertising the new house staged the first Collegiate Drag Marathon held in the West. Ten couples entered the contest at the Hollywood Theatre, two miles away, and the largest West Coast suburban house, and the winners, Charlotte Ashby and John La Porte danced the distance in one hour and five minutes and took first prize of $75. The second prize was $25 and the third a season pass for two to the Portland theatre.

Vic Christensen, Portland dance instructor, and Earl Simmons, Northwest representative for Fanchon & Marco, acted as judges. Music for the dancers was broadcast by West Coast theatres station, KWJJ and received by autos fitted with loud speakers along the course.

Refrigerator Company Arranges Display for "Warming Up"

WARMTH and Coolness was the theme of the tie-up between the theatre and the distributor of Kelvinator Refrigerators in exploiting Richard Dix in "Warming Up" at the Capitol Theatre, Sioux City, Ia.

The Electric Company had a window display of Kelvinator refrigerators and a large card in the center contained the following copy, "It's Warming Up Outside but it's always cool in a Kelvinator! See Richard Dix in Warming Up at the refrigerated Capitol August 8-9-10."

Two other stores—selling electric fans had a similar tie-up as the Kelvinator refrigerators; their copy reading, "It's Warming Up outside but it's always cool when you use a . . . . electric fan, etc."

Two sporting goods stores had co-operative window displays showing baseball outfits and equipment together with stills from the picture and cards announcing the title of picture, theatre and play dates.

The local baseball manager permitted the placing of a 30-foot banner across the front of the entrance to the ball park on the opening day of picture.

Show How News Films are Made In Street Stunt for Picture

MANAGER FRED O. SLENKER borrowed a motion picture camera to exploit Bebe Daniels in "Hot News" playing at the Columbia Theatre, Davenport, Ia.

Two of the ushers were used in the camera ballyhoo; one acting as the cameraman and the other as his assistant.

As the camera was set up at different street intersections, a crowd soon began to gather. The cameraman made certain gestures as if taking a real shot. As soon as the crowd had become sufficiently large the assistant would let the lid of the suitcase open up revealing the title of picture, name of star, theatre and play dates.

This stunt was repeated at various street intersections and in other places where there were a number of people. The stunt not only got plenty of attention but was partly responsible for publicizing the picture for its successful engagement.

Greater Talking Movie Season in Spokane

RAY A. GROMBACHER, president of the M. P. T. O. W., and operator of two theatres in Spokane, has inaugurated a "Greater Talking Movie Season" in that city to introduce his elaborated policy of sound presentations at the Liberty and Granada theatres.

Grombacher has installed Movietone to complement his Vitaphone apparatus at the Granada as well as Electrical Research Company's non-synchronous device for cueing pictures in both the Granada and the Liberty. A policy of 25 cents straight admissions has been inaugurated at the Granada.

Flowers Collected at Box Office Sent to Hospitals

As a goodwill promotion plan, the Embassy Theatre, Allentown, Pa., in connection with the showing of "The Street Angel," on August 21 held a special matinee at 9.30 o'clock in the morning for children 12 years old or under, admittance being free with the presentation of a bunch of fresh flowers. There was no restriction as to the kind of flowers. The flowers were distributed among the hospitals of the city.

J. K. Emmet Named Gen'l Manager of Capitol

Major Edward Bowes has appointed Joseph K. Emmet as General Manager of the Capitol Theatre in New York. Mr. Emmet was, at one time, a well-known stage star but for the past five-and-one-half years he has been manager of the State Theatre. His Father was a celebrated actor "Fritz Emmet."

Local "Our Gang" Comedy a Hit in Birmingham

Loew's Temple Theatre in Birmingham has landed on the front pages for several good newspaper stories through the campaign on "Our Gang." Ambitious youngsters were given a chance to show their ability in competition for a place with one of the Hal Roach units in Hollywood. Harry Weiss launched the campaign while he was in the managerial post, and when he left to accept a promotion in the Loew organization, which took him to Norfolk as City Manager, his successor, Manager Robert Ungerfeld, continued to keep interest keen.

Heavy Publicity Drive for Girl Mystic at Tampa

The Tampa Theatre, Tampa, Fla., put over some good front page publicity in connection with the engagement there of Gene Dennis, the school girl psychic. Miss Dennis called on Chief of Police Logan and slipped him the info on some recent mysteries, all of which the Chief said, worked in well with clues he had. She then visited Mayor McKay and told him a few secrets, which the Mayor admitted were known to but one other person. He is wondering who let that out. Anyhow, the stunt got on the front pages of the local papers, with photographs and everything.

Nine Months for Roesner as M. C. at Capitol

On Wednesday of this week Walt Roesner celebrated the ninth month of his engagement as Master of Ceremonies and conductor of the Capitolians at the Capitol Theatre in New York. Roesner was brought to New York from California when the Capitol inaugurated the band act policy in conjunction with feature picture presentations.

Great States Theatre Men Hold Chicago Convention

Great States Theatres, Inc., held a convention of all their managers at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, last week. The meeting was presided over by Jules J. Rubens, vice-president and general manager.

Auto Agent Donates Car for Theatre Stunt

THE Chrysler Agency of Davenport, Ia., were solely responsible for the sponsoring of endurance run with one of their new models. Manager George M. Watson, always seeking an opportunity for exploiting his pictures, arranged a tie-up with the Agency that proved of material value in advertising "The Cossacks" playing at the Garden Theatre, Davenport, Ia.

The rear of the car carried a sign on which was lettered the title of picture, name of star, play dates and name of theatres in addition to catchy sales copy about the attraction.

This car traveled the near-by cities and smaller towns where the driver of the car slowed down enough to pass out 2,000 heralds to people on the streets.

U. A. Well Up On New Season Product

Thirteen Are Completed or in Production and Work on Balance Will Soon Begin

THIRTEEN of the nineteen United Artists Pictures being distributed this season are completed or in production, and the remaining six will be in production within the month. "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," "Two Lovers," "Tempest," "The Woman Disputed," "The Battle of the Sexes," "Revenge" and "Hell's Angels" are completed.

Vilma Banky's "The Awakening," D. W. Griffith's "The Love Song," Ronald Colman's "The Rescue," Douglas Fairbanks' "The Iron Mask," Rex Ingram's "Three Passions" and Henry King's "She Goes to War" are in production, four of the films almost completed.

Gloria Swanson's "Queen Kelly" enters production before September 1. Charlie Chaplin's unit is building sets for "City Lights." Camilla Horn is en route to California to play opposite John Barrymore in the Ernst Lubitsch production that will be started within a few weeks. Mary Pickford's story is nearly ready and production begins in September. Roland West's "Nightstick" and Herbert Brenon's "Lummox" have been scenarized and adapted and they have reached the casting point.

U. A. claims that never before in the history of the company have so many pictures been completed so early in the season.

"The Battle of the Sexes" will be released nationally October 13th; Norma Talmadge's "The Woman Disputed" will be distributed October 20th; and November 3rd is the date on Dolores del Rio's "Revenge." All three will be synchronized with scores and sound effects.

John Barrymore's "Tempest" is set for national release August 25th, with synchronized prints; and "Two Lovers," final Colman-Banky picture, goes out to the country September 7, with sound.

Frank Urson Dies

Scores of friends of Frank Urson, well known director, were shocked last Friday to learn of his death in Indian Lake, near Niles, Mich. He died of a heart attack, according to relatives. He assisted Cecil De Mille in the production of "The Godless Girl," which opened Monday night, and expected to attend the premiere.

Wins Suit

Dorothy Devore, screen actress, won her suit against Krellberg Pictures Corp. for $1750 for alleged breach of contract. Miss Devore stated she was employed to play the lead in "The Girl That God Forgot."

Sennett Star Injured

Sally Eilers, Mack Sennett star and a 1928 Wampas star, was painfully injured last Wednesday when her roadster collided with a milk truck on Melrose avenue as she was going to the studio.

Carl Laemmle Speaks

Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures Corporation, sitting in his office at Universal City on Saturday, August 18, addressed a sales convention in session in Berlin, Germany.

Christie-Collins Wedding

Al Christie, head of the Christie Comedy Company, and Shirley Collins, motion picture actress, were married in Yuma, Ariz., on August 15.

The Christie Studio is closed at present and will remain closed for several weeks while sound stages and devices are being installed.

Colleen Entertains

Colleen Moore, cruising in Mexican waters, recently entertained on board her palatial yacht, Sally O'Neill, Buster Collier, M. H. Hoffman, and two other principals of "The Floating College," featuring Miss O'Neill, and produced by Tiffany-Stahl.

"The Godless Girl"

John C. Flinn, vice-president of Pathe exchanges and a staff of technicians, were present for the opening of "The Godless Girl" at the Baltimore theatre.

Completes Two

General Pictures Corp. has completed two productions at San Mateo studios, starring Richard Talmadge. Oscar Price, president and general manager, and William H. Jenner, production manager, will leave soon for New York with the initial prints. The company plans to make a series of features for the independent market.

Latest Fox Acquisition

Charles Condon, youthful scenarist, is the latest acquisition to the Fox Film scenario department. Condon, a former publicity head, has been responsible for the adaptation of such successes as "What Happened to Father," "Jaws of Steel," "One Round Hogan," "Dog of the Regiment," and his current production, "Caught in the Fog."

Marie Prevost

Marie Prevost has been engaged for one of the most interesting pictures in the offing. It is called "The Exodus of the New World," and will be an epic of the Mormons traveling West under the leadership of Brigham Young in 1846-7. Ray Johston will direct the popular star.

Mother Role

Eugenie Besserer, a popular and reliable character actress, will play the role of the mother in "The Little Angel," Norma Shearer's new starring picture for M-G-M. Sam Wood will direct.

Short Comedies

Arthur Lake's latest short comedy, "Horace in the Army," has been completed and is the sixth of the "Horace in Hollywood" series of one-reelers directed by Edward Luddy.

Elevated

Otto Brower, formerly an assistant on the Paramount lot, has been elevated to a full-fledged director by B. P. Schulberg, General Manager of West Coast Production, and will direct "Avalanche," which goes into production soon.

Johnnie Darrow

John Darrow, rising young Caddo player, has been signed for an important supporting role with Jack Holt in "Avalanche," a Zane Grey story. Darrow was loaned for the part by Howard Hughes, who has the young actor under contract. Darrow scored

Lloyd Starts Shooting September 4th

HAROLD LLOYD has completed preliminary arrangements and will start shooting on his new production September 4th. It will be a sound picture, though to what extent has not yet been determined. A considerable portion of the new picture will be set in San Francisco's Chinatown and stress will be laid on the mystery element.

Lloyd will follow his policy of selecting a new leading lady for each picture and he has not yet decided who will play oposite him in this one. Tests are being made of several of the younger set of Hollywood screen aspirants. The comedian has given every angle of the sound situation his careful scrutiny but feels that his plans in this respect will have to remain secret for the present.

a nationwide hit as the cub reporter in "The Racket," and has an equally important part in "Hell's Angels," the Caddo air epic.

Our Gang En Route

"Our Gang," Hal Roach's Rascals, traveled east in a specially equipped Pullman coach, with sound-proof walls, unbreakable furniture, and all kinds of shock absorbers. This is their first glimpse of the country outside of California.

Harold Shumate

Harold Shumate, producing supervisor for Sam Sax-Gotham Productions, is personally writing the adaptation and continuity of the Owen Davis play, "Through the Breakers," recently purchased for production under Joseph Boyle's direction.

Mr. Hale Takes Rest

With eight pictures in the current cinema year to his credit, and his boxoffice rating leaping upward as a comedy drawing card, Alan Hale has definitely renounced direction for the present.

Paul Fejos

"Erik the Great," the second picture to be directed by Paul Fejos for Universal, has started production with Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin in the starring roles.

Dialogue

Carlie Byer, who spent several years on the stage before taking up a motion picture career, has several dialogue sequences in Reginald Denny's current Universal picture, "Red Hot Speed."

Another Glyn Story

Clarence Badger will direct "Three Week Ends," the Elinor Glyn story purchased for Clara Bow, for which preparations are under way at the Paramount Studios.

Art Director

Henry King has engaged the services of Robert M. Haas as art director for "She Goes to War," the Henry King production for release through United Artists.

Add Gold Braid

Wade Boteler, well known for his work in "Soft Cushions" and "Let It Rain," has been added to the cast of "Gold Braid," Ramon Novarro's new M-G-M romance of naval aviation.

Working Fast

Earle Snell turned out the continuity of "The Cohens and the Kellys in Atlantic City" in five days time.

Jacqueline Logan

It was decided that Jacqueline Logan did much to make "The Blood Ship" an outstanding success. Consequently, she has been signed to play the lead in "Driftwood," a story by the late Richard Harding Davis, which will be directed by William Christy Cabanne. Lillie Hayward, who adapted "Runaway Girls," is busy writing the script for "Driftwood."

Natural Color

Richard Dix's forthcoming Paramount production, "Redskin," will be filmed entirely in natural colors. Louise Brooks will play opposite the star.

Will Title "Submarine"

Pandro Berman has been appointed film and title editor for Columbia. He will immediately assume charge of the editorial work on "Submarine," the special Frank Capra production, "The Street of Illusion," which Erle C. Kenton directed, and "Sinners' Parade," which is now being completed under John Adolfi's direction.

Ruth Taylor

Ruth Taylor, following completion of her role with James Hall in Anne Nichols' "Just Married," will play the part of Margaret Odell, the Broadway butterfly, in the Paramount picturization of S. S. Van Dine's "The Canary Murder Case."

Eddie Cline Signed

Eddie Cline has been signed by Tiffany-Stahl to direct Sally O'Neil in "Applause," a story of the stage.

Victor Fleming

Victor Fleming, director of "The Way of All Flesh," and Ann Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose," for Paramount, is to film Harvey Ferguson's "Wolf Song."

"Haunted House"

Johnnie Gough, well-known character actor, is the latest addition to the cast of "The Haunted House," the Owen Davis mystery melodrama which Benjamin Christensen is directing for First National Pictures in Burbank.

Director Reassigned

"Fancy Baggage" and "One Stolen Night," two of the special Warner Winners soon to be started on the coast, have had their directors reassigned by J. L. Warner. According to previous announcement, Scott R. Dunlap was given the direction of "Fancy Baggage" and John Adolfi was handed the megaphone for "One Stolen Night." The assignments have now been reversed with Mr. Adolfi scheduled to make "Fancy Baggage" and Mr. Dunlap directing "One Stolen Night."

"My Wild Irish Rose"

Ralph Ceder has completed production of "My Wild Irish Rose," one of the H. C. Witwer-Cosmopolitan Magazine story series which Larry Darmour is producing for FBO.

In Work at Gotham

Budd Rogers, Vice-President of Gotham Productions, announces that production is well on its way with "Through the Breakers," adapted from the stage play by Owen Davis. The cast features Margaret Livingston, Holmes Herbert, Natalie Joyce, Clyde Cook and Frank Hagney. Harold Shumate, who is supervising the production, did the adaptation. Joseph C. Boyle is wielding the megaphone.

Another Talkie

Still another all-talking picture was started last week on the Vitaphone stages of the Warner Bros. studio when Director Lloyd Bacon took the first scenes for "Stark Mad."

"The Floating College"

E. J. Ratcliffe and Gene Alsace have been added to the cast of the Tiffany-Stahl production, "The Floating College," in which Sally O'Neill and Buster Collier play the leading role under the direction of George Crone.

Gag Man

Alf Golding has been engaged by Tiffany-Stahl to supervise the "gag" work on "The Floating College."

"The Family Row"

Lawrence Gray, Claire Windsor, Roy D'Arcy and Jed Prouty are playing the prineipal roles in the Tiffany-Stahl production "The Family Row" now being directed by James Flood.

Jack London Story

Work has been started on the filming of one of the Jack London stories for Tiffany-Stahl under the direction of Elmer Clifton. The cast so far selected includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Malcolm McGregor, Wallace MacDonald and Ray Hallor.

In Work

"Mickey's Movies," the first of the new juvenile series being made by Larry Darmour for FBO, went into production last week. The series are based on Fontaine Fox's internationally famous cartoon strip. The same cast of youngsters that appeared in the first "Mickey McGuire" series have been cast in the new series.

Shackelford Signed

Floyd Shackelford has been signed to appear in two Warner Bros. pictures, both of which are now in production at the Warner studio. His first part will be in "Hard Boiled Rose," now being directed by F. Harmon Weight. When Shackelford completes this role, he will immediately begin another in "Stark Mad," an all-talking Vitaphone picture.

Korda and Sills

Alexander Korda is to direct Milton Sills in his next starring vehicle for First National Pictures.

It is tentatively titled "The Comedy of Life" and is a story of Venice today.

Two for Seiter

Not only will William A. Seiter direct Colleen Moore's next picture, "Synthetic Sin," but Producer John McCormick has also secured him to handle the direction of Miss Moore's following production, "The Richest Girl on Earth," a comedy, by John Emmett. Both First National's.

Tom J. Geraghty, who has written the scenario for "Synthetic Sin," will also work on "The Richest Girl on Earth."

Key City Reports

New York City

ANOTHER excellent week's trade was chalked up by the majority of Broadway houses for the past seven days. Although temperature was well up around the 80 mark the weather on the whole was fair and since most of houses have installed refrigeration plants the heat really seems to pull a lot of patrons off the street when they feel the draught of conditioned air sweep by.

"With "Four Sons" (Fox) to shout about the Roxy again went after records and from all accounts the effort was successful. It is claimed that the first week's business done by this picture broke all previous marks hung up in this big house. With this big start and the strong possiblity of the picture being held as long as "Street Angel," Roxy can continue his quest for broadbill swordfish and Adirondack trout.

The Capitol also kept up the fast pace set by "The Mysterious Lady (M-G-M) the first week. The second week was equally good. Down the street at the Paramount, that house with "Just Married" (Par) well kept up that profitable average for Publix. At the Strand, "Glorious Betsy" (W. B.) continued to demonstrate that the talkies can hold their own.

The Rialto ushered in "The Patriot" and sound and this picture received plenty of praise from the press. It's off to a good start after the Rialto's mediocre week's showing with "Loves of an Actress." At the Rivoli, FBO's "Perfect Crime," with sound effects and dialogue, did another excellent week's business. The Cameo made a nice showing with "Fortune's Fool."

Among the specials the Astor with "White Shadows in the South Seas" (M-G-M) continues to brisk trade and the same can be said for First National's "Lilac Time" at the Central. Both are making a most excellent showing among the two-a-days. After celebrating its year's stay at the Criterion, "Wings" goes right along at a smart pace, publicity of the event giving business a spurt.

The Embassy premiered Columbia's "The Scarlet Lady" last Tuesday and the week was just a fair one. Better dope on this in next week's report. At the Globe, Fox's "Red Dance" put in another week which was not so good and the same report will go for "Lost in the Arctic" (Fox) at the Gaiety.

More honors for talking pictures are reflected in the first returns on "The Terror" (W. B.) at Warners theatre. The reviewers were kind, generous advertising used and business is good.

After all is said and done, it cannot be disputed that from the past several weeks pictures with sound effects and dialogue are the ones doing the biggest share of the business. Novelty or not, the public is paying real cash to look them over and it appears that they are getting their money's worth.

Cleveland

THE most unusual spectacle presents itself of having summer records exceed average winter records. While this it not the general order of affairs all over the city, nor even the usual thing at the downtown houses, still it exists often enough to deserve comment. Three things contribute to this change from the old days when houses either closed up for the summer or played revivals. These three things are, first, the cooling systems which entice perspiring crowds into the cooler atmosphere; second, the novelty of sound pictures, and last, the showing of new season's product during the warm months instead of holding them over until fall, as used to be the film theatre fashion. So we have the pleasure to announce that the first-run houses last week all played to what would be considered very nice business in the height of the theatrical season.

"Glorious Betsy," in its second week at the Stillman, drew most favorable comments as a picture of unusual interest, and also attracted consistently big crowds. The talking sequences were well liked by the majority.

"Four Walls" did a whale of a business at the Allen. Novelty, sincerity and good work put this picture over right.

"The Loves of an Actress," pleasing enough entertainment, did highly satisfactory summer business at the State.

"The Magnificent Flirt," which almost reaches the high spots of clever, sophisticated screen presentation, proved to be interesting enough to draw standing room audiences at the Palace. Frances White, the vaudeville headliner, was no mean magnet in drawing audiences to the Palace, so between the good vaudeville bill and an interesting feature picture, there was good reason for splendid business.

"Three Ring Marriage" and "Say It With Sables" split the week at Keith's East 105th Street Theatre, with satisfactory results.

"Forbidden Hours," playing a first-run neighborhood engagement the first half of the week at the Park did moderately well, while "The Bellamy Trial" went over big at the last half of the week.

Neighborhood houses as a whole report that business is picking up.

Chicago

SLIGHT relief in the weather for a few days helped business in neighborhood houses, the big loop houses continuing to hold up.

"Four Walls" on the screen, with "Flapperettes" as the stage show, plus H. Leopold Spitalny's "Cavalleria Rusticana," did well at the Chicago.

"Lights of New York," the first all talking picture, continued to draw big crowds to McVickers.

Box office receipts at the Oriental were satisfactory with "The Cardboard Lover" as the screen feature, Al Kvale leading the stage show and Ruth Etting in person.

The Roosevelt, too, with its talking picture "Lilac Time," plus Herbert Hoover's acceptance speech, turned in a fair box office statement.

"King of Kings" held up to expectations in its last week at United Artists theatre.

The Tivoli attendance probably was the feature of local theatres last week, Jackie Coogan in person with "Forgotten Faces" on the screen, and Bennie Kreuger leading the stage show, accounting for capacity business during the entire week.

Business at the Capitol and Avalon was good, the former having as its screen attraction "The Cop," with Vitaphone and Movietone, and the latter "Drums of Love," with Vitaphone and Movietone.

"The Lion and the Mouse" was the screen feature at Marks Brothers Granada and Marbro, and both theatres turned in exceptionally large box office receipts.

Albany

ALBANY and vicinity sweltered last week and as a result business was none too good at a majority of motion picture theatres in Albany and Troy. But when the weather became cooler on Friday there was an immediate response in what appeared to be picture-hungry men and women who flocked to the theatres sand gave evidence of what might be expected when the new product is released and the cool fall days arrive.

In Albany, "Glorious Betsy," with Dolores Costello, the second or third "talkie" that has struck town, polled good business when one stops to consider the weather.

At the Leland theatre "Road House," running the last three days of the week, played to standing room business two out of the three nights. The Leland is now splitting its week and may continue to do so until September. The fore part of the week was given over to Dolores Del Rio in "The Gateway of the Moon." While business was good, it was not up to the last three days of the week.

The outstanding picture of the week proved to be "We Americans" at Proctor's theatre. This picture packed the theatre afternoon and evening.

At the Clinton Square theatre "Lady Raffles" and "Painted Post" were coupled in a double feature program that ran the week to ordinary business.

At the Ritz, in Albany, "Midnite Life" ran fair.

Some of the neighborhood houses report satisfactory business, while others are complaining.

In the neighboring city of Troy, "The Lion and the Mouse," a "talkie," showed itself an excellent business getter. The theatre was packed practically every night during the week. The Lincoln ran double features the last of the week, using "Road House" and "Prowlers of the Sea." Proctor's used "His Tiger Lady" to fair business.

Minneapolis

THE week's theatre business was just about average last week, with no especially big box office attractions to draw the crowds.

At the State, "Forgotten Faces" proved a first rate melodrama, but it didn't do as nice a business as it deserved to do.

The attraction at the Minnesota theatre was Pola Negri in "Loves of an Actress," supplemented by the Publix unit show, "Rah! Rah! Rah!" and this film did about the average business.

At the Hennepin-Orpheum Margaret Anglin was making a personal appearance and was the chief drawing card, but Monte Blue in "Across the Atlantic" proved popular, nevertheless.

At the Lyric Adolph Menjou pleased the crowds in "The Tiger Lady," while at the Grand the Tunney-Heeney fight films were a big maget for all the fight fans, rounding out a program which included "Telling the World."

Business at the neighborhood houses was generally good, cool weather being somewhat responsible for this. Among the pictures shown at the outlying houses were "Telling the World," "Ladies of the Mob," "Happiness Ahead," "Honeymoon" and "Skyscraper."

Baltimore

COOL nights during the week beginning Monday, August 13, helped business at some of the first-run theatres in Baltimore, after the torrid weather that this town had been through recently.

Some people liked "Loves of an Actress," the sound, song and musical production starring Pola Negri, and many others did not. This was the first feature sound picture offered at Loew's Century with the stage presentation act "Babes on Broadway."

Throughout the week business was very good in that refrigerated house.

At the Keith-Albee New Garden theatre "Love Hungry," starring Lois Moran, was the feature film attraction with six acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville. Attendance throughout the week was very good, compared to what it has been at that house recently.

"Street Angel," the sound, song and musical film, went over excellently during its second week at the New theatre, lines forming each day. Other sound and talking short films were shown on the same bill.

Business at the Rivoli was very good for the week with "Women They Talk About," a sound film. It was retained for a second week.

"The Whip Woman," co-starring Estelle Taylor and Antonio Moreno, went over only fair at refrigerated Stanley.

"Just Married," Anne Nichols' farce comedy, proved only so-so as a patron puller at Loew's Valencia with musical accompaniment furnished by a non-synchronous device which sounded very poorly.

"Decomeron Nights," the Herbert Wilcox English production, with Lionel Barrymore, proved a poor attraction at the Little theatre with its 250 seats. It started off good, then slumped, and then came up again Saturday night.

"The Little Yellow Mouse," from the Beatrice Burton novel, at the Keith-Albee Hippodrome, with five acts of Keith-Albee family time vaudeville, did poor business.

Ottawa

AN impressive picture at the Regent and a "Take-a-Chance Week" at B. F. Keith's theatre caused many residents of Ottawa, Ontario, to forget the extreme heat during the week of August 13. Attendance at downtown theatres is keeping above summer average but the neighborhood shows are feeling the effects of the warmth, countless families being at the rural resorts.

"The Cossacks" at the Regent theatre was so good that Viscount Willingdon, the representative of the King down at Rideau Hall, heard about it and brought an official party with him to see it. The common people also flocked to the Gilbert-Adoree production and it was well liked.

Manager J. M. Franklin pulled a "Take-a-Chance Week" at Keith's and much curiosity and comment were aroused, patronage being well above the week before. The feature turned out to be "The Hawk's Nest," with Milton Sills, and this was the strong point of the bill.

Beery and Hatton appeared at the Imperial in "The Big Killing" and this team drew many followers. Their stuff this time was classed as fair. Beery, Hatton & Company have built up an excellent trade in Ottawa.

Adolphe Menjou took a turn at the Centre theatre, when he appeared in "Serenade" for the first half, with "Heart to Heart," with Mary Astor and Hughes, on the screen for the last half. The stars' names were the draw, particularly with Menjou, and patronage was fairly good.

One of the best pictures in months at the Laurier theatre, Hull, was "The Crowd," and its treatment of commonplace things brought both tears and laughter. Business was good.

"Law and the Man" was a good old type of drama and it drew fair patronage to the Eden theatre.

The Fern theatre had second run of "Last Command" and Manager Robertson ran matinees Thursday and Saturday to take care of extra business.

The Columbia also had a good neighborhood feature in "The Blood Ship," which was presented along with the last chapter of "The Masked Menace." The combination got fair to good business. Manager Nolan had the final of "Trail of the Tiger" at the Rex theatre and this, with "Blood Will Tell" as the feature, brought plenty of juveniles.

Tampa

THE Tampa last week featured the stage attraction above the screen. This is only the second time in the history of the house where the stage presentation was given the stellar position. Gene Dennis, the school girl psychic, who tells the customers most anything they choose to ask, seemed to merit the unusual prominence given her by the management for she was the real drawing power of the week.

The pictures featured were "Good Morning Judge" and "Don't Marry." Both features went over nicely but would have hardly held up alone. As it was the week went over very good, with the exception of Monday, when a storm held forth.

"The Lights of New York" completed a 10-day run at the Victory and went over big all the way through. An excellent program of Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News were shown in addition to the talkie feature.

The Franklin had all second runs this week, with the exception of the usual Saturday western. "Ben Hur" opened the week and brought two days of fine business.

"Rose Marie" and "Easy Come, Easy Go" were the other features and they both did nicely. The Western used Saturday was "The Flying Cowboy."

With the other houses lined up with box office cards the Strand found the going hard with their trio of non-clicking pictures. As a consequence the business for the week showed up just fair. Pictures used this week were "The Road House," "The Bush Leaguer" and "The Way of the Strong." However, the worm will turn for scenes of the local "Our Gang" comedy are being shot and the interest is great, so Manager Lykes looks for a mop-up when it comes in for a run and has had the old S.R.O. sign all regilded.

Pittsburgh

AT the Penn John Gilbert in "Four Walls" pleased capacity audiences at every performance. This is a crackerjack underworld drama, with Gilbert doing some real acting for a change. The Publix Unit known as "Harem-Scarem" was the stage attraction, and, as usual, proved to be a very entertaining offering.

The Stanley dropped presentations this week and got by with "Lilac Time," accompanied by the Vitaphone. The film made a hit here, and business was good.

"The News Parade" was the screen attraction at the Grand, and is an amusing comedy-drama, patterned after the William Haines type of entertainment. An Our Gang comedy, "Olympic Games," almost stole the show. A vaudeville act, "The Russian Cossacks," rounded out the bill.

The Alhambra did but fair business with "Diamond Handcuffs."

At the Cameraphone, a double bill got average crowds. Films shown were "Bare Knees" and "The Way of the Strong."

At the Liberty, first half of the week, "Beware of Blondes" got but average business, and the last half of the week saw "Broadway Daddies" playing to average business.

Salt Lake City

DOWNTOWN theatre patronage has averaged fairly well this past week considering the fact that one of the warmest weeks of the summer season has been experienced.

The out-of-door resorts and canyons are having an exceptionally big season here but the moving picture theatres are holding their own very well.

"The Mating Call," a Paramount picture featuring Thomas Meighan, drew good sized houses to the Capitol, in connection with Fanchon and Marco's "Great White Way Idea," a stage presentation which is also a great drawing card here. Verdi and Record are featured in this stage offering, assisted by Vina Zolle and Elmer Hurling, Betty and Marguerite, proteges of Fanchon and Marco, who introduce several of their acrobatic creations. Ralph Pollock conducts the Capitol band in popular numbers and Alexander Schreiner offers an organ solo.

"The Mysterious Lady" with Greta Garbo and Conrad Nagel played to crowded houses at the Pantages, which also offers vaudeville.

May McAvoy and Jason Robards in "Irish Hearts" went over to above the average crowds at the American, which also presented "Fat Saunders" in the "Country Store."

"Don't Marry," featuring Lois Moran and Neil Hamilton, proved to be a very satisfactory drawing card at the Paramount Empress, where fairly crowded houses have been the rule.

The latest talking picture to be shown at the Victory theatre here in conjunction with the Vitaphone is "Women They Talk About," featuring William Collier, Jr., Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris. This production was received very favorably by large houses.

George O'Brien in "East Side, West Side" and also "The Raider Emden" made up the bill at the State theatre, and were well patronized, as was the Tower, a neighborhood house, featuring Buck Jones in "Black Jack."

Los Angeles

GREATER Movie Season is on. It seems to have stimulated business. At least, something has started the ball rolling, for motion picture houses here report gratifying patronage.

"White Shadows of the South Seas" has proved splendid drawing power at Gauman's Chinese. It is attracting good crowds and promises to run some time.

At Loew's State, William Haines, in "Excess Baggage," began drawing with the opening performance. It succeeded "The Red Dance," which also was an attraction that gathered them in.

"Warming Up" at the Metropolitan enjoyed splendid business and set a pace for "Forgotten Faces," with Clive Brook and Baclanova. However, the latter opened to capacity.

"The Man Who Laughs," at United Artists Theatre, was well received, and indications point to splendid business for an extended run.

"Lights of New York," at Warner Bros., is in its last week. Business at their Hollywood Theatre failed to hold on as well as other attractions which preceded it in the Hollywood house. "The Terror," another Vitaphoner, will follow.

"Lilac Time," at the Carthay Circle, is also on the wane, but no closing date has yet been announced.

Considerable advance interest was evidenced in the opening of "The Godless Girl," the latest C. B. DeMille picture, which was to make its bow at the Biltmore Theatre on Monday, August 20.

However, "Greater Movie Season" and its stimulating spirit has served its purpose. In general, business was excellent.

Portland

A CONTINUATION of ideal summer weather materially increased box office receipts, coupled with exceptional screen offerings at the various houses, and all houses in consequence showed stimulated business.

At the Columbia a nice increase in receipts was reported with "Freedom of the Press" from the pen of Peter B. Kyne, and many local reviews boosted the screen version.

Two hours of wonderful entertainment was again served the patrons of The Portland who saw Marion Davies in "Her Cardboard Lover" and voted it good.

Jacqueline Logan in "Midnight Madness" brought good box office returns at Tebbett's Oriental. Two delightful concert numbers were provided by Josef Srodka.

Manager Thomas of the Broadway introduced a novelty in putting a loud speaker at the front of the house under the box office and relaying the last 15 minutes of the Richard Dix offering, "Warming Up." The income was not quite as large as for "Four Sons," but went over in good shape.

Bessie Love and Tom Moore in "Anybody Here Seen Kelly" was the screen attraction at Pantages, while the main stage attractions was a clever bunch of dancers in "Dancers a la Carte," starring Garry Swan and Helen Lucille.

"Lights of New York" went into its fourth big week at the Oriental and crowds continued. The usual number of excellent Vitaphone acts were headed by Clark & McCullough.

A world premiere was featured at the Capitol theatre, "The Old Oregon Trail," which proved very popular, especially with a number of native Oregonians.

First road show of the season, "A Night in Spain," did capacity business at the reopening of the Liberty.

Two exceptional offerings which are registering well at the Rivoli, "The Legion of the Condemned," and Portland's own Ruth Taylor, in her screen success, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Seattle

THE last week meant big money for practically all downtown first-run houses, despite warm summer weather. The occasion was triple—the opening of a new theatre, two changes in policy, and a general list of big attractions.

First in the money came the Seattle Theatre with "The Mysterious Lady" on the screen and the Fanchon-Marco stage revue, "Bathtub Idea," with Gene Morgan opening as master of ceremonies. The picture was quite pleasing to audiences, but the crowds were due to a great extent to the stage show. It was the first of the Fanchon-Marco revues to play this house, succeeding the Publix revues, and marked the opening of the new stage season at the Seattle. Altogether a very good week—probably the best in several months.

Second in the running came the Fifth Avenue Theatre, inaugurating its new policy of big sound pictures and no more stage revues. "Street Angel" was the opening attraction, and it kept the big house packed at all times. Movietone News was also featured, and the musical specialty by Hermie King and his orchestra, who remains at the theatre, was very well received. A very strong week, nearing capacity.

The new opening was John Hamrick's Music Box Theatre, a 1,000-seat "intimate" type of house directly across from his Blue Mouse Theatre. "Glorious Betsy" was the opening attraction, and it kept the house packed at all times, with long waiting lines at every performance. The opening was unusual in two ways—there was no private invitational preview, and the opening picture was not a "flop," booked with the idea that the people will come the opening week regardless of the film. In brief, it was another bit of Mr. Hamrick's smart showmanship throughout, and business was capacity.

Directly across the street, "Lights of New York" kept a waiting line in front of the Blue Mouse Theatre every night of the week, despite the fact that it was the third week for this film. Matinees were also strong, and the film goes another week. Business very good.

At the United Artists Theatre, a big double bill, consisting of "United States Smith" and the Tunney-Heeney fight films, kept this house better filled than it ever has been before under the present 25-cent admission policy. The bill was held for nine days instead of the usual week, and played to good business.

The Columbia fared just moderately will with "His Tiger Lady," but it could not do much better with the keen competition around it on every side. The loss of Francesco Longo and the All-Artist Orchestra, who have gone to Radio KJR, has made a difference at the box office also. A fair week.

The first-run houses used second-run films during the week—"The Garden of Eden" at the Winter Garden and "After Six Days" at the Embassy. Both attractions played to fair business only.

The vaudeville houses also did just a fair gross, with "Man Made Women" at the Orpheum and "Hell Ship Bronson" at the Pantages. Neither of the films were considered particularly strong.

Dallas

BUSINESS at the Dallas first-run theatres suffered a rather sharp decline in comparison with that of the previous week, and receipts for the past seven days have only been fair. The intense heat gets the blame, and it well deserves it, for Dallas received seven days of continuous blistering heat.

At the Majestic, "No Other Woman," with Dolores Del Rio proved to be one of the two best drawing cards of the week and business was good but not big. The picture was well liked, and a Movietone short of Herbert Hoover accepting the nomination proved a business getter. Charles Withers headed a good Interstate bill and more than pleased.

"Hot News," with Bebe Daniels and Neil Hamilton at the Melba, proved to be the other good draw of the week and receipts were good throughout the week. Matinees were much better, although the heat was intense each afternoon. An unusually attractive lobby display helped sell the show.

The Palace extended a lot of good publicity on the past week's show, which they designated as "Take a Chance Week," and with no other description of the program other than that it was an exceptionally good bill, and the picture was kept secret. However this stunt failed to get them and business was only fair. The picture offered was "Loves of an Actress," with Pola Negri.

At the Capitol, "Buck Privates," starring Malcom McGregor and Lya de Putti, secured a fair attendance, although business was still off, although the picture was well received. Matinees have been low at the Capitol for the past several weeks, which does much towards keeping the week's receipts down.

"Three Ring Marriage," with Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, brought only fair business to the Old Mill. Business has been down at the Old Mill for the past few weeks, but the figures are still on the safe side.

"Good Morning, Judge," with Reginald Denny and Mary Nolan, and "The Yellow Lily," with Billie Dove and Clive Brook, enjoyed fairly good business for the past week, but receipts were off of the usual high average at the Arcadia.

Cincinnati

THE clouds which have hovering over Cincinati for the past week have contained the proverbial silver lining, in so far as the theatres are concerned. This is but another way of saying that all houses are on the long-looked upward trend.

Greta Garbo, in "The Mysterious Lady," together with an unusually good array of acts, kept 'em coming in a constant stream at the Albee, the entire program winning high praise from the local critics.

Shekels likewise jingled in the Capitol box office in a manner which was highly pleasing to the management. "The Lion and the Mouse" was both seen and heard at this house to the entire satisfaction of all customers.

Keith's, with "Good Time Charley," while not enjoying a record-breaking week, nevertheless showed very considerable improvement in returns.

Sid Chaplin in "Skirts" at the Lyric piled up a beautiful gross at this house, Chaplin being a favorite with Cincinnati fans.

"Heart To Heart," at the Strand, proved a very good draw; in fact, the returns were quite above the average for the past several weeks.

"Grip of the Yukon," the first-half attraction at the Family, with Rin-Tin-Tin in "A Race for Life," for the remainder of the week, attracted heavily, both pictures registering favorably with the audiences.

The Palace, pictures and vaudeville, where Viola Dana made a personal appearance for the week, proved a mecca for the fans, who turned out in larger numbers than for a long time.

The managers are silently hoping that the "jinx" has been permanently removed.

Des Moines

AT the Des Moines theatre "Glorious Betsy," Warner Brothers picture, brought them in in spite of the hot weather. The Movietone was enthusiastically received.

At the Capitol theatre, where John Gilbert in "Four Walls" was featured, the week was a fine one. The picture was heavily billed and was conceded to draw above the stage show.

At the Strand theatre the report shows the business right up to average in spite of the fact that very warm weather set in. "The Devil Dancer" with Gilda Gray did very well as did Thompson's feature for Paramount of "Kit Carson."

Philadelphia

MOST of the downtown motion picture theatres reported an improvement in business over the previous week, due probably to the prevailing cooler weather.

The Stanley had a good week, considering the season, with Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady," a gripping film with many tense situations and an unusually interesting added attraction, Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield.

The Arcadia, with the mystery film, "Thirteen Washington Square," reported fair business.

The Fox, with "Win That Girl" on the screen and a surrounding bill featuring Miss Irene Franklin, the Four Nightingales and Frank De Voe, had nothing to complain of.

"Warming Up," with Richard Dix in Paramount's realistic sound film, brought out the baseball fans to the Aldine, and business was fairly good.

The Stanton showed "The Strange Case of Captain Ramper," an unusual German film, which held the attention of the audience from start to finish. A remarkably good picture very favorably reviewed.

"Forbidden Hours" closed its second week at the Karlton, and played to fair midsummer business.

The Carman, with "U. S. Smith" on the screen and a most enjoyable stage show, "The Girls' Band Revue," featuring Bert Earle and his Melody Girls, reports average midsummer attendance.

The Forum, with King Vidor's "The Crowd" and a Futuristic Dance Revue on the stage, had a fair week.

Atlanta

KEITH'S Georgia and the Capitol tied for first honors last week, with the other theatres falling down below average.

At the Capitol the Eviston-Napier stock company proved the drawing magnet, although Conrad Nagel in "Michigan Kid" was well liked.

Keith's Georgia reaped a good box office, steadily increasing each day, with their feature, Clive Brook in "Forgotten Faces."

The Howard fell hard, playing Poli Negri in "Loves of an Actress," while Loew's Grand suffered with the Cody-Pringle team in "Beau Broadway."

For the third week "Lights of New York" held its own remarkably well for the Rialto, the third week being an increase over the second.

The Metropolitan's youthful audience doubled this week to see the Hughes-Astor team in "Three Ring Marriage. A fair week all told.

Three Westerns, "Crooks Can't Win," "Little Buckaroo," and "The Adventurer," brought the Tudor an average week, and three first runs, "Say It With Diamonds," "Christine of the Big Top," and "Women Who Dare," plus three second runs, held the New Alamo steady.

Continued rains the first four days of the week hurt the theatre business, but a new leap was taken Friday.

Kansas City

HOT weather continued, but attendance took a turn for the better in Kansas City for the wee.

At Loew's Midland "White Shadows in the South Seas" did a better business than any other picture in the last several weeks, aside from "Ramona," probably because of the fact that the former marked the introduction of sound pictures at Loew's Midland.

At the Pantages "Clothes Make the Woman" did a good week's business, although it did not overshadow other pictures of the last weeks by much of a margin.

"Forgotten Faces" at the Newman played to a larger attendance than the past weeks have shown. The Newman is closing soon for improvements.

At the Mainstreet "Tenth Avenue" attracted crowds during the week which would just about measure up to the average attendance for the last month.

"Red Lips" at the Uptown, starring Buddy Rogers, a Kansas City youth, showed a marked increase in attendance because of "local color."

Nothing out of the ordinary in exploitation was used by any of the houses, the only departure from the usual procedure being an increase of about 50 per cent in Sunday newspaper advertising on the part of the Uptown.

Milwaukee

HOT weather descended upon Milwaukee toward the end of the week and spoiled what would otherwise have been a very profitable week in downtown show houses. The week started cool and over the week-end the theatres enjoyed unusually good patronage for this time of the year.

The Wisconsin was very well attended, especially before the advent of the hot spell. The feature here was "The Mysterious Lady." Added to that a new master of ceremonies was introduced, Nat Nazarro, Jr., which helped to bring in good crowds.

The Garden with "Glorious Betsy" was always well filled. "Glorious Betsy" is being held over for another week.

Business was rather slack at the Merrill, where "A Certain Young Man" was featured, and at the Strand, which offered "Say It With Sables."

The vaudeville houses were well patronized throughout the week. The Riverhead offered "A Race for Life" as the photoplay feature, and "Road House" played at the Orpheum.

Neighborhood houses were less fortunate than the down town houses, and for the most part, did not get the patronage their programs warranted.

The Oriental and Tower did fairly well with "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

"The Street of Sin" was not very well patronized at the Uptown, Garfield and Modjeska.

The Venetian was well attended during the showing of "Ship Comes In." The Colonial did good business with "Walking Back."

San Francisco

AS the weather, during the past week, had a tendency to be cloudy and not warm and as the people are returning from their vacations, getting ready for the schools which open in about one week, the first run motion picture theatres did well, especially for this time of the year.

The El Capitan theatre, the city's largest and newest house, did especially well with the picture "Hero for a Night," together with a high class stage presentation, "In Birdland."

"The Street Angel," as shown at the St. Francis theatre during its fourth and last week, although well liked by those attending, the box office reported only a fair business.

The Loew's Warfield theatre was crowded all week with the picture "Fazil," which was shown together with the Fanchon and Marco Idea, "High Yellah."

The Embassy theatre is continuing to do remarkable business with the picture and Vitaphone, "Lights of New York." The management and publicity stunts here put on have been praised.

"Forgotten Faces," together with the Publix revue, "Galloping On," did well in the evenings but in the afternoons the business fell down.

"Hangman's House," together with vaudeville acts at the Pantages did only a fair business.

"On to Reno," together with special vaudeville acts at the Golden Gate theatre, did not draw as many as expected, although the first three nights that theatre was more than crowded. The Union Square theatre reported fair business with the picture, "The House of Scandal," "The Collegians," a comedy and vaudeville acts.

Charlie Chaplin drew large crowds every evening and afternoon at the Alexandria theatre in the picture, "The Circus. The able management of this theatre is what drew the crowds as Chaplin is not so well liked in this city any more.

The Coliseum reported remarkable business with the picture, "Easy Come, Easy Go," together with vaudeville acts.

4 Pathe Features to Be Released in August

Four feature productions, three dramas and a western, will be released by the Pathe exchanges during the present month.

"Tenth Avenue," a special with Phyllis Haver and Victor Varconi, was released on August 5. On this date, also, was issued "Saddle Mates," a Wally Wales western vehicle in which Peggy Montgomery is seen opposite the cowboy star.

August 19 will be the date of release for "The Cop," a special which stars William Boyd, with Alan Hale and Jacqueline Logan in support. The final release for the month will be "The Red Mark," a special in which Nena Quartara and Gustav von Seyffertitz are featured. This feature will arrive on August 26.

Ufa Eastern Lists First 5 Feature Releases

Beginning August 15, Ufa Eastern Division Distribution, Inc., will release five feature productions of the schedule of 26 Ufa films they have set for this season.

The five pictures that have been selected to inaugurate the new season's selling campaign are as follows: "The Apache of Paris," "Milak of the Snowlands," "Bondage," featuring Heinrich George, and directed by Richard Eichberg; "Guilty," featuring Willy Fritsch and Suzy Vernon, and "When Duty Calls," starring Rudolf Rittner.

Paramount News' Birthday Brings Congratulations

Emanuel Cohen, editor of Paramount News, is the recipient of many messages of congratulation on the first birthday of Paramount News, celebrated last week with the issue 104.

Government cabinet officers, state officials, exhibitors and exchangemen complimented Cohen on his ability.

Jack Holt to Star in the "Avalanche"

A new Zane Gray story, "Avalanche," will be Jack Holt's next vehicle for Paramount, and the third under his contract with the company. J. Walter Ruben will prepare the adaptation and scenario. The director and leading woman will be known inside of a few days.

Opinions on Pictures

The First Kiss

Don't Expect Too Much From It

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE young love teams have their irons in the fire these days, the fashion having been started when Charlie Farrell and Janet Gaynor walked up seven flights of stairs to find romance in their heavenly hovel. The Paramount team of Fay Wray and Gary Cooper haven't the strongest dish in the world here, but they, with some assistance from a few others in the cast, make it more than tolerable.

It is woven from the old familiar thread of a shiftless youth who resolves to make something of himself when romance bowls him over. And to furnish contrast he is painted as a member of the "white trash" brigade, while the girl friend is one of the first families of Maryland. The background is all to the bivalve, Gary and his three brothers ekeing out a precarious living playing hide and seek with oysters. The atmosphere is authentic, the company having shot actual locations along Chesapeake Bay.

The story builds pretty well, but from the moment the proud missy slaps the hero's face, you can guess its action. The youth had once belonged to a proud family, so with the urge to amount to something he turns to stealing. This is necessary to educate his brothers. It brings on a courtroom scene, which is fairly interesting. In the end everything is hunky-dory.

The stars do well by their roles though Cooper might have injected more fire into his performance.

Drawing Power: For large and small houses. New starring team should bring them. Exploitation Angles: Play up new starring combination for romances. Tease the title.

THEME: Romantic drama of shiftless youth who makes good when he meets right girl.

Produced and distributed by Famous Players. Length, six reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Gary Cooper, Fay Wray, Leslie Fenton, Lane Chandler.

Out of the Ruins

Flavored With War Stuff—Pretty Good

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THEY haven't given Richard Barthelmess another "Patent Leather Kid" this time, even though it does shape up as pretty good entertainment. The new essay carries both a pre-war and a post-war flavor and relies on its sentiment and romance to carry it along. Most every branch of the foreign service has been shown on the screen except the Blue Devils of France. So with that object in mind it behooved Barthelmess to put on the uniform of a Blue Devil. He makes a good appearance.

The fight sequences are subordinated in favor of the love interest. And this element has its pretty head up most of the time. All kinds of romantic scenes are shown, from the tender to the passionate. Which is cause to hand a large bouquet to Marian Nixon for her work in the clinches and out of them. Heretofore identified with comedies she proves herself competent to portray the heavier type of roles. Both Richard and the girl are very sincere in their performances.

The idea builds around the young soldier walking out of his regiment to be with the girl of his heart. When he attempts to walk back, the headquarters are waiting for him. He is all set for the firing squad, but a gentleman's agreement is established among the executioners—with the result that the deserter's life is spared.

It's a simple yarn—and really not strong enough for the star. And it's slow of action—so much so that important scenes are retarded. The war incident is pretty ancient. With a little judicious trimming here and there it should offer better entertainment.

Drawing Power: Star has following. Playing him up along with Miss Nixon should get results. For better houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up title and bill as a romance of the famous Blue Devils of France. Feature star and leading woman.

THEME: Romantic drama of young deserter who gets out of scrapes to win his girl.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, seven reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Richard Barthelmess, Marian Nixon, Robert Fraser.

The Terror

First Rate Mystery Film—With Good Sound Effects

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

YOU can put this down in your little note-book as there. When a picture has an assorted collection of chills and thrills, and is plentifully supplied with shivery incident and action which is saturated with suspense it can be chalked up as something to be looked over. Add these essentials of a good crook story to sound effects which emphasize all of the high lights and it becomes a work of real celluloid. That's our verdict of "The Terror."

Here is a very spooky melodrama built around a super-crook whose pet sideline is murder. This unsocial specimen of crime makes his headquarters in an equally spooky inn of England's countryside—an inn all tumbled-down in a manner which would tickle Sherlock Holmes. The place is filled with an uncanny collection of guests, among whom are a lady spiritualist, a tipsy golfer and an expert in criminology. These characters are sharply defined and are so clearly contrasted that one is immediately placed in a receptive frame of mind for some mysterious high jinks.

The picture is well recorded, the voices matching the personalities of the figures. And so it builds very cleverly. It calls for trick photography when ghostly hands play unseen organs and when they reach out of the eerie atmosphere to clutch a throat or two. These shocking bits call for weird sets and atmosphere—as well as weird lighting effects. And in the absence of titles the suspense is emphasized. The cast is announced by a sepulchral voice. The leading roles are played effectively by Edward Everett Horton, May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda, Alec Francis, Matthew Betz, Holmes Herbert, John Miljan and Otto Hoffman. In all it's very good.

Drawing Power: Playup the appearance of another talkie. Play up cast. Bill as uncanny melodrama. Explcitation Angles: Featured for its mystery and its sound effects it should do business everywhere. For any type of house.

THEME: Melodrama of crime and mystery in a spooky house.

Produced and distributed by Warner Brothers. Length, seven reels. Released, August, 1928. The Cast: May McAvoy, Everett Horton, Louise Fazenda, Otto Hoffman, Alec Francis, Matthew Betz, Holmes Herbert, John Miljan, Frank Austin, Joseph Girard.

Four Walls

Gilbert Makes Whoopee As Gangster Sure Fire Stuff

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

IT will seem a little strange to most of the folks to discover John Gilbert in the role of a gangster. But there he is as large as life in a whooping melodrama which concerns gun-play, prison walls (where the title gets its meaning) and a moral note to give it a bit of a tone. It may surprise the Gilbert fans to see him foregoing the love stuff to take pot shots in a gang war.

The picture is an adaptation of the play which met with fair success on the Broadway stage. And it packs considerable of a wallop. It presents the star as a gangster who, after serving a stretch up the river, emerges with the lofty ambition to go straight. To accomplish this he must avoid his old companions—especially the girl friend who is responsible for the youth getting into such a mess of trouble. But he spots her in a joint and registers jealousy. He sees red. And the fight is on. And what a fight! Police enter and it looks like curtains for the youth. But the happy ending approaches in time to save him from doing another term. The bad girl decides to stick to him, thus making this story more plausible than if she had been checked out.

It is pretty good picture entertainment. And should prove popular. There is something doing every minute. Joan Crawford succeeds in making her performance real and Carmel Myers as the Good Influence does first rate work.

Drawing Power: Star's popularity should get them. For any house, anywhere. Exploitation Angles: Feature star in a different type of film. Play up as adaptation of successful play. Mention Joan Crawford as opposite star.

THEME: Melodrama of gangsters with leader going straight after a life of crime.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn. Length, seven reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: John Gilbert, Joan Crawford, Vera Gordon, Carmel Myers.

The Scarlet Lady

Lya's Best Role Since "Variety"

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE'S no dearth of Russian stories. The bear who walks like a man is stamping over all the lots of Hollywood. But he hasn't shown much versatility. Most of the yarns framed around Ivan have traveled very familiar ground. For the sake of dramatic conflict and contrast—the central characters must belong to the aristocracy and peasantry. And after much storm and stress they escape the revolution and find romance.

Of such stuff is "The Scarlet Lady," Lya de Putti's newest picture. There is no suspense hanging around because one can anticipate the action all of the way. But it does have its moments and moreover it gives the star her biggest role since "Variety." Lya hasn't done so well in America. But here they give her the works and she comes through with plenty of emotion.

It is her particular job in the film to save a young aristocrat from dying in the grave he is digging for himself. She is one of the Reds and the leader of them is suspicious of her. So it becomes a bitter pill to swallow when he deliberately offers her a gun to kill the youth and then conveniently steps in front of her. This is too absurd. Otherwise the story carries some first rate scenes even if the amorous shots appear to have been censored. It builds much too slowly and could easily be trimmed of several wordy captions. Speeded up it would click quite Oke. Miss de Putti has good assistance from Warner Oland and Otto Matiesen. Don Alvarado is given to looking sheiky. His love-making doesn't ring true. Atmospherically it is very good. It should do in the general run of houses.

Drawing Power: All depends on star's ability to attract them. Playing up her personality will help. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Feature star with her new red hair. Stage matinees for red-headed girls. Bill as star's best picture since "Variety." Bill as romance of Russian Revolution.

THEME:: Romantic drama of peasant girl of Reds who falls in love with Grand Duke and saves his life.

Produced and distributed by Columbia. Length, nine reels. Released, August, 1928. Cast: Lya de Putti, Otto Matiesen, Warner Oland, Don Alvarado. Direetor, Alan Crosland.

Regional News from Correspondents

Seattle

FIRE of unknown origin which broke out one night last week in Mike Lyon's Playhouse Theatre, in this city wrought damage to a total amount of more than $1,000, principally to carpets and chairs. Firemen had a difficult time controlling the blaze.

Clarence Hill, who represents Advance Trailer Service in the states of Washington and Oregon, announced he will soon have as a visitor in this office Art Schayer, western district manager for Advance.

Tom Gibbons, film salesman for Columbia's local exchange, received congratulations of the Row last week upon the arrival of a 7-pound addition to the family.

The Lyric Theatre, Spokane house damaged by a dynamite bomb just a few weeks ago, was reopened last week under the same 5 and 10c policy that it formerly featured. Repairs were rushed to completion last week under the direction of John Brooks, manager.

Harry Akin, former manager of the Colonial Theatre in this city for the John Danz organization, presided as manager at the opening of the new Capitol Theatre in Portland, a 1,500-seat downtown first run house. Several Seattle film and theatre men made the journey down to the Oregon territory to attend the opening ceremonies.

Sam Wineland, former musical director of several Pacific Northwest theatres, and guest master of ceremonies three weeks ago at the Seattle Theatre here, returned from an extended fishing trip.

Fred Mercy and his assistant, Junior, were visitors on Film Row last week, booking pictures for their houses in Walla Walla, Yakima and other valley towns. Other visitors included the two Farrels, Bill and Clarence, exhibitors from Ellensberg and Yakima.

A. McRae, booker for the West Coast Theatres offices in this territory, returned from a trip to Portland last week via airplane. Many of the Seattle film men who travel to the Portland district use this daily air service which cuts the rail time from six hours to one hour and a quarter each way.

Marco Wolf, the male member of the "Fanchon & Marco" producing company that supplies West Coast Theatres, Inc., with their stage revues, spent a few days here last week when the F-M shows moved from the Fifth Avenue Theatre to the Seattle Theatre to supplant the Publix revues that will not play the Coast any more.

Mike Newman, general manager of all Universal theatres in the Pacific Northwest, returned to his office in the Columbia Theatre here last week after a business trip to California. He stopped off at Portland en route, to install A. West Johnson as manager of the Columbia Theatre there, succeeding Bert Levy.

Arthur Huot, manager of the F B O exchange, returned last week from Spokane, after being confined to a hospital in that city for several days with an infection of the arm.

Will Starkey, showman, spent a few days in Seattle last week, and confirmed the report that he is getting out of the motion picture business to enter the dramatic stock field exclusively. He is now working on a deal to dispose of his Lewiston, Idaho, theatres and he has also sold the Rex Theatre in Spokane. C. G. Bowman and J. H. Hoeft of Hilliard, Washington, are the new owners of the latter house. Mr. Starkey has only the Majestic, Empress and Hippodrome Theatres in Spokane remaining.

Louis Weiss, head of Artclass Productions, visited Seattle last week and spent some time with Jack Lannon and Percy Hurst, president and general manager of Greater Features, Inc., relative to distribution of the Artclass product.

Guy Haselton, former showman of Missoula, Montana, who recently acquired the Baker, Oregon, theatres that were owned by the Burk family, was a visitor on Film Row this past week. He is trying to inaugurate a local newsreel for that section of his territory.

Hermie King, master of ceremonies and head of the Fifth Avenue Theatre Orchestra in this city, has been signed to a three year contract with the Fanchon-Marco circuit, thus assuring his appearance in West Coast Theatres for that length of time.

Al Raleigh, for several seasons manager of the Coliseum Theatre in this city, and more recently associated with one of the large chains in the Eastern part of the country, returned to this territory last week and assumed the management of the theatres in Olympia that are owned and operated by West Coast Theatres and E. A. Zabel. C. W. L. Johnson, former head in the Olympia district, has resigned to accept an Eastern offer.

Last week witnessed the formation of a new distributing company on Seattle's Film Row. It is the "American Film Company" and is a combination of the former Western Film Company, DeLuxe Feature Film Company, and the Northwestern Film Company. C. M. Dunn, former exhibitor of this territory, is president of the concern, and D. C. Millward, film man, is vice-president and general manager.

The sales staff of Manager Mat Apartonas local Universal office gathered in this city last week and played host to the staff of the Portland exchange for a day. The occasion was the brief visit of G. E. Rosenwald, Western division manager, who used the joint gathering in order to save time on his present tour of the circuit.

The Bleich also will be brought up-to-date and a number of major changes made.

Tennessee

The Pink Palace, in Chickasaw Gardens, Memphis, Tenn., formerly owned by Clarence Saunders, chain store magnate, has been selected as location for the Little theatre. Some differences have arisen, however, over the prominence of the theatre auditorium, but these are expected to be ironed out at a meeting of the Park Commission.

While there is no opposition to the installation of the theatre in the building, there has been some debate over the section selected by the more zealous of the theatre's supporters. The Park Commission is opposed to the location of the theatre in the main building and favors its installation in the building housing the swimming pool.

Despite these differences, however, all concerned are confident that this meeting will end all debate. Work of refurnishing the space selected for the theatre is expected to begin immediately.

Aside from spilling a quantity of foul smelling liquid, characterized as stink bombs by police, the vandals slashed the screen to shreds with a knife and bored a number of holes in the plastering about the theatre. Liquid from the bombs was spilled over about 10 feet of a rug laid in the center aisle and the bottle then tossed against a wall and the remainder of its contents allowed to run down the floor almost the length of the house.

No clues were left by which the guilty might be traced. This was the second time in a week that the theatre had been entered, the former time burglars paid a visit stealing a large sum of cash, but doing no property damage.

The Liberty theatre in Washington, Ind., will be operated under lease by the McCarrell enterprises, owners of the Indiana theatre, in the future, and the Granada theatre in Greeneastle, owned by the same company, has been leased to H. P. Vondesehmitt, owner of the Liberty, it has been announced by Alvin Spainhour, resident manager in Washington of the Indiana theatre.

The exchange of leases was made by the owners in order that better service might be given the two cities. Under the new system, Mr. Vondersehmitt will control the Greeneastle theatre and the Carrell Enterprises will have charge of the Washington houses.

Mr. Spainhour will be manager of both Washington theatres. There will be no change of policy until all details have been worked out.

Two theatres in Crawfordsville, Ind., the Strand and Art theatres, have been added to the string of Indiana playhouses controlled by Harry P. Vonderschmitt, it has been announced. With the addition of these two, Mr. Vonderschmitt will have an interest in six theatres, one at Bloomington, one at Bedford, two at Greeneastle and two at Crawfordsville. He will have theatres in three of the principal college towns of Indiana, the schools being Indiana University, DePauw and Wabash. He takes possession of the Crawfordsville theatre Sept. Robert Mellis, who has been manager of the Liberty in Washington, Ind., will go to Crawfordsville as assistant manager of the enterprises there.

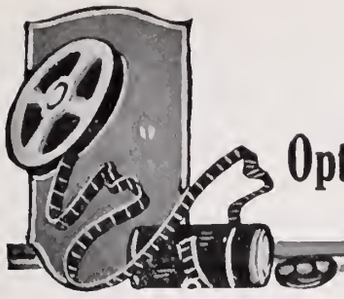
Dallas

A RECENT survey of the Sunday activities of the people of Dallas shows that over 16,000 people are attending Dallas theatres each Sunday. This check was made by the United Press, and is fairly accurate.

Ray Beall is suffering from an attack of gall stones and is confined to his bed in Dallas. Mr. Beall is attempting to avoid an operation for his ailment, but if his condition does not improve rapidly, he is going to lose out.

Eddie Stanley, stage band director of the Palace theatre, Dallas, has recently purchased a new automobile, and now wears a broad smile.

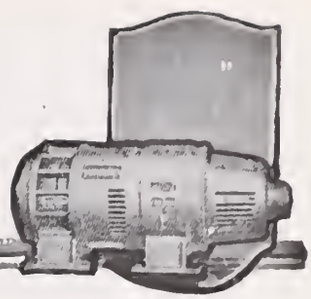
Mrs. Harold R. Parker and children have just returned to Dallas after a two months' vacation in the Ozark Mountains.



Roy Litsey, formerly booker in the Dallas First National exchange, and who recently accepted a traveling position with his firm, has been transferred to the First National Memphis office.

J. L. McKinney, who has been connected with the Western Electric Co. in the sales department of Vitaphone and Movietone, is in Dallas and expects to be stationed here permanently.

Dan Michalove, Southern Divisional Manager for Pathe, was a Dallas visitor and while here checked up on the sales activities of the Dallas Pathe exchange with E. C. Leeves local manager.



S. G. Fry sold his two houses at Mt. Pleasant, Texas, to A. W. Lilly, who operates a chain of theatres in that section.

Chas. E. Kesnich, southern divisional manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and W. B. Zollner, manager of the Oklahoma City M-G-M branch, were Dallas visitors and guests of Leroy Bickle, local manager.

Projection

Optics, Electricity, Practical Ideas & Advice

Inquiries and Comments

New Problems for the Theatre

NCE again, the illumination end of projection threatens to lag behind the motion picture art. Just when things seemed to have been straightened out and all of the theatres in the country had completed the change from the vertical low intensity arc to the reflector and high intensity types of arc lamps, along come the talking pictures to throw the proverbial monkey wrench into the smoothly running gears.

It appears as though another change in projection practice is due to take place within a short time. If talking pictures will be as widely used as most people believe they will be, then it appears inevitable that this change will occur.

It is the practice at present to use a screen in connection with the presentation of "talkies" which is sound "porous," so to speak. In other words, the texture of the screen is such as to permit a more or less free passage of the sound waves issuing from the horns placed behind the screen.

Now, a screen which is sound porous is also necessarily light porous—and besides permitting sound waves to pass through it, will also allow the passage of light which is not so good because it seriously reduces the reflection efficiency of the screen.

The reduction in reflection efficiency thus brought about will depend, of course, upon the coarseness of the screen texture. The problem is one of combining two opposite requirements in the best possible fashion in order to arrive at a satisfactory balance between the sound results and light results. On the one hand we have the requirement that the screen be as porous as possible in order to permit sound waves to pass through it as freely as possible. Best results of course are obtained by completely removing the screen from before the horns so as to avoid "muffling" or distortion of the sound.

At the present moment, this seems impractical because a better illusion of reality is obtained when the sound comes from the direction of the characters on the screen. On the other hand we have the requirement that the screen be as opaque, or as solid, as possible in order to make it of high efficiency from a light reflecting standpoint. An utterly opaque screen, however, is out of the question from a sound standpoint so that the only thing to do is to make it "half and half." That is, porous to sound and semi-opaque to light.

Screen Muffles Sound

The quality of sound results is not best served by placing the horns behind the screen for the same reason that ornamental screen coverings placed over the cones of radio speakers as found on the ordinary radio outfits for the home act to muffle the sound output of the speakers.

The damage, in the case of ordinary radio loud speakers is comparatively slight compared to the screening of the theatre horns because the screens used on radio speakers are of large mesh since their only purpose is to serve as an ornamental covering for the cone.

Even this relatively small degree of muffling is bad enough, however, as a simple test, made by removing the screen covering from the cone, will reveal. With this covering removed from the radio speaker, the audition is found to be considerably more distinct than otherwise.

It is not at all unlikely, therefore, that a new position will be found whereby the horns in the theatre will be free to send forth the sound unhampered by a screen covering.

Besides improving the quality of the audition, this would also permit the old type of solid screen to be used and so would again restore the brightness of the picture to its former value.

The porous screens at present waste from 25 to 50 per cent of the light projected onto their surface and this loss is so serious as to make it necessary to use more powerful illuminators on the projectors in order to reach a satisfactory screen intensity.

Replacement of Equipment Required

If the present practice of placing the horns behind the screen is allowed to stand, a large majority of theatres will be faced with the necessity for purchasing new illuminators for their motion picture projectors.

Unfortunately, there is no more powerful illuminator to be had than the 150 ampere high intensity arc and as this equipment is already in use in the large de luxe houses, a serious problem arises in connection with this class of theatre. The limit of screen illumination for them has already been reached and if more screen light is desired they will be simply "out-of-luck."

Theatres now able to get by with the 120 ampere high intensity arc are allowed some leeway because they can step up to 150 amperes at no extra cost for equipment. This class of house will get by with the least expenditure for new equipment.

Small theatres will probably be able to make the low intensity reflector arc lamp do by stepping these lamps up to their capacity of 25 amperes so that these theatres too are not so bad off.

The middle class theatre, however, is in a most unenviable position. The theatres of this class have just finished "reflectorizing" their projectors with the low intensity reflector arcs and have, in the majority of cases, installed low capacity generators and auxiliary equipment to take full advantage of the economy of this efficient illuminator.

These theatres have been operating the reflector arc at, or near, its capacity in order to get good screen light and now that a large increase in illumination is required for the "talkie" they are confronted with the unpleasant fact that their present equipment is not powerful enough to meet the conditions.

New and more powerful illuminators, are therefore required and along with these lamps must also be purchased new generators of larger capacity to supply the lamps with current.

To confuse the exhibitor still further, there arises the doubt as to what type of equipment to purchase. The logical successor to the low intensity reflector arc would appear to be the high intensity reflector arc but two years of effort have still failed to produce a satisfactory lamp of this type.

The H. I. reflector arc has not yet reached the stage where it is free from troubles and considerably more experimentation is required before it will be entirely satisfactory.

Even if this type of lamp could be used the fond expectations of the manufacturers to make this lamp on 60 amperes equal the old 120 ampere H. I. lamp has not been realized.

Furthermore, new and larger generators are required to replace the low capacity generators designed for the low intensity reflector arcs.

It appears quite likely that the ultimate set-up in theatres in the future will be 150 ampere H. I. arcs for the largest theatres and the H. I. reflector arc for the smaller houses—when and, if, a satisfactory lamp of this type is produced.

Theatre in Arkansas Town Opened After Decorating

The Home Theatre, Blytheville, Ark., was reopened last Monday after having been closed for several months, undergoing extensive remodeling and redecorating at a cost of about $10,000. The stage has been lowered approximately three feet. An entire new set of scenic background and stage decorations have been built and a large purple plush front curtain is being installed.

New York Projection Societies Hold Educational Meetings

THE heat of a typical Manhattan summer apparently holds no discomforts for those projectionists of Local 306, New York City, who go to make up the membership of that city's two leading educational organizations, the Manhattan Projection Society and the Kaplan Projection Society.

Despite the fact that a balky thermometer threatened to break through the 100 mark, two very successful lectures, followed by demonstrations, were given on separate nights by the two societies acting jointly. The first meeting was held at midnight, when between five and six hundred projectionists accompanied by a number of chief projectionists of the country's leading circuits witnessed a practical demonstration of the New Brenkert F-7 Master Brenograph effect projector and the new Hall and Connolly high intensity reflector arc.

The two societies repeated the demonstration in the Broadway theatre at Forty-first street and Broadway, on a later date. Several hundred men attended this second meeting, which was primarily for the benefit of theatre owners and managers

The speakers at both meetings were introduced by Sam Kaplan, President of Local 306, who prefaced his introduction with a short talk in which he forcefully stressed the importance of all projectionists becoming thoroughly acquainted with all types of equipment used in the projection room.

The speakers at the first meeting held in Brooklyn were representative of Hall and Connolly, and the Brenkert Light and Projection Company.

The second meeting, held in New York, was devoted principally to a repetition of the effect lighting demonstration at the conclusion of which Dr. Ashman exhibited a new condenser lens for which he claimed greatly improved quality of illumination when used in all lens types of illuminators.

The Manhattan and Kaplan Projection Services were formed at about the same time some five or six years ago and both have as their object the dissemination of information which in any way touches upon projection. Both Societies are keenly alert to all projection matters and vie with each other in friendly competition in order to increase their members' interest in common problems. On special occasions, such as the meeting described above, their efforts are pooled in order to obtain greater effectiveness.

The existence of two kindred societies within the same local is necessitated by the large membership of the New York Local and by geographical consideration as it would be inconvenient for members working in outlying Brooklyn districts to journey to New York to attend the regular monthly meetings.

The source of the prestige and effectiveness of New York Local 306 is easy to find when the activities of these two educational societies are viewed at close range.

Publix Atlanta Theatre Undergoing Renovation

As an opening move in its plans for a $75,000 improvement campaign for the Howard Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., the Publix Theatres Corporation has installed at this house the Vitaphone and Movietone equipment.

In accordance with the improvement specifications, new interior decoration, new draperies and furnishings and new equipment for the stage and projection room are called for.

The general scheme of the decoration, itself a work of art, will not be changed, but artists and artisans will combine talents to heighten every detail of the beauty. From floor to ceiling, not a square foot but will be touched in the plan of remodeling and decoration.

Draperies, carpets and chairs that have stood the wear and tear of years of service will be replaced by newer and handsomer designs. Stage equipment, which proved entirely adequate for the "silent drama," will be supplemented by highly complicated mechanical devices, essential to the proper presentation of sound pictures. In addition to the new mechanical equipment, there will also be installed, elaborate stage settings, including special drops, draperies and cycloramas. Technical equipment involving the most recent developments in projection devices, will find its way to the projection booth.

Modern Theatre Building for Smithfield, N. C.

Work is under way on a modern theatre structure in Smithfield, N. C., that will house, in addition to the picture auditorium, a postoffice, many stores and office suites. The plans for the new building were drawn by William H. Dietrick, architect of Raleigh.

This theatre, which will be equipped to handle road shows in addition to the motion pictures, has been leased to H. J. Paradis, of Wilson, N. C., who operates a number of houses in North Carolina. Mr. Paradis announced that the opening would take place sometime in September.

New $2,000,000 Theatre Project in Camden

Announcement has just been made of the proposed erection of a combined motion picture theatre and office building to cost approximately $2,000,000 at Hudson and Federal Streets, Camden, N. J., just opposite the new $6,000,000 city hall and court house. The building itself, it is estimated, will cost $1,250,000. Laekey & Hettel, Inc., of Camden are the architects and it is probable that work will be started within a few weeks.

Netoco Swells Holdings in New England

THE New England Theatres Operating Corporation, otherwise known as Netoco, has acquired additional property in the New England section to swell its list of over 30 theatres. The Maine in Portland, Me., is the newest Netoco house, having been purchased recently from the Leon P. Gorman interests in Portland. Netoco also has the proposed State Theatre in Portland to be erected at High and Congress Streets.

The State will seat 2,500 and will be constructed according to a Spanish style of architecture. It will also be equipped with sound picture apparatus. The State will have orchestral and organ programs and will also feature news flash broadcasts.

The Maine will continue as a motion picture house exclusively with the immediate installation of sound apparatus.

"Gold Braid" in Production

Production was begun last week at the M-G-M Culver City studio on "Gold Braid," Ramon Novarro's new drama of naval aviation. The opening sequences were taken in a tiny closet-room depicting a part of the student quarters at Annapolis, with the star, Ralph Graves and Carroll Nye appearing as student officers.

The story soon shifts to the air, and George Hill will work with the naval planes at San Diego filming the aviation shots. Anita Page is the heroine in the picture. Eddie Nugent and Stanley Getchell are others in the cast.

A Play for William Haines

William Haines will appear in "A Man's Man," the stage play by Patrick Kearney that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just purchased for him as his next after "Excess Baggage." James Cruze will direct. Filming will begin at once on the picture in which the star will play a sympathetic character in a role that often borders on the tragic.

Ted Wells Starts Western

The story and continuity of "Born to the Saddle," were written by George H. Plympton. Ted Wells has begun work in this latest starring Western for Universal, under the direction of Joseph Levigard.

Tryon's Support Chosen

Joseph Franklin Poland, supervising Glenn Tryon's "It Can Be Done," has chosen the complete supporting cast. Fred Newmeyer is directing this comedy, the first to be synchronized with the Unitone, Universal's sound device.

Dialogue Writer

Earle Snell's former experience in the writing of stage plays has qualified him as one of the dialogue continuity writers for talking pictures on Universal's staff.

Finishes Script

Dorothy Farnum has completed the script of "Adrienne LeCouvreur" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is said that Greta Garbo will play the leading role.

River Boats

Fifteen river boats resembling those used on the Mississippi in the '80's and '90's have been constructed on the Sacramento River by Universal for "Show Boat."

Capra Completes Sea Special

Frank Capra has finished the most difficult assignment of his career in directing "Submarine," the Columbia special. He will now direct "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," and is working on preliminaries for this story.

Hale's Future Roles

Howard Higgin is directing Alan Hale and Phylis Haver in "Sal of Singapore." Before Hale rejoins William Boyd to make "The Leatherneckers," he will appear in the title role of "The Spieler."

Old Homesteads

Some of the oldest dwellings in the nation were utilized for scenes in "The First Kiss," the Paramount production. The company traveled from Hollywood to St. Michaels, Maryland, on the Chesapeake's shores to get the actual location described in the story.

Worsley Returns to Direction

Wallace Worsley is back in harness after a sojourn which took him to Australia and other places. He has completed "The Power of Silence," starring Belle Bennett.

Mix' Next for F B O

Robert De Lacy will direct the second Tom Mix picture for F B O, "Drums of Araby."

Henaberry Will Direct Denny

Joseph Henaberry will direct Reginald Denny in "Red Hot Speed." Henaberry has been prominent for a number of years in the comedy field.

Films "Waterfront' Scenes

Malcolm St. Clair, directing Clara Bow's Paramount starring vehicle, "The Fleet's In," brought a number of his company back to the studio upon completion of scenes made on the waterfront in San Francisco.

Three New W. B. Pictures

Camera work is to start this week at the Warner Bros. studio on three new features —"Hard Boiled Rose," to star Myrna Loy, and to be directed by F. Harmon Weight; "Stolen Kisses," to feature May McAvoy, and to be directed by Ray Enright; and "The Redeeming Sin," to star Dolores Costello under the direction of Howard Bretherton.

Young Dynamo

Camera work is scheduled to start next week on another F B O western starring Buzz Barton. His new vehicle, "The Vagabond Cub," will be directed by Louis King.

Movie Camera Man Sees Wreck.

Dave Oliver, a Pathé News cameraman, saw the disaster. He was standing on the Times Square platform, having barely missed the fatal train. He was on his way home and was carrying his camera outfit and several rolls of highly sensitized film for use on a night job to which he had been assigned.

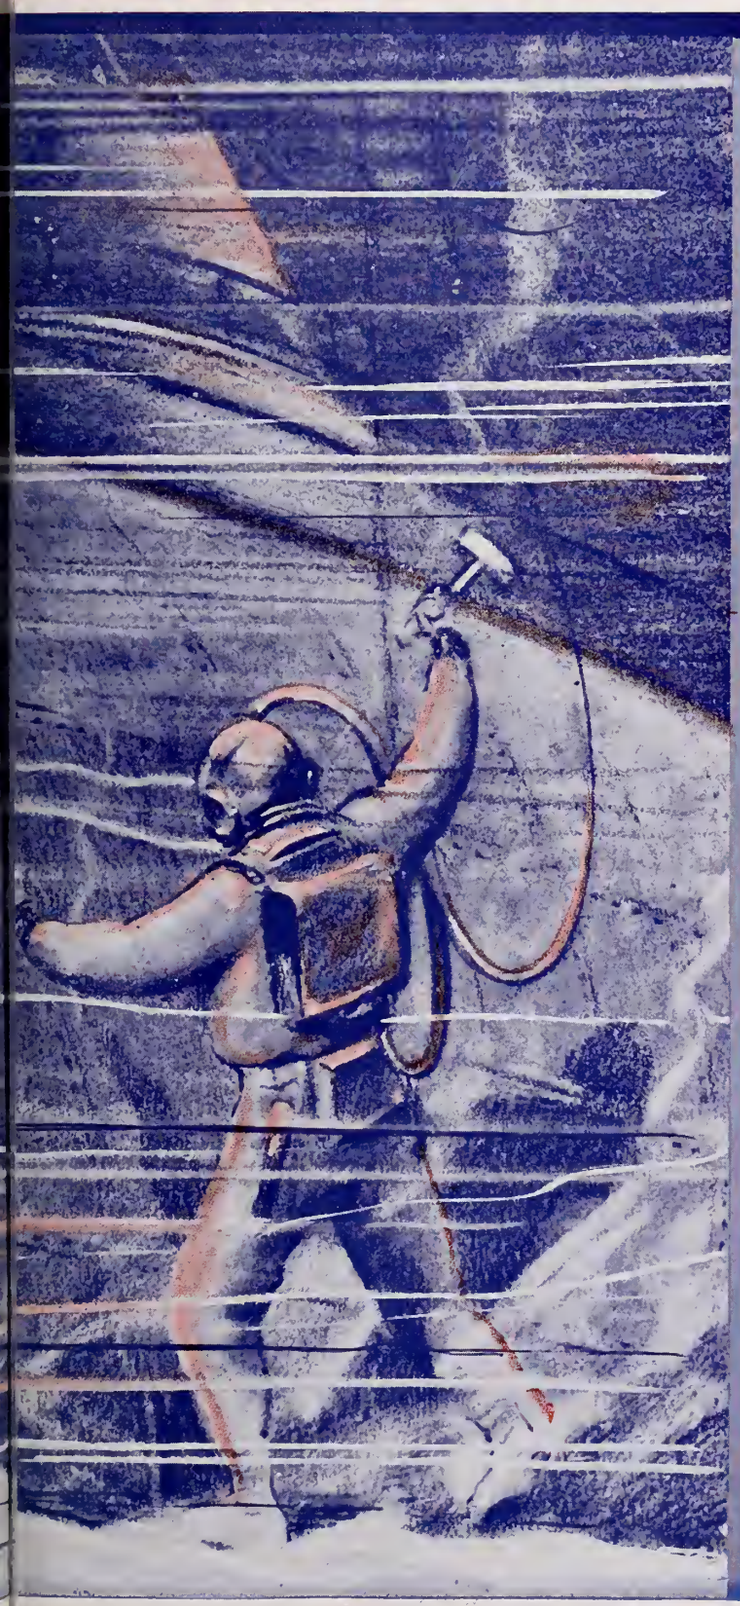
Fighting against the terrific downward crush of homeward-bound workers from the street above, Oliver set up his camera as near the wreck as possible and photographed the disaster. In an attempt to get to the street with his film, Oliver's heavy motion picture camera and tripod were damaged in the crush and confusion.

His account of the accident follows:

"I was on my way to the Pennsylvania Station and I was just cursing my luck for missing the train which was just pulling out. I was watching the train disappear, when suddenly I heard a screeching of what sounded like a train's brakes. Then there was an explosion. Everything went dark. I heard women scream and then groans. Smoke and overpowering fumes began to fill the station. Several women fainted on the platform.

Battles Throng to Get Pictures.

"My first thought was pictures. I fought my way as close to the downtown end of the platform as possible. By the time I got there, the lights were on again on the platform and down the track. I was able to get a little room and set my camera up long enough to photograph the wreckage.



"Most of the smoke had cleared away. I could see they turned the power off. I could see the train down the tracks. It was bent and twisted. One car was broken in two like a stick of wood. The pillars supporting the subway roof were torn. It was bent and twisted.

"For months I suffered horribly from large gaps in my auditorium. My owner spent a fortune on advertising to pep me up—but nothing seemed to do me any good. Then one day someone recommended First National Pictures. I decided to try them, starting with COLLEEN MOORE in 'Oh Kay!' because the New York critics had called it 'rollicky', and 'entertaining', and said that 'you laugh long and loud and heartily'! I am delighted to report that I haven't had a vacant seat since."

The Sound Rush

A Few Plain Words on the Present Situation

By William A. Johnston

THE "Talkies" now being rushed to the box-office are, certainly, nothing to rave about. Nor is the public raving. But the public is attending.

One day last week, in a nearby town of thirty thousand, one of the best silent dramas ever made played to about three hundred people, while one of the poorest talkies had box-office lines standing.

And so it goes, everywhere.

The box-office rules; so the ayes have it.

* * * *

We are not alarmed over the quality of the "talkies," present and future.

They will be made well just as fast as talent comes forward to make them.

The early "five reelers" were just as bad. And there was just as much opposition to them—far more in fact, just as there were previously those who contended that a picture theatre couldn't get more than a nickel admission.

* * * *

The present talkies—most of them—are simply silent pictures slapped hastily with a paint brush of sound to furbish them up for a sound picture market.

But, of course, we cannot progress too fast in making the real goods.

There's chaos now and there will be more. There's the foreign market problem; and copyrighted music, with a serious situation arising in the discrepancy between domestic and foreign copyrights; and the labor problem, etc., etc.

* * * *

It seems to us that the electrical companies are mostly out of step in the general rush to get the new kind of entertainment to an eager public. Theatres are clamoring for installations and so are studios. And they are not even getting information, let alone the machines and expert help. If, as some contend, the electrical companies are to control this industry, they have a long, long way to go to learn the difference between theatres and laboratories and between selling shows and electricity to the public.

There's the all-important matter of interchangeability of sound pictures over the various reproducing machines. Definite statements are still lacking. To the many exhibitors who come to this office for some light on the subject, we say this: Yes, there will be interchangeability. There must be. Otherwise the sound picture will be pretty well throttled in its infancy.

* * * *

A word to the smaller theatres. The first runs have the call on installations today; the little theatres are in the van. They can't get machines and if they could, they couldn't afford them. But time will change that. The sound movie, in the long run, will prove the salvation of the smaller theatres.

* * * *

Another point that needs stressing: there are several different kinds of sound pictures. We classify them thus in our Release Chart: those synchronized with music scores; those with sound effects; and voice pictures, including dialogue and incidental songs. Some pictures, of course, have two or more types of sound, or all.

There is plenty of confusion about the whole sound picture development. We can see no reason, however, for any further confusion about types of pictures being offered.

"The Godless Girl"

Reviewed by Edwin Schallert

Editor of The Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News

C. B. DeMille has made a production that will stir up no end of argument in "The Godless Girl." Whether wholly complimentary or otherwise, there will be plenty of talk about this picture, and as a result people will unquestionably flock to see it. Some may find its reformatory sequences gruesome, but they will be fascinated. The cast is adequate, and the dramatic interest splendid.

DeMille has several moments that are among his most brilliant theatrically. Notably, these include scenes of fire in reform school, which is one of most realistic conflagrations ever screened. It is full of tense and exciting incident all closely woven into story. Two other stirring episodes are a fight between atheistic group of school children and believers in early part of picture, and escape of boy and girl from reformatory and their pursuit by the guards under a particularly vindictive leader.

Comparisons of "Godless Girl" with other DeMille pictures suggest natural resemblance to "Manslaughter." In this instance, it is an up-to-date and vigorous theme he is dealing with, remote from "The King of Kings," "The Volga Boatman" and "The Ten Commandments," to name his outstanding achievements of past few years. "The Godless Girl" is much drabber in its realism, much more daring than "Manslaughter"; but its somberness seldom fails to be relieved by tense melodrama. The escape scenes are especially fine in this respect, and show all of DeMille's skill for the dramatic. Marie Prevost, Lina Basquette, George Duryea, Noah Beery are all responsible for fine dramatic performances. Eddie Quillan will be made as a comedian. The showing in Los Angeles at the Biltmore emphasized the need for some cutting, editing and improvement of subtitles, but these faults were secondary. The main thing is that DeMille has a picture that will be susceptible of wide discussion. Fire scenes were greatly enhanced in their impress by sound effects.

Ownership of Pa. Theatre to Be Settled in Court

A dispute over part ownership of the Nemo theatre, Johnstown, Pa., is before the county court at Ebensburg, and may go before a jury in August for partial determination of the controversy. The court recently handed down a decision directing that Harry Von Lunan Hager and Anna Hager Hinchman, owners of one-half interest in the building, to convey their title to George Panagotacos, who had an option on their interest, or pay over to him an amount in excess of $100,000 for improvements claimed to have been made by Mr. Panagotacos in expectation of exercising his option to buy the half interest of the other two in the property.

Mr. Hager now claims that Mr. Panagotacos did not spend any such amount for permanent improvements and that most of the money was for repairs and equipment. The court accordingly was asked to reopen the case to determine how much Mr. Panagotacos spent for actual improvements of a permanent character.

It is said to be likely that the court, of its own motion, may frame an issue to be put before a jury for determination, the jury's answer not to be binding, however, on the court when making its final decision. The matter may go before a jury in the August civil court.

No Action Yet on Report of Australian Film Body

Although it is now more than two months since the report of the Royal Film Commission was presented to the Federal Parliament of Australia, no effort has yet been made to put into operation the nineteen recommendations which did not effect State rights and which were unanimously adopted by both houses of Parliament. It is reported that, before his death, the late Minister for Trade and Customs issued instructions that certain of the clauses were to be brought into immediate effect, including the closing down of the Melbourne Censorship Office and its transfer to Sydney. Orders were given that an extra projection room was to be installed in Sydney to facilitate the handling of films by censors, but this has not yet been done and the trade is still inconvenienced by having to wait for pictures.

The appointment of two women, one to the Censor Board, and the other to the Board of Appeals, has not yet been made so far as it is known. It is known that Mr. Marks, Chairman of the late Commission, recently conferred with the Premier of New South Wales requesting support of the approved recommendations of the Commission. He was advised by the Premier that whatever support was deemed advisable by the New South Wales Government would be given after due consideration.

Music Box Is Newest of Seattle's Theatres

One more theatre was added to the already over-populated list of first run film houses in Seattle, Washington, recently when John Hamrick's Music Box Theatre was opened to the public. It is on Fifth Avenue between Pike and Union Streets, directly across the street from Hamrick's Blue Mouse, and within three blocks of about four other picture houses.

The new Music Box is a 1,000-seat house of the "intimate" type. It is entirely done in Spanish Renaissance period design It will be used by Mr. Hamrick as a long-run house for the leading Warner Brothers pictures.

Andrew Saso will be house manager of the Music Box, with all actual executive work being handled from the general offices in the Blue Mouse and the advertising and publicity being handled by Vic Gauntlett, press agent of the Hamrick chain. An innovation is use of boy ushers.

Two Florida Theatres Test Sunday Blue Laws

Report comes from Manatee that Manager David J. Willig, believing the sentiment in favor of Sunday shows, proceeded to open his house, the new Manatee, last Sunday. Monday, Sheriff Stewart placed both Mr. Willig and his operator, J. H. Oliver, under arrest. Both gave bond in the sum of $100.

Up in Ocala, according to reports, two of the theatres, the Etta and the Dixie, decided to test the Sunday sentiment but decided to delay the opening until after the midnight hour. So, at one minute after 12 Sunday night, the houses were thrown open and it is stated both houses had very good attendance and they were not molested.

Inside Slants on the Industry

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

The Mirrors of Filmdom

IF one could get a sufficiently high elevation for a complete bird's-eye view of the industry, he would see feverish activity. . . . In home offices, exchanges, studios and theatres. . . . Yes, brought about mostly by the sound revolution. . . . The industry starting all over again, as it were. . . . But this shouldn't discourage anybody. . . . It's only another proof of the tremendous vitality of the picture business. . . . Also, the observer would get a slant at the almost continuous sessions of the Committee on Rumors. . . . We used to think this business reached the peak in rumors several years ago, but those days were child's play compared to these. . . . The rumor folks toss film companies around from one "merger" to another with the utmost abandon. . . . And keep weary newspaper men busy running down reports which generally turn out to be thin air. . . .

* * * *

Mr. Kennedy having withdrawn, First National is now operating under the general direction of President Rossheim, with Ned Depinet (sales), W. C. Boothby (comptroller), and Al Rockett (production), operating as specialists, each in his own field. . . . Apparently, the advisor idea has been abandoned. . . . First National is utilizing its full man power, and "full steam ahead" is the order of the day. . . . From abroad comes news of a bloc of 17 nations being formed to boost foreign pictures at the expense of American. . . . This resulted from a meeting at Berlin. . . . The idea is to take a slam at America through an exhibitor combination. . . . Well, we shall see how far it gets. . . . But, again, we must point out that, despite the overwhelming popularity of American pictures abroad, it will not do for this industry to discount the possible dangers to its foreign trade. . . . Positive measures are needed to meet the situation. . . . That has been true for a long time and it is just as true now. . . . Concretely, the Europeans will watch with great interest the reception given pictures soon to be released here by J. D. Williams' World-Wide Company. . . . All of these films will be foreign. . . . Nobody would plead that they be given consideration other than warranted by their merit. . . . But neither should any artificial barriers be put in their way. . . . We don't believe there will be. . . . It is clear, in any case, that World-Wide will play a big role in several directions, one of the most important being the international situation itself. . . .

* * * *

Candor is always refreshing. . . . Cutting out bunk is rarely met in this industry, but it exists. . . . Take Harry Cohn, for example. . . . At a luncheon the other day, on Harry's arrival from the Coast, the Columbia production executive gave his views on many topics in no uncertain fashion. . . . "Making pictures that will make money for producer and exhibitors" might be called the theme of what he said. . . . Well, Columbia has shown, and is showing, that it knows how to make pictures. . . . At the Embassy, New York, "The Scarlet Lady" had an excellent two week run, and is giving way to "Submarine" this week. . . . We hear a lot of fine things in advance about this film. . . . We'll give you our report on it in the next issue. . . .

* * * *

The early days of September will see a couple of interesting social events. . . . On the 10th, the Motion Picture Club of New York will open informally, with the formal opening and dedication on the 12th. . . . There are 235 members now. . . . The club has very fine quarters and gives every promise of being a great success. Another date for many people in New York filmdom: the Fall Golf Tournament under the auspices of Film Daily will be held on September 11 at the Sound View Golf Club, Great Neck, L. I.

* * * *

One industry giving a dinner to another industry is an unusual event. . . . That's what is going to happen on September 24. . . . Under the auspices of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. . . . A special attraction will be the showing of a film of Lindbergh's flights as compiled by the Hays organization. . . . Copies of the film will be presented to the U. S. Government and Governments abroad. . . . The film industry as represented by the M. P. P. D. A. will be guests of the aviation industry. . . . Undoubtedly this affair will attract great interest and promote goodwill in several directions. . . . While on the subject of aviation, we note that Commander Byrd, on his trip to the South Pole, will have a specially selected film library, the pictures being given by leading producers and chosen by the National Board of Review. . . . Thus does the motion picture become part, and importantly, of man in his epic adventures. . . .

* * * *

Soon every important theatre on Broadway will be wired for sound. Then the real battle to win the public will begin. It won't be a question any longer of "Who's got the sound?" but "Who's got the quality?" Little old public knows quality when it sees it. And it simply will not pay money in the mass for anything else.

Anti-American Film Movement

Exhibitors of 17 Nations Reported Organizing to Promote Distribution of European Product

A NEW move to curtail distribution of American pictures abroad has taken form in a proposed International Federation in which are represented at least seventeen European nations, exhibitor-members of which are at present engaged in conference in Berlin. Organization is reported to be proceeding at a rapid rate and a committee of three, from the English, French and German exhibitor organizations, have been named to foster the movement.

France, always to the fore where quotas or anything in the form of anti-American film moves are concerned, is said to have at once moved for the formation of the Federation. Insight into the whole matter can be gained by a statement purported to have been made by Victor Davis, the chief of the British association:

"European films must be safegnarded now. Europe has richer and more interesting stories and literature on which to base films. And Enrope can use money as well as Hollywood, which takes sixty per cent of the money made by movies in England." Great applanse has followed all statements of this nature at the convention and there can be no doubt that the main purpose of the gathering is to throw as many monkey-wrenches as possible in American distribution machinery abroad.

As a defensive movement by American prodncers, foreign players are being signed with view of using them to manufacture talking pictures for consumption in their respective nations. Paul Wegener, a German actor of renown, has plans under way to make a picture for European distribution and efforts are being made to place under contract a number of English, French and Italian players.

Plans are also under way in Germany to shut off the importation of American sound projection apparatus. Forces are being combined, and it was recently given out in a statement by a prominent American producer on his return from Europe, that the Germans have practical sound eqnipment, at a low price, already on the market.

That a feeling of extreme optimism, as to future sales of European film and theatre equipment prevails all over Enrope today, there can be no doubt. There is a new vitality in studios and the enactment of the several quota laws in European nations has aroused citizens' interest to the point where most any stock flotation which has to do with motion pictures meets with instant approval from the small investor—and that is the way certain projects are put over abroad. It is the shilling or small denomination note, investor which puts these flotations over. So snre are they that the quota will make them all rich that hosts of them readily respond to the slightest sales pressure.

As to the quota, whether it will work to the benefit of Enropean film manufacturers or in time spell their ruin, the Wall Street Journal has this to say:

"Sneh restrictions exist either by legislation or by ministerial decree in Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Italy and Hungary. Even the little Duchy of Lnxembourg is agitating for its film quota.

"What then is the film quota, whose small shadow is already lengthening in the path of the world's commerce? And why was it enacted?

"American capitalists with large investments in the motion picture industry know that the quota, whose severity is in ratio to the weakness of a nation's film industry, is that nation's effort to protect its own industry and incidentally to widen its export market. . . .

"American business men reading casually of the film quotas in Enrope either dismiss the paragraph as less important than the latest local prohibition raid or political contest. . . .

"Yet, whatever the business . . . it is menaced by the film quotas of Europe, which have made an opening wedge into the dykes of American commerce. The film quota represented the first time in the history of commerce that any government ever attempted by internal legislation to force exports.

"Europe's market has been painstakingly developed. The motion picture is handled less on a price basis than any other commodity in Europe.

"It is obvions that merchandising of this character requires intensive sales planning and distribution effort.

"Film quotas, disrupting a system so laboriously builded, have minimized the profits and increased the difficulties of operating in the European market. To alleviate the hardships thus imposed, and for mutual benefit, it is expected that important amalgamations will be made this year by American companies operating in Great Britain and Austria.

Musicians Reported Peaceful

President of American Federation States 150 Agreements Have Been Signed; Will Close 150 More

NO tronble is anticipated in any cities because of the sonnd picture situation, according to Joseph M. Webber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, who said this week that 150 agreements have already been made in various cities between exhibitors and musicians and 150 more will be closed. Wage increases have been granted musicians in some instanees, in others they are continuing at the current scale, and in St. Louis they have accepted a decrease. In Chicago, where a walk-out of musicians was threatened, the situation was averted by the granting of union demands by theatre owners. Under this agreement any house which has a sonnd pictnre policy will retain an orchestra of at least six and musicians pay will be increased from $77 to $90 a week. Previously the exhibitors of Chicago had rejected the nnion demands and the walk-out seemed imminent.

The opening of "Whispering Friends" was delayed a night at the Illinois Theatre because of a walkont of the musicians and a sympathetic strike of the stage hands. When the theatre management and the union agreed that the house shall engage thirteen musicians for the run of the picture, the premiere was held the following night. Following the engagement of "Whispering Friends" the house agreement with the union is that only five musicians will be employed.

The first dispute arising between exhibitors and projectionists, resulting from the installation of sound equipment has reached the Industrial Commission of the State of Colorado, and the first decision has been made. Some time ago when the Isis Theatre, Denver, installed equipment for the exhibition of talking news reels, the operators served notice on R. B. Conner, manager of the Isis, that their union demanded that there should be four operators assigned to the booth instead of two, because of the installation of the new equipment; also, that the wages of the operators be increased to $66.88 per week.

Mr. Conner immediately protested to the State Industrial Commission of Colorado, with the result that the Commission ruled that in this case sound equipment was used only a small part of the time, that two men were all that was necessary for the operation of the equipment, and that the wage of the first man should be $66.88 and the second man $46.00. The commission also indicated that the higher wage should be paid only in those theatres nsing sound equipment all of the time.

Indiana Bill Seeks Relief from Block Booking—Arbitration

AS the result of a bill introduced at the last session of Indiana Legislature by Fred L. Frick, attorney of Garrett, Indiana, outlawry of block booking and compulsory arbitration through the enactment of state laws will be sought this Fall and during 1929. It is believed that this bill is the one which Frank J. Rembusch. Indiana exhibitor, has been interested in.

Enactment of the law, Frick believes, is the only method of relief from exisiting conditions. He sought a conference of several factions within the industry a while back but nothing came of the attempt.

The nature of the bill will be the same as the one introduced to the Indiana Legislature, making it a misdemeanor to force block booking of pictures and compulsory arbitration.

Pathe Acquires P. I. C.

Foreign Agencies and Affiliations Greatly Increased by Formation of Pathe International

THROUGH the purchase of all minority stockholders' interests in the Producers International Corporation, the business of this company and that of the Pathe export department will be merged in the Pathe International Corporation, a one hundred per cent subsidiary of Pathe Exchanges, Inc., it is announced by Colvin W. Brown, executive vice-president.

The acquisition of Producers International brings to Pathe 16 foreign offices in England, Germany, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, Switzerland, Sweden, and Mexico; eight exchanges in Great Britain and distributor affilations in practically every country in the world.

William Vogel, who established and directed Producers International, which has been handling the sale of Pathe features, remains with the company as Vice-President and General Manager. Under the consolidation, features and short subjects will continue to be handled by separate departments. Arthur Rouseau, who has managed the Pathe export department for twelve years, continues with the company as Vice-President. Mr. Vogel leaves for abroad immediately.

The foreign offiees and affiliations brought to Pathe through the merger include London, Leeds, Birmingham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Liverpool and Manchester in England, Cardiff in Wales and Glasgow in Scotland; in Germany, Berlin; in France, Paris; Czecho-Slovakia, Prague; Belgium, Brussels; Switzerland, Geneva; Sweden, Stockholm; Mexico, P. D. C. Corp de Mexico D. F.; Denmark and Norway, in Copenhagen; Italy, in Turin Rome and Milan; Poland, in Warsaw; Spain, in Bilbao and Barcelona; Austria, in Vienna; Hungary, in Budapest; Portugal, in Lisbon; for South Africa, the I. V. T. A. of New York City and Kinemas Ltd. of London and S. A.; Japan, in Tokyo; Australia, Hoyts theatres in Sydney; South America, Max Glucksman; Cuba, Porto Rico, Dominican Republic and Venezuela, Medal Film Co. of New York City; Panama Canal Zone and Jamaica, Cinema Pan Americano, New York City; Border States, Johan Cronsjo, Dutch East Indies, Pathe; China, Shanghai; Phillipines, Manila; Egypt, Politi-Sidi office in Paris; Yugo-Slavis, Belgrade, and in India, Caleutta.

The entire personnel of Producers International in New York, now located at 130 West 46th street, will be moved to the Pathe International office at 35 West 45th street.

Negative Affects Rentals

W. S. Butterfield Believes Cost of Picture Is Prime Determining Factor in Arrangement of Prices

NEGATIVE cost is always the determining factor in the rental of a picture, is the contention of W. S. Butterfield, operator of the circuit of Michigan houses which bears his name. Irregardless of the fact that a picture has quality or that there is a draft attached to it, it is the opinion of this theatre operator that the price of a picture must be based on the amount of money that went into its making.

"When a prodneer has a 100 per cent customer, no matter whether it is a circuit of theatres in which they are financially interested, or only a lone exhibitor who is taking 100 per cent of their product, their price must be based on the cost of the picture and not on the fact that it has some draft to it," he declares.

"The poor production of pictures last year and the demand for high rentals was caused by the fact that all the producing heads were busy taking over theatres, and in order to protect their investment in the theatres, they attempted to get this cost out of the sale price of pictures.

"Are the producers desirous of making their profit in theatre ownership and operation, or in making productions? The answer is that the theatres, most of which are now new, built of steel and concrete, should last fifty years and will be here when the producing units and companies will be dead and buried and new ideas advaneed for entertainment to go into these theatres.

"Hardly any of the producers who are chain theatre owners are giving this question much consideration, although there is a precedent already set up for it.

"Dramatic and legitimate producers years ago, who were smart enough to see that the profits were to be made in theatre operation, created circuits for themselves and today there are only two left, the Erlanger and Schubert Circuits.

"As long as these circuits encouraged the production of attractions for these theatres, they were successful; but in the last three years when they proceeded to stifle them and to make most all of the profit from a producers braneh, they brought on the condition that exists today in their field."

Pathe Films in Hoyt's Chain in Australia

Pathe pictures are assured showings in the leading theatres of Australia and New Zealand through the terms of a deal for the distribution of Pathe motion pictures in the Australasian territory, just consummated by William M. Vogel, general manager of Produeers International Corporation, foreign distributors of Pathe pictures, with W. A. Robbins, New York representative of Hoyt's Theatres, Ltd.

The Pathe pictures will play first runs in all key cities. Theatres controlled by the Hoyt organization number over 90 houses throughout Australia and several others in New Zealand.

World Wide Library Signs Henry Hadley

Henry Hadley, Amerieau composer and symphony orehestra conductor, has been signed by the World Wide Musie Corporation, New York, headed by Irving Mills, to write a series of numbers of the World Wide Music Library. By the arrangement, the composer will write exclusively original scores which World Wide will hold available for film producers, it is said.

Mr. Hadley scored the Warner Bros. picture, "When a Man Loves."

Russell Holman Novelizes "The Fleet's In"

Russell Holman, advertising manager of the Paramount, has written a full book length novelization of "The Fleet's In" as exploitation aid.

The novel is being published by Grosset & Dunlap in the popular 75-cent edition and will be put on sale at stores simultaneously with the release of the photoplay on September 15th. It contains a forword on the modern girl by Clara Bow and is illustrated with scenes from the picture.

I. J. Briskin Now Vice-President of Sterling

Irving J. Briskin, with Sterling Pictures, since its inception, has been promoted to Vice-President. His new duties will give him complete operation of the company handling all matters concerning domestic and foreign sales.

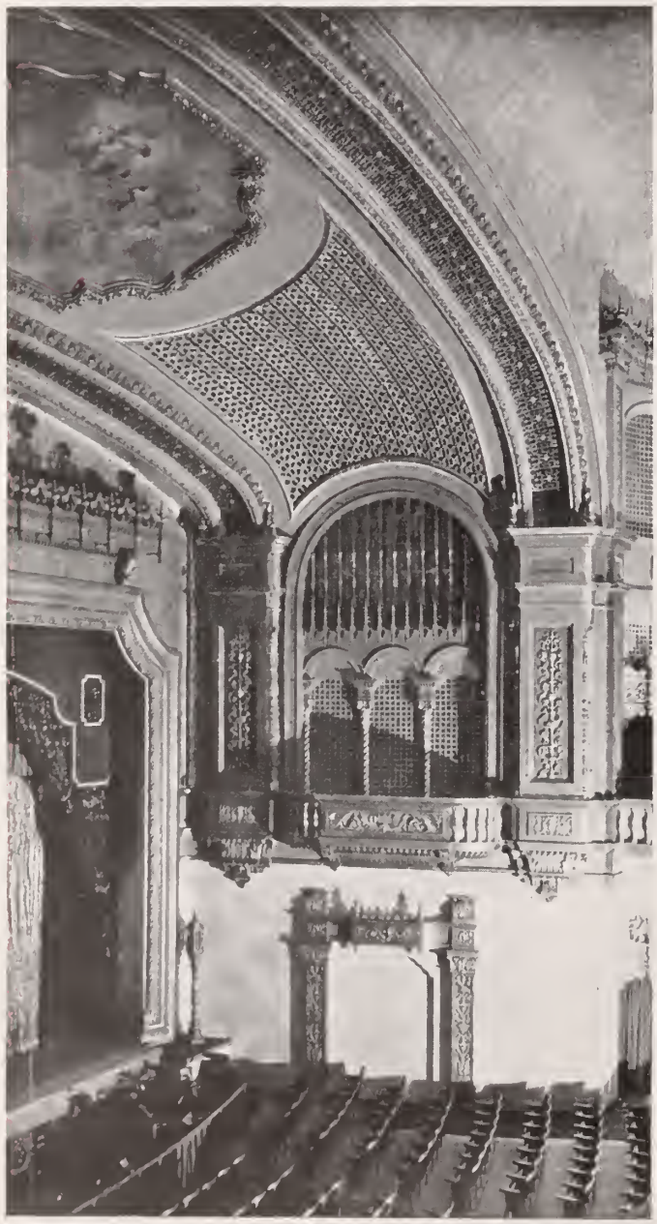
New Theatre Planned at Portland, Me.

Shown above is an architect's sketch of the grand foyer of the Netoco State Theatre which is to be erected at Portland, Me., after plans by Herbert W. Rhodes, architect. The new theatre will be built by the New England Theatres Operating Corporation, a Boston firm headed by Samuel Pinanski. The Netoco State, as indicated in the sketch will follow the Spanish style of architecture.

CAMERA VIEWS OF THREE NOTABLE THEATRES DESIGNED BY BOLLER BROTHERS, ARCHITECTS



ILLUSTRATED on this and the five succeeding pages are views showing some of the most interesting features of three theatres, located in widely separated cities and showing unusual contrast in fundamental design, which have been built in accordance with plans by Boller Brothers, theatre architects of Kansas City and Los Angeles.

Included are the Texas theatre, on Houston Street, principal thoroughfare of San Antonio, Tex., and operated by the Publix circuit; the Missouri theatre, St. Joseph, Mo., owned by Messrs. J. H. Cooper, Eli Shire and Sam Harding, and Yost's Broadway theatre at Santa Ana, California.

These three playhouses are notable examples of efficient theatre design and as well rank as typical specimens of the work of Boller Brothers, whose specialization in theatre architecture has resulted in many outstanding structures devoted to motion pictures and vaudeville.

The exterior of Yost's Broadway, shown on the opposite page is typical of the colorful treatment which characterizes the facades of the theatres designed by these architects. Elaborate treatments based on productions of the Orient and the Mediterranean countries which set the motive for the interior designs and decorations are adapted to the exterior architecture as an added feature of appeal.

The combination of two different styles for exterior and interior treatment has been successfully handled in the case of the Missouri theatre, the facade of which suggests a brilliantly colored Spanish-Gothic production, while the auditorium is a semi-atmospheric design typifying an old Persian amphitheatre. This semi-atmospheric effect is also worked out in the Texas theatre auditorium by the same device of having the main ceiling suggest a canopy stretched over the enclosing walls and revealing a blue-tinted sky at the corners.

The proscenium and organ screen of the Broadway theatre, Santa Ana, Calif., which faithfully follows the Spanish style in a colorful auditorium seating about 1,500 persons.

Shown above is the lobby of the Broadway. Two stories in height. The effect of height, giving the lobby spaciousness, is emphasized by the arched treatment of ceiling and walls.

Yost's Broadway Theatre, Santa Ana, Calif.

Shown above is an exterior view of the Broadway in Santa Ana. The front is in the Spanish Platueresque style. Store rooms flank the center entrance, which provides a wide lobby.

The mezzanine promenade of the Broadway is shown at the right. Rough cast plaster, with gilt and polychromed decorative details conforming to the architectural style it represents. The arches along the left open over the main lobby. Carpet floor covering, standing lamps and upholstered furniture add a note of warmth and coziness which appeals to the waiting patrons.

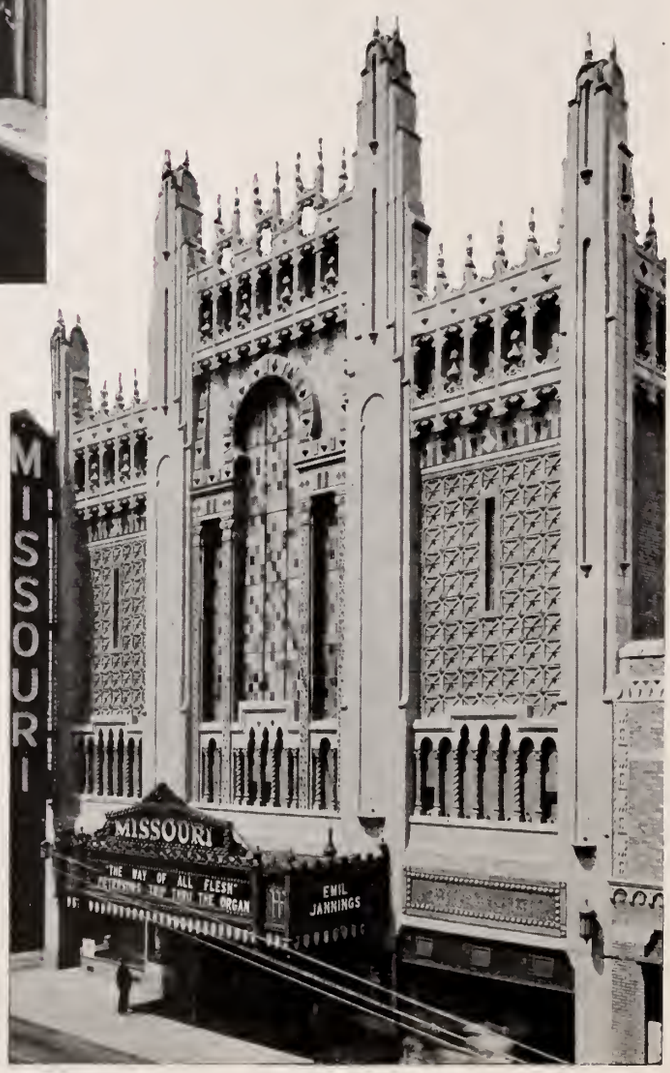
ATMOSPHERIC TREATMENT FEATURES AUDITORIUM DESIGN REPRESENTING PERSIAN AMPHITHEATRE WITH SIDEWALL AND CEILING REVEALS TO GIVE OUTDOOR EFFECT



On the right is a view of the proscenium, showing interesting handling of the atmospheric style of auditorium employed in the design of the Missouri theatre, owned by Messrs. J. H. Cooper, Eli Shire and Sam Harding. The sidewalls are executed in sandstone, with drapes and ornaments of red, green, blue and gold to emphasize the wall tones.

The exterior, illustrated in the photo below, is in the Spanish-Gothic style, a brilliantly colored facade which takes on added attractions at night due to the lighting scheme which includes illumination behind the tracery and on the spires.

The auditorium looking toward the rear. A dark red canopy stretches above an enclosure typifying an amphitheatre. The open sky shows around the edges and in the center of the canopy. Reveals extend along either sidewall from the organ screen to the rear of the auditorium, executed in sandstone and ornamental plaster.

A Spanish Garden In A Texas Setting

On the left is shown a view of the auditorium of the Texas theatre, San Antonio, Texas—one of the publix circuit's theatres. The auditorium seats three thousand. The construction is orchestra, mezzanine and balcony.

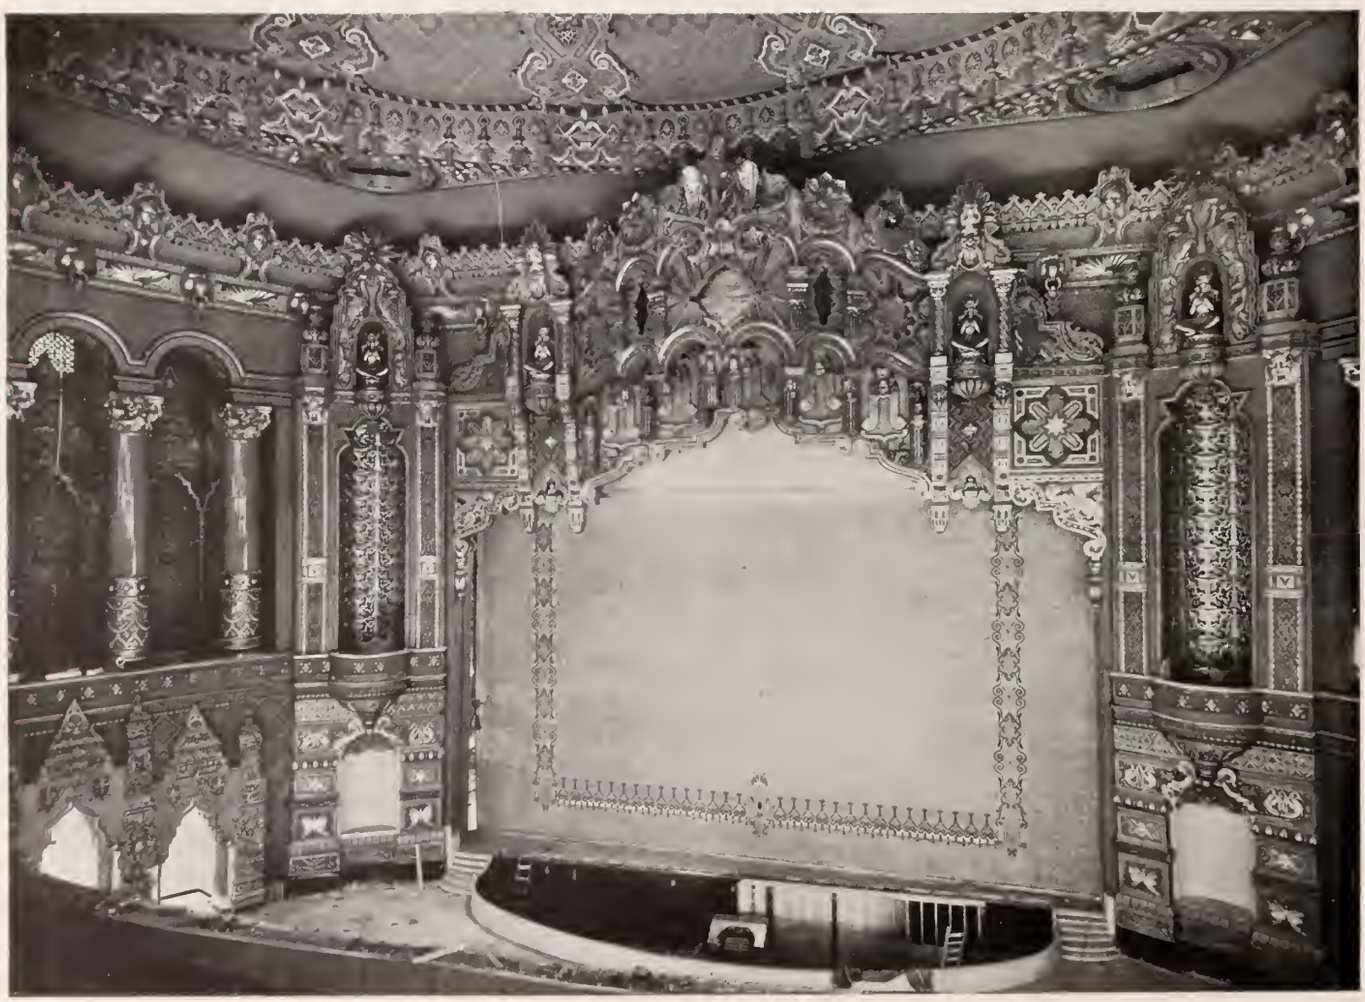
BOLLER BROTHERS, ARCHITECTS

COLORFUL ARCHITECTURAL TREATMENT DISTINGUISHES THIS MODERN PLAYHOUSE LOCATED ON HOUSTON STREET, PRINCIPAL THOROUGHFARE OF SAN ANTONIO, IN WHICH THE APPEAL OF OLD WORLD DESIGN IS LOCALIZED BY THE INCLUSION OF SCENES AND SYMBOLS OF THE HOME STATE.

The promenade of the Texas theatre, shown on the right presents the effect of mass rather than fine detail. The dark beams overhead contrast sharply with the ceiling and walls featuring ornament worked out in bright Pompeiian colors.

Below, the main lobby, representing a patio, with floor and stairway of Spanish tiles and overhead sky effect. This atmospheric lobby introduces the patron to the old world illusion created by the interior design by striking the keynote of the Mediterranean architecture featured throughout the house.



MAMMOTH THEATRE IN DETROIT NEARS COMPLETION

WITH DECORATORS' SCAFFOLDING REMOVED THE HUGE FOX DETROIT PLAYHOUSE BEGINS TO ASSUME FINISHED APPEARANCE IT WILL GIVE WHEN READY FOR FORMAL OPENING ABOUT MIDDLE OF SEPTEMBER.

At the left is a view of the sidewall as seen from the balcony rear. Because of the eight-story dome, acoustical treatment was necessary on a large scale. Special treatment was used to insure acoustical perfection for sound pictures. After plastering, glue was applied and acoustical felt was rolled on, then decorated with special paint stencil-applied.

Below, the proscenium arch, walls and stage as viewed from the balcony—said to be the widest and highest proscenium arch in the world.

ENTERTAINMENT

Real and Artistic

The astounding faithful reproduction of Racon Exponential Air-Column Horns has made them the most popular for Auditoriums and Theatres.

The real and artistic value of music, melodious, sweet and clear, is only made possible by vibrationless, non-porous, one-piece construction which Racon Exponential Air-Column Horns afford. Vocal and orchestral selections are re-created with such delicacy of tone and fidelity to timbre as to make the music itself wonderfully real and of such entertaining value that the hearer visualizes the artists as if they were really present.

Racon Exponential Air-Column Horns give greatest depth in the smallest possible space; having a bell size of 6 feet square and an air-column depth of 15 feet, they perfectly amplify the fine degrees of musical shading.

RACON

Dynamic Units

for Exponential Air-Column Horns

Racon engineering triumphs in the production of the new Racon Dynamic Air-Column Unit for Exponential Air-Column Horns It combines the admittedly superior qualities of an exponential horn with the volume and depth of a dynamic unit. It is the most marked advanced step in this day of remarkable radio achievement. The results to be achieved for the use of the Racon Dynamic Air-Column Unit are so startling as to be a surprise even to the most imaginative listener.

Your entertainment problems will all be solved and to the delight of your patrons when you invoke the aid of the correctly designed, artistically made and scientifically constructed Racon Exponential Air-Column Horns and Dynamic Unit. No blasting, no "tinnyness" and no disappointments. Perfection of amplification combined with volume, depth and brilliancy.

"The World's Largest and Most Efficient Cooling System"

The standard slogan used in Roxy advertising.

MANUFACTURED WEATHER* in the Roxy

Manufactured Weather,* as essential a part of the great Roxy Theatre as Roxy himself, has received the unqualified endorsement of the countless thousands of persons who have visited this theatre since its opening nearly two years ago.

The healthfully comfortable atmosphere found every day in the year in the Roxy is produced by three separate air conditioning systems, actually operating as one single unit. This is the largest and most extensive installation of air conditioning equipment ever placed in any theatre, and the faith of Roxy himself in this enormous system is evidenced in his advertising—"The World's Largest and Most Efficient Cooling System."

The same system is available for the smaller theatres. Our engineers are pleased at all times to consult with owners and architects. A visit places you under no obligation. Write for the book, "Theatre Cooling and Conditioning."

One of the latest Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration Units, complete with all auxiliary parts. There are no installations of pipe coils to be placed in other parts of the theatre. The Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration Unit, using a harmless liquid refrigerant—"Carrene"—is safe, simple and automatic in operation. It is an integral part of the complete air conditioning system designed, installed and guaranteed in results by Carrier Engineers.

Multiple Sound Station Plan to be Revealed in October SHOWMAN

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following statement in reply to Harold B. Franklin's letter, published in MOTION PICTURE NEWS of August 18, has been made to the editors by Victor A. Rigaumont, Architect, the first installment of whose illustrated article on a new and revolutionary plan of amplified sound distribution for theatres appeared in THE SHOWMAN for August.)

I HAVE read, with great interest, Mr. Harold B. Franklin's criticism of my sound distribution idea as presented in the August "Showman." I agree that the questions he raises are to be expected because the idea of sound distribution is as revolutionary as the sound picture itself was but a short while back.

It is just with the cooperation of such imaginative and practical leaders as Mr. Franklin that "ideas which will not work out at all" are made to function efficiently. My conclusions, reached after a scientific investigation of theatre acoustics, clearly demonstrate that sound distribution should logically be by multiple station "soft speakers" and not loud speakers.

A technical discussion of details now would be lengthy and would not be as interesting as the article I am preparing for the October "Showman" describing and illustrating the super theatre of twelve thousand seats, made possible by sound pictures.

Super theatres of this size, with proper sound distribution, will interest Harold Franklin, William Fox, Joseph Kennedy, Carl Laemmle, Nicholas Schenck and Publix.

V. A. Rigaumont

Says Organ is Just as Much "Box Office" as it Was Before He Installed Sound

AMONG the many questions regarding a future which is certain to be greatly changed because of the perfection of synchronized speech and music for motion pictures is "will the organ pass out as a feature of presentations in the motion picture theatre?"

Many there are who look toward a day when the show will be wholly mechanical, when the music, the vocal acts as well as the feature pictures will "come out of the can and onto the screen as perfected entertainment of popular appeal." Those who take that position as well as those who are admittedly "up in the air" naturally have no great confidence in the organ's future.

Possibly the day when the show will be wholly mechanical is just around the corner, but it is well to bear in mind that while the synchronized and the talking picture is more or less in the experimental stage, so far as the reaction of the public to it is concerned, as well as the ultimate trend it will take as a dramatic form and the method of its presentation, that we already have some precedent and a little tradition upon which to base considerations of the future in the experience of theatres which have been presenting "sound pictures" off and on for several months or even more than a year.

For that reason it is worth while to consider a typical case, to look into it and discover what may be said by those who are familiar with it about the future as gauged by the present and the immediate past—particularly with regard to organ.

A theatre located in the Bronx—the only one in the Metropolitan district outside of Broadway—which has been presenting sound pictures since and including the general release of "The Jazz Singer" would seem to yield some facts worthy of consideration. The theatre referred to is the Park Plaza located at University Ave. and Tremont St., the Bronx. It is a comparatively new house, designed by Eugene de Rosa and planned in accordance with the new idea in picture theatres. It has an air conditioning installation of the newest type, luxuriously furnished lounges and fine equipment for projection.

The Park Plaza was first operated by Universal, but later that company relinquished control of the house to the builder.

Its accendancy to success from the box office standpoint—it is now regarded the most profitable house in the Metropolitan district outside of Broadway—dates to the time when sound equipment was installed, though other progressive policies were instituted at that same time.

IT is managed by Louis La Rocca, a young man but a veteran of ten years experience in managing theatres of the neighborhood type in New York City. La Rocca has managed the house since its opening and knows the situation thoroughly.

This department sought him out to give his views on the future of the style of picture theatre presentations which include sound pictures, based on his observation, information and experience with and without "sound" at the Park Plaza. We were particularly interested in learning what he had thought about the composition of the program which included sound pictures and organ and orchestra features.

WE have cut down on our orchestra," Mr. La Rocca said, but we cannot eliminate that because such music is needed for our vaudeville acts, which we are continuing even when we have a sound feature and the regular two short Vitaphone acts we include in every bill. We continue our organ as a feature, and our organ solos are stressed as features in advertising—in newspapers, billing and screen ads, just as they were before the Park Plaza was wired for sound reproduction.

"From what we have seen at the theatre I hardly think that the organ will diminish in its long established power as a feature that has a wide appeal in conjunction with motion picture presentations.

"We have an organist who enjoys a wide reputation as a musician and whose popularity with the patrons of the Park Plaza is an important factor in the drawing power of the house and the satisfaction which the programs as a whole give to the patrons. He is Andre Halphen, well known in musical circles and well versed in theatre organ technique and 'showmanship.'

"Our standard programs consist of an

For the New FISHER Theatre!

The seven Fisher brothers personally selected the unusual chair, shown to the right, for the magnificent new Fisher Theatre now being erected at Detroit, Michigan. These capable men, at the head of the largest and finest body building corporation in the world, are in an excellent position to judge the upholstering details, construction advantages, and comfort of any type of seating. That they selected Heywood-Wakefield chairs for their beautiful new theatre is a convincing recommendation of quality—the kind of quality that has influenced Publix, Roxy, Orpheum Circuit, and a host of others to install this well-made theatre seating during the past few years.

Twenty-seven hundred and eleven of this unusual chair will be installed in the new Fisher Theatre at Detroit. The aisle light standard harmonizes with the special Maygar Indian pattern upholstery used on the back. The seat is of an unusually comfortable, double-thick spring construction.

Emboyd, W. C. Quimby's Newest House Reflects Growth in Status of "Movies" Since Days of Store-Shows That Started Him on Career to Wealth and Fame

Quimby's newest — the Emboyd theatre, Fort Wayne, Indiana

IT was about twenty-five years ago that W. C. Quimby descended from the Pennsylvania "accommodation" at Dennison, Ohio, and proceeded up the then somewhat dingy main street of that eastern Ohio town. For the average man on a "prospecting" tour similar to that which took Quimby to Dennison, the first introduction to the town would scarcely seem encouraging to the notion that this would be the place in which he would establish himself in business. The streets were not especially clean and business places had about them that sort of dreamy atmosphere which seldom is taken as an indication that things are prosperous.

As he walked further along the street he came to unmistakable evidence that business was slow—for the large storeroom on an important location in the very heart of the town was vacant and littered with dust and debris.

There he stopped, and there he decided to start up business in Dennison. This location was the very one he was looking for as a home for the "moving picture show" he would set up. He wanted for that a good sized storeroom in a prominent location at a low rental. So Quimby hunted up the owner and presently closed a deal for its lease.

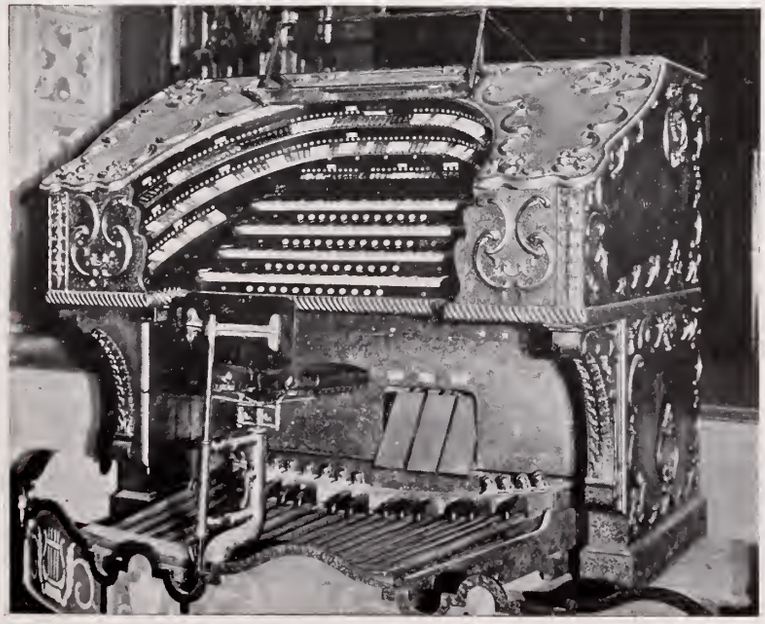
The next day the denizens of Dennison heard that they were going to have one of those new-fangled things called a moving picture show. And one week later the show opened up.

The storeroom in Dennison was the beginning of a chain of theatres that have since brought wealth and fame to W. C. Quimby, now of Fort Wayne, Indiana, a leading exhibitor of that state and widely known in the picture industry as one of its most progressive and accomplished showmen.

From the little "shooting gallery" in Dennison, Mr. Quimby extended his activities to Columbus, Zanesville and many other Ohio cities where he established storerooms each one bigger and better. (His location in Columbus was on the site of the Lazarus Department Store which now is the heart of the retail district.)

Quimby called them the "Pictoriums" and they had phonograph horns out in front grinding out music to attract the attention of the passerby. They seated from 200 to 300 persons. The seats were kitchen chairs.

The cost of the entire equipment for any one of these theatres was less than one-half of what Mr. Quimby now pays for his screens alone. He laughingly recalls that the chairs were bought on time and the carpenters and electricians who did the remodeling were stalled off until they could be paid from the receipts of the first shows.



It was in 1914 that Mr. Quimby first located in Fort Wayne, Indiana, the scene of his present endeavors. And it is in Fort Wayne that Mr. Quimby recently opened the finest theatre in Indiana, equalled in size and cost by relatively few theatres in the entire United States. Nowhere is there a more modern theatre in its appointments than the Emboyd Theatre.

For nearly two years Mr. Quimby has been building this cinema palace. In combination with a new hotel, it occupies an entire city block. The cost of the building is said to be $2,000,000. Its carpets and draperies alone cost $60,000. Its finish is typical of the modern in interior decoration—nothing bizarre or gaudy, just rich in color and harmony. The architects are John Eberson and A. M. Strauss.

Quimby was among the first to recognize the importance of organ music as a complement to motion picture presentations and a pioneer in the installation of pipe organs as a feature of his equipment. During the years that followed he gave his personal attention to this feature of his theatres and his presentations, and in his newest and finest house has installed an organ of the most modern design for theatre use.

The organ at the Emboyd is a Page instrument constructed along the lines of an organ he heard demonstrated during a visit to the Page Company's plant at Lima, Ohio, when he was considering various instruments for his new house. He returned to the Page factory on two Wide experience is a guide of acknowledged reliability in selecting equipment.

Thus it is significant that well known theater chains equip their theaters with C-H Simplicity Lighting Dimmers. Their experience has convinced them that C-H Dimmers can be depended on to give the smooth, flickerless control and color blending essential for artistic presentations; that C-H Dimmers are remarkably low in maintenance costs—economical to operate—easy to install—and conveniently adapted to all needs both present and future.

Ask your architect or electrical contractor about the advantages of C-H Dimmers—how easily your theater can be equipped regardless of its seating capacity or decorative scheme.

Eschmann Tosses His Hat Into Exhibition Ring

Sales Executive Elects Theatre End as Field in Which to Realize His Organization Policies

THEATRE men and motion picture sales executives alike will follow with deep interest the career which E. A. Eschmann carves out for himself and the twelve theatres of the Playhouse Operating Co., Inc., with which he has become associated as general manager.

The announcement of Eschmann's association with this recently expanded chain of picture playhouses and his assumption of his duties with the company this week constitutes one of the most unusual pieces of news that has developed in the theatre field in recent weeks.

He is widely known in the film business as a sales executive, with Pathe, First National and United Artists. His administrations as chief of the sales organizations of those companies were marked by policies that were both aggressive and progressive and won Eschmann recognition as one of the most able of the sales executives in the distribution branch of the industry.

Now Eschmann is turning to the theatre end of the business as the field best suited to the realization of the organization and cooperative policies in which he has been interested for the past several years.

In view of the fact that his connection with the Playhouse Operating Co., is on a basis which leaves him free to "make or break himself and the properties," to quote Eschmann's own statement, theatre men who long have had their differences of opinion with the notions of sales executives, and sales executives who from their own viewpoint hold ideas of the exhibition end that conflict with those of theatre executives, will be afforded an opportunity to see demonstrated the practical application of business policies which to a limited degree are certain to reflect the ideas and methods applied in the sales branch of the industry.

All precedent connected with this association of E. A. Eschmann and Irwin Wheeler, president of the Playhouse company, and his colleagues, would seem to promise the fulfillment of very advanced ideas of showmanship and organization.

The Playhouse company since its inception years ago, has operated on a very unusual basis. As operator of the Community Playhouse in New Canaan, Conn., and other theatres, Irwin Wheeler has carried out highly individualistic policies.

The theatres of the company are located in suburban towns, and each has to a marked degree succeeded in establishing an institutional prestige which has given it first call upon the public spirit and a feeling of community pride and satisfaction in the local amusement center.

The many accomplishments in the past with regard to pictures of special artistic merit have made certain the fact that the Playhouse organization has taken particular interest in finding the right audience for the right picture. In New Canaan, in Mamaroneck, in Riverhead and other towns where the Playhouse company operates houses, there has been carried on a constant and highly intelligent campaign to bring into the motion picture theatre new groups and classes of people not classified among the regular film fans.

By means of specially drawn advertising campaigns, Wheeler and his associates have frequently demonstrated that motion pictures of acknowledged artistic merit but box-office weakness—judged on performances at many of the less individualistic theatres—can be built up into popular success. This has been done time and again by showmanship methods which created an interest in those special features of drama, acting or photographic distinctions in which the particular picture excelled. Personal messages, addressed through the mail and newspaper advertisements usually were the main features of these campaigns. They were used to great effect with such pictures as "Nanook of the North," "Lady Windermere's Fan," "Moana," "The Last Laugh" and productions of that type.

THE public relations department of the business is the most carefully supervised and executed branch of the Playhouse company's business. Organization work in conjunction with the dominant factors of the town has been carried forward as a vital policy of the business. This has embraced work which has brought into close relation with the theatres such groups as chambers of commerce, parent-teachers associations, Boy and Girl scout organizations, art clubs, music clubs, etc.

The extension of the Playhouse chain, which heretofore has been done on a carefully laid plan to steady growth, has reached the stage of its development which calls for a more aggressive policy from this point on, judging from the recent move which brought several houses into the chain and brought its present total up to twelve.

E. A. Eschmann

This expanded organization created the need of a general manager for the conduct of the business and Mr. Wheeler engaged E. A. Eschmann to fill the important post.

Sound Installations Spur Sales of Projector Arcs

"Sound" picture installations, requiring a sound porous screen to produce the proper illusion of the music, speech and effects proceeding directly from the screen itself, behind which speakers are located, is creating a widespread demand for "low high-intensity" arcs for projection, according to supply dealers.

The New York office of National Theatre Supply Company reports a large increase in the sales of this type of projection equipment. Several of the Loew, Stanley and Consolidated circuits' theatres in the New York territory, have been equipped with Peerless High Intensity Reflector Arc Lamps, manufactured by the J. E. McAuley Mfg. Co., of Chicago.

Increase in similar installations in other parts of the country are reported. This demand for new equipment in theatres in existence for some time is directly traceable, dealers report, to the installations of sound apparatus.

The sound porous screen necessary to such installations has brought about a distinct change in projection. The sound porous screen is to a certain extent light porous also. Thus the demand for more powerful projection illuminants has increased in direct proportion to the increase of sound installations.

Tell Them How and the Crowd Will Form Its Own Lines Out Front

Arch Bonge, Artist Doorman of the Paramount in New York Explains His Methods In Handling Hold-outs and Selling "Waits"

HE practices the art of Michelangelo by day and that of P. T. Barnum by night, is six feet seven inches tall, and among other distinctions is the founder of a new commercial cult on Broadway—that of ticket-selling on the street in front of the theatre by means of a rather up-to-date application of show "Barking."

We are talking about Arch Bonge—you sound the final "e" in pronouncing that name—who is now chief doorman at the Paramount theatre in New York. Bonge is no tyro in handling theatre crowds out front. He took his first fling at the trade in Chicago six years ago, while a student there. His first assignment to the Department of the Front was at the Roosevelt theatre, where he developed such talent for keeping order in the box office lines and in selling "waits" that he was frequently impressed into service at the Chicago theatre when some special attraction came to that house, and later he took charge of things whenever a new B. & K. house was opened.

Bonge's ideas on "Doormanship"—you are convinced there is such a specialized craft after talking to him about his theatre work—should be of interest to theatre managers and staff men. He has demonstrated at the Paramount that crowds can be handled without mauling and he is showing there right along that "waits" can be sold if they are properly presented to the passing crowds by the super-barker.

In the first place his ideas regarding the fundamental purposes of the doorman is that "he is the means by which the theatre projects a little further front that personality which stamps its service and its entertainment. The doorman should reflect in his appearance, his deportment and his speech, refinement and the regard for the patron's feelings and wishes which stamp the service of the house."

He believes that the best way to handle crowds is to let the crowds handle themselves, under the guidance and direction of the men out front. That is the reason why the ropes have been eliminated from the Paramount lobby—save when crowds on rainy days become so large that one man cannot act as director to lines of twelve deep in the hold-out portion of the lobby.

"I find the majority of the people only too glad to conform to direction provided the doorman by his bearing and manner impresses them that he is doing everything for their own convenience and comfort. The use of 'strong arm' methods creates only added trouble and difficulty for the front men, and requires a greater number of men to execute than the system of simply directing the crowds.

"I don't believe there is a theatre in the country operating with any smaller front staff — proportionate with the crowds it handles, of course—than we are now working with efficiently at the Paramount. We have a front staff of five men,—three part-time men and two full-time men.

"We use only very tall men for the doorman job at the Paramount. All are over six feet tall. The average person is impressed by height in a man. For that reason the unusually tall doorman creates an impression which gives him a big advantage to act as a director and guide in a crowd of people. We instruct the crowds as to where to stand and how to form lines and we find no difficulty in maintaining order in the lines merely by having one man walk along the line and repeat occasionally the instruction to keep well to the right or left, to move forward or to remain stationary. This method appears to be well liked by the patrons. they do not become riled and disgruntled as is the case when ropes are used or when doormen attempt physical 'herding.'

"One of the most potent sources of trouble in the line, of course, arises when someone attempts to crash the line. I have always found that such people react favorably when I simply ask them, in a rather firm but wholly courteous way, to take their proper place at the end of the line.

"With the lines properly maintained in this way, it is remarkable how quickly crowds can be admitted to the theatre when the break comes. When the line starts in motion we assign two men to each line, these doormen acting as guides to keep the line moving along the shortest route and with the order necessary to prevent delays by jamming at the ticket windows or the entrance doors."

BONGE declares that the success of the system depends almost entirely upon selling 100 per cent to every man on the staff. If the men are not absolutely convinced that the best way to handle the crowd is to direct people and that the proper thing to do is to place confidence in people to take care of themselves and accept suggestions from some directing head, rather than to assume full responsibility and act the role of guardian of the patron's thoughts as well as his actions, the plan will not work.

There has been a very favorable reaction on the part of New York picture-goers to the new system in force at the Paramount since Bonge has been in charge of the outside staff—judging by personal observation and the reports picked up in a circle personal acquaintance, which, of course, is limited but nevertheless indicative.

Regarding the amount of studied courtesy the doorman should show the patron, Bonge believes that it is just as easy to overstep the mark and become too sugary as it is to be lax and therefore abrupt and seemingly lacking in the amount of consideration due the buyer or prospective buyer at the theatre ticket office.

SELLING "waits" is one of the most important jobs of the doorman, Bonge contends, and when the effort is successful the theatre manager will agree that this is so. He insists that the right time based on the check figures from inside the house should be stated in this sidewalk selling. If the break is not due until thirty minutes the doorman has no business telling the passing crowds that there is only a twenty minute or even a 'twenty-five minute' wait for seats. If I can't sell a thirty-minute wait as well as a twenty-minute wait, I don't belong on the job."

Bonge stations himself in the center of the sidewalk, midway between the ticket booth and the curb, when he goes out to sell the passing crowds. This was an innovation on Broadway when Bonge introduced it at the Paramount. It has been done in Chicago for a long while, but the doormen at the Broadway picture houses formerly called waits only to those approaching the ticket office from a position near the window. This was done more as a representation to those who were on the box office line or were about to join it, and in effect was a warning. Now that has been changed around, the "waits" are sold as something of value, and the men stationed near the window merely inform those who step up to buy admissions that the wait for orchestra seats is so long and balcony seats are available immediately, if such is the case.

There are a great many nickles coaxed into the Paramount box office in this way. Line-ups and crowds in front of the picture theatre deter many who otherwise would buy if it appeared that they could enter immediately.

"It takes only a little practice and observation," Bonge says, "to know the people whom it is worthwhile addressing with a selling talk on 'waits.' The man

Values are not Determined by Comparison of Prices

IN SEATING a theatre, what you get for your dollar beyond visible or tangible substance should guide your selection. Comparison of price is always a poor basis for determining a purchase. Likewise the price of "American" chairs is never the criterion of their values. For whether you buy a stock or special-order chair . . . a low priced or a high priced chair . . . there is but one standard of quality in material and workmanship . . . one measure of worth for all. Price varies only in proportion to the greater or less amount of material and time involved in the manufacture of a diversity of designs, styles and models.

Can you insure your lights?

What happens if your lighting system fails at a critical time? Did you ever think that you could insure your lighting so that it will never fail, no matter what happens? Well you can.

The "Diamond H" Remote Control Switch is your insurance. No matter what means you take to provide current for lighting circuits, whether you use a motor generator, emergency lighting circuit, or additional circuits from several sources, "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches should be used.

They throw over automatically from one circuit to the other and back again automatically when the main current supply resumes. They are reliable and you can depend upon them absolutely.

The important lighting circuits you need to insure are the exits, aisles, stairways and lobbies. "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches are also useful for many places in the theatre, for instance, to control your exterior signs and marquees, organ heaters, stage lighting and control of effect lighting from booth.

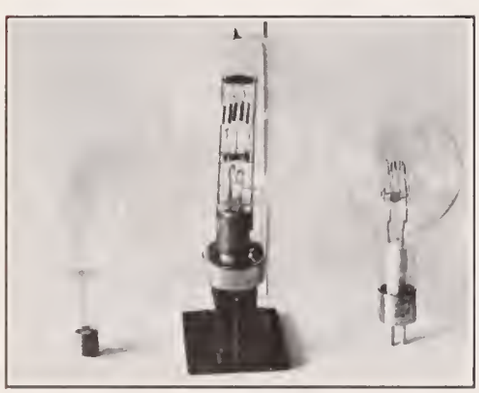
Mazda Lights for Film Production

Inadequate Projection at Smaller Theatres One of Prime Snags Struck by Producers in Adoption of Incandescent Illumination as More Economical than Arcs for Studio Use.



Studio set at F B O studios. Mazda lamps ranging from 1000 to 10,000 watts in size are used in special projectors and other fixtures as shown in the scene.

THE results of a very thorough survey and a series of tests made by studio and laboratory technicians regarding the use of Mazda lighting in motion picture studios are published in a report issued by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which sponsored a comparative test of arc and incandescent methods of illumination for motion picture production.

The theatre branch of the industry no doubt will read with interest and perhaps chagrin that portion of the appendix to the report which deals with the need of future research and particularly research as to the ability of the Mazda illuminant to give approximately as much definition in photography as arc lighting—one of the most important points to be cleared up in the continued research being made —because, to quote from the report:

"It has been well known in the industry since its start, that inadequate projection in a very large number of theatres, has completely nullified so-called artistic effects in photography."

Thus again there is brought to notice the ever amazing fact that projection, the very heart of the show, in a considerable number of theatres is far below the standard which could and should obtain if theatre owners and projectionists maintained the equipment available for proper projection results and gave the attention to this feature of the show which it rightfully deserves.

Types of lamps for motion picture studio lighting.

According to the report the question of definition has come up "in connection with the plans of a certain producer whose business is almost solely with the smaller classes of theatres where projection is not always of the best. Pictures that are praised for their fine lighting when well projected have appeared on the screen as blotches, shadows and undistinguishable blurs. Therefore, to guard against this, producers catering to the smaller theatres have been obliged to photograph all their product with a special view to sharp definition."

Consequently, poor projection is recognized to prevail in one class of theatre—inadequately designated as "the smaller theatres." Of course, size of house as such has little to do with it, for there are a great many houses in that classification which provide projection that is up to standard.

For general purposes, according to the findings of studio and laboratory technicians, Mazda lighting for motion picture studios appears to be headed for widespread use in the larger plants. The report issued by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is concerned with the facts and findings designed mainly for technicians and engineers and in the main freighted with technical matter not easily grasped by the non-specialist in photography and not especially interesting as reading fare for such. However, there are some striking facts set forth by the cinematographers and lighting specialists in their reports of comparative tests of Mazda and Arc lighting.

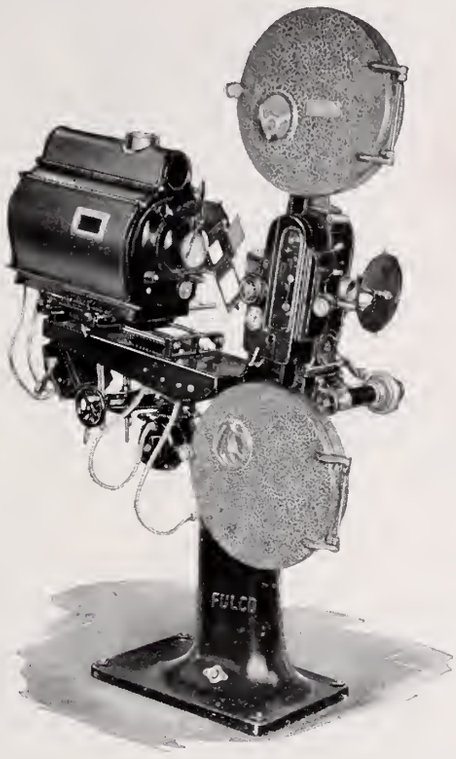
Among these is the fact that:

"Replies from nine studios to Questionnaire No. 1 brought forth a uniformity of opinion that the substitution of Incandescent lighting would reduce electrical labor costs approximately 50 per cent."

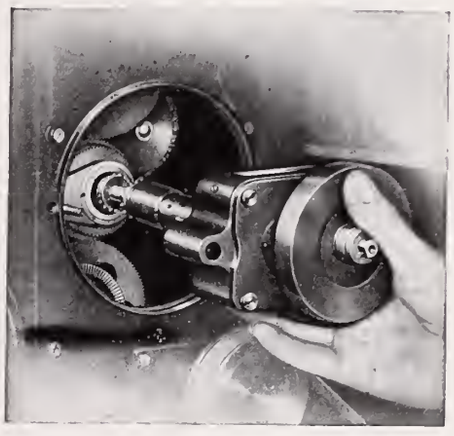
Regarding estimates of the costs of lamp or globe replacements for incandescents, as compared with carbon renewals for arc lights, showed "considerable variation."

BASED on experiments at the First National studios with twelve productions using incandescents during the period January 1st to March 31st, D. L. Faralla, business manager, reported such replacements was less than 50 per cent of the carbon consumption and tube replacements of arcs under similar conditions.

Paramount, on the other hand, maintained that there had been little or any saving, due to lamps burning out, defects and breakage in handling, and that "comparative costs are about equal."



Further analysis of this study made by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Universal, First National, DeMille and Fox studio engineers revealed the fact that the use of incandescent lamps in place of high intensity arc projectors saved them approximately $100 a day per picture. The use of incandescent lamps require only 50 per cent of the number of electricians employed to maintain arc lights, and furthermore, the inconvenience of changing the carbons every two hours or so is eliminated. Besides, the electrical interference produced by the sputtering arc lights in the microphone circuit of the apparatus for making talking movies was not present where incandescent lamps were employed for lighting.



The ease in the manipulation of incandescent lamp lighting equipment when shifting from one scene to another, as well as the quality of illumination obtained, were some of the outstanding features of the incandescent lamp lighting in preference to the old arc systems. The studios of the Universal, First National, Warner Brothers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Companies have altered their lighting equipment 100 per cent for the purpose of using incandescent lamps.

Theatre Building Business Map

Including Analysis of Key City Attendance Averages

Average Business (A)
Under Average Business (UA)

Very light new construction
Light new construction
Moderately heavy construction
Heavy new construction

The map of the United States shown here is divided into seven territories, with colored shading indicating the division of new proposed theatre building as represented for the period from July 15th to August 15th. This new construction is represented in valuation of dollars and cents rather than number of projects.

The shading is in four densities; solid, which represents the greatest value of proposed theatres; heavy stipple, which is second in valuation of new construction; medium, which areas represent conservative building; and the very light areas, where the investment in new theatre projects is very light. The information used in compiling the statistics visualized by the map was obtained through several reliable sources, and the map is to be considered as very nearly accurate in representing comparative theatre building activities in various sections of the country.

The circles shown on the map are located in key cities and illustrate averages of theatre attendance during the three months' period from July 15th to August 15th. The diagrams indicate the relative attendance at the better theatres in these cities during the period covered. These are given by "averages," with symbols to indicate "Above Average" and "Under Average" box office returns. The term "average" as applied in this survey indicates satisfactory box office returns, based upon theatre expectancies, which, in turn, are governed by past earnings under similar or nearly similar conditions.

These attendance statistics were compiled from an analysis of the Key City Reports, published weekly in Motion Picture News, and other sources of information gathered by this publication.

OUR new theatre building map for our thirty-day report ending August 15th shows some changes over that which was printed in our preceding issue, though for the main part the building situation remains the same.

The Middle States have picked up somewhat in their construction and have taken an equal ranking with the North Atlantic States as territories where the heaviest building is projected.

However, the South Eastern and South Western territories are practically at a standstill whereas in our July analysis there was some building projected in these territories.

New England has reported an increase in new theatre projects while the Western States again take rank with territories reporting the lightest building.

Our map of this month should include Canada for it is here that considerable theatre construction is being projected. In the past Canada did not have sufficient construction to warrant representation on the map, but if this report is indicative of future building, Canada will require representation as being one of the leading territories for new construction.

Before giving details on the construction of the various territories in the United States, we wish to make note that in Canada, the Province of Quebec is scheduled for construction of five new theatres and in Ontario three more houses are planned. These eight theatres will represent an investment of $2,520,000 and will have a total seating capacity of 12,400. One of these theatres will cost over a million dollars. This gives averages for this group of Canadian theatres as $315,000 per theatre with 1,550 seats and an average cost per seat of $203.00. It will be shown by a comparison of the figures for constructions in the United States as given in this report that the averages for Canada's houses are considerably higher than those for the United States.

In the United States during the period of July 15th to August

15th, 34 new theatres have been scheduled for construction and will cost $8,286,000 and have a total seating capacity of 41,400. Two of these new theatres will cost between $500,000 and a million, and two of them over a million.

From these figures, the averages for the country are found to be $243,700 cost per theatre, seating 1,218, with an average cost per seat of $200.00.

As is seen in the accompanying map, the North Atlantic and Middle States again lead in volume of construction. In the Middle States, 14 new houses are being projected, calling for an investment of $3,129,000 and giving a total seating capacity of 16,750. One of these theatres is to cost over a million dollars. These figures give averages for this territory of $223,500 cost per house with 1,196 seats and an average cost per seat of $187.00.

In the North Atlantic States, 11,400 seats will be incorporated in 8 new theatres where $2,870,000 will be invested for construction. One of these theatres is to cost over a million dollars. The averages for this territory show the highest for this report, the cost per house being $358,750, with seating capacity of 1,425 and a $252.00 investment per seat.

The West Coast again steps forth with a fairly heavy schedule of new theatre constructions, six new houses being scheduled. One of these theatres is to cost over $500,000. The totals for this territory are $1,440,000 investment for 6,950 seats. The averages are $240,000 per theatre, 1,158 seats and $207.00 cost per seat.

IN New England, where no construction was reported in our last monthly survey, $600,000 is to be invested in two new theatres, one of which will cost over $500,000. These two theatres together will seat 3,000.

In the Western territory just one new small theatre project is reported. This project will have a seating capacity of 500 and cost $25,000.

In the South Eastern territory, no new theatre projects are reported.

Including Canada and the United States, our totals for new theatre projects reported are $10,806,000, with a total seating capacity of 53,800 for 42 projects.

The total number of projects are the same as in our previous report though the total investment is slightly less.

The states leading in theatre construction in respect to investment are as follows:

New York first with one theatre which will cost $1,800,000 and seat 3,000.

Ohio second with five new projects totaling a cost of $1,577,000 and seat 6,350.

California third with an investment of $1,440,000 for six new theatres seating 6,950.

Illinois follows with two projects costing $657,000 and seating 3,200.

Massachusetts reports one new house scheduled for building which will cost $500,000 and seat 2,000.

New Jersey comes last among the ranking states with two projects which will cost $450,000 and seat 2,500.

Exhibitors are having the importance of equipment emphasized through their efforts to become acquainted with the technical phase of sound pictures and the apparatus necessary for use in their particular theatres. As a result of this emphasis now being put on sound installations, all types of equipment are coming to a greater degree under the personal scrutiny of exhibitors, with the result that manufacturers are finding the field in a wholesome condition for the sale of equipment that gives good performance in the theatres.

This condition possibly explains why equipment sales have been on the increase for the last sixty days and are as heavy as they were last year this time, even though business in general has been somewhat depressed.

At this writing we are entering upon a generally more active season for the purchase of equipment, and it seems a safe prediction to make that the sales for this Fall will equal, if not exceed, the similar period of 1927.

THE attendance record for the July 15 to August 15 period as depicted on the map show a total of ten changes over last month, five upward and five downward. Comparison with last month shows, however, that the gains outweigh the losses.

For example, in the downward column there appears only one city, Portland, showing a drop from Above Average to Under Average, while upward jumps of similar range, from below to above, in the gain column appear opposite the names of three cities: Dallas, Cleveland and New York. Other changes downward are: Indianapolis from Average to Under Average, Tampa from Average to Under Average, Boston from Average to Under Average and Philadelphia from Average to Under Average. In addition to Dallas, Cleveland and New York, cities showing gains are Kansas City and Cincinnati, both of which moved from Under Average on last month's map to Average in the current report.

Exceedingly hot and muggy weather accounts for the depression in a majority of the cities which fell below last month's averages—though that alone is seldom the reason for slumps, particularly where a majority of the houses have cooling plants. But heat, coupled with weak attractions, spells certain doom. The cooling plants figured importantly in the improvement in business in at least two cities during the period. It is significant that the Kansas City theatres started to improve their business coincidentally with newspaper and poster campaigns stressing the cooling plants. Cincinnati, which had been in a slump and the grip of a terrific heat spell had a slight break in the weather, but the break came just after the Albee theatre there had been exploiting a new cooling installation and business all around improved at a rate that seemed out of proportion to the drop in temperature.

New York City's jump to Above Average was made despite some very hot weather. But the strength of several attractions and the interest stimulated generally in pictures because of the ballyhoo about "sound" speeded up the box offices of the Broadway houses and fans reacted favorably to strong and nearly strong attractions.

THE "sound" pictures again steal the thunder by reason of sensational performances. Some of the box office "stunts" are: "Lights of New York" played three weeks to big business at the New York Strand; "Lion and the Mouse" at the Blue Mouse in Portland set a new record for the house; "Glorious Betsy" crashed all precedent by playing four weeks at the Tudor in New Orleans; Rivoli in Baltimore, closed some time ago after a sustained stretch of very poor business, reopened with sound, showing "State Street Sadie" as a starter and immediately rushed into the forefront as one of the big business getters of the town; "Glorious Betsy" brought the Melba in Dallas its best week of the year during a hot July week (the house has improved steadily since it was wired, by the way); the Garden in Milwaukee with "Lights of New York" played to very big business when other houses in the town were starving during the last week in July.

Moreover, a sound picture takes first place in list of "ten best" for the period covered in the report (which applies to Key Cities only). This is "The Lights of New York," which has had a large number of showings during the period and which in every instance has done better than good figures at week-run and extended run engagements.

The second on the list also has the sound accompaniment. This is "Warming Up," which has to its credit many fine box office performances, most of which were reported to have been obtained as a direct result of the sound feature.

Third in line is "The Mysterious Lady," the Greta Garbo vehicle which failed to win much applause from the newspaper reviewers but which nevertheless turned in highly satisfactory results at twelve of the fifteen theatres we have reporting on it during the period—two of the remaining three reported average business while the other one could not do better than fair with "Mysterious Lady" as the attraction against smart competition and unfavorable weather conditions.

The complete list of the ten best follows:

1. "Lights of New York."
2. "Warming Up."
3. "The Mysterious Lady."
4. "The Lion and the Mouse."
5. "The Racket."
6. "Forbidden Hours."
7. "Half a Bride."
8. "The Cossacks."
9. "Street Angel."
10. "Hot News."

Selecting the Right Carpet for Theatres

ONE of the chief problems that confronts the theatre owner or manager in connection with equipping and furnishing his establishment is the question of selecting the rugs and carpets that are to go in the auditorium, the lobbies, the balcony, and other parts of the theatre.

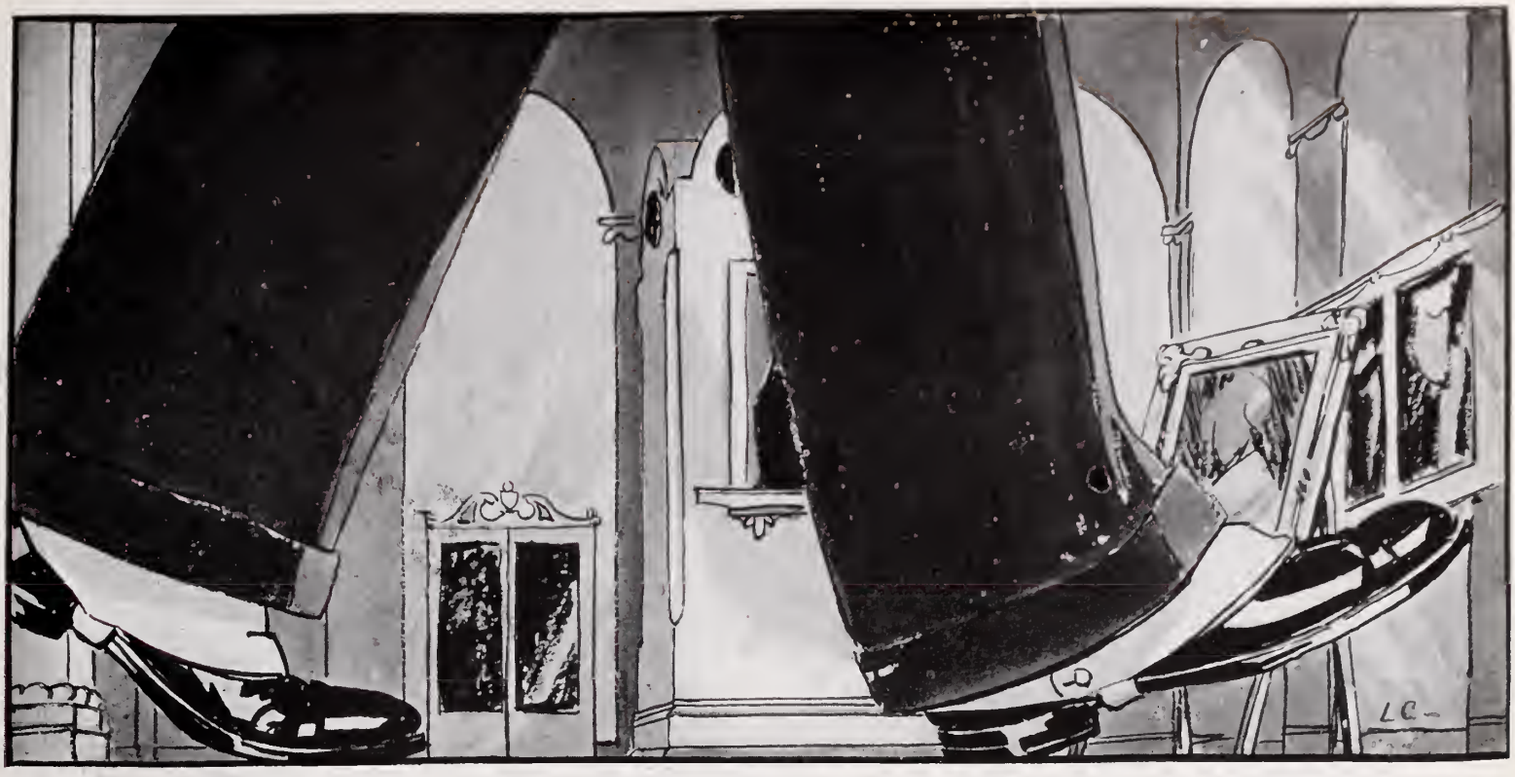
In order to obtain the most satisfactory results, the theatre or playhouse owner should seek the advice of a most competent rug and carpet merchant. A skilled and experienced dealer is in a position to make worthwhile suggestions about the three major problems of selecting and installing floor coverings in theatres. These problems are: First, the selection of durable fabrics at a price that meets the theatre's budget; second, the choice of correct colors and designs to blend with the desired decorative scheme; and third, the actual installation.

The first of these important considerations involves choosing the highest quality floor covering that the theatre management's allowance for furnishings will permit. Thought must be given to the proper sort of lining, also, for a number of the linings now on the market are not suited to general theatre use.

Plain fabrics are sometimes employed, but not frequently, because a plain fabric shows the effects of wear faster than a figured. After quality and price have been determined, the second problem presents itself: that of selecting patterns and colors that shall harmonize with the interior decorative scheme of the theatre in question.

The best theatre carpets are designed in such a way that their colors are luminous and pleasing under artificial light. The modern tendency in theatres is to use bright color effects, which bring to the auditorium an air of beauty, richness and gaiety especially appropriate in a place of entertainment and amusement.

PARTICULARLY in motion picture theatres, carpets of brilliant coloring and striking design make satisfactory installations. Large and small movie houses all over the country are showing marked preference for modern art patterns, which have the strong colors and effective motifs that produce the desired effects.



The Ziegfeld theatre in New York has a carpet installation that reveals excellent judgment in the selection of colors and designs best suited to give luxury to the appearance of the interior. Here a self-color gold Bigelow Lowell Wilton carpet with small foliage pattern is used in combination with modernistic decorations. The carpet is particularly noteworthy because of its harmony with the ceiling, which is painted on canvas, in the new German manner, blue, green, purple and red.

When colors, designs, and grades have been selected, there still remains the actual installation—the most trying and difficult part of the whole transaction, from the standpoint both of the theatre owner and of the merchant. It is essential that only the most skilful layers be permitted to put down the carpet, for it has to be laid on staircases and ramps and be fitted around pillars, railings, seats, and the like. When the theatre is of modern fireproof construction, the concrete floors have to be drilled to secure the carpet—a difficult operation.

The seats are usually installed after the carpet has been put down, being fastened to wooden blocks inserted in the concrete. When there are ventilating outlets under each seat, the carpet must be carefully fitted around each one.

DESPITE the difficulty of doing this successfully, it is absolutely essential that all over floor covering be used and not strips of carpet laid between rows of seats. When this procedure is followed, it is found that patrons shuffle their feet on the bare concrete underneath the seats in front, and induce highly undesirable noise.

One of the factors that makes a theatre installation difficult is the fact that almost always the carpet has to be put down in a hurry. Especially when an old theatre is being recarpeted, all the work has to be done between the close of the evening performance and the opening of the matinee. Whenever possible, the theatre management should so adjust its program as to allow the carpet layers a maximum of time to do their work.

Patron or Passerby?

Is he coming into your theater? Or will he pass by? Your Foyer lighting may be the influencing factor. A dimly and unattractively lighted Foyer repels patrons. And it hampers the box office. For lighting has a definite box-office value.

Good lighting is dependent upon good lamps. When you use Edison Mazda* Lamps you get lamps that are of a known standard of lamp quality. In addition, you receive through reliable theater supply organizations the engineering services of the Edison Lamp Works of General Electric Company. ¶ Examine your lighting. Write today for your copy of the new free bulletin, "The Lighting of Theaters and Auditoriums." You will find in it many valuable ideas for the proper lighting of your particular type and size of theater. Music Critics Cover "Sound" Scores at Film Theatres

NOW the highbrow editors of the music columns are devoting their attention to synchronized film.

When Emil Jannings' new Paramount feature, "The Patriot," was released as a Lubitsch special, and had its premiere at the Rialto Theatre in New York, it was regarded by many of the most important music critics as an event of sufficient magnitude to warrant serious discussion.

The motion picture theatre today, therefore, is in the peculiar position of warranting attention from three reviewers on the dailies:

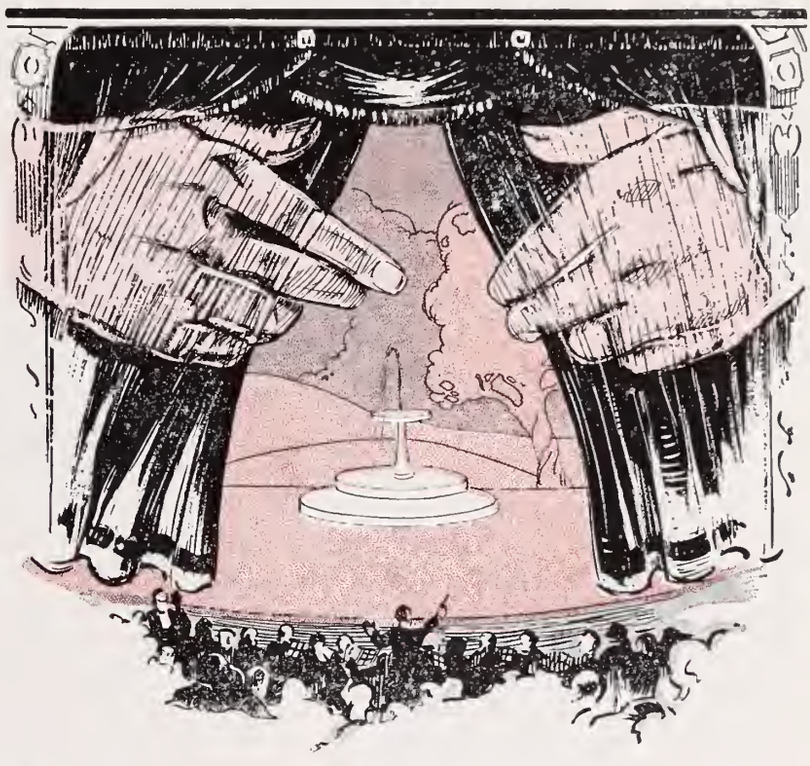
The movie critic takes a crack at the films, the dramatic or vaudeville reviewers are there for the stage shows, and now the music critics are tossing their hats into the ring.

A few years ago, the cinema theatre was deemed unworthy of note by critics. Today, beside the three critics already mentioned, the art editor frequently discusses the art objects with which the modern theatre is loaded, and the book-review editor finds interesting news-material in comparisons between book and film-production. In the case of "The Patriot," Paramount was fortunate in having a ready-made organization of competent musical authorities to do the work of setting canned music to the film. The Publix and Paramount theatres group of nearly 1200 theatres in the United States, Canada and Europe, has had the experience that comes from paying nearly 50,000 union-musicians every week.

Theatre Scoops World With Movietone of Smith Speech

Broadcasting its Movietone special of Gov. Alfred E. Smith's acceptance speech, released for 7:30 o'clock, daylight saving time, the Great Lakes theatre at Buffalo scooped the world on this important political event.

Promptly at the official time of release, the talking picture, for which Governor Smith posed some days previously, was flashed on the Great Lakes screen. Those in the theatre saw the Empire state executive and heard his words, via Movietone, even before they were uttered in Albany, as no arrangement had been made to hold off the picture in event of the delay which developed there because of inclement weather.



And not only those in the theatre heard the Governor's words, but that greater audience which nightly tunes in on the radio station which has a studio in the theatre building also heard, as microphones, placed around the Great Lakes theatre auditorium, picked up the address and carried it to the studio, where it was broadcast, long before stations in the national hook-up were able to give it to their listeners-in.

No special effort was made to furnish the scoop. It was just one of those things which happen and which seem to happen at the right time to give H. M. Addison, managing director of the Great Lakes theatre, another one of those breaks for which most managers sweat and work for weeks.

Petition to Reopen House Feature of Campaign

The old proverb about the water never being missed until the well went dry must have been the basis of a campaign started the other day by Fred Spear, manager of the Orpheum theatre, first run motion picture and vaudeville house in Kansas City.

Last season was none too profitable for the Orpheum, despite the fact that expensive programs were offered at $1 top. A sign outside the theatre today reads: "Will Re-open Early in August." But the theatre has not opened yet. When it does open it will not be with the same ordinary procedure, either. There will be a bit more appreciation instilled in patrons. The rumor is spreading rapidly that the Orpheum will not re-open this season. Mr. Spear plans a conference with the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations, having them devise a petition requesting that the Orpheum continue to operate. Such a petition will be used as news stories in daily newspapers.

Select Best Short Subject Campaigns in Educational-West Coast Drive

FROM a great mass of exploitation material submitted by managers competing for cash prizes offered for the six best examples of Short Feature advertising and exploitation on behalf of a Lupino Lane Comedy during a sixteen-week period, over the entire West Coast Circuit, the winning campaigns have finally been selected.

The first prize of $125 goes to Frank Newman, West Coast Theatre, Long Beach, Cal., and the five other awards of $100, $75, $50, and two of $25 each, go to the following managers: second prize, Harry W. Woodin, California Theatre, Anaheim, Cal.; third prize, C. L. Laws, U. C. Theatre, Berkeley, Cal.; fourth prize, Robert Harvey and Phil Phillips, T & D Theatre, Oakland, Cal.; fifth prize, George F. Sharp, Wilson Theatre, Fresno, Cal.; sixth prize, H. A. Gillespie, Liberty Theatre, Yakima, Wash.

The Educational—West Coast Theatres—Lupino Lane Contest campaign started on April 20 and continued for sixteen weeks, until August 10, during which period each West Coast first run house showed at least two Lupino Lane Shore Features and each of the other houses played at least four subjects. The contest was given a rousing send-off by Jeff Lazarus, Director of West Coast General Publicity, in the circuit's house organ "Now" and by means of a four-page manual of instructions. Five hundred 24-sheet stands were posted throughout the territory in Class A locations. That the campaign has done much towards increasing Lupino Lane's prestige throughout the west coast cannot be denied.

Mr. Newman made an especially commendable showing at the West Coast Theatre at Long Beach, with consistent plugging of Lupino Lane in "Fandango" in a well planned series of newspaper and program "ads" and publicity copy. He succeeded in placing much pictorial publicity as well, and had a Lupino Lane cutout, considerably larger than life-size, in his lobby.

At Anaheim, Cal., "Fandango" was programmed as an added laugh feature during a special "Hilarity Week" and in addition to the 24 sheet special billing, three sheets were sniped with Lane copy. A local "dance hall opening" tie-up was also used in a most original manner to feature a "Fandango Dance" and a lobby loud speaker having a caption "HEAR 'EM LAUGHING AT LUPINO LANE," broadcasting a laugh record, proved an excellent ballyhoo.

The third prize winner at Berkeley, Cal., staged a special attraction "Twenty Minutes in the Land of Bullonia," as a prologue to the Lane Comedy, conducted a " Fandango Dance Contest" and had a special music store tie-up in addition to "ad" and herald announcements.

Special Lane stories and pictorial publicity in the newspapers featured the Oakland, Cal., fourth prize winning campaign. At Fresno, Cal., the laugh record idea was used by the fifth prize winner as a marquee display attraction. A large painted poster of Lane had a cut-out mouth through which the laughs were broadcasted. Three music stores played the laugh record in their doorways with appropriate captions placed in front of the instruments. The sixth prize winner at Yakima, Wash., issued stage money, designated as Laugh Currency, on the Lane comedy, and built up a surrounding program of comedy ideas and features which were billed as "Hilarity Week" attractions.

Tell Them How and Crowds Will Handle Themselves

or woman who is 'shopping' for a show evidences the fact by the way they walk, the way they look about as they approach the theatre. If the doorman directs his selling talk to them he will land many of these shoppers by breaking down their resistance to the wait.

"A liberal education in psychology of the individual and the crowd awaits any young man who is interested in obtaining it by taking a job as a theatre doorman. Before long he finds himself able to classify, almost without conscious effort, different types of people. A mere glance at a person and that person immediately falls into a slot in the mind of the experienced doorman. There is the type that does not like to be sold. When you have such a one ask how long he has to wait for a seat you simply state the time in clipped tones and turn away—he will then sell himself. Invite argument, which is merely his resistance to being sold expressing itself, and he will argue back at you and maybe end up by telling you out loud that you are a liar. The type that likes to be led and the type that likes to be pushed into a sale is just as easily distinguished and in the majority of cases the method of convincing that type work out to confirm the observation of the doorman."

The work at the Paramount, Bonge told this interviewer, interests him as much as his painting—and painting has been his ambition since early youth. He appears to get a real kick out of his job at the Paramount door. His manner is dignified but not impressive in the studied sense. He works in a very quiet manner, even when calling the waits, and his "selling" to the passing crowds is done in an even, sort of conversational tone, entirely lacking the mechanical makeup and boisterous method of the old-time 'Barker." He does it as though dispensing information that is of value and advice that is asked. And therein, perhaps, lies the success of his selling efforts out front.

Display Too Big for Lobby But Publicity Works

During the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa, arrangements had been made by a local automobile dealer to have the new DeSoto automobiles displayed in the lobby of B. F. Keith's Theatre, Ottawa. Announcement was made to this effect but when it came to placing the cars in the lobby, it was discovered that the cars were exactly one-quarter of an inch too wide or the entrances.

Then followed the further announcement in the newspapers in large display type that the special demonstration could not be held because of the quarter inch. The situation created a lot of talk around town and the theatre obtained plenty of publicity even though the stunt never came off.

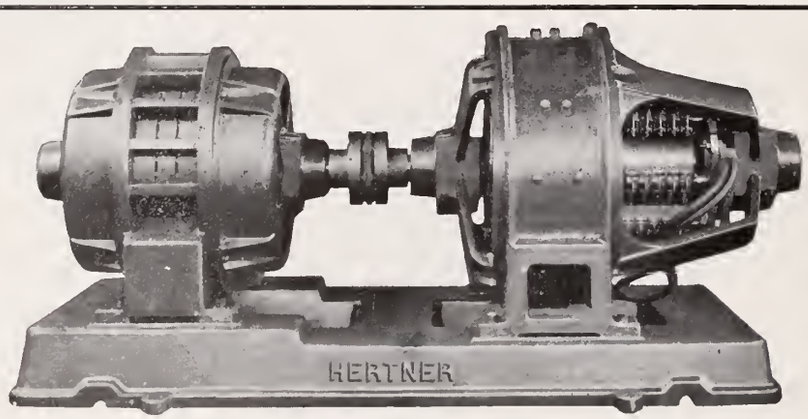
organ solo (five or six minutes), news reel (silent and Movietone), four vaudeville acts, two Vitaphone acts, and the feature picture. We have eliminated the orchestral overture, but never have thought of eliminating the organ solo, because it is not only too well established as a popular 'act' but also continues to harmonize effectively with the screen and stage program, despite the development of sound accompanied films. I do not believe that the wholly 'canned' show will be popular for a very long time, if ever it is. The theatre will always need its personality, and that individuality which always has been a factor in its success. The individual 'touch' cannot be given without the addition to the program of some individual piece of entertainment, some element of the show itself, and the organ always has ruled supreme, so far as the houses below the big downtown class are concerned, in accomplishing this result."

La Rocca says that while the vaudeville acts—which, by the way, he offers in the form of a "presentation" rather than as unrelated units—are continued because they are needed at the Park Plaza, that they are not the factor in drawing people to the house as is the feature picture, which ranks first, and the Vitaphone acts.



He said that one of the obligations added to the burden of the showman by the new sound pictures is honest dealing on another score—that being the clear-cut statement in all advertisements as to whether a "sound picture" merely has a synchronized score, synchronized score and "sound effects" or talking sequences or full dialogue features.

Regarding the advisibility of selling the sound installation by describing fully the method whereby the sound reproduction is accomplished—a question which has been raised by several exhibitors who believe such information may result in killing the perfect illusion which the synchronized picture should create—La Rocca said he did not believe anything was gained by such publicity. "If they want to know about it, they will ask, and when patrons come to me and ask to be shown the machinery I show them about, just as I do the patrons, and there are many of them, who are curious to see the machines we have for 'manufacturing weather'."

The Park Plaza changes programs weekly. The admissions are fifty cents week days and seventy-five cents on Sundays. The patronage is drawn from a residential district largely populated by professional men and prosperous business men and their families. La Rocca says that he has received the highest type of service on Vitaphone and Movietone films and from the service department of Electrical Research company on inspection and repair of the sound apparatus. He has shown "The Jazz Singer," "Tenderloin," "Glorious Betsy," "Lights of New York," and "Street Angel," in addition to weekly offerings of two Vitaphone acts and a Movietone newsreel, without a single break or interruption in the show. He played a return engagement of "The Jazz Singer," because he wanted to keep the sound feature going during a space when no other dialogue and sound accompanied picture was available, and took in a bigger gross than the picture did on its original presentation, though that total set a new record for the Park Plaza.

SELECTING EQUIPMENT

MODERN THEATRE

Theatre architects appreciate the fact that curtains, draperies, etc., are an important part in embellishing not only the stage but the interior of the modern theatre. These units should be selected with the most discriminating care in order to accomplish genuine decorative value.

Novelty Scenic Studios has for years worked with the architect and the exhibitor in selecting the proper materials, designs and trimmings, in its effort to give each job a quality of distinction and individuality.

EVENHEETERS

EVENHEETERS are not exclusively for winter time alone, dampness of summer rains and dewy, foggy summer nights make them a necessity in summer time too. For dampness plays havoc with the delicate organ parts much as coldness does.

MR. ARCHITECT, as a protective measure Evenheeters should be specified in every organ chamber you plan. Not only will they prove of value in winter but in summer too, and in the long run you will find that this measure of protection has decreased organ maintenance expense and lengthened organ life to a marked extent.

different occasions after that date and finally placed his order for a $35,000 Page DeLuxe Unit Organ.

This organ consists of four manuals. 1,900 pipes and a galaxy of traps and orchestral effects all tied together with the Page Unit relay system.

The console is finished in Rainbow gold. It matches the decorations and furnishings of the theatre and is mounted on an organ life separate from the orchestra lift, so that it may be raised for organ solos to a level with the stage.

Several months ago the Page Organ Company installed in W H T, the radio broadcasting station of the Radio Broadcasting Corporation in the Wrigley Building in Chicago, a Page DeLuxe organ which is the largest broadcasting organ in the country, and the organ in the Emboyd theatre exceeds in size this W H T organ.

Mr. Quimby is more than a progressive exhibitor and a successful business man He is a multi-millionaire but there is a sentiment in his nature that has shown itself in the name he has chosen for his monument to his business sagacity. That name is Emboyd, and it represents a tribute to his mother, whose maiden name was Emma Boyd. Thus it is that men of Mr. Quimby's nature have a way of revealing their innermost feelings to those who have meant so much to them in life.

So when the theatre was opened the largest sign to grace the front of any theatre in Indiana flashed this graceful tribute to his mother.

Quimby owns and operates five other theatres in Ft. Wayne. These are the Grand, the Palace, the Jefferson, the Allen and the Colonial. The new Emboyd theatre presents a combination program of pictures and presentations.

"Good-Will Car" Advertises Theatre in Nearby Towns

Manager C. S. Ferguson of the Capitol Theatre, Brandon, Man., has been getting excellent results from his "Capitol good-will car" which has been touring the country adjacent to Brandon for some weeks. The car is an antiquated Ford, painted pink with yellow and green trimmings—and christened "Ramona."

The Capitol Good-Will Car travels about the country wheezily for exploitation purposes, its one-man crew distributing advertising on current attractions, tacking up cards and placing one sheets in empty windows. The gaudy and decrepit machine has become a familiar feature on the roads of Manitoba and everybody knows it now when they see it.

Keep Them Coming!

Every season of the year the movie man's fancy turns to thoughts of fishing—Fishing for the shekels that lay snugly in the pockets of the movie star's "dear public."

But to get the shekels you must get the public.

According to all reports, the coming pictures will make good bait but how about the line? For no matter how enticing the lure, you can't keep them coming unless the line will hold.

The CINEPHOR LENS, with its definition, flatness of field, maximum illumination, and black and white contrast is the line that will haul 'em in and make 'em like it.

The open season lasts all year long. So let's reel up a Cinephor line and make a new cast. They'll rise to the lure in schools and you'll need a good net to gather up the shekels. You will make a record haul night after night with a Cinephor.

Singer "U" Sound Shorts Sales Head

THE position of sales manager for Universal sound short subjects is being filled by Julius Singer, with the Laemmle company for almost twenty years, who was appointed last week by Lou B. Metzger, general sales manager of Universal. Fred J. McConnell is in charge of all the short product, but Singer will work hand in hand with him and will develop Universal's activities in the sound shorts field.

Universal's first short novelty, "Globe Trotter," listed as a Vaudeville Novelty and featuring the team of Bailey and Barnum. This act has both dialogue and singing.

Plans Marketing of New Sound Apparatus

Plans are reported being formed by the Bristol Talking Movie Company, William H. Bristol, president, to market sound projection apparatus called the Bristolphone. This device uses the disc method of reproduction and is expected to be available for exhibitors at a price between $3,000 and $4,000.

The Bristolphone is at present being used by several prominent manufacturers for commercial purposes. Bristol, the head of the firm and inventor of the device claims that a resynchronization arrangement is a feature which assures perfect automatic movement and that he holds basic patents secured ten years ago on disc sound synchronization.

Two New Features Under Way for Pathe

Two new features are in production at the Pathe studios. They are "The Spieler," and "Office Scandal."

"Sal of Singapore," starring Phyllis Haver, has just been completed at the Pathe plant, and "Ned McCobb's Daughter," with Irene Rich featured, still has about a week ago. In the process of editing are "Show Folks," "Marked Money," "Annapolis" and "Captain Swagger." "Power" and "Celebrity" have been shipped to New York.

Vitaphone Exchange to Open in Philly

Vitaphone Corporation will open an exchange occupying 8,000 square feet of space at 1219-23 Vine street, Philadelphia, on September 10th, under the personal supervision of Norman J. Ayers, division sales manager of the company. The Philadelphia Vitaphone Exchange will supply the Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh territories.

Goshen, Ind., Claims Honors in 10,000 Class

It is claimed by Goshen, Ind., that it will be the first city of 10,000 population to install talking picture equipment. Oscar Hansen, manager of the Jefferson theatre, has announced that he has arranged for the installation of Vitaphone ad Movietone equipment, but though the contract was signed with the makers, it is expected to be January before the equipment is received, due to the rush of business.

35 of 40 Hal Roach Comedies to Have Synchronization

DECISION has finally been made with regard to sound in Hal Roach comedies. M-G-M announces that thirty-five out of forty Roach productions on the schedule for the coming year will be synchronized. The five productions that will be minus sound are the first five that were completed at the studio and the prints had already been shipped before it was possible to arrange for sound adaptation.

Prints of seven subjects with sound synchronizations are now being shipped to all M-G-M exchanges. Others will follow as rapidly as they are completed. Those being shipped at present are, Charley Chase in "Imagine My Embarrassment"; Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Early to Bed"; Our Gang in "The Ol' Gray Hoss"; Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Two Tars"; Our Gang in "School Begins"; Our Gang in "The Spanking Age," and Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Habeas Corpus."

Discussing sound pictures Hal Roach said:

"The art of pantomime is as old as amusement itself and there isn't the slightest chance that dialogue ever will entirely displace pantomime on the screen. Dialogue can't possibly take the place of pantomime in causing laughs.

"There is no doubt, however, that sound synchronization of the score will be a great help to comedy subjects. I should say that it will increase the amusement possibilities of a comedy from 10 to 20 per cent to have the proper musical accompaniment. Proper orchestration, to my mind, is the biggest addition to the movies by the sound effects.

"Sound effects in pictures are going to find a definite niche in the market. There is no doubt about that. And they are going to add variety to the program. But they won't necessarily take the place of anything else on the programs. You may say that they take the place of the elaborate presentations, recently so much in vogue. Well, my answer to that is that when presentations came in they didn't take the place of anything."

Gloria Swanson Contracts for Photophone Synchronization

AS the result of the decision of Gloria Swanson to record her voice in her coming picture, "Queen Kelly," by the RCA Photophone process, United Artists will offer productions for the coming season with sound accompaniment by the three major sound devices, Movietone, Photophone and the disc system.

Miss Swanson's arrangement was made with Photophone as an independent star whose productions are released by United Artists. Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, signed a contract last May with Electrical Research Products, Inc., for use by United Artists' producers of both Western Electric recording and reproducing devices. In this way the company now will record by all three processes.

William Le Baron, responsible for the production management of "Queen Kelly," conferred last week with United Artists officials in New York and then departed for Hollywood, where production on the film will be started September 3. Radio Corporation engineers accompanied him.

Before departing, Mr. Le Baron announced that Walter Byron, Tully Marshall, Maude George and Albert Conti have been signed to support Miss Swanson in this Erich Von Stroheim story. It is planned to have "Queen Kelly" completed by December 15, when three negatives will be delivered to United Artists; one silent for America, one silent for foreign countries and the sound negative for America.

"Queen Kelly" will not be an all-talkie picture, though much dialogue is planned for it. The climactic scene in the final reel will have a combination of voice, orchestral music, sound effects and visual spectacle.

Marveltone Device Will Have N. Y. Showing

New York is to be given a demonstration soon of Marveltone at a legitimate theatre. It was recently introduced at Grauman's Egyptian in Los Angeles. The device is a combination of sound-on-film and disc and employs a secret synchronization process.

George Lovett is the inventor of Marveltone, which it is said, will play numbers requested by the audience and answer questions asked by Lovett, who works in the audience. It is said that there is no wear and tear on the film and that the device requires no more servicing than the average film.

Three skilled projectionists are necessary but there is no installation cost and Lovett claims a theatre doesn't have to be wired to show the films.

Talkies Reveal New Entertainment World for the Blind

THAT a new world of entertainment has been opened to the blind with the perfection of talking pictures was evidenced by the experience of 28 inmates of the Pennsylvania Working Home for Blind Men, who, as guests of the Stanley Company of America, attended the opening of "Lights of New York," the first 100 per cent talking picture to be shown in Philadelphia.

John H. Meader, superintendent of the Home, wrote the following letter of appreciation to Abe Sablosky, general manager of the Stanley Company: "I believe I do not exaggerate the truth when I say that we have had nothing in years which gave as much pleasure to our men as the treat which your company gave them last Monday night at the Stanley Theatre. There were twenty-eight blind men in our group. Of these two or three had a slight perception of light. They were much delighted to realize that the curtain was so bright that they could dimly see the figures, which, together with the spoken parts, enabled them to get the story of the picture completely. Of the other men who see nothing at all, there were a number who could follow the plot from beginning to end on account of the spoken parts. They could differentiate the characters from what was said and from the tone of voice."

Labor Troubles Reach Height With Contracts Expiring

LABOR difficulties are expected to reach their height within the next few weeks as the result of the advent of the sound pictures. Contracts in a number of instances are expected to expire on September 1st. Wage increases are asked in many quarters as well as additional men in the booths. Stagehands are also endeavoring to maintain the usual forces backstage in the sound houses. A six-day week with seven days pay is also being demanded.

The New York operators have asked for an eight per cent increase over the present wage scale with existing contracts expiring August 31. Buffalo faces a walkout of operators and stagehands in the downtown houses on September 1st. The operators are asking an increase to $100 a week over the present scale of $55, $65 and $75. They also want a day off in seven. The managers have offered $75 for all operators for a seven day week, but this has been refused. Arbitration will be resorted to.

Cleveland operators have submitted a new wage scale to theatre owners. They are asking the same wage scale of last year for a six day week, whereas they had a seven day week last year. They are also asking that two operators be in the booth of every theatre which has synchronizing equipment. Local theatre owners say that the demand, if put into effect will increase operation approximately 13 per cent. The new scale applies only to subsequent run houses in Cleveland. Downtown houses signed a two-year agreement last year with the option of renewal for another year.

Memphis operators want four men in the booth instead of two in sound houses. They are asking $75. Lionel H. Kane, Loew's Southern manager has offered to employ the additional men at the present scale of $60.

Washington, D. C. operators are demanding wage increases from 25 per cent to 40 per cent and an increase to six men in the booth in first run houses.

Detroit is said to be declaring for an increase of 30 per cent. The exhibitors have made a counter proposal and it is expected that the difficulties will be ironed out.

FBO to Start First All-Talker

ALTHOUGH FBO has already broken into the sound field with "The Perfect Crime" and "Hit of the Show," it is to commence shooting its first actual all-talker in three weeks at Hollywood. A well-known melodrama, title of which will shortly be announced by William Le Baron, will go into production.

Four engineers left New York City on the Century, Wednesday, for Hollywood to supervise and take charge of the immediate installation of additional Photophone equipment. Part of this equipment includes portable recorders and special equipment for exterior scenes. An entire baggage car is being used for its transportation.

These engineers will be met by Mr. Lee Clarke at Hollywood. Mr. Clarke is one of Mr. Kennedy's sound staff in charge of technical sound division.

3 Broadway Houses For Vitaphone Films

Vitaphone pictures will be prominent on Broadway this fall in at least three houses. The Warner Theatre will be one of the permanent homes of talking films augmented by the Winter Garden, as a result of the recent contracts between Warner Bros. and the Shuberts for the use of this latter theatre. A good share of the playdates at the Mark Strand will also provide for the exhibition of new Warner Bros. Vitaphone talking pictures.

"The Terror," the second 100 per cent talker, is the current attraction at the Warner Theatre where seats are selling eight weeks in advance. Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" is slated to open in September at the Winter Garden and will be followed by other Vitaphone roadshows.

The Mark Strand has set the following dates for additional Warner Vitaphone product: September 1—"State Street Sadie" with Myrna Loy and Conrad Nagel; September 26—"The Lion and the Mouse" with May McAvoy, Lionel Barrymore and William Collier, Jr.; October 6—"The Midnight Taxi" with Antonio Moreno and Helene Costello; November 10—"Caught in the Fog" with May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel.

Develop Ideas for Trailers on Synchronized Films

National Screen Service announces that in collaboration with the Exploitation and Publicity Executives of Paramount and Publix, they have created a sound trailer on "Warming Up."

Experimental work in the matter of sound trailers and plans for sound trailers on synchronized and talkie pictures, are now reaching a definite conclusion.

The company is now collaborating with First National in the making of a sound trailer for the Special "Lilac Time" and with all producers for sound trailers on their productions.

Synchronized Month for Dallas Theatre

The Melba theatre of Dallas, Texas, has designated the month of September as "Synchronized Month" and all pictures shown in September will be synchronized either on Vitaphone or Movietone as the theatre has both installations.

The first picture will be "Sawdust Paradise" with Esther Ralston, which will be shown Paramount Week. Following this will be Warner Bros. talkie, "Women They Talk About," then "Excess Baggage" with William Haines, "Our Dancing Daughters," starring Joan Crawford, and then Paramount's "Wings."

Whiteman Makes Record of "Felix the Cat"

Paul Whiteman and his band have made a Columbia record, released August 20, of "Felix The Cat," the song and instrumental number which was inspired by the Felix the Cat animated cartoon comedies released by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc.

Middle West Theatres Rush Wiring

ALL Finkelstein and Ruben and all Publix theatres in the Middle West will be wired as soon as possible for sound films. The State Theatre in Minneapolis and the Capitol in St. Paul have already been equipped to project any type of synchronized picture produced. The Minnesota in Minneapolis is showing both Vitaphone and Movietone programs. It has also been announced that the Strand in Minneapolis and the Astor, St. Paul, will be reopened this fall with complete installation of talking equipment. The State and the Capitol are soon to be overhauled and redecorated.

Berlin Signs to Write U. A. Talkie

IRVING BERLIN has signed a contract with Joseph M. Schenck, President of United Artists, to write the story, lyrics and complete musical score of a talking picture to be called "Say It With Music." The star will be Harry Richman of "George White's Scandals," by special arrangement with George White.

"Say It With Music" is the first sound film for which original story, lyrics, musical score and songs have been written.

George White has already secured the rights to "Say It With Music" for stage presentation after release of the film.

First Movietone Feature with Dialogue in N. Y.

The first Movietone feature with dialogue to be released by any company, "The Air Circus," will be presented by William Fox at the Gaiety Theatre, New York, for an extended run beginning next Saturday afternoon, September 1.

In this production Louise Dresser, David Rollins, Sue Carol and Arthur Lake all speak their lines.

In addition to the dialogue in "The Air Circus" the thrills of flying are enhanced by the whirring of the aeroplane motors, the crashing of planes, and other attendant sounds at a commercial aviation field, which is the locale for this Fox picture.

Howard Hawks and Lew Seiler directed the picture and the dialogue sequences were staged under the direction of Charles Judels, who was general stage manager for the Shuberts before signing for an important position with Fox Movietone.

Le Baron Plans Stock Company for F B O

A definite and permanent company of stock players, to appear exclusively in F B O Talkers is one of the plans now under consideration by William Le Baron, Vice-president in charge of production, at Hollywood. He believes, in forming such a company, he will not only avoid the griefs of other companies in getting competent players and training new material, but that these players with each succeeding talker production will register with ever-increasing effectiveness and popularity.

Mr. Le Baron's plan calls for stage stars who have screen personality which will register with equal effectiveness whether the film goes out to the present limited number of those exhibitors already equipped for sound, or the vast majority of theatres as yet unprepared for talking pictures.

Warners Will Reopen Vitagraph Studio

The Vitagraph Studio in Brooklyn will be opened this fall for the production of Vitaphone talking pictures and extensive alterations are now under way to provide it with the complete equipment necessary to the making of sound films.

The improvements will include two Vitaphone stages with the newest type apparatus, sound proof walls and incandescent lights.

"U" Increases Sound Releases from Eight to Sixteen

UNIVERSAL will release sixteen instead of eight synchronized pictures during the coming season, according to announcement by Carl Laemmle. Two of these, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Man Who Laughs," have already been completed and are now being exhibited.

The Universal sound pictures will fall into three classifications. There will be four synchronized with music and sound effects, others will be synchronized with talking sequences in addition to music and sound effects and there will be still others made as all-talkies.

The four synchronized with music and sound effects are "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Man Who Laughs," "Give and Take" and "Man, Woman and Sin." The last two will be ready for the market within a week or ten days.

The remaining twelve to be synchronized in different ways not yet decided upon, are "The Last Warning," "The Girl on the Barge," "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," "Red Hot Speed," "It Can Be Done," "The Shake Down," "You Can't Buy Love," "The Charlatan" and three Laura La Plante pictures, "One Rainy Night," "That Blonde" and "Dangerous Dimples."

Of the pictures named, several have already been completed as to the silent negative and the making of the talking sequences is under way. Others are now in production.

Universal is also getting under way in the short subject sound field. Julius Singer was recently appointed sales manager for the short sound product and the first subject of this product has arrived from the coast. It is "The Globe Trotters," a black face act staged by Bailey and Barnum.

It is announced by the company that sound feature pictures will have two negatives, the synchronized negative and the silent one.

Gotham Completing Plans for Marketing Bristolphone

GOTHAM PRODUCTIONS, which is to organize Bristolphone Sales Corporation, for the marketing of Bristolphone, a sound disc device, is making elaborate preparations for the recording of sound by the process and the distribution of the equipment. By the terms of the agreement made between Gotham and William H. Bristol, inventor of the device, Gotham, it is said, will get a percentage on every installation made.

Gotham is planning to erect two outdoor sound stages at Waterbury, Conn., where production activities will get under way in the near future. Production of the equipment is already under way there and deliveries can be made in the immediate future. The two stages, in addition to being used for sound recording, will also serve as eastern production studios for Gotham.

While Gotham has exclusive rights to the Bristolphone process, the company will license other companies in the same manner as do Western Electric and RCA. Gotham is now in negotiation with several short subject producers for a tie-up on two-reel sound films and one-reel novelties.

Gotham has not yet definitely set its plans completely for the application of all Bristolphone activities, but Budd Rogers, vice-president of the company, said that important details would be perfected within the next ten days or so.

Among the forthcoming Gotham productions scheduled for sound synchronization are, "The Girl from Argentine," starring Carmel Myers; "Times Square," featuring Alice Day and Arthur Lubin; "Red Velvet," starring Lionel Barrymore and Jacqueline Logan; "A Modern Sappho," "Across the Footlights," "Among My Souvenirs," "Goodbye Broadway," "Father and Son" and "Pajamas for Two."

Kennedy Organizes Sound Studios to Produce in New York

AS announced in a Motion Picture News interview last week with E. E. Bucher, vice-president of RCA, Joseph P. Kennedy has launched a production enterprise for sound pictures in New York with Bob Kane at the head of production activities.

The company has been organized under the name of Sound Studios, Inc., with Kane president and Joseph I. Schnitzer and Colvin Brown, vice-presidents. Schnitzer is vice-president of FBO and Kane vice-president of Pathe.

The Pathe studios in New York City have been acquired and are to be completely equipped for the production of talking pictures by the corporation under the RCA Photophone system of recording.

It is the intention of the company to film productions from outstanding plays, novels or stories which lend themselves naturally to dialogue and sound effects, as well as pictorial quality. Broadway stars will be used in many of the pictures.

MANAGERS ROUND TABLE CLUB
THE CLEARING HOUSE FOR BOX OFFICE PROBLEMS and THEATRE OPERATION

By Charles E. Lewis

"Nothing But the Truth"—?

"Ducky" Meyers of Chillicothe, Ohio, thought, after much consideration, (you don't know "Ducky" like I do), that rather than let his patrons complain about a bad picture he would "beat them to it" and advertise the fact that the feature was "rotten," that the management knew it, but could not help it. But, said "Ducky" to his patrons, we have surrounded this "punk" feature with such a "corking" show that you won't mind it at all.

And, strange to relate,—no, not so strange either,—the show did a more than average business, for two reasons. First: the rest of the show was good. Second: his patrons were curious to see a feature which the theatre advertised was bad.

Here is a peculiar bit of theatre psychology—and a clever act of showmanship. Try it yourself the very next time you have to play off one of those "beauties" that you get whether you like 'em or not. Get it set with a good surrounding bill that will include several shorts worth of feature billing and SELL IT just as "Ducky" did.

Don't forget your promise on that boat ride, Meyers,—I want some "stuff" from you to be published on these pages—and how!

About three years ago I went to Syracuse to hear an organ which I had under consideration for a new theatre. I heard the organ but I also heard an "organist," and before leaving I said that he was worth his weight in gold.—

Recently I returned to Syracuse and making the rounds of the different theatres, I happened upon the Eckel Theatre along about 9 o'clock. There was quite a line waiting to buy tickets, which surprised me because on this particular night the other houses seemed to have plenty of room. And when I got inside I had to stand for about 15 minutes and during that time a Vitaphone act was singing, with a running conversation from the audience as competition. I'm not so sure which would have been the winner had it kept up much longer, but I took my seat and while struggling to park my hat on the trick rack under the seat (so the guy behind me could kick it into a pulp) a sudden hush settled over the house and I quickly looked up and, behold, a slide was just announcing Paul H. Forster at the organ, and as the spot came on him he received a terrific hand.

So once more I had the extreme pleasure of listening to the man who "owns" Syracuse, as far as organs are concerned, and it was a mighty pleasant time I had. To me it's a miracle the way this man Forster leads his audience around in volume, in tempo and in every other way—And how they love to follow him.

And after it was all over, believe it or not, they had to stop the opening title for the big feature so that he could take another bow. And then they were still applauding.

We Hear from L. A. Wallis, of Texas

In sending in his application, Manager L. A. Wallis, of the Isis Theatre in North Fort Worth, Texas, says—". . . I believe it is one of the best clubs ever organized to help fellow exhibitors get bigger box office results . . ." and so we are glad to enroll him into the CLUB because he has expressed a mighty true sentiment.

As a starter he tells us about "Camille" which he tackled with 5,000 envelopes on the outside of which you read in deep red ink—"FOR LADIES ONLY." On the inside was a slip of paper with the following wording, "If You Could See But One Picture in the Whole Year, That Picture Should Be Norma Talmadge in "Camille." He also called attention to these envelopes with a slide on his screen which read, "There Is a Message in Each Envelope 'For Ladies Only.' Ask for them at the Box Office."

We are glad to reprint this stunt because

Audience Votes Raise in Prices

THE management of the Forum Theatre announced a 10c increase in admission effective on Labor Day in a rather novel manner. Statements were thrown on the screen to the effect that the Forum was the only theatre in that locality presenting a high class stage show with orchestra music organ solo, feature picture and Vitaphone number at each performance, and asked for a vote of the audience as to whether this high standard of entertainment should be continued at an advance of 10c in admission or whether the price should remain the same and the character of the programs be lowered. The audiences were overwhelmingly in favor of the increase.

it is another of the type that can be utilized so well for any number of different pictures. Fit the Idea to the Picture or the Picture to the Idea. That's what we are preaching, and that is what our "wide-awake" members are doing.

So, Brother Wallis, we await with interest something more from you and we would also like to get your photo. Shoot it along.

An Exhibitor Goes Traveling

AFTER completing a four weeks' tour of the Middle Western States it was only natural that many different questions should find their way to me from the many exhibitor friends of mine as well as members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB who were all watching this trip with much interest.

How do conditions compare with those in the East?

What is the audience reaction in the Middle West?

Are theatres conducted any different?

Are managers different than in the East?

Is competition as keen?

Is over-seating as bad as we have been told?

Are theatres out there really making money?

These constitute just a few of the questions that followed my return to the East, and since there is much to be said on each and every question stated, the thought came to me that perhaps I could better answer each one separately by stating what I found in answer to such questions.

Therefore, starting with next week's issue, I will elaborate on each of the questions put to me and answer them just as I was affected by the trip. That this tour was packed full of valuable findings is a plain and simple fact, and my only wish is that each and every theatre manager or exhibitor could find the time to make some sort of a tour, even if only for a few days, but out in territory as far removed from his own theatre as is possible.

Stage Shows in Australia Growing in Importance

More and more is the stage presentation becoming an important part of motion picture theatre programs in Australia. In Sydney alone, six city cinemas are paying theatrical performers £1,600 weekly, but the additional box office receipts are reported to be more than compensating for this expenditure. Recently the Australian entertainment world has been undergoing a period of depression and theatrical managements are adopting presentations as a means of overcoming the effects of that depression. Probably the most elaborate performance staged in connection with a motion picture program in Australia is that now running at the Sydney Regent in connection with the exhibition of "The Gaucho." In addition to an elaborate ballet, the presentation includes vaudeville acts from the United States.

The popularity of the pictures-and-review program in the large city theatres throughout Australia has brought an additional problem to the suburban showmen, to whom presentation means an expense which many can not afford.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Getting more and more kick out of the Club pages every week and anxiously look forward to the weekly edition of the NEWS. I'd say that its innovation is the best "stunt" that has been pulled in many a moon.

More power to you, as I feel you are doing worlds of good, both to members and those hundreds who, I feel, are absorbing the pages of the Round Table Club weekly, but to date have been unable to get the cramp out of their wrists and fill out an application blank.

Paramount Working on Fifteen Films

3 Sound Productions Among Those Being Filmed; 4 Films in Cutting Rooms and 6 Others in Preparation

DAY and night shifts in every department of the studios are at work on current and future productions under way at the Paramount plant in Hollywood, marking the busiest era of activity in the history of the organization.

Three productions are being filmed on the Paramount sound stges. Evelyn Brent, William Powell, Clive Brook and Doris Kenyon are making the dialogue sequences for "Interference." Emil Jannings has started on the talking version of "Sins of the Fathers," and Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen are being put through their paces in scenes for their backstage story.

Two companies have gone on location—"Redskins," and "Avalanche." In the studios, three companies are at work: "His Private Life"; Charles Rogers' new vehicle, and "Moran of the Marines."

Four in the cutting rooms are: "Take Me Home," "The Docks of New York," "Varsity," and "The Fleet's In."

Six pictures are being prepared, these being "The Wolf of Wall Street," "The Canary Murder Case," "The Case of Lena Smith," "The Four Feathers," new Bebe Daniels' picture, and "The Tong War."

Sign New Contracts

New contracts recently signed at the Paramount studio on the Coast include the following: George Bancroft and Arnold Kent, players; and George Manker Watters, Hugh Herbert and Dan Totheroh, writers.

Victor Voyda

Victor Voyda, brother of Ernest Vajda, was chosen last week to act as associate producer on the first Maurice Chevalier vehicle to be made by Paramount. Voyda has changed the spelling of his name to conform to the English pronunication.

Pathe Productions

August production schedule at Pathe includes "The Spieler," "Office Scandal" and "Geraldine." "Ned McCobb's Daughter" will be completed about the time these three new productions are ready for the camera. "Captain Swagger," "Sal of Singapore," "Marked Money" and "Annapolis" are being edited.

"Conquest" Completed

The first Vitaphone roadshow to have Monte Blue starred was completed last week when Director Roy Del Ruth finished the last scenes of "Conquest," a story of adventure in the Antarctic, in which Blue has the leading role of aviator-explorer.

Rayart Plans West Coast Studio

TREM CARR, production head of Rayart, who have been producing at the Metropolitan Studios in Hollywood, has announced that he is negotiating for several sites on which to erect new studios to house the several Trem-Carr-Rayart units. Tentative selections are at the new Studio City properties in which Sennett has already built and the Christies are building.

As laid out by Mr. Carr, the Rayart plant will consist of three separate studios, two for silent pictures and one sound-proof studio. Ground will likely be broken by October 1st.

Henry Murdock Dies

Henry Murdock, comedian who appeared in many Educational comedies, died last week from strangulation, caused by the lodgment of a piece of beefsteak in his throat. He had just finished playing a lead in a Cameo comedy.

Mort Blumenstock

Mort Blumenstock, whose original screen play, entitled "Home, James," is regarded by New York and Los Angeles critics as the best Laura LaPlante picture in a long time, has titled more than twenty productions for Columbia and several for FBO. It was less than two years ago that Mr. Blumenstock left the publicity department at the home office of First National Pictures to go to Hollywood to title pictures and write scenarios. He has made good in a difficult profession in a short space of time.

Russell Simpson Engaged

Russell Simpson has been engaged by Tiffany-Stahl to play the role of "Singapore Joe" in a Jack London story now being filmed under the direction of Elmer Clifton.

Mackaill-Mulhall Vehicles

A new line up on the Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall pictures for the First National President Group of releases for 1928-29 has been set. The two players will be teamed in three productions, "Waterfront," "Children of the Ritz," and "Two Weeks Off."

Miss Mackaill will be featured alone in "The Girl in the Glass Cage." Mulhall will be featured alone in "Ritzy Rosie."

Enroute

Marie Prevost and Kenneth Harlan left recently for New York. They are motoring via the Santa Fe trail. Harlan will play a leading role in "Tampico," a stage play. The actress will return immediately in order to arrive in Salt Lake City by the first of September to begin work in the starring role of "The Exodus of the New World," which Pioneer Film Corporation is producing.

Claire Windsor Signed

Claire Windsor will play the feminine lead opposite Victor McLaglen in a new Fox picture temporarily titled, "The Wastrel." J. G. Blystone has been assigned to direct.

"Stark Mad" on Location

Director Lloyd Bacon left Hollywood last week for Catalina Island on a location trip with members of the Vitaphone production, "Stark Mad." The Warner Studio has chartered a yacht on which the players will make their home.

"City Lights"

Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" is in the making. Sets are erected for the f[illegible] sequences, in the Chaplin Studio in H[illegible]wood. Casting is proceeding.

Show Photos by Wire

A novelty among the modern inventions is seen in "The Carnation Kid," Christie-Douglas MacLean production, when a photo is sent by wire as a part of the plot of the picture.

Arrangements were made with the American Bell Telephone Company which regularly uses this form of transmission to show a picture being received over the telegraph wires a very few seconds after it is transmitted in another city.

Todd-Ford Engagement

Thelma Todd, First National leading lady, has announced her engagement to James Ford, who recently was discovered by Corinne Griffith and given a contract by First National.

The 233 Club Elects

The 233 Club at its last election made Judge Rex Goodcell president, succeeding Monte Blue. Other officers of the exclusive film club elected were: Raymond McKee, recording secretary; Otto K. Olesen, treasurer; George Bancroft, Jean Hersholt, John Le Roy Johnston and Harry Zehner, vice-presidents. The 233 Club will hold its third annual inaugural ball at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel on August 30.

In Memoriam

The second memorial services for the late Rudolph Valentino were conducted last Thursday at Hollywood cemetery. More than 200 motion picture stars were present. Hale Collins of Seattle opened the memorial services at noon.

Keith to Leave for N. Y.

Ian Keith, playing a feature role in Columbia's "The Street of Illusion," will leave for New York to begin rehearsals for "By Royal Appointment" as soon as the Columbia picture is completed.

Tony Gaudio Engaged

Tony Gaudio has been secured by Henry King, producer of Inspiration, to photograph "She Goes to War."

Denny's Air Plans

Touring California by aeroplane is the present plan of Reginald Denny upon completion of "Red Hot Speed," his Universal current vehicle.

Blanche Sweet Recovered

Blanche Sweet has completely recovered from her recent illness and is soon to start on her first American made production since working in England.

Charles Byer Buys Lots

It appears that Charlie Byer is to become a permanent fixture in the community, as the popular leading man has just purchased two lots, one in Hollywood and the other at Dana Point, with the intention of building on the former immediately.

Record Plane Flight

C. L. Phillips, one of the crack pilots in "Hell's Angels," has returned to Hollywood after a record-making flight to Denver, Colorado, flying a light-powered sport biplane owned by Ken Maynard, film star. Phillips made the return flight in sixteen hours.

Ben Lyon's Next Role

Immediately after completing work in "The Air Legion," FBO, Ben Lyon will leave for Salt Lake City to co-star with Marie Prevost in "The Exodus to the New World."

Cutting and Editing

George Crone, who directed "The Floating College" for Tiffany-Stahl, is now supervising the cutting and editing of the picture.

"The Shakedown" Completed

"The Shakedown," Universal, has been completed by Director William Wyler and is now in the process of editing.

Gibson Nearing Finis

"Hoot" Gibson is in the final sequence of "King of the Rodeo," his current production.

Decides on Film Career

Allen Connor, the juvenile lead in "The Isle of Lost Men" for Tremear, has decided to remain in pictures and not return to the New York stage.

Bebe Celebrates Birthday

Bebe Daniels celebrated her birthday on the set of Marshall Neilan's "Take Me Home" at Paramount studios last week.

Born in New York State

Bess Meredyth, recognized as one of the most successful scenario writers in the industry, started out in life to become a concert pianist. At present she is credited with a large number of leading screen achievements.

After working on a newspaper in Buffalo, N. Y., her birthplace, Miss Meredyth, who had been making an intensive study of music, began a concert tour through the United States, which took her to Los Angeles. There she started the career which took her entirely out of music. But it brought her fame and fortune.

Motion pictures were just beginning to assert themselves in and about Hollywood, and Miss Meredyth decided to abandon her tour in order that she might spend the winter in California. She played extra parts with the Biograph Company with Mary Pickford, the Gishes, Blanche Sweet and all the others of Griffith fame. She then went to Universal to play leads, and was eventually made a star with that company. All this time she was picking up experience upon which she expected to capitalize later, for her real ambition was to become a scenario writer, and, while starring, she wrote many original stories that were bought and produced. Then she went into the scenario department writing originals and continuities, and was very successful from the start.

During the last five years Bess Meredyth has reached the top of the screen writing profession. Among her notable achievements are the adaptations and scenarios of "Don Juan," "The Sea Beast," and "When a Man Loves," for John Barrymore, although she has done a score of acknowledged successes.

Now Miss Meredyth has moved her facile typewriter out to Metro-Goldwn-Mayer to stay for a year or two. Following the completion of scripts on "The Mysterious Lady" and "A Woman of Affairs," M-G-M officials saw fit to proffer a long-term contract to Miss Meredyth, which she signed recently. She was previously under contract to Louis B. Mayer, Warner Bros. and First National.

Another New Yorker, who might be termed a writing veteran of the motion picture industry, for he did his first picture for Vitagraph in 1914, is George H. Plympton. The story referred to was for Norma Talmadge and was titled "Miser Murray's Wedding Present." That effort followed a career as a short story and newspaper writer, and Plympton has done little since but write and adapt stories for the screen. He remained with Vitagraph for four years, writing for John Bunny, Sidney Drew and many of Vitagraph's early successful stars. He adapted the Alfred Henry Lewis "Wolfville" series and also many of the O. Henry series.

Since departing from Vitagraph, Plympton has written stories and adaptations for Metro, Paramount, Pathe and Universal. He is also under contract to Universal, and he points with pride to the two Universal Collegian series which he adapted as his best work. He has adapted many Westerns, and also write adaptations for the Arthur Lake series of comedies for Universal.

Plympton is a native of Brooklyn, and attended public schools in that region of Greater New York. His original intention was to become an electrical engineer, but he started dabbling with fiction and sold a number of originals to Vitagraph, which brought him his first picture contract. His father, Dr. Harry Plympton, was also a very successful writer of fiction.

The only interruption in his writing career of consequence was service during the World War, which made him eligible to the American Legion, but he returned to the writing field and to California as soon as he was able to lay off a uniform and again take up a pen.

Tryon Praised

The work of Glenn Tryon in "It Can Be Done" has been lauded by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, who is keenly interested in this young star's work.

Will Again Direct Keaton

Edward Sedgwick, who recently directed Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman," will also direct the second feature comedy in which Keaton will star for M-G-M.

Finis Fox Returns

Finis Fox has returned from the Yosemite, where he and his wife spent a delightful vacation. Finis will begin work on the scenario for "Evangeline," Edwin Carewe-Dolores Del Rio production for United Artists.

Prepare Denny Vehicle

Earle Snell and Gladys Lehman, Universal's scenario staff, are preparing the screen version of E. J. Rath's "When the Devil Was Sick" for Reginald Denny.

Caddo Loans Milestone

Lewis Milestone will direct a feature production for Paramount, having been loaned to that organization by Howard Hughes, producer of Caddo. The story Milestone will direct is based on an original by Joseph Conrad.

De Mille "Sound" Reasoning

William De Mille is enjoying his experimental work on sound device. "I find this the most interesting work I have ever done in connection with motion pictures," says the author-director, and states that in his opinion sound in picture has unlimited possibilities.

Jacqueline Logan Weds

Jacqueline Logan, Pathe star, surprised her many friends last week by suddenly marrying Larry Winston, real estate broker, at Tijuana, Mexico.

J. R. Grainger Arrives

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Fox, arrived here last week for a conference with Winfield R. Sheehan. He has taken a cottage at Malibou beach.

Sue Carrol Sailing

Sue Carrol, popular screen star, has left for Europe, accompanied by her mother. She will appear in Fox' "Chasing Through Europe."

"The Shopworn Angel"

Richard Wallace, signed by Paramount to direct "The Shopworn Angel," is busily engaged in preparation of the story and expects to start filming within a week.

"Spieler" Continuity Finished

Hal Conklin has completed his continuity of "The Spieler," an original. This will be synchronized with sound effects, according to an announcement by Pathe, and some titles will be spoken.

Key City Reports

New York City

THE month of August has been kind to Broadway motion picture theatres. With the end of the Summer season but a week away and taking into consideration the fact that September generally can be counted upon as the start of a prosperous movie season, everything really seems to be "Jake" along the Rialto and other points in this section. The last few weeks have reaped an unusual harvest for local managers, two houses breaking their own records during a season usually termed "dull." We believe that this can be attributed to the fact that there have been some very fine attractions shown, and, in addition, some of the credit must be given to public interest in sound pictures.

The Roxy, with "Four Sons" (Fox) seems destined to break the record which "Street Angel" (Fox) established a few weeks ago. It has already done better than the latter and has gone into its third week with no appreciable let down in receipts. Last Saturday's and Sunday's figures were $46,000, only a few hundred below the two opening days of the second week. An elaborate stage show supplements the picture.

The other record to be shattered was Jannings versus Jannings at the Rialto, where this popular actor's "Patriot" (Par) did $51,417, as compared to his "Last Command's" (Par) gross of $49,947. Newspaper and trade press acclaimed "The Patriot" as one of the best pictures ever produced—and of course, the Rialto has built up a big patronage of Jannings fans.

No crying at the Capitol either where John Gilbert held forth in "Four Walls" (M-G-M). Another case where a strong following has been built up for Gilbert's name always means a good week's business here. His role is an entirely different one from any attempted in the past and may have caused some consternation among the fans, but his admirers flocked to see him, nevertheless. The picture is held another week.

The Paramount did another regular Paramount week with "Just Married" (Par) which means that the books again showed enough to pay off the nut and still leave a comfortable margin to be shoved into the Publix coffers. It's a mean week that this does not happen at this theatre. This house struck a profitable stride a long time ago and has consistently kept it up.

After doing a splendid two weeks' business at the Rivoli, "The Perfect Crime" (FBO) suffered considerable let-down for the third and last week. U. A.'s "Tempest," with John Barrymore, followed in and we have it in writing from U. A. that more records have been broken. Sound effects have been added to this picture since it had its thirteen weeks' run at $2 at the Embassy and U. A. Claims that more money was taken in on the week-end than had been paid to see other U. A. pictures, such as "Sorrell and Son," "Sadie Thompson" and "Ramona"—and this paper's records show that these pictures did a whale of a business.

The Strand again had a week's business entirely in keeping with the mark set for the past few months, since the adoption of the new policy. "Out of the Ruins" (F.N.), silent picture, supplemented by short talkies and singers, kept the figures up to good business. The little Cameo had just a so-so week with "Two Brothers" (Ufa).

With the higher priced shows, old daddy "Wings" (Par) continues its remarkable showing at the Criterion no sign of weakness here and swinging into its second year. M-G-M's "White Shadows," at the Astor, did still another excellent week's business, and "The Terror" (Warner talkie) continued its fast gait at Warner's theatre. Al Jolson's latest Warner picture, "The Singing Fool," is being billed to soon appear at the Winter Garden. The Embassy did another fair week's trade with "The Scarlet Lady" (Columbia) and this picture will give 'way on Thursday evening of this week for "Submarine"—a picture which Columbia claims has everything—and how.

The Central, with "Lilac Time" (F. N.) is swinging along with the rest of the big money pictures, and Ned Depinet announces that owing to the demand for seats there will be three performances, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 1, 2 and 3. "Lost in the Arctic" (Fox) at the Gaiety will be replaced with "The Air Circus" (Fox) on Sept. 1, and at the Globe, "The Red Dance" (Fox) going at a slow pace, is being held.

St. Louis

JACKIE COOGAN in person aided by his father was the box office record busting attraction at Skouras Brothers Ambassador Theatre, Seventh and Locust streets, this week, and while we haven't received the actual box office receipts it can be safely asserted that Jackie more than earned his very high salary during his seven-days run. Which isn't at all bad for a school boy. On the Ambassador's screen was "Heart to Heart" a very excellent sort of picture. However, it is very hard to assert just how many patrons would have attended had not Jackie been on the bill of fare. Jackie was featured in Ed Lowry's customary stage show.

Out at the Grand Central, Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue "Lilac Time" a really high class sound picture played havoc with previous box office records and it has been held over indefinitely. It took a mighty good picture of the sound variety to pull in more cash customers than did "The Jazz Singer," but we are told "Lilac Time" did that very thing. How long it will hold up remains to be seen. It is still shooting at the total attendance and receipt mark set by the run of "The Jazz Singer," which inaugurated the sound picture policy at this Skouras house.

Just across the street at Skouras Brothers Missouri the screen offering was Pola Negri and Nils Asther in "Loves of An Actress." It did fairly well at the box office considering the strength of the competition throughout the town for the week.

Loew's State Theatre offered "The Mysterious Lady" one of those Love and Espionage affairs. The house offered an excellent bill of short sound pictures.

The St. Louis Theatre had on its screen during the week "The Cop" in which William Boyd, Jacqueline Logan and Alan Hale had the leading roles. It was a film somewhat above the average underworld melodrama type and helped a good vaudeville bill to hold box office receipts up to the high average set by this popular amusement place.

Albany

EVERYTHING considered, business at the motion picture theatres in Albany, last week, panned out far better than anyone anticipated. None of the theatre owners expected to do any great amount of business on the night of Governor Alfred E. Smith's notification. But as things turned out, the theatres were jammed to the doors, particularly those with managers wise enough to install radios and advertise the fact that they would receive the notification speech over the air.

At the Leland, in Albany, "Love Hungry," which was booked for the first three days, proved so good a business getter that it was held throughout the week. Pictures of the Smith notification were also featured during the last three days. The Clinton Square theatre ran to just fair business with double features, including "The Fortune Hunter" and "The House of Scandal."

The Mark Strand, in Albany, played to what was termed by its management, as satisfactory business, with Colleen Moore in "Oh Kay" while the Mark Ritz did fairly well with "The Big Killing." Proctor's Grand used "Harold Teen" to good business. Proctor's Harmanus Bleecker Hall ran well with its combination of double features and vaudeville. Neighborhood houses report business as being good.

In Troy, "The Cossacks" ran the entire week at the Troy theatre to good business. The Lincoln, which has been running split week with double features the latter part, used "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" last week for a straight seven days, and caught the crowds.

The Capitol, in Albany, which has been closed for several weeks, will reopen on September 3, with "Wings" as the feature for a straight week, at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50. Many of the theatres are planning to wait assured cool weather later in September, before featuring their bigger pictures.

Los Angeles

BUSINESS at the several first run houses varied last week. Splendid attendance was reported on "The Godless Girl," the C. B. DeMille picture which opened at the Biltmore Theatre on Monday, Aug. 20, and "White Shadows in the South Seas," the M. G. M. offering at Grauman's Chinese is doing capacity.

But discouraging business has brought only fair crowds to the United Artists Theatre, where "The Man Who Laughs," holds forth and it is reported that "The Street Angel," at The Criterion is not selling out by any means.

The attraction "The Midnight Taxi," at the Metropolitan and Colleen Moore in "Oh Kay," at Loew's State are doing about normal business and Colleen in "Lilac Time" at The Carthay Circle holding on. "Lights of New York," which has done well at Warner Brothers Theatre in Hollywood, is attracting well the last three days—and will be succeeded by another Vitaphone production, "The Terror."

Weather conditions have been in favor of amusement houses and "Greater Movie Season" is still on—but indications are that individual attractions are drawing; there is no trend of splendid business all 'round.

Cleveland

THE past week was one of the best weeks the local motion picture theatres have had so far this season. Almost all of the first run houses had good business. Some of them had excellent business. And one of them had so much business that an extra morning performance had to be introduced into the policy to take care of the crowds. Neighborhood houses continue to suffer. They are not getting the new pictures yet. And they are not equipped with sound devices which are attracting patronage in big doses.

"Lilac Time" did a whale of a business at the Stillman. Crowds were in the theatre and crowds were in the lobby waiting to get into the theatre for all performances. Before the week was more than half over, a special ten o'clock morning matinee was added to the regular schedule. Of course it is being held over.

"The Butter and Egg Man," light comedy entertainment, did well at the Allen, but did not get as much business as the previous new productions which have been shown at the Allen. The house was consistently well filled, however, and all criticisms were favorable.

"Out of the Ruins" was well liked by the crowds attending the State. A war picture, stressing conscience rather than the war, gave it a new turn which was worked out to the satisfaction of both audience and the stars. It made interesting romantic film fare, and while not a blue ribbon winner, rose above the average.

"Walking Back" played to big houses at Keith's Palace. A jazz picture with a well worn theme, which is given life and interest by the players. It's a strong potion for the older generation, and a good dose of medicine for the younger generation.

"The Escape," just average entertainment of underworld life and night club scenes, seemed to please patrons at Keith's East 105th St., where it played to average business the first half of the week. "Hot Heels" did fairly well the last half of the week.

The Park split its week with first-run neighborhood engagements of "The Mysterious Lady" and "Dancing Daughters." Both made good showings.

Portland, Ore.

GREATER Movie Season was again celebrated last week and brought out some of the popular stars in stellar offerings, and in consequence brought out increased crowds and swelled the receipts to greater amounts than has been the case since early spring.

A big outstanding event of the week also was the preview of "Uncle Tom's Cabin at Tebbett's Oriental, when a wonderful tie-up had been made with Log Cabin Bakery. Though the film ran into the early morning hours the audience sat enthralled until the last scene and many stayed to thank and congratulate Walter Tebbett for the pleasure afforded.

A big double bill was also on for the regular show at The Oriental, "Her Summer Hero" and Harry Langdon brought out the chuckles in "The Soldier Man."

With "The Strange Case of Captain Ramper," Pantages offered one of the most unusual pictures of the season, featuring the great German actor Wegener.

A world premiere, William Haines in "Excess Baggage" was Greater Movie Week offering at The Portland, and patronage took a big jump.

Anita Loos has told a realistic story in "Stranded", which played to fair business at The Capital theatre, and continued to draw the crowds, especially from 12 to 2 A.M. Ray Lucas, accompanied with some original harmon yon the Kilgen.

Exceptionally good business was reported at the Broadway and future offerings will have a hard time to equal the attendance and bring out the applause given "The Red Dance," starring Dolores Del Rio. Hoover's address via Movietone moved all audiences to prolonged applause.

Joseph Sampietro, director of the Columbia Theatre all-artist orchestra, was able to give an unusual and elaborate musical production to accompany "Drums of Love," which brought up the box office receipts nicely. Bruno Colletti, cellist, and Owen Dunning, trumpeter, who have been missed from the organization for the past month, returned and were welcomed.

John Hamrick's contribution to Greater Movie Season was announcement of completion of a long-term lease of Liberty (hereafter Music Box) to show Warners Vitaphone super-specials. His Blue Mouse continued showing "Lights of New York" which continued to draw well for the 5th week.

All suburban houses reported a nice increase in patronage, welcoming back a number of their "steadies" returning from vacations.

Because of its superior drawing power "The Dragnet" was shown for a full week at The Rivoli, and unusually good business was enjoyed.

Boston

WITH a welcome break in the hot weather of the past six weeks and the approach of school and college reopenings, Boston theatres show a decided improvement in box office returns this week. The week or two before schools reopen is always a season of a gradual return to normal at the theatres and this year is proving no exception. The peak of the vacation season is over and the returning tourists are apparently hastening to the theatres to see all of those films that they have missed while "up country" or "down East."

The past season has been a record breaker for the summer resort theatres throughout New England—the best in six years is the almost unanimous opinion heard. It has failed to make the usual inroads on the Boston theatres, however, which have done a far better business this season than during the last two seasons. When it comes to a choice between perpetual rain and perpetual heat, Boston theatre owners are beginning to prefer the heat equation, especially those theatres equipped with cooling systems.

Metropolitan Theatre is going strong without its organ after the recent fire. Many patrons have not even noticed its absence on the program, so well has the gap been filled. Metropolitan has been doing good business with "Fazil" while Gene Rodemich still holds sway with his musicians.

"Forbidden Hours" has proven one of the best pulling summer films for Loew's State in several seasons.

"Walking Back" and "The Grain of Dust" have drawn well at the Netoco twin houses, Modern and Beacon. Preparations are under way for special showings of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at these houses in the near future with the hopes of a run to equal "The Jazz Singer" record hung up during last spring.

Among the films which are reported as box office attractions from other Boston and nearby theatres are "Topsy and Eva" at the Bowdoin Square; "Telling the World" which is showing simultaneously at the Capitol, Exeter and Codman Square; "Street Angel" at the Allston and Scollay Square Olympia; "Lights of New York" at the Fenway and Washington Street Olympia; "Chicken A La King" at the Keith-Albee Boston; "Steamboat Bill, Jr." at the Loew's Orpheum, and Drums of Love" at the University.

Ottawa

THE theatres of Ottawa, the Canadian Capital, did not do so well during the week of August 20 for the simple reason that most of the people flocked to the annual fair and spent their money there. One day, August 24, it rained from morning until night and on that day only did the exhibitors get anything like big business.

Considerable interest was taken in the presentation of "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" at the Regent Theatre as a special exhibition attraction and the British feature made a fine impression. The only reason why the picture did not go over big was that most townspeople were literally distracted by the fair.

The best recent picture for Bebe Daniels is "The Fifty-Fifty Girl," according to those who saw this feature at B. F. Keith's. It was full of action and comedy but, somehow or other, the fans are looking for another "Campus Flirt."

The Centre Theatre had variety in its two features and attendance was fairly good, particularly for "Lightning" during the first half of the week. "Burning Daylight" with Milton Sills was up to the Sills standard but the crowd did not warm up to it.

The Imperial Theatre had Rin-Tin-Tin in "A Race for Life" but the juvenile friends of Rin overlooked their pet in the excitement about the Ottawa Fair. In other words, business was "fair." It wasn't the picture's fault.

The Laurier Theatre in Hull had excellent summer business with "Ramona" although it had recently played Ottawa for two weeks. Titles were in French and English and everybody enjoyed it, as usual.

The Eden Theatre did not do badly either with "Fashion Madness" with Claire Windsor.

The neighborhood houses in Ottawa had average patronage—and no more. The starting of new serials at the Rex and Columbia helped some, "Man Without a Face" making its first appearance at the Columbia and "Vanishing Rider" starting at the Rex. Western features headed the bills. The best of the neighborhood attractions was "Open Range," starring Betty Bronson, at the Fern Theatre, where the second chapter of "Masked Menace" was also shown.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE theatres enjoyed a very brisk and encouraging week. Business was especially lively in the downtown theatres. This is no doubt due to the change in weather from the summer to the fall variety.

The Wisconsin did unusually well with "Hot News" and a good stage show. "The Divine Sinner" drew fair houses throughout its run at the Merrill. "Glorious Betsy" finished its second week at the Garden, as popular in its second week as in its first.

"Kit Carson" at the Strand proved a fairly good business getter. The Alhambra remains closed. The Orpheum theatre was a popular theatre and good crowds filed in at each performance. The feature here was "Crooks Can't Win."

Business at the Riverside was just fair. "Dead Man's Curve" was the photoplay feature here.

Neighborhood houses, too, found business somewhat increased during the past week. "The Cossacks" was very well attended at both the Oriental and the Tower. The Zenith did good business with "The Circus Kid."

"Partners in Crime" was a good drawing card at the Venetian. "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" at the Uptown, Garfield and Modjeska was popular.

Salt Lake City

THE Salt Lake City downtown theatres are noticing a decided improvement in attendance during the last several days due to the nearness of the fall season and some very attractive programs being offered.

The present Capitol Theatre bill consists of Richard Barthelmess in his latest success "Out of The Ruins," as well as the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation presenting Bessie Love, well known film actress, in person, in the "Merry Ann Idea." This bill has been very well received by good sized houses.

Exceptionally big results have been enjoyed at the Pantages theatre during their presentation of "The Cossacks," it is reported. This picture was shown in conjunction with the Pantages vaudeville.

Fay Wray and Gary Cooper in "The First Kiss" which is from the Saturday Evening Post story "Four Brothers" was well attended.

The Paramount sound picture "Loves of an Actress" with Pola Negri and Nils Asther was shown at the Victory in conjunction with the Movietone News which, it is reported, enabled patrons at the Victory to hear Al Smith's acceptance speech at the same time it was being made by him in the east, as well as throughout the week.

The Gem Theatre had very satisfactory results from their showing of "Love Me and the World is Mine," and from the added attraction, "Call of the Sea," a color classic of Hawaii.

The American Theatre has enjoyed tremendous patronage this past week due to the fact that in addition to the picture program, featuring "The Shield of Honor," "Fat Saunders Country Store" has been one of the biggest drawing cards ever experienced at this theatre.

"The Road To Ruin" was shown as a second run at the Tower theatre, a suburban house here, and Lon Chaney in "The Big City" is reported to have gone over well as a second run at the Mission, also a neighborhood house in this city.

Philadelphia

SEVERAL outstanding pictures and cooler weather boosted business in the downtown theatres materially.

The Stanley did an almost unprecedented turnaway business with "Lights of New York," the first 100 per cent talking picture to be shown in Philadelphia. The process of synchronizing voices with the picture resulted in a loss of action and the whole effect was somewhat mechanical. The Stanley went in for sound pictures with a vengeance this week and there were no presentation acts but three Vitaphone numbers were shown. Due to the great success of "Lights of New York," it will be repeated next week at the Aldine.

The Karlton had a fair week's business but "We Americans" failed to appeal to the majority of patrons.

"Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady" did well at the Arcadia the first half of the week but attendance fell off the latter part.

Next to "Lights of New York" at the Stanley, "Street Angel," with Movietone accompaniment, at the Fox was easily the biggest box office attraction in Philadelphia this week and as a result it will be held over for a second week at the Fox. A colorful prologue, "Venetian Festival," in which the picture theme, "Angela Mia" was presented by a tenor and the orchestra was the only stage offering.

Richard Dix in "Warming Up" played to average business in its second week at the Aldine.

John Gilbert in "Four Walls" drew well at the Stanton.

The Forum featured Reginald Denny in "On Your Toes" and a complete stage show but the principal drawing card was Dr. J. Robert Pauline, French psychologist, who performed some remarkable demonstrations of his power to control the flow of blood in the human body. Business was not so good the second half of the week.

The Carman with Lionel Barrymore in "Road House" and a Syncopation Frolic featuring Dave White and his Whitehawks and a number of other entertainers started out well but due to the hot weather and rain, attendance fell off the second half of the week.

Of the second run theatres the Palace with Dolores Costello in "Glorious Betsy" reports good business. The picture pleased all types of patrons.

"Drums of Love" played to business which was considered satisfactory for this season of the year at the Victoria.

The Globe with "The Lion and the Mouse" also reports average midsummer business.

Equity Theatres this week ran "Tenderloin" simultaneously in four neighborhood houses, the Park, Astor, Model and Lindy, and results were in excess of expectations, receipts exceeding those of the "Jazz Singer."

Kansas City

COOLER weather saw an increase at practically all first run downtown houses in Kansas City.

At Loew's Midland "State Street Sadie," featuring Conrad Nagel, played to a week's business which was better than the average has been in several weeks.

At the Pantages "Danger Street" played to full houses practically all week, which also can be said of "Out Of The Ruins," featuring Richard Barthelmess, at the Mainstreet. "Stocks and Blondes" drew well at the Uptown, but not quite as well as was expected of it.

"Street Angel" at the Globe did a good week's business, drawing better by about 20 per cent than the average pictures recently. "The Mating Call" well repaid the Newman theatre for postponing closing its doors for remodelling, the picture holding up well all week, especially on matinee business.

Loew's Midland, the Globe and the Mainstreet used a bit more space in Sunday newspaper advertising, but, aside from that, no exploitation effort, other than the usual, was made by any of the houses.

Oklahoma City

LARGE first run houses of this city are enjoying splendid summer business due to the first class selection of pictures and also the modern ventilating systems used.

There was a steady trade at the Capitol with "Glorious Betsy," a Warner production, with Dolores Costello. The picture, an excellent one, was immensely enjoyed by a large patronage all week, as was also the Movietone preliminaries.

The Liberty was crowded all week with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," a splendid Universal picture Movietoned, and first class in every respect.

Richard Barthelmess in "Out of the Ruins," a First National picture, enjoyed a week's good business at the Empress Theatre.

At the Criterion, "Two Lovers," played by Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, enjoyed good business all week.

The Victoria, a neighborhood theatre, played "Thanks for the Buggy Ride" to good business.

The Orpheum enjoyed good business with vaudeville, and all of the five numbers offered were good.

Chicago

REPORTS of better business came in during the past week from neighborhood houses throughout the city, with the big downtown picture palaces continuing to go strong. "King of Kings" closed its satisfactory run at United Artists Theatre on Thursday night, making way for "Tempest," which played to capacity business on Friday and Saturday, some of the biggest hold-outs of the year being observed around this house for these first two days of the Barrymore picture's run. "Lights of New York," the first all talking picture to be shown in Chicago, continued to bring big crowds to McVickers, and the Roosevelt is doing a good business with "Lilac Time." "The First Kiss" on the screen, "Our Gang" in person and a big stage show, stood them out at the Chicago all week, ticket lines a block long being in evidence as early as 12:00 noon. The Oriental also had a good week with "Just Married" on the screen, Al Kvale and his gang on the stage and the finals in the American Venus Contest.

"The Cop" was the screen feature at both the Granada and Marbro Theatres, with the Tunney-Heeney fight pictures as an extra attraction, Al Smith's acceptance speech on Movietone and the elaborate stage shows to which patrons of these houses have grown to look for. Box office reports at both houses were very satisfactory.

Another feature picture which held the screen at two of the big de luxe neighborhood houses was "The Cossacks" which was shown at the Uptown and Tivoli, north and south side residents turning out in force to enjoy the picture and stage shows offered. "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," was the screen offering at the Capitol Theatre where attendance showed improvement. The Avalon showed "The Mysterious Lady" as its feature picture and it proved a good attraction for the week.

San Francisco

AS practically everyone has returned from their vacations, with the local schools open in a few days and as the past week the weather continued cloudy, some of the leading first run theatres did very good business. Some of the residential theatres also did very well.

Loew's Warfield Theatre was crowded all week, with Marion Davies in "Her Cardboard Lover." The Granada Theatre did well with "Half a Bride." Here also was shown the Publix Revue, together with Frank Jenks. "The End of St. Petersburg," shown at the St. Frances Theatre, did not do good business. It is stated the acting is good but too much killing is not enjoyed.

The El Capitan Theatre continued to draw crowds. Here was shown "United States Smith," together with wonderful presentation acts. The Embassy Theatre continued to draw big with the picture, "Lights of New York," the first real entirely talking picture ever shown in this city. Manager J. P. Silvey was officially praised for being able to fill the theatre as many weeks as he has with this same picture.

"The Foreign Legion," with vaudeville acts, did not draw well at the Pantages theatre, as fighting pictures are not popular here. "Three Ring Marriage," with vaudeville acts, did fairly well.

The Union Square Theatre did well with "Riding for Fame," with vaudeville acts, as Gibson is popular in this district.

In the residential theatres, "Ramona" crowded the Coliseum every night it was shown, although the afternoons were not so good. "We Americans," while crowding the Alexandria in the evenings, in the afternoons business was considered poor, although all seeing it became its boosters. It is thought it was not advertised enough. "The Girl from Chicago" did fairly well.

Harrisburg

UNDERWORLD tales continue to have a strong appeal to Harrisburg audiences and particularly successful, from a box office viewpoint and in other ways, was "Forgotten Faces," featuring Clive Brook and an all-star cast at the Victoria all week. Considerably cooler weather and the fact that summer vacationists are beginning to get back to the city contributed to a revival of business after the long, hot summer. The play itself was the subject of generally favorably criticism.

At Loew's Regent the main film was John Gilbert and Joan Crawford in "Four Walls." These stars have big pulling power in Harrisburg and the business the film did was far from disappointing to the management. The continued novelty of the recently installed Movietone, as applied to news reel pictures, contributed materially to the sale of admissions.

The Colonial tried the experiment of bringing back to Harrisburg, after several years, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," with Lon Chaney, and the picture drew well, appealing not only to persons who had seen it before, but to the newest generation of picture fans who saw it for the first time.

The State theatre, which continues to couple sprightly musical revues with motion picture features, did good business, the film play the last half of the week being "5 and 10 Cent Annie," featuring Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook in the stellar roles. The National got satisfactory financial results with Tom Mix in "The Daredevil's Reward," and the Russell showed Ramon Novarro in "Across to Singapore," this being the film's second run in the city where it attracted good crowds for both bookings.

Baltimore

SOUND films, especially those with dialogue, seem to be getting the cream of the patronage here. During the week beginning Monday, August 20, the weather was comfortably cool and it rained on several nights.

The outstanding business for the week was done at two Loew theatres, the Century and Stanley.

The Stanley offered its first sound, talk and musical attraction, "Lilac Time," with Colleen Moore and Gary Cooper, and that house, with its 4,000 seats, which has been doing only fairly well under Stanley operation, took a sudden spurt and was crowded to the doors every day.

At the Century, "Four Walls," co-starring John Gilbert and Joan Crawford, proved an entertaining film feature with a stage presentation act entitled Pow-Wow, headed by Ted Claire and other vaudeville favorites. Business throughout the week there was excellent.

"The Man Who Laughs," the spectacular film from Victor Hugo's novel, opened to very good business Saturday, August 25, at the Auditorium, a legitimate house with two performances daily. Top prices at night was $1, while in the afternoon it was 50 cents.

"Street Angel," with sound, song and music, went humming along through its third week at the New Theatre, with excellent business every day. This warranted it being held for a fourth week.

"Women They Talk About," featuring Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris, with sound dialogue and music, proved a good business getter during its second week at the Rivoli.

Only fair patronage was evidenced at the Keith-Albee Hippodrome, where "Lingerie" was the feature film attraction. Five acts of Keith-Albee family time vaudeville was offered also.

The Little Theatre went through a hard week with "A Woman of Paris" as the feature film attraction. This is the reissued version of Charles Chaplin's written and directed story featuring Adolphe Menjou and Edna Purviance. But this could not fill up the 250 seats any day during the week.

"13 Washington Square" was the feature film attraction at the Keith-Albee New Garden theatre, with six acts of Keith-Albee high class vaudeville. Business during the week was pretty good.

"Burning Daylight," the sound and musical attraction at Loew's Valencia, with Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon, proved only a fair business getter. The sound and music for this film did not come out particularly well at that house.

Minneapolis

THEATRE business was excellent in Minneapolis last week, some of the houses experiencing the best weeks they had had for a very long time. At the State, for example, "Street Angel" proved immensely popular and had to be held over for a second week. This was only the second time in the seven years of the State's history that a picture has been held over for a second consecutive week, the first having been "Lights of New York."

Pantages did a tremondous business, too, but the attraction was not the photoplay but Mae Murray, the film star, who made a personal appearance. Miss Murray appeared in four shows a day, and the theatre did a capacity business most of the time. Another film star, Eugene O'Brien was bringing in the crowds at the Hennepin-Orpheum, making a personal appearance in a sketch called "Restitution." The photoplay "Powder My Back," proved a nice addition to the program. The Lyric split the week with "Say It With Sables" and "The College Widow" and did fair business with each. The neighborhood houses profited by some very cool weather, and such pictures as "Square Crooks," "Wheel of Chance," "The Road to Ruin" and "The Actress" were going well.

The chief competition of the week was furnished by the Metropolitan, where the big musical revue "A Night in Spain" was playing a three-day engagement and grossing $17,000, a record for the show outside of Chicago and New York.

Pittsburgh

LOEW'S PENN turned in another big week's business, "Forbidden Hours," co-starring Novarro and Adoree, being the screen attraction, and proving to be a picture of but average entertainment value. The stage presentation was the Publix Unit entitled "Babes on Broadway," and was up to the high standard of these Publix offerings.

The Stanley had a good week with Thomas Meighan in "The Racket," this being an exceptionally good photoplay, and one that made a big hit with the fans here in Meighan's home town. The stage offering, Dailey Paskman's Radio Minstrels, was of average entertainment value.

Business at the Grand was average for the week, with Chester Conklin in "The Big Noise," this being a fairly amusing comedy, and on the stage was Ollie Thomas and his Saxophonist, a fair vaudeville offering.

The Regent was re-opened, after having been closed for the summer. Week stands with the bill changed each Saturday. "Tenderloin," with Vitaphone accompaniment, got but fair business.

The Alhambra, with "Under the Black Eagle," an average photoplay, did a fair business for the week.

John Gilbert, in "Truxton King," was the screen attraction at the Cameraphone, and business was average.

New Orleans

THE past week was one of the most outstanding of the summer season for New Orleans first run theatres. Other downtown theatres also report business as having shown a decided spurt over previous weeks.

Loew's State Theatre, which this past week inaugurated its new policy of bigger and better pictures and vaudeville, presented its first sound picture, "The Loves of An Actress," with Pola Negri and Nils Asther, and did the biggest business of the first run playhouses. All during the week huge crowds filled the house. "Loves of An Actress" proved to be a highly entertaining film and with the sound effects added made it all the more enjoyable. The picture was highly exploited and publicized by the Loew State publicity department. Five sterling acts of vaudeville were presented, but it was the picture that packed them in.

Running the Loew's State a close second for the first honors was its across the street neighbor, the new Saenger, which presented "Out of the Ruins." Patrons who viewed the film went away highly pleased. The Publix stage show was not up to average.

Both the Loew's State Theatre and the New Saenger Theatre featured the Al Smith acceptance speech via Movietone, and this, too, helped swell the attendance.

The Tudor Theatre was next in box office receipts, featuring the Vitaphone feature, "The Jazz Singer." The picture is in its third week and bids fair to break the record established a short time ago by "Glorious Betsy," the inaugural Vitaphone attraction. The picture continues to elicit excellent comments from the press and from those who saw it. Three acts of Vitaphone vaudeville are also presented featuring "The Ingenues," Ziegfeld stars; "The Monastery Quartette," noted singers, and a comedy playlet, "When the Wife's Away."

The Orpheum Theatre offered "None But the Brave," with Charles Morton and Sally Phipps, in addition to an all-girl vaudeville bill. The picture pulled in whatever business the University Place house did. The house is under new management, Vic Meyers at the helm.

Tampa

THE talkies and the sound pictures captured the gravy again the past week, though all the houses showed up real good for this time of the year. The Victory, which is the talkie house of Tampa, had "Warming Up" as the feature, accompanied by the "sound effects." The sound certainly puts a "kick" into the picture and it went over great. Business was pretty close to the previous week when the first 100 per cent talkie held the boards. On the same bill were four Vitaphone acts, the Movietone News and the acceptance speech of Herbert Hoover. The acceptance speech of Al Smith was also added to the bill the latter half of the week. Big week.

Business was good at the Tampa. "The Mysterious Lady" drew nicely the first half and "Forgotten Faces" kept them coming the last half. Satisfactory returns from both pictures.

The Strand opened big on Sunday. "The House of Scandal" was the feature, but the real draw was the local "Our Gang" comedy which has been in the making about two weeks and received several pages of publicity. The comedy was very disappointing. It lacked class, or anything, and as a drawing card its star set that first day. The week, however, went over good and the credit for the draw goes entirely to the featured pictures, which were "Just Married" and "A Ship Comes In."

The Franklin, with three good second runs, captured good returns. "The Three Musketeers," "The Dragnet" and "Telling the World" all clicked for the second time and receipts were a little above the average.

Not So Hot But Star Puts It Over

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

Translating a musical comedy to terms of celluloid is always a difficult job at best. It is difficult enough to take a story and whip it into terms of words and music—and when the result proves to be a hit (partly because of the music) it furnishes the screen sponsors with an especially hard job. They've gotten by pretty well in this instance, though to take it apart and see what makes the wheels go around one won't find much of a pattern. The idea is really trite and inconsequential. The plot is vapid. But it gives Colleen Moore another opportunity to make frolic—just like she used to before she went emotional in "Lilac Time."

The ingredients shaken up here have been part and parcel of musical comedies for three or four decades. So we have a quartette of caper cutters—the heiress who masquerades as scullery maid, the eligible youth, the other woman and the low comedian. It is Colleen, as the heiress, who escapes from an undesirable marriage. To do so she runs afoul of rum toters—with Ford Sterling as the poobah of the gang. Eventually she meets the youth who when he spies the fair scullery maid gives his sweetheart the air. The piece is spiced with creditable gags and a fairly good assortment of wise-cracks. It will do—because of the star and Sterling.

Drawing Power: Should go because of star's popularity. For any house.

Exploitation Angles: Feature title. Tie up with score of musical comedy. Feature star in role of heiress posing as scullery maid. Feature Ford Sterling.

THEME: Comedy-romance of heiress who escapes undesirable wedding by escaping parental roof and masquerading as scullery girl.

Produced and distributed by First National.

Length, six reels. Released, August, 1928.

Cast: Colleen Moore, Ford Sterling, Claude Gillingwater, Lawrence Gray, Johanne Johnston, Alan Hale. Director, Mervyn Leroy.

Sawdust Paradise

Has Its Moments—Fair to Middlin'

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A good idea might have been made more of in this picture—since it presents a conflict between the forces of the straight and narrow and those sponsored by old man Satan. In other words, the opportunity was missed for heavy emotional heights in stressing the sentiment and the hokum. The background consists of a carnival racket and an evangelist's efforts to bring a following to salvation—when that same following is more interested in the entertainment across the way. The idea gets started in first rate style but soon gets picturey.

It affords Esther Ralston with a colorful role as a carnivaleer (a gyp artiste) but she gets religion after a short stretch and shows the evangelist how to put over showmanship and bring the crowds. The idea is the pulpiteer registers extreme indignation to see his flock slipping away from him. But the girl soon has him on his feet. And wins salvation. She even is given custody of a cute baby and in the end succeeds in having a carnival friend reform so she can marry him.

The atmosphere is good, and there are some incidental bits which click in providing local color. The captions are first rate, too. But the sound effects are too harsh to ring as entirely genuine. It is a fair picture which could have been a whole lot better. Hobart Bosworth is good as the preacher.

Drawing Power: Title has possibilities. Suitable for average houses.

Exploitation Angles: Feature title and bill as drama of show business versus religion. Feature the principals of cast.

THEME: Drama of carnival girl who gets religion after arrest and goes the straight and narrow path.

Produced and distributed by Famous Players.

Length, six reels. Released, August, 1928.

Cast: Esther Ralston, Hobart Bosworth, Reed Howes, Tom McGuire, George French, Alan Roscoe, Mary Alden, J. W. Johnston. Director, Luther Reed.

"Big Game George"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THIS offering of the "Let George Do It" series, released by Universal, is quite on a par with previous pictures of this unit, which means fair entertainment. The film is funny in a slapstick way, and will surely score with followers of that style humor, especially so with the children.

The wealthy George (Sid Saylor) fancies himself a big game hunter and sets out with his father for the African wilds. Aboard ship, George in his white duck hunting outfit, dangles by rope over the heads of other passengers in order to wave goodbye to friends on the wharve. Fate plays a nasty trick on our friend for the ship departs, but leaves him swinging from a dredging derrick. The real fun of the film is evolved at this point, when George, to avoid capture by a cop, whom he offended, plays the part of a street cleaner, and becomes enmeshed in a tangle of embarrassing situations, that will draw forth the chuckles.

"The Supple Sex"

(Pathe Sportlight—One Reel)

MUCH credit must be given the producer of these Sportlight films, for the consistent high standard of entertainment maintained throughout this series This number shows the suppleness of the supposedly weaker sex, in the strenuous field of sports. A few of the millions of modern girls who have flocked to sports are shown, participating in every phase of body-building endeavor. Tennis stars, polo stars, saddle queens, oarswomen and diving belles, all have contributed to sport and gained in beauty. —GEORGE J. REDDY.

The Fleet's In

Fairly Entertaining But Slow Moving

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THIS latest vehicle for Clara Bow is entertaining in spots, but those spots are too far between. The story is rather slim and unconvincing, with some of the sequences entirely too long drawn out, particularly as they add little to the value of the picture. By the elimination of quite a bit of footage it could be speeded up to make a fairly snappy feature.

Miss Bow is Trixie Deane, one of several hostesses at the Roseland Dance Hall, where the arrival of the fleet is the occasion for the staging of great festivities and the work of the hostesses must be fast because the boys are given shore leave only until 1 A. M. In that short duration of time things happen rapidly. The somewhat hard-boiled Clara has her heart broken in record time by James Hall, as Eddie Bates, gob, though there seems little reason why she should ever have become implicated in the first place.

There is some very lively action here and there, with some exceptional shots showing the arrival of the fleet and some good sequences when the boys put in an appearance at the dance hall. Much footage is wasted when Eddie carries Trixie roofward to her apartment. It would have been more effective had Trixie lived about four floors lower.

The story works through several dance hall sequences without getting much of anywhere in particular, but a free-for-all fight brings a climax that holds the interest even though it is a bit too sentimental. Trixie professes to be a bad woman to save Eddie from a court sentence and a subsequent court martial.

Drawing Power: The popularity of the star and the type of story make it almost a foregone conclusion that it will be a good box-office draw. Exploitation Angles: The star and the good accompanying cast. The arival of the fleet and the manoevures aboard ship; the dance hall sequences.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, 6,918 feet. Released Sept. 15, 1928. Cast, Clara Bow, James Hall, Jack Oakie, Eddie Dunn, Jean Loverty. Directed by Mal St. Clair. Titles by George Marion, Jr.

"Husbands' Won't Tell"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

ALTHOUGH many opportunities for some real fun were muffed in the "shooting" of this Universal "Mike and Ike" number, the film may be marked up as good entertainment. The credit for the humor supplied, rests on the players and the director, whose hard work brighten a thin script. Most of the laughs occur during the big sequence of the picture, laid in the club rooms of a secret organization while an initiation is underway. It was here that the story writers missed out, for they did not half take advantage of the "initiation gag," which is always good meat for plenty of comedy. However, this offering contains enough of the rib-tickling elements to make it a welcome addition on any program.

Regional News from Correspondents

Central Penn

THE first showing of the Vitaphone in Carlisle took place in the Strand theatre on Monday, August 20, and it will be a regular feature from now on in this house which recently was taken over by the Comerford chain, of Scranton, from Robert A. Steele. "The Jazz Singer," with Al. Jolson, was the first feature with which the device was used. Movietone also has been installed and will very soon be put to regular use. Manager Glaser claims that Carlisle, which has a population of 15,000, is one of the first cities of its size to get "talkie" equipment.

The Majestic theatre, Harrisburg, owned by the Wilmer & Vincent Company, which has been closed since June, will be reopened on September 3 with a week's showing of "Wings," the spectacular wartime aviation picture starring Clara Bow. Arthur Ryan, business representative of the "Wings" Company, was in Harrisburg late in August, arranging for the production, and he also visited other Central Pennsylvania cities making plans for its showing. Following the appearance of "Wings" at the Majestic several legitimate road shows will be presented in the theatre until October when the Morgan Wallace Players will start a season of resident stock there. This company has been at the Majestic for the last two winters.

Damage amounting to several hundred dollars was caused when a boy threw a stone through the costly new silver motion picture screen being installed in the Strand Theatre, Sunbury, which is being rebuilt by the Comerford Amusement Company, who have operated the theatre for a number of years. J. M. Blanchard said the screen has been rendered practically useless. He has been unable to establish the identity of the boy who did the damage.

Manager Walter Yost, of the Paramount theatre, Mechanicsburg, arranged to have news reels made of the recent week's centennial celebration held in that borough, which he afterward exhibited in the theatre. The scenes included the baby parade, crowning of the centennial queen, historical and firemen's parades, school races and street decorations. At the first showing the theatre's attendance record was broken. The films were shown also at several school children's special matinees.

City officials and other prominent guests attended the formal reopening of the Capitol Theatre, Lebanon, on August 6, following elaborate improvements to the building, costing $50,000. At the head of the reception committee was William M. Hissner, president of the company which operates the house, and with him was Thomas Monahan, house manager. Buck Taylor was master of ceremonies and introduced the Mayor of the city who made a brief congratulatory address. The guests of honor were entertained at a dinner at the Lebanon Country Club, following the performance.

Part of the improvements just made at the Capitol included the installation of a new $25,000 Page pipe organ of unusual type of construction. The console is on an elevator which raises or lowers it from view when it is not in use. A feature of the program at the reopening of the theatre was an organ recital by Sam Lucas, an expert organist from the Middle West. Walter Wolfe is the regular Capitol organist.

The members of the Danville Rotary club and their ladies, totaling fifty-four, journeyed to Rolling Green Park, near Sunbury, where after a chicken and waffle dinner, on August 16, they attended the picture show in the opening air theatre in the park.

After having been closed for several weeks during which extensive improvements were made, the Arcadia theatre, Reading, formerly the Princess, has reopened and has announced a new policy. It is stated that only the highest class pictures will be shown and that hereafter programs will be changed on Saturdays instead of on Mondays. The theatre is controlled by the Equity corporation which will open its new Astor theatre in Reading in the coming Fall. The Astor will seat 3,000. The theatres are situated about a city block apart on opposite sides of Penn street.

An estate of $318,000 was left by Bransby C. Pentz, pioneer York theatre man, who was for many years proprietor of the York Opera House,—now the York Theatre,—and other theatres in that city. His death occurred early in August. The York Hospital was named as the principal legatee after the death of the widow, for whom a trust estate is provided. The bequest to the hospital will be for the erection of a building as a memorial to his father, the late Dr. Edward H. Pentz.

Manager Thomas Monahan, of the Capitol theatre, Lebanon, had been holding a series of Saturday afternoon lollypop matinees to boost juvenile attendance during the summer. Each child paying to attend these shows receives a lollypop as a bonus.

Manager Samuel Friedman, of the Capitol Theatre, Pottsville, a leading theatre of the Comerford chain, spent the latter part of August on a vacation motor trip through the Middle Atlantic states. He was accompanied by Mrs. Friedman and their son, Donald. Lloyd Hause, assistant manager, took full charge of the theatre in his absence.

In connection with the reopening of the Embassy theatre, Allentown, formerly the Pergola, under the new ownership of Alexander R. Boyd, announcement is made that the house will continue under the local management of D. Ellsworth Knorr, who has been actively identified with Allentown theatres for 21 years. Mr. Knorr owned the old Pergola when it opened in 1907 and remained in charge after the house was rebuilt two years ago. Mr. Boyd announced that the Embassy, which seats 1,100, will be continued as a first run theatre for William Fox and other productions. It has just been equipped with Vitaphone and Movietone appliances.

Many persons prominently identified with the film industry in Philadelphia attended the formal opening of the Embassy. A delegation of fifty motored from Philadelphia, including: Edgar Moss, general manager of the Fox Film Company; Roger Ferri, advertising representative of the Fox Film Company; Paul J. Henon, Jr., of the Hoffman-Henon Company; David Barrist, publisher of The Exhibitor; H. Bart McHugh, producer; Charles N. Christman, assistant director of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum; Jay Emanuel, owner of the New Forum Theatre, Philadelphia, and Louis N. Goldsmith, treasurer of the Hoffman-Henon Company, and a former official of the Stanley Company of America.

Lawrence H. Rupp, attorney of Allentown, was speaker in behalf of the city at the dedicatory exercises and extended a welcome to Mr. Boyd. There was an address also by Mr. Goldsmith. Following the addresses Paul Allender played an organ overture.

About September 1 is the time set for the reopening of the Hippodrome, Pottsville, which has been closed for improvements, including the installation of a Kimball pipe organ and the repainting and remodeling of the whole interior. The contractor is Clarence Messersmith.

San Francisco

J. PHILIP NATHAN, well known in San Francisco Little Theatre circles, has started his duties as president of Theatre Arts, Inc., having been elected to that office recently.

Nathan, with other newly elected officers of the organization was installed in office at a drama party and dance at the Alladin Studios. The other officers are: James McCormick, vice president; Patricia Salmon, secretary; and Glen Ellis, treasurer. Talma-Zetta Wilbur remains production director. Victor Faure, A. Stone Waldo, Mrs. Frederick W. Comba and Bernice Halbert were named to the board of directors of the drama group.

Henry Pincus, who recently returned from a trip to Mexico, is manager of the Casino Theatre and not the Cameo, as formerly stated.

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING MOTION PICTURE FILM

New York & New Jersey

THE general prevalence of sound pictures along the impressive list of Broadway palaces dedicated to the silent art can be readily appreciated when one glances at the marquees of the various houses strung along the Great White Way.

"Sound" is publicized prominently in the marquees and fluttering banners of the Rialto and Rivoli, the Astor and Strand. Vitaphone and Movietone are flaunted to catch the eye of the public before the Roxy and Paramount, and Gaiety and the Central. The fact that Warners is an all-talkie house is pointed out in the electric lights of the Warner Bros. theatre. The Globe, too, carries notices to the fact that it is entertaining with sound.

Soon to join this group will be the Winter Garden, which is advertising the advent shortly of Al Jolson's second Vitaphone picture. The Capitol, is about the only house along Broadway that is not going in for sound.

Apropos of Broadway cinemas, the Colony is showing signs of impending life, the marquee saying that "a big surprise is coming—watch for the opening." Here's hoping that this new effort to revive interest in the house will succeed. It is thought that the date of opening of the Colony will be somewhere about the middle of September.

Philanthropical work, of which little is heard but which is carried on quietly nevertheless, is indicated in an interesting news item this week to the effect that Harry Warner, president of Warner Bros., has equipped the auditorium of the Jewish Orphan Asylum, 137th Street and Amsterdam Ave., Manhattan. Mr. Warner has taken care of the cost of new chairs, machines, drapes and everything else that goes to make up an up-to-date and comfortable theatre. He is said to have donated $40,000 for this charitable purpose. The Warner executive is one of the principal supporters of the institution

J. V. Plenderleith, Denver Pathe cameraman, made a rather hazardous trip in an airplane over Pike's Peak last week in the interests of a thrilling news reel for theatre audiences. He circled the peak three times at an altitude of 15,500 feet and claims to have taken some scenes that are well worth while seeing. The temperature above the peak at the time was forty-five degrees above zero. He was in the air for fifty minutes.

By the end of September, Denver will be well equipped with theatres having devices for the exhibition of sound pictures. At the present time the Aladdin, America, Denver, Isis and Rialto Theatres are equipped and showing pictures of this kind, to the apparent complete satisfaction of the patrons. The Isis, however, is confining its exhibition to talking news reels only. The Webber, Ogden and Federal, Denver's largest suburban houses, are being equipped and will be ready for the exhibition of sound pictures late in September. However, it is doubtful if the first entertainment of this kind will take place until some time afterward, because of the delay in availablity of the sound pictures which they have under contract.

V. S. Hennen, who has been the owner and manager of the Midway Theatre, Burlington, Colorado, has sold a part interest in his theatre to Orin C. Milburn. A partnership was formed and it will be known as the Hennen & Milburn Theatre Company. E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa Theatre Owners Association, will travel through Iowa in the early fall visiting the exhibitors all over the state. He plans to include every town in his tour and to devote a length of time with each exhibitor in an effort to bring the exhibitors and the state organization in closer touch. This arrangement has been made by Mr. Smith in cooperation with the directors of the Iowa M. P. T. O. A.

The Iowa Theatre which opened within the last month at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is said by many critics to be a real monument of growth in theatre construction, and that it is one of the finest houses in the middle west. The house was built by Calvin Bard who has been with the Hostettler interests in Iowa and Nebraska for the past several years. Mr. Bard was originally from Kansas City. During the time that he travelled Iowa in the interests of Hostettler theatres, Mr. Bard conceived the idea of a theatre that he would like to build himself. And he selected Cedar Rapids as the point at which the very best in theatre opportunities was offered. One of the things that was especially emphasized in the construction of the theatre was comfort of the patron. Another is the quiet dignity of the design in contrast to the more elaborate theatres built recently. Beautifully upholstered red plush chairs were used in the entire main floor of 1,100 seats while on the mezzanine and balconies, which seat 750, these chairs were also used. The room for the ladies is given a new and attractive name, the Cosmetics Room.

The stage equipment is exceptionally fine with stage scenery and draperies controlled by a complete system of motor controls and riggings. The stage curtains and draperies were all expecially selected to lend luxury and beauty but with a dignity that is conservative in its direction. The proscenium arch and arrangement of the auditorium are especially well done.

The projection room equipment includes two late type Simplex, model M, projectors equipped with Peerelss reflector arcs and Ross projection lenses. Strong change over devices, a Brenkert combination of effect projector and a big array of spotlights make it possible to get every lighting effect and to make changes that are not unpleasantly abrupt. The installation is very complete with a duplicate installation of Hertner transvertors with all the equipment connected up through a specially built control panel board.

The exterior of the house is in the Italian Renaissance period. The huge electric sign is in the shape of an ear of corn as an emblem of Iowa, "where the tall corn grows."

Mr. Bard speaks most highly of the service of the engineering department of the National Theatre Supply Company in furnishing the equipment in such a way as to make the theatre construction most economical to the theatre man and its planning more easy.

Minneapolis

THE month of September will see the celebration by the Finkelstein and Ruben firm of its twentieth anniversary. The anniversary will be celebrated in 30 towns and over 100 theatres. Two special road shows will be routed around the circuit during the month and the booking department is planning to have the best shows available for the period. The first week will be Anniversary week, the second Jubilee week, the third Progress week, and the fourth Managers' Own week.

Theodore Hays is general chairman for the celebration with Ben Ferriss and G. Ralph Branton as assistants. E. A. Smith is in charge of the exploitation committee, Harry French of key cities and Ted Bolnick on stage attractions.

Maxey, who operates the Royal Theatre in Summerville, Ga.; Byron Cooper, who operates the Palace Theatre at Dawson, Ga., and Earl Fain, of the Grand Theatre at Lake City, Fla. and the Palace at Leesburg.

General business conditions in the Birmingham district show a slight improvement. When the vacation crowds return and the regular fall show season stars, with the Jefferson opening with road shows and stock, the Pantages (to be re-named the State) also opening with stock, and the Lyric re-opening it is confidently expected that show business will register a decided improvement.

W. C. Radebaugh, of the Radebaugh Pipe Organ Company, has just installed a new instrument in Paul Engler's Famous Theater, Birmingham.

The "Our Gang" comedy, made with Birmingham talent, was shown at Loew's Temple this week and elicited favorable comment.

Keith vaudeville was eliminted by Interstate at the Ritz this week. With "Street Angel" as the bright particular attraction and several Movietone acts, the program is "all on the screen."

Since the visit here last week of Robert J. O'Donnell, general representative for Interstate Amusements, rumors connecting the Loew and Interstate houses in a possible pool have been revived. While there is no word even remotely resembling a confirmation there is much talk, and some speculation as to what would happen to Keith vaudeville which has played here on Interstate time for the past twelve years.

Ray N. Howell, of the Scenic Theatre, Hartselle, Ala., is visiting relatives in South Alabama. Mr. Howell is accompanied by his wife.

Mack Jackson, the peppy exhibitor from Alexander City, pulled a corking bit of publicity in having the comedian-statesman-philosopher, Will Rogers, visit the Alexander City Kiwanis Club and give the picture show some free advertising by mentioning the fact that Mr. Jackson was about to play "The Texas Steer." Will commented on the picture by saying that he was "rotten in it, but that Louise Fazenda was fine." And having accomplished that Mr. Jackson departed with Mrs. Jackson and their children for a vacation at Camp Walton, Fla.

John W. Peek, of the First National and American theatres, Sylacauga, Ala., visited Birmingham the past week.

The new Florida Theatre at Gainesville is scheduled to open September 10. Newt Treece, popular manager, has been named active manager. Vitaphone is being installed.

The recent storm reports from Florida were greatly exagerated. Friends of Jacksonville citizens are writing in sympathizing with the Jaxons for storm damage, but Jacksonville only had a brisk breeze for a few days and a few good rains, although not sufficient to cause damage. Even in the lower sections of the state, where the storm really visited, the damage was much less than reported.

Sound pictures were added to the attractions of the Florida Theatre, Jacksonville's largest playhouse, Sunday, August 26.

District Manager Jess Clark, of Publix, left Jacksonville Tuesday night for a visit to Miami.

N. W. Remond, of Wauchula and Lake Wales, paid a visit to Jacksonville exchanges last week.

C. B. Ellis, manager FBO branch, who has been in Miami, has returned to Jacksonville.

Manager Charles Lester, of Universal exchange, spent several days in the Jacksonville office.

The Majestic Theatre, Shreveport, La., occupied the spotlight last Friday when a brilliant program ushered in sound pictures. Without any extravagant outlay of money for advance advertising the Majestic drew enormous business on the opening day and has continued to hold to a high level all week. Considering the limited capacity of the house—it seats only 932—the intake has been remarkable.

John E. Campbell, cameraman and manager of the West Shore theatre of Port Tampa City, closed his house for the summer and took a vacation. He is now in Huntington, Long Island, combining business with pleasure by putting over a local motion picture. "Having a great time and making a little profit as well," he writes.

The Patio, at St. Petersburg, has been closed for 30 days so that the house may be re-seated. This house originally opened as an air-dome theatre but a roof was added later and now the original chairs are being removed and real opera chairs installed.

The Rialto, which is the only house in Tampa giving stage productions, and which has been closed for some time now since dramatic stock failed there, was re-opened two weeks ago under a policy of vaudeville acts and numbers from musical shows, put on with the aid of a chorus of 16, has closed again as the public failed to respond to the new arrangement.

The Managers and the Operators of Tampa got together the past week and renewed their contract, which expires in September, for another year. The Union asked for an advance, but the managers presented some excellent evidence that a raise was not justified and many thought a reduction was in order, so a compromise was reached and the contract signed at the present scale.

Sale of the Cherokee Theatre, at the northeast corner of Bardstown Rd. and Bonnycastle Ave. by Alfred P. Knopf, vice president of the Tip Top Baking Company, to Mrs. R. L. Condon, 418 W. Oak St., for $75,000, was announced last Friday by Mr. Knopf. Mrs. Condon plans a store building on the site.

F. M. Holeman, Cameo Theatre, Madisonville, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Miles, Eminence Theatre, Eminence, Ky., were visitors at the local exchange last week.

The Kentucky Theatre, Lexington, Ky., is staging a Clara Bow week.

Lee L. Goldberg, of Big Feature Rights, also his wife and son, are spending their vacation in Atlantic City.

H. R. Long has been made manager of the new Loew-United Artists' Theatre. He was formerly in the East, and before joining this organization, he was general manager of the Schine circuit of theaters.

The theatre itself is a very beautiful place, having two lobbies. It seats about 3,500.

St. Louis

THE tenth anniversary season of the St. Louis Municipal Opera Association, which gave twelve weeks of light and grand operas in the Forest Park open air theatre ending on August 26 was in many respects the most disastrous in the history of the venture, and the first season that the association has operated at a loss. The exact amount of the deficit is uncertain until a complete audit is made of accounts. The first season the opera lost $11,000.

Unofficial reports are that 530,778 persons viewed the 1928 season shows, an increase of 2099 over the 1927 season, the previous best year. Total ticket sales was $360,579 or $2,848.75 above 1927.

This season the opera enjoyed but nine nights of clear and warm weather, and the fact that attendance and ticket sales increase despite these untoward conditions is considered little short of remarkable.

The expenses for the season totaled $390.000 including a $6,000 increase granted to the musicians at the last minute.

St. Louis Film stocks closed on the St. Louis Stock Exchange August 25 as follows: Skouras A. $41.50 bid and $43.50 asked. One year ago $37; St. Louis Amusement A, $25 bid and $30 asked. One year ago today, no quotation.

The entire front of the new Fox Theatre at Grand and Washington Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., will be completed early this week with the installation of the great central window which will front on Grand Boulevadd and rise almost the entire height of the theatre. The iron frame work for the window arrived in St. Louis from Minneapolis, Minn., on August 27. It will rise 42 feet and be 20 feet wide. Glass will be installed in the 39 frames as soon as the main frame has been put in place.

The Saenger Theatres, Inc. have awarded the general contract for the construction of a new theatre on the site of the Lyceum Theatre in Monroe, La. Frank Masling, 1310 South Grand Avenue, Monroe is the contractor. The building will cost upwards of $50,000.

Berenden Brothers of Bobalusa, La., through their architects, Lockett & Chachere, Balter Building, New Orleans, La., will take bids after September 1 on a new theatre to cost upwards of $75,000. The building will contain a main floor and balcony and cover a site 60 x 125 feet.

The house will be equipped for sound pictures. An organ to cost about $25,000 will be installed. There will be lounge and resting rooms, dressing rooms, etc.

Sam H. Blair of Belleville, Kas., has awarded the contract for the construction of his new theatre to Pearcy Brothers. The building will be one story with balcony, 50 x 100 feet and cost about $30,000.

The theatre in Ashland, Mo., recently damaged by fire is being rebuilt by the owners, Smith-Sloan Mercantile Company. John W. Case of Jefferson City, Mo., has been awarded the general contract at $18,000.

Work has started on a new theatre at Glenwood, Ark., to cost about $20,000. R. B. Sigmon of Hot Springs, Ark., is the owner.

Harry Hynes, formerly city salesman for Universal had assumed his new duties as manager for that company in St. Louis. He succeeds Leo Abrams, who has moved over to Kansas City, Mo., to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Harry Taylor to district manager in charge of St. Louis, Kansas, Omaha, Des Moines, Sioux City and Minneapolis, Minn.

Hynes prior to joining Universal as its St. Louis city salesman was manager of the St. Louis Film Exchange.

Frank Fay, master of ceremonies at Skouras Brothers Missouri Theatre, and Miss Barbara Stanwick, star of "Burlesque," a Broadway success, were married at 2 p.m. Sunday, August 26. Spyros P. Skouras, president of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, was best man.

Bob Murphy has been retained indefinitely to act as master of ceremonies at the St. Louis Theatre, Grand and Delmar Boulevards which features Orpheum Circuit vaudeville. The St. Louis will continue to show feature pictures and short subjects in conjunction with the vaudeville bill.

All girls with red hair and women so crowned are being admitted to the St. Louis Theatre without cost at a special matinee to be given on the afternoon of Wednesday, August 29. The occasion is the appearance on the theatre's bill of "The Fourteen Brick Tops," a company of titian haired singers, dancers and musicians. Everett Hayes, manager, has announced all females of rubric temperament will be passed through the doors until 6 p. m. as the guests of Bob Murphy, master of ceremonies.

Chicago

BALABAN & KATZ will open the reconstructed Woodlawn Theatre on 63rd & Maryland, Sunday, September 2nd. The house will be operated as a popular price theatre and pictures will be changed twice weekly.

Texas Guinan, famous New York night club hostess, stopped over in Chicago for a day, en route to Hollywood.

The Majestic Theatre, Milwaukee, formerly operated by the Orpheum Circuit, which has been closed for sometime, has been completely redecorated and will open up shortly as a straight motion picture theatre. "Redskin" Exteriors

All exterior scenes in "Redskin," Paramount, will be made in natural color. The DeChilly Canyon in Arizona's Navajo country will provide the background for the color sequences.

About six reels will be made with panchromatic film, and two reels of interiors in black and white. The unit left for location early this week.

Conrad Nagel and June Collyer

Conrad Nagel has been signed by Fox to play the lead with June Collyer in "A Slice of Life," which Ray Cannon wrote and will direct. Sharon Lynn also will have an important part in this production.

"Divoree Bound" Postponed

"Divorce Bound," scheduled to begin with the return of Florence Vidor to the Paramount studio, has been postponed to give the right of way in production to "Unconquered," in which Richard Dix and Miss Vidor will be seen together.

Pathe Borrows Seenarist

Associate Producer Paul Bern of Pathe has borrowed F. Hugh Herbert from Paramount to write the original story and continuity of "Noisy Neighbors."

"Interference" in Produetion

The cast of "Interference," in production, last week reported for work at the new sound stages for the first time. Dialogue from the Roland Pertwee play will be used in several seqnences.

"The Street Fair"

Janet Gaynor will have Charles Morton as her leading man in "The Street Fair," her newest Fox picture which will be put into production immediately at the company's west coast studios under the direction of William K. Howard.

Signs Paramount Contract

Lester Cohen, author, has renewed his writing contract with Paramount. He is now at work on an original.

Hunt Signs Contract

J. Roy Hunt, Paramount cameraman, has been added to the company's contract list. Hunt has turned the crank on most of Bebe Daniels pictures for the past few years.

"Tong War"

William Wellman has been assigned to direct "The Tong War," a melodrama of Chinatown in which Wallace Beery is to play the white leader of the tongs. It will go into production late in September. The story is an original by Samuel Ornitz.

Nigh Signs New Contract

William Nigh has signed a new long-term contract with M-G-M. His next assignment is "Thirst."

Fitzmaurice Congratulated

George Fitzmaurice has received many wires and letters of congratulations over his splendid direction from leading exeentives and exhibitors who have seen "Lilac Time."

A Second Printing Was Necessary!

TO supply the orders of Exhibitors, Theatre Executives and Theatre Workers for the most comprehensive and authoritative work written on the subject, the publishers, George H. Doran Company, New York, has made a second printing of—

MOTION PICTURE THEATRE MANAGEMENT

By Harold B. Franklin

(President of West Coast Theatres, Inc., and leading theatre executive)

you too may obtain a copy of this monumental work dealing with every branch of the theatre and offering a carefully considered presentation of the theories and practices, tested by years of experience, making for the successful and profitable business method of running a motion picture theatre.

The author, Harold B. Franklin, is known throughout the industry as one of the most progressive and able theatre executives and showmen the picture theatre has developed, and one of the leading forces contributing to the advance which the motion picture playhouse has made from its "nickelodeon" beginning to the palatial community institution which the better theatre of today represents.

DON'T DELAY

The present supply of copies is by no means large enough to supply all those who eventually will want copies of this book, so prompt action is imperative if you want to be assured of a copy.

THE PRICE IS $5.

35 Chapters and 26 Illustrations* Tell You How—

To train and maintain an organization that will function smoothly in the running of your theatre.

To provide adequate safety methods.

To carry on systematic inspections.

To prepare a properly balanced budget.

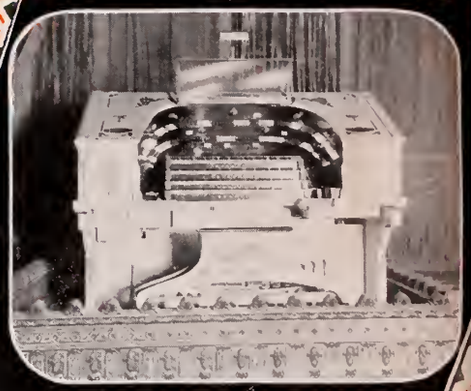
Robert Morton UNIT Organ



An Indispensable music attraction!

Robert Morton sales for the second quarter of the year 1928, have exceeded any previous similar period, thereby establishing a new high record.

Robert Morton UNIT Organ has arrived at its present position of leadership as a direct result of its unapproached Box Office Value.

Radically different from all other organs, it is an indispensable attraction in the successful operation of the modern motion picture theatre. As a permanent, outstanding and unrivaled music feature, it is the choice of an increasing majority of progressive and farsighted showmen and exhibitors everywhere—

We're g
salesmen

Father loved his home, his wife, children, his pipe and his fireside His club was the only thing that took him out nights until—

A blonde Sheba crossed his path, a poor "misunderstood" damsel of modern mood. Father fell, and fell so hard that—

From
The Film Spectator
August 18, 1928

"D. W. has given us what I think is the BEST PICTURE HE HAS EVER MADE. So superbly has Griffith directed it that it is a notable example of screen art. Its appeal will be general. Women, particularly, will find it engrossing. Human and entertaining. United Artists is turning out some of the best pictures that we are getting."

Whether you play with sound or as sile
buy, picture for pictur

ing to put these to work for you

Daughter, father's little pal, got real mad and went a gunning—Blonde dears were her objective and the season was wide open.

And so "The Battle Forever Being Fought But Never Won" goes on and on. Man against woman—male vs. female.

5,500,000 silent salesmen for you, your box-office and YOUR PROFIT.

5,500,000 workers going all over the country telling folks of "The Battle of the Sexes"—what a fine picture it is,—what a treat they have in store for them when it comes to your city.

This means that at least 15,000,000 prospective ticket buyers will have placed before them in strong, forceful and a very colorful manner the message that when this picture is advertised in their city — They MUST see it if they want a perfect evening of entertainment.

Film Daily Says

"Get this or miss a wow!"

"Something for every intelligent exhibitor to give thanks about. Irene Rich gives one of most satisfactory and striking characterizations of the year. It's something to remember. Leaves you sitting wishing there was some more.—When a film can make a hard boiled critic feel that way, it's got something, brother. Get this yarn of the selfish woman left alone, or miss a wow"

Photoplay Says

"The best picture of the month"

"William de Mille gives a brilliant picturization of a Broadway success. The director has surpassed himself in his unique power to portray the intrinsic drama of the ordinary human frailties. Irene Rich has a rare opportunity to show her gift for intimate characterization. Warner Baxter plays with marvelous sympathy and restraint. Drama of the highest order."

The Week's Highlights

Comment on Important Trade Topics

By William A. Johnston

WE take off our hats to Columbia . . . . Here's a company which knows how to make box office pictures without spending a lot of money unnecessarily . . . . . Currently, they are showing a smash hit at the Embassy, New York. . . .By name, "Submarine". . .Novel. . .finely produced, . . . headed straight for box-office success. . .sure to click. . .We have remarked before that fine pictures are big news events. . .About the most important news we know of, in fact. . . . .For the exhibitor. . .That's why we place our comment on "Submarine" first in this chronicle. . . .

* * * *

The production forces are still in turmoil over sound. . . . But there are indications of a settling down to the big job at hand. . . . Indication, too, that some good minds are at work on evolving a technique of the talkie. . . .For instance, there is Sam Taylor, who has come along recently as a first-class dramatic director, after marked success in comedy with Harold Lloyd. . .Taylor is to direct Mary Pickford in her first talking picture, "Coquette", based on the stage play. . . .The mere announcement that Mary has gone over to the talkies is itself extremely interesting. . . .Of course, she had stage experience even before she became a premier screen star. . .And in her tests recorded by Roy Pomeroy at Hollywood under Taylor's direction, she revealed an extraordinary voice for the talkies. . . .So much so, in fact, that it is reported stars and executives of other companies have been told to look to the Pickford test as a model. . . .Now, Taylor, who is in New York this week studying "Coquette" as given on the stage, has very definite and advanced ideas on the subject of talkie technique. . . .He has no use for the practice of making a silent picture and than "putting sound into it". . . .The talkie technique, he says, is just as individual a thing as the silent picture itself. . . .Therefore, he will not try to combine the two in "Coquette". . .On the contrary, he intends making two pictures. . .One will be "Coquette", the talkie, made distinctly and separately with a new technique which he has evolved. . .When this is completed, he will then make the silent version of "Coquette", just as if no talkie version had been made at all. . .The two, according to Taylor, do not mix. . . .Miss Pickford is very enthusiastic over her approaching work before the microphone. . .The first great star of the "silents" becomes fifteen years later, a star of an utterly new medium—the talkie. . . .That, in itself, will be a tremendously effective sales angle and point of interest to the thousands of Pickford followers. . . .Mr. Taylor, it seems to us is proceeding along the right lines. . . .

* * * *

From Hollywood we hear unusual reports about the Fox all-Movietone picture, "Mother Knows Best". Several experts who have seen it there claim that it will prove to be a sensation greater than anything the industry has ever known. The voice registration is said to be absolutely perfect mechanically. . . . Ordinarily, we do not attach too great importance to extraordinary claims made before the actual public showing of a film. . . But, in this instance, the advance word appears to be particularly well founded and we pass it along to the industry as a whole.

Chicago Houses Without Music

Exhibitors Association and Union Fail to Agree Following Conferences; Settlements Made Elsewhere

THOUGH Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, and William Canavan, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees both report labor conditions comparatively quiet, there are still serious upheavals at some points, with matters being straightened out in other cities. The most serious situation exists in Chicago, where a strike of musicians was called the first of the week.

Promptly upon the expiration of their 1927-1928 agreement between Class Six Motion Picture Theatres and Union Musicians on Labor Day, the musicians walked out and more than two hundred and fifty Chicago neighborhood houses are in operation without music this week. Conferences between President Jack Miller of the Exhibitors Association of Chicago and President James Petrillo of the Chicago Theatre Owners are on, and musicians are standing pat. The former determined not to yield and the latter expressing their determination to stay out until their demands are agreed to. In the meantime talk of stage hands and operators joining forces with the musicians to close the theatres has not materialized and the houses are operating and drawing well despite lack of instrumentation.

At a mass meeting Tuesday, held at the Stevens Hotel, the exhibitors turned out in unprecedented numbers and declared themselves unanimously behind the officers of their association in refusing to accede to the demands of their music makers. Previous to the walkout Federal Judge Wilkerson had issued temporary injunctions restraining the officials and members of the Chicago Federation of Musicians from ordering or participating in a strike, involving approximately thirty of the largest de luxe houses whose contract with the union has another year to run. Judge Wilkerson also issued a temporary injunction restraining the musicians union from forcing upon class six theatres an orchestra with a minimum of four men, excluding organists. The injunctions were issued on petition of Attorney Joseph P. Fleming, representing Balaban and Katz, Lubliner and Trinz, Aseher Brothers and the National Playhouses, Inc. Mr. Fleming pointing out that the National Chain and Ascher Brothers are in the hands of a receiver and could not agree to any of the union's demands without an order of the court.

The theatre men's controversy with the musicians involves no question of wages, open shop or working conditions, the determination of a theatre man to fight being aroused by union demands that a great many of the smaller theatres employ four musicians, exclusive of organist, for a period ranging from thirty-five to forty-four weeks, many of these houses not having musicians at present and many more not requiring any. The union further demands that theatres where Vitaphone, Movietone or other musical or mechanical devices are employed shall employ a minimum of six musicians. These demands if acceded to would make it impossible for the theatres to install Vitaphones or other musical devices as it would entail too great a financial burden, it is generally claimed.

The early part of the week a good percentage of the organists in houses where organists only were employed, were appearing at theatres as usual. B. M. Marsman, commissioner of conciliation for the Department of Labor in Chicago, has stepped into the situation, offering to try and arrange a further conference between Messrs. Miller and Petrillo and other officers of the parties in controversy. Mr. Miller expressed himself as being willing to meet at any time and Mr. Petrillo expressing himself as willing to do anything within reason.

Other demands made by the union which are regarded as particularly hard upon the theatre owner and impossible of acceptance, are the elimination of a two weeks' notice and substituting same with a four weeks' notice; musicians who are dispensed with in the season to be paid two dollars per day back salary for every day they worked, and that theatres where organist or organists only were employed during the season 1927-1928, which installs a Vitaphone or other mechanical device, shall be required to retain the organist or organists during the time the mechanical device is in operation.

So far as can be ascertained the audiences of the various theatres involved in the strike are in sympathy with the theatre owners in their stand. Practically no adverse comment on lack of music is being heard in the lobbies and no falling off in business is being observed.

Warner Stock Takes Big Jump

Wall St. Hears Rumors of Alleged Deal with Stanley - First National; Emphatic Denials Issued

DESPITE emphatic denials, reports continued to be widely current this week of a deal by which Warner Brothers are said to be negotiating for control of First National and Stanley.

There was great activity in Warner stock on the New York Stock Exchange and a rise was also recorded in Stanley issues. The opinion in Wall Street seemed to be that the deal was progressing, and this appeared to be the basis for the sensational advance in Warners, which had gone to 127 for "A" and 121½ for Warner Bros. Pictures, on Wednesday.

Jack L. Warner made a statement on the Coast last week that the negotiations had been under way for several weeks and were about to be closed. This was promptly denied by Irving D. Rossheim, head of First National and Stanley.

According to the reports in New York, a meeting was held in connection with the deal on Monday. Waddill Catchings, of Goldman, Sachs & Co., is on the board of directors of both the Stanley and Warner companies.

Sound Effects Due in "Haunted House"

"THE HAUNTED HOUSE," First National's mystery melodrama, is to be synchronized with sound effects. Production has just been completed on the Coast, and sound was decided upon by the company executives because of the glowing reports regarding the silent version from the Coast.

Prior to the circulation of reports about the alleged deal, the rise in Warner stock had been attributed chiefly to the excellent position of the company in the talking picture field; and this factor no doubt has definitely played a big part in the stock movement.

It is the general understanding that Stanley has the control of First National as to the majority of stock, but in some quarters it is pointed out that it would be necessary to acquire the stock of several franchise holders before control could pass, as the stock was plaeed in escrow at the time the franehise holders got together to preserve the identity of First National.

Efforts to reach Harry M. Warner for a statement on Thursday failed. An emphatic denial was issued at Hollywood by Al Rockett, of First National.

"The report that any merger between First National Pietures and Warner Brothers is contemplated is absolutely untrue. It is too ridiculous to merit comment," is the wire posted at First National Burbank studios signed by an official of the company in New York.

Mr. Rockett stated: "It is just another rumor. No such merger has been considered by First National Pictures. With the finest and most modern plant in the world for making pictures we are now in the midst of our biggest year's program.

"We will make more than 65 program length pictures this year. Four companies are now at work and six more are preparing to start. Of these 65 pictures at least 31 will be sound or dialogue pictures."

Reported Skirboll to Be Sales Manager of World Wide Pictures

A REPORT which could not be confirmed, but which appeared to be well-founded, was in circulation this week to the effect that J. D. Williams's choice for General Sales Manager of World Wide Pictures would be Joseph S. Skirboll, one of the leading figures in the distribution field.

Skirboll is now Western Sales Representative for the Vitaphone corporation, with headquarters in San Francisco. Previously he was associated with First National, first as district manager in the Pittsburgh territory and later as foreign representative in Europe. Skirboll joined the Vitaphone Corporation about a year ago.

Completes 10 Pictures

Tiffany-Stahl Announces One Third of 1928-29 Schedule Ready for Release

NEARLY one-third, or ten productions out of thirty-four on the 1928-29 release schedule have been completed, according to an announcement by Tiffany-Stahl.

The completed pictures include "The Naughty Duchess," based on an Anthony Hope story, with Eve Southern, H. B. Warner and Gertrude Astor and directed by Tom Terriss; "The Power of Silence," an original written for Belle Bennett and directed by Wallace Worsley; "The Floating College," a collegiate story of the high seas, with Sally O'Neill, Buster Collier and Georgia Hale, directed by George Crone; "The Ghetto," and "George Washington Cohen," George Jessel's two latest with Norman Taurog directing the first and George Archainbaud, the latter. Margaret Quimby and Gwen Lee are included in the cast of "The Ghetto," while "George Washington Cohen" will also have Robert Edeson, Corliss Palmer and Florence Allen.

Ricardo Cortez will be presented in "The Gun Runner," an Arthur Stringer story, directed by Edgar Lewis, with a supporting cast consisting of Nora Lane, John St. Polis, Gino Corrado and Duncan Rinaldo; "The Toilers," already released and scheduled as the first release of the 1928-29 season, has been followed by "The Rainbow," with Dorothy Sebastian, Lawrence Gray, Harvey Clark, Paul Hurst, Kate Price and others; "Tomorrow," John Stahl's first special for the company, with Patsy Ruth Miller, Lawrence Gray, Robert Edeson, Shirley Palmer and Ralph Emerson, and "The Cavalier," a special Irvin Willat production with Richard Talmadge, Barbara Bedford and David Torrence, synchronized.

Canadian Society Boasts 70 Independents

Bud Lennon, purchasing agent for the Exhibitors Co-Operative, Limited, Toronto, has announced that the society has obtained 70 exhibitor members during its first four weeks of operations, these being the proprietors of independent theatres in Ontario cities. The majority are in Toronto, but the movement has quickly spread to London, St. Catherines and other centers. Activities of the association are confined to the Province of Ontario but it is expected that similar co-operatve companies will be established in other Canadian Provinces.

Mr. Lennon intimated that film buying would be done on the open market for groups of members. The head office of the society has been established in the Hermant Building, 21 Wilton Square, Toronto.

Only 1 Firm Incorporates At Albany During Week

Only one company incorporated in the motion picture business in New York state at Albany during the past week. This was the National Talking Movies Corporation. The amount of capitalization was not specified, and the directors named for the first year included Leo Guzik, Irving Saltzman, of Brooklyn, and Louis Zimmerman, of the Bronx.

Loew Takes Over Capitol in Atlanta, Ga.

The Loew banner was transferred to the Capitol in Atlanta, Ga., on Labor Day, after many weeks of negotiation. The actual deal by the terms of which the Capitol becomes a part of the Loew chain was consummated on the previous Wednesday. Manager Thomas H. James, of Loew's Grand, will transfer his headquarters to the Capitol and has already taken over the managerial reins. He will supervise the destinies of both the Capitol and the Grand. Harold Evans, of the managerial staff of the Grand, will be in charge of that house.

Under the Loew policy, the Capitol will continue the vaudeville and pictures combination policy. The Capitol is soon to enter the ranks of the talking picture houses, while the Western Electric system has already been installed at the Grand.

James A. Carrier, former manager of the Capitol, is planning an enterprise of his own.

Universal Releasing 8 Features in September

This week Universal started off its new season's release program with the issuing of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which is being offered both with and without sound. Seven other features have also been set for release during the present month.

Simultaneous with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Laura La Plante in "Home James" was released. The second week of September will mark the release of "Anybody Here Seen Kelly?," co-starring Tom Moore and Bessie Love. "The Night Bird," featuring Reginald Denny, will also be released about this time.

On September 16, "Guardians of the Wild," a Rex vehicle with Jack Perrin and Ethlyne Clair, will be issued. "The Foreign Legion," with Louis Stone and Norman Kerry co-starred, will be released on September 23. The final days of the month will see the release of "Grip of the Yukon," starring Neil Hamilton, and "The Cloud Dodger," with Al Wilson.

7 Shorts on September 9 Program of Pathe

There are seven short subjects making up the Pathe program for September 9. In this group are: "Caught in the Kitchen," the first of Mack Sennett's "Tired Business Man" series starring Billy Bevan; "Alaska or Bust," a new Aesop film cartoon; Topics of the Day No. 37; "The House of Peril," sixth chapter of the serial, "The Terrible People"; Pathe Review No. 37 and Pathe News Nos. 76 and 77.

The Review issue contains: "The Ambitious Radish," scenes of how a night club girl spends her day, "A Green Isle of Faith" and "Mr. Beebe Goes a-Fishing."

"Gang" Engagement Called Child Labor Law Violation

The engagement of "Our Gang" by Manager George Dumond of the State Theatre in Cleveland for a comedy appearance has been branded a violation of the state child labor law. Lauretta Bean of the State Industrial Commission this week swore out an affidavit charging Dumond with a violation of the law.

Coogan and Dad at Paramount

Jackie Coogan, in person, will be the feature stage attraction at the Paramount Theatre for the week beginning September 7th. The youthful star will appear with his father in a song and dance routine styled "Introducing His Dad." The turn will also include a resume of Jackie's various screen hits.

Exhibitors Unhampered Pending Decision

CHARGES against no less than 21 exhibitors of Montreal have been set aside by writs of prohibition from Mr. Justice Weir in the Superior Court for alleged violations under the new Motion Picture Act of Quebec, which prohibited the admission of all children under 16 years of age from moving picture theatres. There were 28 charges all told against the Montreal theatre managers, but prosecution has been thrown out because of the writs, pending the final decision of the Privy Council in London, England, on the constitutionality of the Quebec law. This decision will not be forthcoming for two years, it is stated, and the exhibitors, in the meantime, are entitled to admit minors and are immune from prosecution.

The writs of prohibition setting aside the police court actions have been issued by Justice Weir in routine order without argument. One result of the legal development has also been that parents and their families have flocked to the moving picture theatres once more without restriction and business has taken a sudden upward trend.

Vogel Sails for Europe in Interest of Pathe

William Vogel, vice-president and general manager of Producers International Corporation, soon to be merged with the Pathe Export Department into the Pathe International Corporation, sailed for Europe on the Berengaria this week on a trip of several months that will take him throughout the continent in the interests of Pathe.

In Paris, he will meet Joseph P. Kennedy, business advisor of Pathe, and J. J. Murdock, president of the company. His itinerary includes Berlin, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Prague, Brussels, Madrid, Rome, Milan and London.

Columbus Selected for Ohio M. P. T. O. Meet

The Board of Trustees of the Motion Picture Owners of Ohio, at their meeting in Columbus, Ohio, on August 29, chose Columbus as the place for the Eighth Annual Convention of the organization, which is to be held on November 20 and 21.

The committee appointed to handle all details in connection with the affair comprises J. J. Harwood, Lexington Theatre, Cleveland; J. A. Aekerman, Glenway Theatre, Cincinnati; together with President James and Business Manager Wood.

Three New Christies Set for Septembr Release

The Paramount exchanges will release three new Christie comedies during the present month.

The first of the new comedy series, "Confessions of a Chorus Girl," entitled "Skating Home," is included in the trio. Frances Lee heads the cast and Sid Smith and Billy Engle are featured.

Bobby Vernon in "The Stock Exchange," with Eddie Baker and Nancy Dover, and "Oriental Hugs," starring Billy Dooley, are the other two Christies.

Reported Fox Expansion Move in New York

Combine Would Add 100 Theatres to Circuit; Stanley Chain Deal Appears to Be Off

A THEATRE expansion plan in New York City is reported to have been launched by William Fox whereby the latter, if the deal ever goes through, will add to his already extensive holdings or gain control over a matter of 100 motion picture theatres in various neighborhoods of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx. A large number of the houses reported to be in the deal are those which have been mentioned as part of the Aaron Sapiro combine. Where sales of theatres are reported to have been made it is said that in many instances houses have been bought outright; in others, a controlling interest secured. Two-thirds or more of the Sapiro organization voting power and an exceptionally strong foothold in what is considered the best paying territory in the country would be secured by Fox if the deal should go through.

What is thought to be a definite breaking off of the reported negotiations by Fox for the purchase of Stanley theatres is the announcement that the Fox interests will launch in Philadelphia a huge construction program representing expenditures of approximately $50,000,000.

The persistent rumor that William Fox would erect a large new theatre at the corner of Seventeenth and Market streets, Philadelphia was apparently confirmed by the issuing of a permit by the Bureau of Building Inspection for the demolition of buildings now standing on this site. According to a statement in the Philadelphia Inquirer, the proposed new theatre will be the largest in Philadelphia, representing a total expenditure of $16,000,000, with a seating capacity of 5,500 and the largest motion picture house orchestra in the world, consisting of approximately 125 musicians. There will also be a staff of more than 600 employees. It is stated that the theatre at 17th and Market streets will be the first of a chain of six or more theatres to be built at important locations in this city, all of which will be constructed and opened to the public within a year.

Eberson at Convention

Well Known Architect Will Address Toronto Gathering of M. P. T. O. A.

PURSUING the announced policy of having experts along all lines address the delegates at the National Convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America at Toronto, Canada, October 16th, 17th and 18th, the Committee announces the appearance of John Eberson, one of the best known theatre architects in the world who will address the Convention.

How to build a new theatre and how to remodel an old one so that it will make money is of vital importance to Theatre Owners.

After being firmly convinced that a community to be served properly and successfully must have a new theatre, the next step is the careful selection of its location. After that and perhaps of supreme importance is the creative ability of the architect. If it is not built right then the business will not be right.

Mr. Eberson is well versed to speak upon this subject from the standpoint of the box office. He will give a fine word illustration of the different types of theatres and of many new ideas along theatre-building progress. He will tell of many instances of how the building of beautiful and ornate theatres have really proved money getters through the comfort enjoyed by the patrons.

Those attending the Convention will be saved twenty-five per cent on railroad fare.

Arrangements have been made with all of the trunk line associations for fare and one half fare to and from Toronto. This includes all parts of the United States and Canada and is a special concession on the part of the railroads. This will save theatre owners thousands of dollars in railroad fare.

Arrangements for the Convention are progressing rapidly and the sessions will be well attended with practically every American State represented while the Canadian delegation will embrace all parts of the Dominion.

"Uncle Tom" Gets Clean Bill in Dallas

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN," Universal's feature which is booked for showing at the Capitol theatre, Dallas, received a clean bill from the local censors, although the Confederate Veterans condemned the film whole heartedly at their meeting. The Daughters of the Confederacy also protested against the showing of the film in Dallas. Southern Patriotic Societies were successful in barring the film in Atlanta and New Orleans.

Schrader Opens Gotham Branch in Indianapolis

R. S. Schrader, Mid-west division manager for Pathe for some time, has opened a Gotham exchange in Indianapolis. He will also be active in the sales promotion work of other middle west exchanges distributing the Gotham product.

Schenck Signs Reinhardt to Produce Lillian Gish Picture

NEGOTIATIONS have been concluded between Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, and Max Reinhardt, the prominent European stage producer, whereby the latter will produce and direct a picture in which Lillian Gish will be starred. Morris Gest, who brought Mr. Schenck and Mr. Reinhardt together, will assist on the film. Hugo von Hofmannstahl, Vienese playwright, has written an original scenario.

This will be Miss Gish's first picture for United Artists and it will be Reinhardt's first effort on a motion picture. Sound effects will be employed by the use of the Western Electric system. It has not been decided as to whether talking sequences will be inserted.

Sees Prosperous Season

Irving Rossheim Predicts Big Increase Through Public's Response to Sound Pictures

IN a recent interview, Irving D. Rossheim, president of First National and the Stanley Company of America, looks for a most prosperous coming season for the motion picture industry and sees the advent of the sound picture as a tremendous stimulation to theatre attendance. Mr. Rossheim is of the opinion that the entire country will respond enthusiastically to the new process film, this having already been demonstrated in Philadelphia. The company has extensive plans under way to take care of the expected increase in theatre patronage.

After a study of reports as to the condition of various Stanley theatres, Mr. Rossheim said: "I am sanguine that this will be the greatest season ever experieneed. One of the most important factors, of course, in the great interest in the theatre will be the talking picture. Crowds are flocking to every theatre in which pictures of the sound synchronized type are shown. There was never such interest in any picture offered at the Stanley Theatre as was demonstrated in the case of "Lights of New York," of recent showing. It was simply impossible to accommodate all who sought admission and it was necessary to continue the engagement at some other house. The picture was taken to the Aldine and there was a repetition of the public's overwhelming desire to see the first 100 per cent talking picture. Unquestionably there will be a constant curiosity throughout the season to see these new creations of the motion picture makers. Results thus far obtained are in indication of genuine success and I am sure there will be a rapid improvement in the new technique that will be demanded through this new coupling of sound and sight. Many Stanley theatres will be equipped with the apparatus necessary for the showing of these pictures with their accompanying speaking and other sound detail. All along the line there is that show of progressiveness to give to each new picture a wide appeal and a real popularity.

"In keeping with the progress that the film makers are demonstrating is the plan of the Stanley Company to care for the constantly growing number of theatre patrons. One of the finest theatres in the United States—the Mastbaum—at Twentieth and Market Sts., Philadelphia, is rapidly nearing completion. It will be devoted to the finest pictures and to stage presentations. Every possible device for the perfection of the house's function as a place of entertainment will be installed and there will be the utmost comfort for patrons. The theatre will unquestionably be the most attractive of its kind. There will be seating accommodations for 5,000 persons. Other houses are coming along.

Educational Sub-exchange Opened at Portland, Ore.

Educational has opened a sub-exchange at Portland, Oregon, to serve as an additional shipping center for the convenience of Oregon exhibitors. Sales activities will be confined to the Seattle office, in charge of B. W. Rueker. The new shipping plant, located at 124 North Twelfth Street, will, it is thought, be a time saver and will also lessen express charges because of its location in the Oregon area.

M-G-M Acquires Rights to "The Song Writer"

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has acquired motion picture rights to "The Song Writer," the play by Crane Wilbur which is now at the 48th Street Theatre, New York City.

While no announcement as to production plans has been made it is expected that the play will find a place on M-G-M's talking picture list for the coming season.

Territorial Rights Sold for "Fortune's Fool"

Louis T. Rogers has ended a deal with First Division Pictures, Inc., for the territorial rights to his Emil Jannings vehicle, "Fortune's Fool." The territory is the Greater New York and Northern New Jersey distriets.

Territories of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia have been sold by Mr. Rogers to Liberty Film Corporation for their Philadelphia and Baltimore exchanges.

First National Schedules New Production Cycle

Six new productions are scheduled to get under way at the studios of First National at Burbank during the current month. A seventh, far along in preparation, may be started also before the end of the month.

Colleen Moore is to begin work on "Synthetic Sin" around the middle of September. "Changeling," the next George Fitzmaurice production, is to start this week. On September 15, Billie Dove is scheduled to begin initial scenes for "The Thirtieth Day of October," the tentative title of her next vehicle. Richard Barthelmess has already started on "Scarlet Seas."

Alice White's second starring film, "Ritzy Rosie," is to get under way next week, while Ken Maynard, who has completed "Cheyenne," is all set to begin "The Lawless Legion" on September 10.

The seventh picture in preparation is "Comedy of Life," by Leo Birinski and Joseph Laszlo, who are doing the continuity. Alexander Korda is to direct, the starting date being indefinite.

Production Progresses on 3 Films at Pathe Studio

Production has set a rapid pace at the Pathe studios on the Coast.

Ralph Bloch has placed "The Spieler" in production, Tay Garnett directing. Paul Bern is soon to launch "Geraldine," which Paul Stein will direct, and "The Shady Lady," to star Phyllis Haver. "The Office Scandal," originally announced as Miss Haver's next, will follow it because of a change in plans.

"The Cop" and "The Godless Girl," Pathe pictures, recently had their premieres in Los Angeles. Editing "Annapolis" has been completed and the print has been shipped east. Other pictures on which editing work is now progressing are "Show Folks," "Sal of Singapore," "Marked Money" and "Ned McCobb's Daughter."

"Miracle" Suit Settled Out of Court

SCREEN rights to "The Miracle," Reinhardt stage play, have been acquired by First National after two years litigation between Al Woods and First National on one side and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Joseph Menchen on the other, according to a recent statement by Iriving D. Rossheim, president of the company.

First National purchased screen rights from Mr. Woods and M-G-M arranged with Mr. Menchen. Both parties claimed ownership and engaged attorneys to clear the title. With officials of both companies present the final papers were signed settling the suit out of court.

Production on "The Miracle" will start immediately, according to a statement by Mr. Rossheim.

Houses Get Together on Co-operative Plan

THE Consolidated Theatres Company, formed by the Ohio Amusement Company and the Washington Circuit to operate two competitive Cleveland houses on a co-operative plan, went into effect on September 1st. The two houses which will be submitted to this test are the Five Points, St. Clair avenue and East 152d street, belonging to the Ohio Amusement Company, and the Plaza, East 152d street near St. Clair avenue, belonging to the Washington Circuit. Since these two houses were built, other houses have risen, so that the neighborhood is overseated. The Plaza and the Five Points, being near to one another, suffered the most from this situation.

They have been trying the old competitive plan for the past year with small success. So now they will pull together and see if by booking different types of pictures into the houses they cannot solve the problem of survival. If this plan fails, then, no doubt, the two houses will alternate their exhibition days.

M-G-M Signs Willard Mack and John H. Lawson

Willard Mack and John Howard Lawson, Broadway playwrights, were signed last week by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The former's specific duties on the coast have not been described but it is indicated that he will participate in the production of sound films. The latter will join the M-G-M scenario department.

Mack has 73 full-length plays to his credit and has appeared on the stage in several of them. He leaves inside of two weeks for the Culver City studio. Metro has purchased two of his plays for screening. They are "A Free Soul" and "A Voice in the Dark."

T. O. of So. California Convene at Los Angeles

The Theatre Owners of Southern California held their first general meeting since their recent re-organization last Monday, August 27, in Los Angeles.

The convention passed a resolution commending the services of the organization's secretary and business manager, A. B. Lamb, and retained him for another season. A report of the organization's progress and the financial statement were enthusiastically received by the assembly.

W. M. James, Head of Ohio M.P.T.O., Suffers Injury

W. M. James, president of the Ohio Motion Picture Theatre Owners, was rendered unconscious for more than an hour this week when he was struck on the head by a golf ball on the course of the Columbus, Ohio, Country Club. His injury, although severe, is said not to be serious.

Pathe Schedules "Craig's Wife"

Pathe's version of the stage play, "Craig's Wife," featuring Irene Rich and Warner Baxter, has been scheduled by the company for release on September 16.

S. M. P. E. Will Discuss Sound Pictures

New Process Film to Be Main Topic at Fall Meeting, Lake Placid, Sept. 24, 27

SOUND pictures will be the most important topic discussed at the Fall meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers when this body again convenes at Whiteface Inn, Lake Placid, N. Y., Sept. 24 to 27, inclusive, according to an announcement by J. I. Crabtree, chairman on papers, publications and arrangements.

There will be six papers by members of the technical staff of the Bell Telephone laboratories, including demonstrations, and the very latest Western Electric sound recording apparatus will be installed in the convention room. The various papers on sound recording, promised to date, are as follows:

"The Quality of Speech and Music" with demonstration, by J. C. Steinberg, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc.

"Sound Reproduction in Theatres," by O. E. Scriven, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc., and H. B. Santee, Electrical Research Products, Inc.

"General Principles in Sound Recording," by E. C. Wente, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc.

"Methods of Synchronizing," by H. M. Stoller, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc.

"Recent Advances in Wax Recording," by H. A. Frederick, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc.

"Light Valve Recording" with demonstration, by Donal MacKenzie, Bell Telephone Labs., Inc.

Installation and operation of the demonstration equipment will be in charge of H. B. Santee of the Electrical Research Products, Inc.

Mr. John Mills, Director of Publications of the Bell Labs., will also present a paper dealing with "The Organization of Research in the Bell Telephone Laboratories."

"The Three Electrode Vacuum Tube and Its Application in Sound Recording," by E. W. Kellogg, General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

"The Optics of Sound Recording Systems," by A. C. Hardy, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass.

"Acoustics of Theatres," by Prof. Paul E. Sabine, Geneva, Ill.

"Acoustics of Sound Recording Rooms," by Dr. Heyl, Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

"The Sound Motion Picture Situation in Hollywood," by Frank Woods, Secretary of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, Hollywood, Calif.

"Sound Synchronization and Projection," by F. H. Richardson, technical editor, Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World.

There will be a series of technical papers by staff members of the Research Laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Co., including a description and demonstration of the new Kodacolor process of motion pictures in color.

Other papers scheduled are as follows:

"An Experiment in Class Room Films," by T. E. Finegan, President, Eastman Teaching Films, Inc.

"Under Sea Motion Picture Photography," by Floyd Crosby.

"Heat Absorbing Glasses," by H. P. Gage, Corning Glass Works.

"Stereoscopic Motion Pictures," by Wm. V. D. Kelley, Kelley Color Films.

"A New Intermittent Optical Projector," by J. F. Leventhal.

"Dye Toning with Single Solutions," by J. I. Crabtree and C. E. Ives, Eastman Kodak Research Laboratories.

There will also be a session devoted to announcements of new apparatus by manufacturers. This is an opportunity which the Society offers to all manufacturers gratis to announce and describe there recent apparatus, products, or processes. Manufacturers wishing to take advantage of this opportunity should communicate at once with the Chairman of the Papers, Publications and Arrangements Committees.

Plan Club's Opening

Directors Meet at Luncheon; Members Will Compete With Lambs for K-A Trophy

AT a board of directors luncheon, called by Al Lichtman, president of the Motion Picture Club, it was announced that the formal opening of the club would be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 12. Mayor Walker is expected to be present to make the dedicatory speech. The dinner will be a formal affair and will be limited to invited guests and two hundred and forty club members.

Director Jack Alicoate injected the first competitive element in the history of the new Club. He announced that at the Film Daily Golf Tournament on Tuesday, September 11, a match would be played between the Lambs Club and the Motion Picture Club for the Keith-Albee Trophy, which has never been competed for in all of the years that these Film Daily Golf Tournaments have been held. It will now become a trophy for competition between the theatrical, vaudeville, motion picture and amusement clubs of New York City. Arthur Stebbins was appointed by President Lichtman as Captain of the Motion Picture Club's team and a meeting will be held this week with Oscar Shaw, Captain of the Lambs golfers to arrange final details.

Lee Ochs gave the directors a surprise when they appeared for this meeting. They did not expect any food but Steward Karch had prepared a lunch which equalled New York's best.

Heroine of "Nanook" Dying in Arctic

EXHIBITORS throughout the world will probably hear with regret that Maggie, the heroine of "Nanook of the North," is dying in her tiny tent in the Eskimo Camp at Port Harrison, in Northern Canada, according to a radio message received from an exploration expedition in Hudson's Bay. Maggie was reported to be dying from the effects of an injured spine, despite the efforts of a medical officer attached to the expedition.

Bow Re-signs with Paramount

Clara Bow this week re-signed with Paramount. Her newest vehicle, "The Fleet's In," will be shown at the Paramount Theatre in New York City within a few weeks. She is now engaged on her role in "Three Week Ends."

News and Comment on All Phases of "Sound" Pictures

Labor Troubles Are Being Adjusted

New Agreements Are Being Consummated With Union Chiefs

A threatened strike of the motion picture operators employed in fifty-eight independently operated motion picture theatres of St. Louis, Mo., was averted on September 1 when an amicable settlement of their differences was reached by the Motion Picture Machine Operators Union No. 143 and the owners of the theatres. Every union operator was on the job as usual the night of September 1. The old wage scale and working agreement expired at midnight on August 31.

Under the terms of a compromise reached the projectionists in the theatres that charge an admission of 25 cents or more will be granted an increase of $5 a week, their scale ranging from $58 to $85 a week.

In the smaller theatres the machine operators will continue to draw $54 a week.

The increase in wages applies to five of the independently operated houses, all the big first runs, such as Ambassador, Missouri, Grand Central, St. Louis, Loew's State, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, etc., and to the St. Louis Amusement Company chain of twenty-seven houses.

Originally the projectionists through their union officers had demanded an increase of from $5 to $7 weekly. This demand was subsequently reduced to $2.50 to $5, depending on the size of the theatre, after the union members had unanimously voted to reject a request made by officers of the Independent Moving Picture Show Owners Association that the operators take a cut of 10 per cent.

A deadlock had developed which for a time threatened to result in a strike of the projectionists, but at the last minute all differences was satisfactorily composed.

Equipment Rushed for 300 Publix Houses

SOUND equipment is being installed as quickly as possible in Publix and affiliated houses. It is said that at present about 180 Publix theatres are operating with Movietone and Vitaphone, and that by January 1st of next year the number will be increased to 300.

All haste possible is being urged by Publix upon the Western Electric Co. to complete installations, and it is said that every effort is being made to have all houses in the chain, or affiliated with it, equipped to show talking pictures at the earliest possible moment.

Little Need for Sound Censorship, Says Maryland Board Chief

SO smoothly has the arrangements of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors for checking up on sound-talking pictures with the exhibitors of Baltimore and Maryland been proceeding that the members of the board are undecided whether they will ask for authority to regulate talking motion pictures from the next Legislature, according to Dr. George Heller, chairman of the Board.

Dr. Heller thinks there is little need for such authority and while the present law makes no mention of giving them the right of censorship, they have been censoring the pictures in their studios and have been finding that the exhibitors are willing to co-operate with them in all matters.

"The exhibitors have not questioned our authority to censor the pictures," said Dr. Heller. "The Baltimore police department has control of the speaking stage and if anything is found in the talking motion pictures that should be deleted and the exhibitor questions our right of censorship, then I imagine the police would be able to exercise their authority."

Beginning on September 1 the union musicians employed in the fifty-eight independent theatres of St. Louis, Mo., accepted a reduction of $4 a week per man and also put into effect more liberal rules for the operation of orchestras in the small theatres. The new contract with the Independent Moving Picture Show Owners Association was a step in the union's fight against "canned music" and will lead to the employment of more members of the union it is believed.

The new contract between the musicians and the twenty-seven members of the Associated Amusement Enterprises of St. Louis has not been made public as yet.

St. Louis' Big Three, the Ambassador, Missouri and Loew's State, several weeks ago reached satisfactory agreements with the musicians, motion picture machine operators and the stage hands.

Moving picture theatres in Danville, Ill., were without music on September 1 because the Danville local of the Musicians Union had refused to renew its contract with the Home Theatre Company. The old agreement expired at midnight on August 31.

The theatre owners had offered to pay the old wage scale and employ the same number of musicians called for in the old contract, but declined to submit to additional demands made by the union.

Following several conferences, which extended over a period of more than two weeks, Kansas City exhibitors and motion picture operators came to an agreement late Saturday on a wage scale for the ensuing year. The present contract in force was adopted, the scale ranging from $42 weekly in houses of 500 or less to $60 in theatres of more than 1,200 seats.

Because of poor business conditions several exhibitors favored a decrease in the scale, but that was rigidly opposed by the operators. A committee will be appointed soon to consider all disputes arising between the operators and exhibitors. In case the committee fails to settle the matter satisfactorily the case will go to the Kansas City joint board of arbitration. R. R. Biechele, president of the M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri, acted as chairman at the meetings.

Despite the walk-out of their entire musical staffs and strike of stage hands in one of the playhouses, two New Orleans theatres carried on programs last Saturday.

The Saenger Theatre, where the musicians struck owing to a disagreement with the management, offered a program composed wholly of Vitaphone and Movietone musical and vaudeville numbers together with the regular photoplay features.

Loew's State Theatre staged a substitute program to supplant the orchestra numbers and the regular film attractions.

The strike at Saenger's followed a break between the local chapter of the musician's union and the theatre owners which came to a head Saturday morning when the musicians, consisting of the stage band, concert orchestra and organists, went on a strike.

The friction was caused by the Saenger people doing away with two organists at the Tudor Theatre several weeks ago when the Vitaphone made its New Orleans debut at that house. The union protested that this was a violation of the contract and, after several exchanges of letters and communications, the walk-out resulted Friday night after the last show.

Universal's First All-Talkie Has Pre-view on Coast

UNIVERSAL'S first all-talkie. "Melody of Love," has been completed and tried out on the West Coast. A precedent is being established by Universal in the making of prints, the printing laboratories at Universal City being now engaged in turning out all the film on this feature needed for New York and other exchanges. The picture, which was made by the Movietone process, is expected in New York next week.

The completion of this picture means that Universal will be among the first in the field with an all-talking picture. Added to that company's current synchronized pictures, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Man Who Laughs," "Give and Take," "Man, Woman and Wife," and "Lonesome," it places the Laemmle organization in an enviable position.

"Melody of Love" is a picture of doughboys and the songs of the war days. It was adapted from a story by Robert Arch. A. B. Heath directed it, with a cast including Walter Pidgeon, Mildred Harris, Tommy Dugan, Jane Winton, Jack Richardson and others.

Mary Pickford Buys "Coquette" for All-talkie Picture

THE importance of the all-talking picture is now realized by the biggest stars in the motion picture industry. Mary Pickford is to do one of this type. She has purchased the screen rights as well as the talkie rights to the Broadway stage success, "Coquette," in which Helen Hayes has been starring for an entire season.

"Coquette" is considered an ideal vehicle for Miss Pickford and the fact that it is to be an all-talkie should give her her greatest opportunity to display her ability as an actress. The play is by George Abbott and Anne Bridgers and elaborate plans are already being made for the screen production.

Sam Taylor, who directed Miss Pickford in her last screen attraction is in New York at the present time studying the stage version of "Coquette," with the idea of reproducing it on the screen as accurately as possible. He declares that the screen play will not be a mere motion picture with sound added, but that it will be made with an entirely new technique different to that employed in the silent drama.

Since the advent of the talkie there has been much discussion as to the technique to be employed in screen productions of this nature. The majority of those who have been making a study of talking picture production say that a technique different than that of either the screen or stage is necessary for the successful talkie. It has even been advocated that a talking picture should have both screen and stage direction to make it a success.

There has been no word forthcoming from the coast studio as to the technique to be employed, except that it will be entirely different than that applied to the present silent drama. This detail will probably be decided immediately upon the return of Sam Taylor to the coast.

The stage play is now being adapted for the screen by Johnny Gray and Allan McNeil of the Pickford staff. Production on it will be started in the near future.

Pathe Short Subject Specialties to Be Made With Sound

AMEDEE J. VAN BUREN, President of the Van Beuren Enterprises, producers of short subject specialties released through Pathe, announces that beginning at once three of these shorts will be available to exhibitors in sound as well as in silent form. These shorts are "Topics of the Day," "Aesop's Film Fables," and "Grantland Rice Sportlights."

"Topics of the Day" will be presented with each chapter appearing as a complete sketch, all "gags" in dialogue, and proper types cast for each characterization. These synchronized "Topics" go into production immediately.

Special readers have been put on by "Topics of the Day" to augment the present staff—the old staff to continue gathering material for the silent form, the new staff exclusively devoted to gathering material for the sound form. The psychology of the spoken word, it is said, in satisfying a mass reaction to humor necessitates different material from mere printed matter.

"Aesop's Fables," encouraged by the success of "Dinner Time," the sound issue which played the Mark Strand Theatre in New York will also be available in sound in addition to the regular issue in silent form. The sound issue will be based on the same material, except for the addition of synchronization.

Through synchronization of "Grantland Rice Sportlights," the public will be able not only to see the famous sportman's depictions of the last word in athletics, but also to hear him personally describe in layman's language the finer points of each particular game. These too will be continued in the "dumb" counterpart.

This step by the Van Beuren Enterprises is cited as another indication of the tremendous strides being made by this short subject producer in developing the possibility of short features.

Third Universal Picture Is Synchronized

Synchronization of a third Universal picture has been completed. Universal officials and executives have heard the synchronized version of "Man, Woman and Wife'," the Eddie Laemmle Jewel with Norman Kerry and Pauline Stark featured. This will follow "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Man Who Laughs" to the synchronized screen within a week or ten days.

"Man, Woman and Wife" was synchronized with music and sound effects. An augmented New York symphony orchestra supplied the musical setting.

Sound, Dialogue Likely for "House of Shame"

Sound and dialogue synchronization for Chesterfield's latest picture "The House of Shame" is being given serious consideration.

George R. Batcheller, President of the company, says: "If our market demands sound pictures, they will be forthcoming. However, we are not jumping blindly into the proposition until all angles have received due consideration." Chesterfield has four pictures ready now with six more to go into production shortly.

Paramount to Issue Sound Trailer on "Wings

Paramount will have available shortly a synchronized de luxe trailer on "Wings." The trailer consists of carefully selected punch scenes from the picture, selling titles and a brief mention of the production's record as a road show attraction, with every foot, including titles, synchronized with sound effects. The trailer runs about 250 feet.

First Bristolpohne For Washington House

The first exhibitor to contract for an installation of the Gotham-Bristolphone equipment is A. Julian Brylawski of Washington, D. C., for the Earle Theatre. He signed with Matty Radin, Gotham Sales Manager.

"Noah's Ark" First Sound Spectacle

World Premiere Set for Grauman Chinese Theatre in Hollywood

WARNER BROS.' big spectacle, "Noah's Ark," which has been in progress of production for the past two and one-half years, is to have its world's premiere at Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood. Contracts were concluded during the week for this initial showing between Sam E. Morris, general manager of distribution for Warners, and Mr. Grauman.

This premiere will be of particular importance, not only for the fact that the picture will be one of the biggest spectacles ever presented on the screen, but also because it is the first spectacle to be shown with sound accompaniment. At the time production was started little was thought of sound accompaniment, but since Vitaphone has come into such popular favor, it was decided to synchronize sound with it.

"Noah's Ark" has Dolores Costello in the starring role and Warners will offer it as the outstanding achievement of their business career. The slogan attached to it by the company is "Made to top any picture ever made." Sid Grauman is said to have been eager for many months to sponsor the premiere. Final negotiations between him and Mr. Morris were conducted over the long distance telephone between New York and San Francisco.

No definite date has been set for this premiere, but it is scheduled to be held in the near future. The contract calls for an indefinite run at the highest prices ever charged on the coast. Because of the magnitude of the production and the fact that it will be the first picture of the kind ever shown with sound, Mr. Grauman is making even more elaborate plans than usual for the showing.

For the greater part of two years research and technical experts worked on production details called for in the story, which is by Darryl Francis Zanuck. Director Michael Curtiz spent five months of actual shooting time at the cameras before the task of editing was undertaken. Extensive use of Vitaphone was another important element in the making of the production, which, in addition to the principals, is said to have employed over five thousand players.

A modern and a biblical story constitute the dramatic basis for "Noah's Ark," providing a parallel between the visitation of the World War and the visitation of the Flood to purge the world of sin. Dolores Costello occupies the stellar role with George O'Brien playing opposite her. Others in the line-up are Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Paul McAllister, Guinn Williams, Anders Randolf, Myrna Loy, Nigel de Brulier, Armand Kaliz, William V. Mong, Malcolm Waite and Joe Bonomo.

Warners Take Over Piccadilly in London for Sound Pictures

WARNER BROS. has taken over the Piccadilly Theatre in London, England, and will give the first Vitaphone presentation held in Europe there on September 27th. The attraction will be Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." Arrangements for the presentation are being made by Herman Starr of the Warner home office. He is now in Europe.

Following the London opening, Vitaphone will be introduced in other European capitals, as Warners are planning extensive expansion abroad. The company is said now to have a wider foreign distribution than it has ever before enjoyed. Warners now control National Film A. G. of Berlin, whose studios are actively engaged on pictures for the coming season. It is planned to include Vitaphone sound features in the production schedule of National in the near future.

Rayart Plans Erection of Sound Studios

AS first steps towards the erection of special studios to house the Rayart sound units, Trem Carr, producer for Rayart, this week took options on several sites in Hollywood.

The company has signed several players with speaking voices suitable for talking picture work, including Henry B. Walthall, Gladys Brockwell, Tom Santschi and Mae Busch. Mr. Carr declares that others will be placed under contract just as soon as tests have been taken.

Rayart has eliminated the western, serial and comedy from its line-up this year, and plans to concentrate solely on 20 feature productions. One of the latter, recently completed, and entitled "Sweet Sixteen," may be held back for synchronization and sound effects. It was originally set for September release but has been reset for December. "The City of Purple Dreams" has been advanced to September 15, and "Sisters of Eve" will be the October 1st release.

Gotham-Bristolphone Equipment Is About Ready for Market

THE formation of the Gotham-Bristolphone Corporation is formally announced by Budd Rogers, vice-president of Gotham Productions. The new company will market Bristolphone, a synchronizing device manufactured by the Bristol Company of Waterbury, Conn., which has been making recording instruments since 1889.

Bristolphone is a disc device which, the manufacturers claim, is interchangeable in the projection of sound films with all other disc systems. It is the invention of Professor William H. Bristol, president of the Bristol Company. The factory, laboratories and the sound stages of Gotham-Bristolphone will be operated at Waterbury. The company is in a position to turn out theatre equipment in quantity immediately.

The new corporation is establishing its sales headquarters at 1650 Broadway, New York, in a new suite of offices. Sound effects will be made in short subjects, novelties and acts, aiming for the ultimate delivery of complete service programs. Installations will be leased on a rental basis, with the parent company servicing the exhibitor throughout the duration of the use of the system.

It is claimed that the outstanding feature of the Bristolphone is an exclusive re-synchronizing arrangement which guarantees the automatic co-ordination between lip movement on the screen and sound. The mechanism is said to be so simple that operation of the device can be manipulated by anyone.

Gotham Productions is making elaborate preparations for the application of sound in its pictures. Two sound stages are now being built at the Waterbury plant and the first picture to be synchronized will be "Times Square," starring Alice Day and Arthur Lubin. The story is by Norman Houston and was directed by Joseph C. Boyle.

"Desert Song" is First Vitaphone Operetta

Warner Bros. are preparing for the production of the first Vitaphone operetta, "The Desert Song," based on the musical romance presented on the stage by Schwab and Mandel. Roy Del Ruth will direct the screen version which will be Vitaphoned throughout.

Harvey Gates is now writing the continuity for "The Desert Song" and screen tests with Vitaphone will be made next week for players to be featured in the leading roles. Camera work on the production will start early in October.

Woods Group Is Leasing Big Houses

Broadway Producers Reported Acquiring Large City Theatres

INDICATIONS are that the group of Broadway producers headed by the Shuberts, Al Woods, William A. Brady, Hammerstein and others, are proceeding with their plans to produce their own stage plays as talking pictures, despite the plea for an injunction to restrain the sale of Vocafilm stock to them.

It seems that these producers have been quietly going ahead with the signing of leases on legitimate houses in which to show their product. They are said to be offering houses such generous terms for leases covering a period of five years that these houses cannot afford to turn down the proposition.

Word comes from San Francisco of the possibility that the talkies may drive stage productions from the Geary and Curran Theatres, two of the leading houses of the city. Homer Curran, guiding genius of the houses is quoted as saying in Los Angeles that the offer of a guarantee has been made and that it is so large that it would exceed any profit the houses could make with the present class of productions.

Th offer, according to Curran, comes from the Al Woods group, which sees large profits to be made in the west by means of the newly perfected talking pictures being applied to their stage successes. Their plan would mean the elimination of expensive road companies annually sent from New York.

None of the Broadway group of producers had anything to say regarding the acquisition of these theatres, which have also been reported from other points. With the New York theatrical season opening Labor Day, the local producers are all so busy rehearsing or opening their new plays that they claim to have had no time for the present consideration of the talking pictures. They say they will not proceed definitely until the injunction suit against the sale of stock of Vocafilm is definitely settled.

The plea to make permanent this temporary injunction was denied in the New York Supreme Court during the week by Justice McCook. The plea for the permanent injunction was asked by F. Dudley Kohler. It urged the restraining of the sale of the Vocafilm Corporation to Al Woods, the Shuberts and William A. Brady for reorganization.

Mr. Kohler alleged he had a half interest in the stock of the corporation which was in the name of David R. Hochreich, its president. He had received this interest in the stock by verbal contract, he said.

According to the affidavits filed by Mr. Hochreich, Mr. Kohler had no interest in his stock; that at the time the company was organized Mr. Kohler had professed to be in a position to provide large capital for it, but that he had not done so, and that his only connection with the corporation was as attorney in some matters which had been assigned to him. Mr. Kohler still has the right of appeal from the court ruling and probably no definite steps will be taken by the producers until they learn of the further action to be taken by Mr. Kohler.

Christie Gets Cohen Stories for Talkies

OCTAVUS ROY COHEN'S stories of colored folk that have been appearing in The Saturday Evening Post for the past several years, have been acquired by Al Christie, who plans to make them into talking pictures for release through Paramount. The dialogue between the darktown characters is considered particularly appropriate for talking pictures.

The producer is now selecting the stories that he will film first. No production date has been set so far.

Sound Picture Reviews

By THOMAS C. KENNEDY

Raquel Meller

AS a sample of the art of Raquel Meller this presentation in which she sings "Corpus Christi" will serve to show masses of the public the reason why people in this country paid ten dollars for the privelege of sitting in the audience at concerts which the famed diseuse gave on her tours of cities in the United States. The offering is well staged and the Movietone is adequate in giving at least an impression of the vibrant dramatic interpretations and the vocal distinctions of a great artist.

Harold Murray

Schubert's Serenade with sentimental trimmings is given vocal rendition, as well as violin interpretation, in this number featuring Harold Murray, a tenor possessed of a voice of pleasing quality. A bit of a story has been spun about the affair, the "plot" being concerned with a love over which there hangs the shadow of paternal objection. Her father's favorite song is Serenade, and the girl wins him over by playing the song on her dead mother's violin. It is a bit sticky as to story, but the atmospheric background is there to set off the singing of Serenade to violin obligato.

Lionel Atwill

Edgar Allan Wolfe's "The White Faced Fool," a vaudeville sketch about one of those broken-hearted clowns is the vehicle which introduces Lionel Atwill to picture audiences via the Movietone. It is a vehicle for the style of acting in which this player specialized profitably when he climbed to stardom some years ago. The playlet is effective, having several scenes that give the star every opportunity to portray that high-tension emotionalism which constitutes one of the most generally appealing types of drama. Mr. Atwill's voice records very well and the picture is one that will go well on any program.

Winnie Lightner

A very brief jazz interlude is provided in this short reel presenting Winnie Lightner in her rendition of "Everybody Loves My Girl." The piece is done in Miss Lightner's usual style, which has its points, and the staging is successful in presenting the typical vaudeville atmosphere and technic.

Impersonations Feature "Mother Knows Best"

Madge Bellamy will be heard in vocal impersonations of Al Jolson, Harry Lauder and Anna Held when she appears in the Fox picturization of Edna Ferber's novel, "Mother Knows Best." The picture is booked for a run at the Carthay Theatre in Hollywood opening October 1st. It was directed by J. G. Blystone.

FBO Studio Forces Set Fast Production Pace

2 New Vehicles Launched and 2 Others to Follow Them Shortly; Editing and Finishing Work Progressing

PRODUCTION activity prevails at the studios of FBO in Hollywood where last week saw the launching of two new features. The two new pictures are "Tropic Madness," starring Leatrice Joy, and "The Little Outlaw," a new vehicle for Buzz Barton. Plans are fast nearing completion at the studio for "Outlawed," to star Tom Mix, and "The Jazz Age," which Lynn Shores will direct. These two latter films will be launched at almost any time.

In addition to the new pictures, George B. Seitz is now filming the last few scenes for "Hey Rube!," based on carnival and circus life. Marshall Neilan's "His Last Haul" is in the process of titling and editing.

FBO has engaged Lena Malena to play a native role in "Tropic Madness," and Henry Sedley, George Barraud and Frankie Darro for other supporting parts. Robert Vignola is handling the story, written by Ramon Romeo and set for early winter release. Louis King is directing "The Little Savage," in which the boy actor appears with a cast including Milburn Morante, Patricia Palmer, Sam Nelson and Ethan Laidlaw. Frank Howard Clark wrote the story.

Tom Mix' "Outlawed" will have a novel setting for the star's western type of action as it will portray the adventures of a cowboy in East Africa. The story is by George W. Pyper and will be directed by Eugene Forde. Scenes have already been shot for Mix' second FBO vehicle, the title of which has not been divulged. "Outlawed" will be his third for this company.

"A Man's Man"

With a complete reproduction of the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood as his first setting, James Cruze has started directing "A Man's Man," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new starring comedy for William Haines.

"She Goes to War"

Inspiration Pictures, Inc., has completed the organization staff unit to assist Henry King in his production "She Goes to War," for United Artists release. They are Harry Schenck, production manager; Marco Elter, assistant director; Tony Gaudio, cameraman; Robert M. Haas, art director; Ned Mann, technical director, and Captain N. R. Dawley, military advisor.

Born in Europe

Jean Hersholt, Universal star and conceded as one of the leading character actors of the screen, is a native of Denmark and came to America as an artist while the Panama-Pacific International Exposition was being held in San Francisco in 1915, as a representative of the kingdom. He was an artist and stage director of note and he was to supervise the Danish exhibit and was to cement the entente cordiale between Denmark and the United States.

Hersholt was born in Copenhagen. Both his parents were prominent in stage life, so his knowledge of the drama is inherent. He was a painter and artist until he entered upon a stage career which he followed for 12 years in stock in Denmark, Sweden and Norway. He later was in motion pictures for four years in Denmark.

With the completion of the exposition, Hersholt appreciated the opportunities offered in Hollywood and he signed as a member of the Universal stock company where he played small parts, meantime learning and absorbing American technique.

Some of the productions in which Jean Hersholt has been an important figure are "Greed," "Don Q," "Stella Dallas," "The Old Soak," "Alias the Deacon," "Jazz Mad," "Abie's Irish Rose," and "The Girl on the Barge," which he has just completed.

Frank Capra, motion picture director, got a good break when he returned from service in the army following the world war. He exhausted every channel through which he might get work, as a chemical engineer in which he had a college degree, and he was hungry and without funds. So he started to write. He sold a couple of stories and started in pictures as a writer.

It was no easy job, this writing for the screen for the very smallest independent companies, but Capra stuck to it until he made a success of it and through this channel, became a director. Since properly striking his stride, he has been with Mack Sennett, Hal Roach, FBO and First National. Among his successful pictures are "The Strong Man," "Long Pants," and "For the Love of Mike," although he recently directed "Submarine," and will make a second picture for Columbia upon completion of editing the first sound picture produced by that company.

Capra is a native of Italy, but his family moved from there to Hollywood when he was a youth, so he received his education in the grade and high schools of Los Angeles and then graduated from the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

Change in Schedule

Marie Prevost was not able to carry out her schedule to motor to New York and return to Salt Lake City by September 1st. Instead, she started with Kenneth Harlan in Chicago and went by airplane to Salt Lake in plenty of time to meet her agreement.

"The Man in Hobbles"

Lila Lee has been signed to play the principal role in the Peter B. Kyne story, "The Man in Hobbles," to be produced by Tiffany-Stahl under direction of George Archainbaud. Production is under way.

On Location

Jacqueline Logan, who started work this week in a feature role of "Stark Mad," for Warner Brothers, her first talking picture, is on location at Balboa Bay.

Noah Beery's Three Roles

Noah Beery is enjoying the distinction of being featured in two of the most important film undertakings of the season. He is the motivating Cecil B. DeMille protagonist in "The Godless Girl," and in "Two Lovers" Noah is the duc d'Alba—one of his finest roles. He will also be seen in "Noah's Ark."

Kate Price in Dramatic Role

Kate Price is playing her first dramatic role in years in "The Godless Girl" at the Biltmore. She appears as chief matron of the reformatory in which the drama transpires.

Advice

"Study your character," says Richard Wallace, referring to the cast to be directed. "Each individual demands different direction," he opines.

"Broadway Melody"

Harry Beaumont will wield the megaphone on "Broadway Melody," Edmund Goulding's original story for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The picture will be made with sound effects and talking sequences.

Tunney's Leading Lady

Virginia Vance, leading lady for Gene Tunney in Pathe's "The Fighting Marine," is playing opposite Jack Cooper in Mack Sennett's new series of Pathe two-reelers known as the "Taxicab Series."

Bancroft in New Role

George Bancroft is soon to start work in the title role of "The Wolf of Wall Street" at the Paramount studios. Rowland W. Lee is to direct.

Hot Weather Difficulties

In "The Iron Mask," Gino Corrado will enact the role of Aramis, D'Artagan's pal in the current production of Douglas Fairbank's sequel to "The Three Musketeers." Both have prepared for as much comfort as possible during the months they will be required to wear heavy wigs, for Doug has suffered some shearing, but Corrado has let the clippers have full sway and is bald as an egg.

"Desert Song" Adaptation

Harvey Gates is to adapt the musical stage hit, "The Desert Song," which is to be produced by Warners.

:: "The Check-Up" ::

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who consider it "Fair"; the third, the number who consider it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who consider it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.

MANAGERS ROUND TABLE CLUB
THE CLEARING HOUSE FOR BOX OFFICE PROBLEMS and THEATRE OPERATION
By Charles E. Lewis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of short articles by Charles E. Lewis who recently completed a tour of the Mid-Western states for the MOTION PICTURE NEWS to study exhibitor conditions first-hand.)

Comparing Eastern and Western Conditions

A comparison of prevailing conditions in theatre operation between the east and the middle-west brings one great point to the front. In my humble opinion I believe the average theatre manager in the section of the country that I visited is possessed of more initiative, more of the "go-getting" spirit than those of the east (myself included). They seemed to me to be keenly alert for each and every opportunity to capitalize on some idea, some stunt or some exploitation that would increase interest, not only in a particular picture, but in the theatre itself.

This constitutes in my opinion one of the reasons why they have been better able to weather the present depression better than theatres in the east. Of course, keep in mind that this article, as well as those to follow, are aimed at the average smaller town, and not the big cities. I never attempted to analyze the city conditions at any time.

Community Spirit Valuable Asset

I found better municipal tie-ups, newspaper tie-ups, civic co-operation and general showmanship than I thought existed in these places. Community spirit, that element which is most always overlooked in the east, is a great big valuable asset out in the mid-western parts. A better feeling is very evident in most of the towns and the desire to lend a helping hand to every worthy cause, regardless of immediate gain, is one of the things that we of the east could well copy. It's an angle that the Club has preached from the start, but has been lacking in many towns and cities where it could be converted into real money if only the managers would try and understand how to utilize it.

I found very few managers who were not members of the local Chambers of Commerce, Boys' Clubs, Boy Scouts and numerous other organizations, all which would bring them and their theatres to the front on many important occasions.

As far as other conditions are concerned, we could liken them to growing corn anywhere. You till the soil, you plant the seed and you give it proper attention while it grows. And, after all, this applies to any business regardless of where it might be. So the same could be said of theatre conditions all over the country. You must naturally follow certain prescribed rules, but you must add to them that certain "something" called individuality, personality or any other name that suits your fancy, but develop that knack of creating good-will, good fellowship and the "it" of theatre management, "Showmanship," and you are well on the way to success.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Enclosed please find my application for membership in the Managers' Round Table Club.

I have been using the News for the past twelve years, and always appreciated the helpful and instructive information. I want to take this opportunity of congratulating you in organizing the Managers' Round Table Club, because it creates more interest among the managers to interchange ideas beneficial to Theatre Operation.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) M. A. Cooper,
Manager, Corona Theatre, Corona, L. I., Small-Straussberg Circuit.

An Open Letter

Dear Friends:

When we book an attraction which, in our belief, has exceptionally fine entertainment and laugh-giving qualities, we never have any hesitation, in "telling the world" about it. Yes, we even go so far, at times, as to "shout it from the housetops," with every bit of publicity and advertising at our command.

This time we are "telling the world"—and how!—about William Haines' latest, and to many qualified critics, his best picture, called "TELLING THE WORLD." In it you will see a new Haines—more mature, a little more sophisticated, but, withal, the same merry, impudent play-boy of the screen. He is as wise-cracking as ever, but with this difference: he has "grown up" a little, acquired poise and has dropped some of his boyish nonchalance, notably in scenes calling for rugged two-fisted action.

"TELLING THE WORLD" will play the Lyric Theater for two days, beginning Thursday, August 23rd. Haines plays the role of a dauntless, happy, carefree "cub" reporter whose assignments eventually take him to turbulent, warring China, where the girl he loves is trouping with a show. Anita Page is his new leading woman. She is a real new screen find—charming, beautiful and alive with personality and, according to William Haines a real actress and destined for starring honors in a short time.

You have, undoubtedly, been following this story which has been running in The News-Advocate. See your imaginary characters brought to life on the screen.

Tell your friends to tell their friends not to miss "TELLING THE WORLD," for we're "telling the world" that it is a picture you cannot afford to miss.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) EDW. T. ZADRA,
Mgr. Lyric Theater.

"Telling the World" and How

Edward T. Zadra, manager of the Lyric and Ramsdell Theatres in Manistee, Mich., had to tackle "Telling the World" and brothers, that's exactly what he proceeded to do. Rarely have we come across a campaign so well executed as his.

Briefly, here is how he handled it: First keep in mind that this story was written by a newspaper correspondent and therefore opens the door to any newspaper editor in the country regardless of how hard-boiled he may be. So Mr. Zadra worked that angle with the result that his paper ran the serial terminating it a day before the opening of the picture. Also before the opening he ran an open-letter ad—which we reproduce on this page. This is the type of theatre advertising that is distinctly different and bound to attract attention to your theatre and results must follow. In addition to the above he also had teaser ads running throughout his papers showing a man with a megaphone and bold faced type reading: "TELLING THE WORLD," in other words, you can bet your last dollar that everyone in his town knew there was something doing in connection with "TELLING THE WORLD" and we are tickled to announce that the business was even better than was anticipated. We get just as much kick out of publishing such a successful stunt as he did in watching it "click." If a man would only take enough time to sit down and plan a real advertising campaign it would surprise him to find how easy these things can be worked out. And by following the Club pages hundreds of these are described, any one of which you can select and work into your own picture and theatre. Try it just once.

Another All Sound Theatre Clicks

After telling at length about the All-Sound Vita-Temple up in Toledo we were surprised to find there was another operating along the same lines for several months now, and as in the case of the first one, the second is just as successful in this particular field. I would even venture to say that the Cameo Theatre in Bridgeport was a step further advanced in this sound presentation. This is one of the Alfred Gottesman chain of theatres up New England way and ably managed by Edgar Lynch.

The Vitaphone acts in this house have ceased to draw a groan from the audience with the flashing of each trailer prior to the act, because the usual trailer is cut out. This is a mighty wise move because wherever the acts are presented grouped together, it does become very monotonous to look at the same thing before each and every act. Manager Lynch just starts with the name of the act flashed on a screen flooded with multi-colored lights and fades as the screen draw curtains open.

It is an idea well worth copying and we are sure that if you try it you will stick to this method.

"Mike" Can Be Used to Great Advantage

Sensible use of the microphone attachment to the Vitaphone equipment is another modern feature of the Cameo, and they never miss a chance to bring it into use, either in conjunction with some short subject or to stimulate interest in a coming attraction via a well-phrased announcement. We can think of about a hundred corking uses for the "Mike" and those theatres now equipped with one should make steady use of it and the others should get one as soon as possible.

Like Jack O'Connell up in Toledo, Manager Lynch cues all his non-synchronized subjects himself with the aid of his "staff" and they all constitute a regular board of strategy that spells "good" results right from the start.

Exhibitors up in the New England section would vote the time well spent if they would journey to Alfred Gottesman's Cameo Theatre in Bridgeport and take a lesson in "sound-picture" presentation from this pioneer in the field of "talkies."

Boosts Show at Rival House

THE true spirit of magnanimity among competitive exhibitors is not a myth, as we prove by the photo above. The upper part of the picture speaks for itself, the Bijou theatre, New Brunswick, N. J., is being remodeled and improved for first run presentations.

The lower half shows a stand comprising a 6 and a 24-sheet flash for two of Walter Reade's theatres in that town and both of them are in direct opposition to the Bijou.

David Snaper, who owns and will operate the Bijou, invited the managers of Reade's houses to use the Bijou front, notwithstanding the competitive relations between them.

This is a rather unusual proceeding that stamps Snaper as a showman who puts into practice the bigger principles of showmanship. Keeping the public's interest alive in motion pictures and in attending picture shows is the best way to cultivate the theatre's field of operation, even if it means the solicitation of business for the opposition during an interruption in the showings at the theatre man's own house. Snaper's lead is one that might be followed with mutual benefits all around by other showman.

Layouts for Special Films to Be Included in Mat Service

HAND-DRAWN ads exploiting special pictures released by the larger distributors will be an added feature of the material supplied theatre clients of the Theatre Ad Mat Service, Uniontown, Pa., it was announced this week by K. V. Woodward, general manager.

Hitherto the mat service provided special layouts for general use in connection with motion picture and stage presentations, such layouts being adaptable type heads and copy featuring any picture. With the addition of the new service, subscribers will receive in their monthly supply of mats a number of layouts featuring particular pictures of special importance.

The Theatre Ad Mat Service was inaugurated about a year ago and since that time has steadily increased its list of subscribers and now is supplying theatres in all parts of the country, including the houses of a majority of the largest theatre circuits, with a monthly shipment of mats for illustrations, borders and name slugs.

In announcing the extension of the service Mr. Woodward said:

"With the thought in mind that it could be of even more service to its clients, TAM has inaugurated this new plan which calls for the furnishing of special designs on all large pictures released in addition to the usual monthly shipment of general theatrical art. By this means, TAM clients will be able to reproduce in their local newspapers ads which have every appearance of being made especially for the one theatre. All producers have promised their full cooperation and the plan will probably be welcomed everywhere as a new thought in theatre publicity."

Finds Flivver Too Small to Ballyhoo Picture

Instead of using the proverbial flivver to ballyhoo a picture, Manager Jack Lykes secured a larger car to ballyhoo "Just Married" playing at the Strand Theatre, Tampa, Fla.

The larger car allowed more space to be filled in by wiseracks.

The old car was one of those topless contrivances, so an old beach umbrella was used instead. This really made the car more conspicuous and attracted plenty of attention.

Showmanship Briefs

ONE of the most welcome signs of the official close of the summer season is the reappearance, after a suspension of two months, of that most lively of theatre house organs, The Palace Review, published monthly by the Palace theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, under the management of Harry Turberg and Harry Silver. The Palace Review is well known to showmen all over the country and in Hamilton it enjoys a prestige and a reading public which places it among the most influential publications in that town. Joe H. Mayer is the editor. "Old Man Palace" is back on the job again, and working better than ever, for the September number, a copy of which was received by this department this week, is even more sprightly with comment and news about pictures and people and affairs than any of its predecessors.

ONE of Manager T. Y. Walker's best bets in advertising "Forgotten Faces" at the Noble Theatre, Anniston, Ala., was a tie-up with the town's leading photographer. The photographer displayed about twenty different photographs of people who had them taken nearly 20 years ago. Every photo shown was a person who had been or still is, a prominent citizen of the fair city of Anniston. To make the window display more interesting prizes were offered to persons identifying the photos.

THE Matinee Club idea has been found to be an instant success by Tom Forhan, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Welland, Ontario, as a means to develop and maintain juvenile patronage for Saturday afternoon shows. Cards bearing 10 spaces for punch marks are issued to the children, the names of the respective members appearing on the cards. When a ticket is purchased, the card is punched. After attending 10 successive Saturday shows, the membership card is good for one free admission. Matinee memberships have proved an excellent incentive, Mr. Forhan has found, and Saturday patronage has held up in spite of counter attractions.

MANAGER H. S. AMOS used a walking ballyhoo in the form of a young man attired in evening clothes to advertise the all-talking picture, "Lights of New York" at the Plaza Theatre, Asheville, N. C. Instead of using the regular studs in his stiff bosom shirt, the young man used flashlight bulbs which were connected by a wire to a battery in one of the pockets.

MOVIE fans of Oklahoma City wrote their own titles for stills on "The Man Who Laughs" when that production played at the Liberty Theatre. The Oklahoma News ran pictures from the film for seven days before the play date of the film. The theatre offered forty dollars in cash prizes and theatre tickets for the best titles to the stills.

IT'S not very often that Manager Jack Lykes, of the Strand Theatre, Tampa, Fla., displays an 850- dollar shadow box in his lobby but that's just what he did to advertise "A Ship Comes In." The expensive lobby display was made possible through a tie-up with the Clyde Line. The display was a picture of one of the Clyde Line's fleet of ocean-going vessels with revolving lights behind it to give the effect of the ship passing through waves of the briny deep.

Pick Best Exploitation Ideas Submitted for "The Barker"

JUDGES of the exploitation idea contest conducted by First National for "The Barker" have selected the winning entries in the exhibitor competition to which hundreds of showmen operating theatres in all sections of the country responded. Upon completion of the work of checking the various campaign outlines submitted, the judges announced the following as winners of the contest:

The first two cash prizes were awarded to Walter E. Parks, manager of the Leeds Theatre, Winchester, Ky., and H. Gittleson, Prospect Theatre, Flushing, L. I. The winners of the next five cash prizes are Theodore Fleisher, Crescent Gardens Theatre, Revere, Mass.; L. L. Levy, Ideal Theatre, Corsicana, Tex.; F. B. Hill, Liberty Theatre, Walla Walla, Wash.; Hal G. Olson, Adler Theatre, Marshfield, Wis.; and George W. Reap, Arcade Theatre, Ft. Myers, Fla., last of the winning exhibitors.

Two-thirds of the contestants held that the best selling angle in "The Barker" is the behind-the-scenes expose of street carnival life, and First National's advertisements of the production will stress this angle strongly.

Exhibitors who received honorable mention for their contributions to the contest are: G. S. Kenny, Community Theatre, Greenwood, Ind.; Fred J. Cassin, Loew's Cameo Theatre, Cleveland; J. Luther Thomas, Jr., Capitol Theatre, Chambersburg, Pa.; R. J. Boyd, Jefferson Theatre, Honaker, Va.; Guy E. Hammitt, Majestic Theatre, Seymour, Ind.; Robert G. Hudson, Alden Theatre, Safety Harbor, Fla.; M. Cebulesky, Lyric Theatre, Summit Hill, Pa.; Lon B. Ramsdell, Colonial Theatre, Haverhill, Mass.; J. A. Glazier, Strand Theatre, Nantasket, Mass.

Helling Takes Christie Prize for "Tillie" Exploitation

V. J. HELLING, of the Baker Amusement Company, Keokuk, Iowa, is the winner of the $300 first prize in the advertising and exploitation contest on "Tillie's Punctured Romance" conducted by the Christie Film Company.

The contest was inaugurated with the release of the picture, March 6, 1928, and theatre managers and advertising men were eligible to compete; it closed June 1st.

Hundreds of campaigns were forwarded to "Tillie" at the Christie studios and later submitted for judgment to Pat Dowling, publicity and sales director of the Christie Company and Russell Holman, advertising manager for Paramount.

A review of the campaigns proved theatre managers and the advertising and publicity men had extended themselves to put the picture over with the public. Many of the methods used were elaborate, ranging from a complete circus campaign, including parades, special banners and posters and lobby displays, to simpler means of exploiting the picture, but all showed considerable thought and expenditure of time.

Mr. Helling used the circus idea to create patronage during the run of "Tillie" through his circuit. He organized a parade with all the circus paraphernalia.

Prior to the opening special posters and snipes were placarded all over town, thus creating advance interest in the picture. During the run the theatre lobby was transformed into a circus side show tent with the ticket seller installed just inside the flaps of the tent. The circus idea was further carried out inside the theatre where vendors sold pop corn, pink lemonade and hot dogs.

Other winners of the prizes which totaled $1,000 are C. T. Perrin, Sterling Theatre, Greeley, Col., $200; John D. Moody, Rialto Theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn., $100; and J. L. Hobby, Strand Theatre, Tampa, Florida, Vernon Gray, Metropolitan Theatre, Boston, Mass., W. F. Davis, Metropolitan Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, and H. E. Jameyson, Miller Theatre, Wichita, Kansas, who each received $50.

Pulse Tests to Determine If Patron Enjoys Show

"FEEL MY PULSE" is not only a movie title, but it may hereafter be a command to your family physician to determine whether or not you have enjoyed a picture.

During a recent showing of "Drums of Love" at the Lyric Theatre, Cincinnati, physicians, who have contended that the spectators' reaction to a picture is definitely recorded by the heartbeats, proceeded to conduct an experiment in support of their theory. The subjects were Florence Haw and Bernice Ahi. Both girls claimed they enjoyed the picture, although Florence's pulse remained normal, 72, while the pulse of Bernice rose to 108.

"They Talk" Featured Line in Sound Film Display

Manager Tom Holliday played up the talking feature on the "Lion and the Mouse" in his marquee display when that picture was the current film attraction at the Ritz Theatre, Columbia, S. C.

At one end of the marquee was a huge cut-out of May McAvoy with a banner containing the word, "Mouse" floating overhead. On the other end of the marquee was a large cut-out of Lionel Barrymore with a "Lion" banner waving above.

Between the two cut-outs were cut-out letters reading, "They Talk." These letters were studded with electric lights and made a very flashy showing, especially at night.

Just underneath "The Talk" was a lettered sign reading, "Over the Vitaphone—May McAvoy—Lionel Barrymore."

"Dancing Daughters" Strut on Float as Ballyhoo

A special and appropriate float was used to ballyhoo "Our Dancing Daughters," when it played at the Strand Theatre, Akron, Ohio. Ray C. Brown, theatre manager, assisted by an M-G-M exploiteer, managed the campaign of which this stunt was a part.

A new Graham truck was used and a flowered float was placed on it with two young ladies, in special costumes, dancing on the truck accompanied by an orthophonic, loaned by the Rudick Music Store. Truck was used two days, Friday and Saturday, preceding the opening, covering the down town streets, out in front of the Goodyear, Firestone and Goodrich tire factories. As the truck would stop for light signals the girls did a little dance. Banners on two sides of truck and back, made in shield shape, read: "'Our Dancing Daughters,' The Jazz-Mad photoplay, Strand Sunday."

Baseball Fever Makes Tow Hot for "Warming Up"

Down in Jackson, Tenn., we are told the town is baseball crazy and will sponsor anything that has a tinge of baseball to it. That's the frame of mind Manager Jack H. Hodges found the various Civic Clubs of Jackson when he asked them to sponsor a tie-up on "Warming Up" at the Lyric.

The various Civic Clubs sponsor a city baseball league made up of teams from the various department stores, industrial concerns and railroad. The Civic Clubs asked all the baseball players to appear in their uniforms for a little warming up exercise in the form of a parade which would eventually lead them to the Lyric theatre to see a great game enacted on the screen.

Some of the players carried banners while others carried small baseball cut outs from window cards on which appeared a cut of Dix and the title of the picture. The banners carried copy about the picture, theatre and play dates.

Sound May End Stage Acts in San Francisco

Possibilities that the talkies may drive stage productions from the Curran and Geary theatres, late this fall looms large in the theatrical horizon of San Francisco. From Homer Curran, now in Los Angeles, comes word of an offer for a 5-years' guarantee covering both theatres. The guarantee is so large, he said, that it would exceed any profit the house could hope to make with the present class of productions. The offer comes from a theatrical combine in the East.

Roaming Camera Men "Shoot" Mysterious Ladies

The Knoxville Journal co-operated with Manager Chas. H. Amos in a newspaper hook-up that gained plenty of publicity for "The Mysterious Lady" playing at the Riviera Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.

The newspaper sent one of their photographers on the streets with instructions to shoot a pair of ladies without their knowledge of having the picture taken. This proceedure was pursued for several days in advance of play date.

Key City Reports

New York City

AUGUST business done in Broadway houses has conclusively proven that managers need have no fear of a hot weather slump if the attractions are of sufficient strength to interest the public. The last week's trade was consistent with the pleasing returns registered the fore part of the month; again we must state that it is due to a strong line-up of pictures plus sound. The number of sound pictures along the street has been steadily on the increase and novelty or not the public is letting go of real money to look them over. A strong point, too, is the fact that producers of sound pictures are overcoming many little flaws found objectionable by local newspaper reviewers and the boys are coming through with some flattering remarks.

More house records were broken last week when "The Terror," Warner's all-talkie, topped the mark set by Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." Warner's claim that seats are selling eight weeks in advance for this show and that capacity has been registered at every performance since it went on three weeks ago.

Standee business is also being done by M-G-M's "White Shadows" at the Astor, another picture done with sound. This picture has been in town all of August and a third performance on Sunday and holidays has been arranged. First National's "Lilac Time" is likewise making a lot of money for this company, not only in this town but all over the States. At the Central, business has been very good.

Columbia's "The Scarlet Lady" left the Embassy to let in that company's "Submarine" and attendance and press notices on the latter have both been good. Business at the Roxy continues among the figures that bring smiles to the Roxy countenance. "Four Sons" (Fox) made it a three-weeks' stay and "Fazil," another Fox picture is in at present. The Rialto only fell a bit below its previous week's showing with "The Patriot," which means that these houses did nice business again. And the same can be said for "Tempest" at the Rivoli. Barrymore and sound proved a tempting morsel for this town's taste in pictures.

Both the Strand and Paramount using a combination sound and silent program, fell a bit below their usual weekly marks—but not enough to be alarming. The Paramount showed "Sawdust Paradise" (Par.) with sound, and the Strand, "Oh Kay" (F.N.). These houses registered the only signs of weakness along the street. The Capitol did another good week with John Gilbert's "Four Walls" (M-G-M).

Fox's "The Air Circus" came into the Gaiety last Saturday and it is put down as a good picture. Whether the picture, served without some trimmings, is a $2 attraction there may be some question. The feature only runs about one hour and twenty minutes but there's another hour of Movietone subjects and on the whole the program is a plasing one. Fox's "Red Dance" and Movietone did another so-so week at the Globe.

Paramount's vet special, "Wings" did another very good week's trade at the Criterion where it has been for over a year. Selwyn's "Dawn" played the little Cameo to good business.

Los Angeles

DESPITE the raise in prices which went into effect at Warner Brothers Hollywood Theatre this week, a long line of patient patrons forms constantly on both sides of the box office and the new attraction, "The Terror," is doing capacity. The Vitaphone offering is drawing them in to the extent that Warners takes the lead in doing good business at this writing.

"White Shadows in the South Seas," at Grauman's Chinese, ranks second. It is enjoying splendid business and continues to run with encouraging indications of a protracted engagement.

At United Artists Theatre, the advertising of Samuel Goldwyn's "Two Lovers," which states that the picture is the last joint appearance of Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, seems to have stimulated business at the down-town house. Receipts evidence increase in paid admissions over recent attractions at that house.

"The Godless Girl," the C. B. DeMille current offering, continues to do well at the Biltmore Theatre and the Fox picture starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "The Street Angel," is doing moderately at The Criterion.

At The Carthay Circle, Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time" hold on. With the same First National star in "Oh Kay," Loew's State cashed in, and the following attraction, "Four Walls," was well received at Loew's and it looks as if the Jack Gilbert starring vehicle would do a record week.

It is reported that "The Fleet's In," the Paramount picture starring Clara Bow, is doing capacity, although business previous to its opening, was off.

An average of good business was enjoyed by nearly all houses during the event of "Greater Movie Week."

Ottawa

THEATRES of Ottawa, Ontario, got back into something like their regular stride during the week of August 27—with the Ottawa Fair over, summer sports petering out and the weather a little cooler.

One of the best features of the season was "The Goodbye Kiss." From both a picture and business standpoint, this picture, directed by Mack Sennett, had the Centre Theatre sitting pretty.

There was an excellent attraction at the Regent Theatre in "The Mysterious Lady," thanks to Greta Garbo and the picture's colorful action. The box office was busy all week, matinees showing a particular increase in patronage.

B. F. Keith's also had a splendid comedy-drama in "Chicken a la King," a strong cast being seen to good effect. Crowds at Keith's were substantial and they were pleased with the feature.

The Imperial had a type of production in "Detectives" that is popular with its regular patrons and they were out in goodly number. The picture was well received.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" had a healthy run at the Laurier Theatre in Hull, Quebec, the French-Canadian patronage being highly enthusiastic over its appearance there. Big business was the result.

The Eden Theatre, Hull, was also a popular rendezvous for the engagement of "The Sport Age," the patrons there being well pleased with the feature.

Harrisburg, Pa.

HARRISBURG theatre patrons were most favorably impressed by their first experience with a complete picture play accompanied by sound devices when they went to Loew's Regent this week and saw and heard "Tempest," starring John Barrymore. Prior to that the only talkies produced in the city were news reels with Movietone accompaniment. The innovation had a very strong popular appeal as reflected in big box office receipts.

Though the weather during the first four days of the week was oppressively warm, business in all the theatres was quite satisfactory under the circumstances, as many persons have returned from summer vacations. The last two days were refreshingly cool and this brought out the movie patrons in increased numbers on Friday and Saturday. Richard Barthlemess in twin roles in "The Wheel of Chance," at the Colonial, proved particularly acceptable entertainment and drew big crowds, while at the Victoria good summertime business was done with "Just Married," the comedy offering of Anne Nichols which won high praise from the newspaper critics.

At the State the first half of the week the movie offering was Myrna Loy in "The Crimson City," which proved popular in connection with a sprightly vaudeville bill. The Russell presented Tex Maynard in "Wanderer of the West," with a fair degree of financial success, and the Grand cashed in quite satisfactorily with "Fangs of Destiny," starring Dymanite, another "wonder dog," coupled in a double bill with Jack Hoxie in "Heroes of the Wild." Thomas Meighan, in "The Racket," was shown at the National.

Minneapolis

LAST week was a very good one for the theatres in point of attendance, most of them having some conspicuous attraction to draw in the crowds.

"Street Angel," held over for its second week at the State, made a very satisfactory gross. Only one other picture, "Lights of New York," had run two consecutive weeks at the State, and "The Street Angel," therefore, must take rank as one of the biggest box office smashes of the year.

"Fazil" at the Minnesota did an excellent business, and there was much nice comment on this picture. It was supplemented by the Publix stage show, "Cameos." The Lyric divided the week between "Half a Bride" and "Doomsday," and did about the average business on each of them. Pantages was showing "The High School Hero," but the big magnet was Eva Tanguay in a personal appearance. The Hennepin-Orpheum had a good program for the movie fan and profited accordingly. Sessue Hayakawa was appearing in person in a one-act skit, "The Man Who Laughed," and the film attraction was "Beyond London's Lights."

The neighborhood houses profited by the cool weather and the fact that they were showing some sure-fire pictures. Good records were made by "Tillie's Punctured Romance" at the Loring, "The Racket" at the Lagoon, "Wheel of Chance" at the Arion, and "The Cossacks" at the Rialto.

Competition was a little keener than it has been recently as the Gayety (burlesque) and the Palace (musical stock) opened for the season.

Philadelphia

BUSINESS at the downtown motion picture theatres started off well, but two excessively hot days in the middle of the week caused attendance to drop off.

"Hot News," with Bebe Daniels, a highly amusing comedy, proved a good drawing card for hot weather and business at the Arcadia was better than last week.

Business at the Stanton, with John Gilbert in "Four Walls" was just average for a second week's run at this season.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell continued to attract throngs to the Fox Theatre for the second week's run of "Street Angel," with the same prelude, "Venetian Festival," with a realistic background, featuring Eric Titus, a tenor, who sang "Angela Mia" the theme of the picture. There were no presentation acts.

"Lights of New York," the first all-talking picture, which was introduced at the Stanley last week where it excited much interest, was transferred to the Aldine Theatre, where a very satisfactory week was reported, although there was considerable diversity of opinion as to the success of the sound synchronization.

The Stanley had a good week with "Her Cardboard Lover" and a diverting surrounding bill.

The Carman had a good week with "Say It With Sables" on the screen and a surrounding bill featuring the humorous and eccentric dancers, Harry A. White and Alice Manning.

The Forum had nothing to complain of with "The Irresistible Lover" and an excellent surrounding bill which contained something to appeal to every taste.

Of the second-run houses, the Palace with Colleen Moore in "Happiness Ahead," had a good week considering the season, although two hot days in the middle of the week reduced receipts appreciably. "Forbidden Hours" was the attraction at the Victoria and average business was reported. "Detectives," a rollicking comedy with Karl Dane and Geo. K. Arthur proved more popular with audiences at the Globe than "The Lion and the Mouse" presented the previous week.

Kansas City

A WEEK of fair attendance marked Kansas City's first touch of fall weather. Although there was no marked difference between the week just closed and preceding weeks, there was a slight increase in attendance.

"The Street Angel" at the Globe held up well for a week, as did "The First Kiss" at the Newman, featuring Fay Wray and Gary Cooper. At the Pantages theatre "The Port of Missing Girls" did an unusually large business, having a wide appeal and doing a big matinee business in comparison to the average afternoon crowds. "The Scarlet Lady" did an average business at the Uptown, as did "The Night Watch," featuring Billie Dove, at the Mainstreet. "Four Walls," with John Gilbert, did better than average business at the Midland.

The usual newspaper space and nothing out of the ordinary in exploitation was used by all of the theatres.

Cincinnati

THE week in the Queen City, although not hanging up any records to shoot at, was nevertheless satisfactory, with the evenings gradually getting cooler, the after-dinner attendances are atoning to a considerable degree for the more or less slack afternoons.

At the Albee, where Colleen Moore was seen in "Oh Kay," the audiences were quick to place their O.K. on both the picture and vaudeville acts which supplemented the screen attractions. The customers came in goodly numbers throughout the seven-day engagement.

Emil Jannings in "The Patriot," at the Lyric, proved a good draw, and was well liked by the lovers of the more serious drama. It is quite likely that the picture will be held for an additional week.

"Lights of New York," the first all-talking picture to be presented at the Capitol, had a steady following throughout the week, and the box-office check-up was entirely satisfactory to the management.

Keith's showed "The Crimson City," to good returns, the same being true of the Strand, with "Chinatown Charlie."

"Not for Publication," the first-half attraction at the Family, with "The Little Snob," penciled in for the last half, attracted about an average clientele for this house, which can generally depend on about the usual number of "regulars" where the admission price is a factor.

With the opening of the new season next week, managers look for a decided increase in business all along the line.

Atlanta

THE Howard this week apparently headed Atlanta theatres, offering John Barrymore in "Tempest." Although there was voiced a strong difference of opinion from those seeing this picture, it held its drawing power throughout the week at a steady good pace.

Keith's Georgia rang up a good gross with "The Scarlet Dove," plus a headlining vaudeville program.

Next door the Capitol offered a double headed program, Glen Tryon in "How to Handle Women," and Clara Bow in "Primrose Path." Business slumped a bit for this house.

At Loew's Grand a fall-off was noticeable. Not that "Wickedness Preferred" was directly the cause as this house has been on the downward path for several months. The Cody-Pringle number drew good laughs.

After a two-weeks' run of "Four Sons" the Rialto will at the end of this week bid it adieu, not reluctantly. It is hard to say why this picture failed to hold up. The first week's run proved fine but not even then comparable to the expectations of the management and value of the picture. The second week failed so that, although booked for a third week, it is being withdrawn.

The Metropolitan enjoyed an unusually good week with William Boyd in "The Cop," while good Vitaphone acts drew attention.

Oklahoma City

CLOUDY and cooler weather prevailing, and while none of the attractions have turned "em" away, the business has been very good the past week.

Rod La Rocque drew fair business at the Empress for first half of the week, but Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time," commencing Wednesday drew big and expected to run for indefinate run.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has commenced its second week at the Liberty and full houses have prevailed daily, and "Fazil," the review picture shown Saturday night was pronounced excellent by the large crowd present.

John Gilbert in "Four Walls" drew good business at the Criterion theatre.

The Capitol had a big and most excellent bill, the headline act being "The Swell Head" with lovely Bessie Love and Eddie Foy as the stars, and the picture was excellent. The feature "Across the Atlantic." Warner Brothers synchronized production starring Monte Blue was pronounced good, and was well liked by all patrons seeing it.

The Victoria's bill, "Cheating Cheaters" with Betty Compson and Kenneth Harlan as stars, enjoyed very good business.

Milwaukee

STATE FAIR WEEK brought in hosts of theatre-goers to the down-town theatres last week. Business was boosted at practically every house to a very appreciable extent. The Davidson, with a musical comedy, offered considerable competition to the picture houses but nevertheless, things were sprightly at the first run theatres.

The Wisconsin offered "Four Walls" and was rewarded with very good patronage. The Merrill found business fairly brisk with "Hell Ship Bronson."

"State Street Sadie" did good business during its week's stay at the Garden. The double feature program at the Strand, "Heart Trouble" and "The Wright Idea" was very successful in drawing excellent patronage. The vaudeville houses were very well attended throughout the week. The Riverside offered "Fleetwing." The feature picture at the Orpheum was "Man-Made Women."

Theatres on the outskirts found business rather dull throughout the week. "The Cossacks" at the Garfield, Uptown and Modjeska was fairly well attended. "Tenderloin" at the Oriental and Tower brought in moderate results. "No Other Woman" at the State was very successful. The Milwaukee drew good houses after having been closed for some time with "Shepherd of the Hills." "Road to Ruin" drew fair business at the Venetian.

Indianapolis

BOX office receipts were bad in Indianapolis last week because of the vacation season and bad weather.

Personal appearance of Jackie Coogan at the Circle in connetcion with the showing of "The News Parade" was a flop.

English's had fair business at "The Big Drive" because of attendance of Veterans of Foreign Wars delegates at the national convention.

"State Street Sadie" at the Apollo was a disappointment from box office view.

John Gilbert and Joan Crawford in "Four Walls" at Loew's Palace did only fair.

"The First Kiss," did average business at the Indiana.

Neighborhood business was fair.

The State fair which opened Saturday was expected to cut box office receipts this week.

Des Moines

DES MOINES THEATRE played up the opening of Fox Movietone News and it got a big reception. Very well received indeed. The feature film was "Hot News" with Bebe Daniels hitting a good role as a camerawoman. The week was a good one...

At the Capitol, Manager Frudenfeld had "Take a Chance Week" well advertised ahead and this plan again proved itself successful. The feature was "The Magnificent Flirt" with Florence Vidor and the stage show was up to average attraction.

At the Strand theatre the two pictures played there equally well to good houses. The first half was "Detectives" with George K. Arthur and the last half was "His Tiger Lady" with Adolph Menjou and Evelyn Brent.

The smaller theatres report that the hot weather has affected the trade but that they cannot complain at the box office results.

Birmingham

AS a whole, there was a general improvement in business in the Birmingham theatres the past week. The Ritz, with a Movietone edition of "Street Angel," had a very good week, although not as big as the preceding Fox opus, "Seventh Heaven," starring the same players, Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor. The Alabama had Parmount's "Forgotten Faces," with Clive Brook, and got over to nice business.

Dallas

DALLAS has had relief from the extremely hot weather of the past few weeks and the last seven days included some very cool days which may or may not have had something to do with the exceptionally good business enjoyed by the Dallas theatres this week. Business was up at all first run houses and no bad attendances were reported.
